BOHEMIAN ROLLERS.
J. ARCHER.

I have much pleasure in informing the public that I have taken over the well-known business of E. Power. I have received the first consignment of the above celebrated Rollers, which were in such big demand last season, and am now the sole importer of these birds. They are imported direct by me from Boheme, Austria-Hungary, and I guarantee no other Canary equals it for song. They are trained by the dngolet and Swiss pipes, and have the finest notes imaginable. These birds do not need any comment, as last season's purchasers know, price 8/6 each. Genuine Bohemian hens, warranted to breed, if not, money returned, 2/6 each; Hartz cock, guaranteed in full song, 4/6 each, 28/- stick of seven, and 6/- each, 35/- stick of seven; Hartz hens, 1/6 each, 15/- dozen.—Successor to advertisements it must be difficult for a would-be purchaser to select who he considers to be the most likely man to give him best value for money. From those people all I ask is a perusal of the unsolicited testimonials given below, and also those published by me week after week for years upon years past. These letters are from delighted customers of mine who, apart from business transactions, are utter strangers to me, and full name and address is given so that sceptical persons can make any inquiry they think proper, and I offer £50 to any person that can prove that I have ever, either directly or indirectly solicited a testimonial from them, or ever paid a penny piece for one. I claim to be the largest retailer of Roller Canaries in United Kingdom, and only importer of the Leipzic strain of "Webers." At present time I have over one thousand Rollers in stock, all in full song, day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet, silvery trills, soft roulades, waterbubble runs, Nightingale, jug-jug, bell, harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and all guaranteed entirely free from Titlark or any other harsh notes whatever price, 6/6 and 7/6 each. Premier Bandmasters, which excel in the deep, bass rolls and hollow bell rolls, 10/- and 12/6 each. Roller hens, 2/6 each, 4/6 couple. Also a fresh consignment of pure Seifert contest Rollers, in full song, price 15/-, 17/6, and 21/- each. Seifert hens, guaranteed exactly same strain, 3/- and 4/- each. These Seiferts are exceptionally low and mellow in tone, and song is like a cascade of ever-flowing melody. Also in stock grand lot of loud, free singing Hartz cocks, all real ceiling lifters, in full song day and gaslight, cocks, 4/6 each, seven for 28/-; Hartz hens 2/- each or 3/- couple. Every bird is sent on full week's trial on receipt of cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and money fully refunded if your every expectation is not realised. All safely and warmly packed in special travelling cages, with seed and water for 48 hours free of extra cost, and no matter how cold the weather, or long the journey, I take all risk during the whole time. The following testers:—"29, Clifford-road, West Stanley. January 12th. Sir,—Roller I got from you for my friend is quite a champion. He was singing five minutes after being unpacked, and is quite a treat to hear. The two I had for myself are also singing lovely. Please send me a Hartz cock. Yours, Wm. Roe." On January 18th, Mr. Roe writes: "Sir Received Hartz cock safely, and am highly satisfied." "49, Pimlott-st., Longsight, Manchester. January 9th. Sir,—Thanks for prompt attention and satisfactory way you have served me. I think anyone wanting a Roller would not hold back if they could see my bird. Yours, F. Higgins." "4, Canal-terrace, Glasgow Dock, Lancaster, January 17th. Sir, —Have instructed Editor to pay you for Roller Canary. He is a very good bird, and I am sure no better value can be got for money. Yours, J. Robinson." "King-st., Melton Mowbray. January 18th. Sir,—Received Hartz cock with thanks. It is even better than the last I got. Yours, W. Jackson." "Blairgowrie, Scotland. January 18th. Sir,—Bird arrived in good health, and started to sing. I am well pleased with it. Yours, T. Brough." "Cowdenheath, Fife. January 18th. Sir,— Received Leipzic Roller safe, and am glad to say am delighted with it. He is a grand songster. Yours, Wm. Cooper." "156, Bede Burn-road, Jarrow. January 18th. Sir,—I am delighted with the Seifert Roller purchased from you. Of course, I knew (having dealt with you before) that it would be up to the mark. Rest assured that when wanting another I shall not go past you. Yours, J. Young." "Harness Stores, Byfleet. January 16th. Sir,—Bandmaster arrived at 12.55, was singing at 1.5, and at 2 o'clock I had sold him to a friend. Please send another as before. Thanking you for prompt attention and straightforward dealings. Yours, F. Eyes." "New-street, Chasetown, near Walsall. January 16th. Sir,—Have instructed Editor to pay you deposit for Rollers. They suit me splendidly. Several friends have been in to hear them, and they are delighted with them. Shall recommend you to others. Yours, E. Cooke." "186, County-road, Walton, Liverpool. January 15th. Sir,—I am well pleased with Roller from you, and have instructed Editor to pay you deposit. Yours, G. Bingham." "67, Yorley-road, Highgate, London. January 14th. Sir,—The Roller you sent me is an absolute rattler. I have some that cost me 10/6, and yours is equally as good as any of them. Yours, A. Moy." "Mill-road, Haverhill. January 22nd. Sir,—Received Hartz cock safe, and am well satisfied. I think they are well worth the money. Yours, E. Doe." "31, Monteith-st., Bridgeton, Glasgow. Sir,—Received Hartz cock, and it is singing lovely. Yours, J. Holmes." "34, King-st., Westhoughton, near Bolton. January 26th. Sir,—Received birds all right, and they have turned out champion. A friend came to look at them, and he sent to you for three straight away. Yours, T. Morris." "67, High-st., Treorchy. January 25th. Sir,—Received birds safely, and give every satisfaction, both in song and condition. Please send on twelve more cocks, P.O. enclosed. Shall have another order for you soon. Yours, J. Keller." Remember these letters say more for my Rollers than I could ever say myself, and they should settle beyond doubt as to who is best man to send to for satisfaction. You get full week's trial from me, and all your money back if not fully satisfied. See British Birds; also Appliance columns for further advertisements.

AMONG SO MANY

ENGLAND'S BEST GERMAN-TRAINED SONGSTERS.

If you are interested in high-class singing Canaries, I am just the person to supply you with birds that will meet your every requirement. My birds do not require a lot of fairy tales and empty bounce to sell them; they are all genuine high-class songsters of superior quality. Every bird advertises itself. To prove the superiority of my songsters, let me send you a bird, carriage paid on seven days' approval, at my risk, that you may compare it with any bird supposed to be of similar quality. You will then be convinced that the quality of my birds is unequalled. I have had a lifetime's experience, breeding, importing, and exporting birds, and study the requirements of my customers. I do, and always have given every customer the utmost satisfaction. The many thousands of unsolicited testimonials and repeat orders I receive annually from delighted customers prove that for quality combined with cheapness, my birds take the lead.

STAND OR FALL!

I will stand or fall by the result of fair and unprejudiced public opinion on my system of doing business. My birds and bird appliances are no "catch-penny" items of trade. Everything I sell is sound and genuine. I give you the opportunity of a fair and honourable trial. I want no man's money with any man's grumble. I make my business friends; and (what is not always quite so easy) I KEEP THEM! My Specialities in Cages, Aviaries, Appliances, Foods, etc., for all Cage Birds have something more than merely "a local habitation and a name!" They are known all over the globe. They please all, and disappoint none. My Foods for Cage Birds are ever sound, serviceable, and satisfactory, and my prices all-round are based on terms of both merit and moderation. I sell no rubbish. I have neither time nor room for that class of business. It will afford me pleasure to send you, on receipt of two stamps, to cover postage, my new Illustrated Catalogue; and if you are interested in Bird Life, this work will aid that interest.

Remember that I send every Bird out on one full week's approval.

The terms of which I was the originator, despite statements to the contrary; the back numbers of this Journal will prove this. My Bird Price List, which includes every variety of Canary, will be sent post paid on receipt of post-card.

Prize Bred Yorkshires

YORKSHIRES.

You can read all the claims, and you may or you may not believe them; but if you will allow me to send One or One Pair of mine on approval against any others advertised, at any of the following prices, I shall feel obliged. That's making it actions in place of words.

I have some of the best extant winners at large open shows, cocks and hens, proof given, when and where won, who shown by etc. as I imitate no-one, and despise fairy tales (plainly speaking, untruths), and all those who make them. I can show my winners to anyone, or send on approval, as I do not make myself into a mere gas-bag, full of pin-pricks, nor trade under a false name, for ill at is what I call stooping to a low level indeed.

Cocks, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; Hens, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-. Pairs matched for breeding, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards.

W. RUDD, THE BIRD SPECIALIST,
NORWICH.

2 Cups, 4 Specials, 15 Firsts.

The winners of the above and other prizes are all for sale at reasonable prices, along with many other high-class birds, bred direct from and related to noted winners.

Having purchased the whole stocks of two most successful exhibitors, who are retiring from the Fancy, I offer all these high-class stock and exhibition birds at much below their value. I guarantee you every satisfaction if favoured with your order, as I undoubtedly have the best collection ever offered for sale at such low prices; every bird cold room bred and kept, in the pink of condition, including clears, ticked, marked, buffs and yellows.

Yorkshire Cocks, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 to 25/- each.

Hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6 to 12/6 each.

Matched Breeding Pairs, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-.

I am so sure that the quality of my birds will give you every satisfaction, that I will send any bird you require

Carriage Paid to your door on 7 days' approval at my risk.

You cannot have anything "fairer" than having the birds on approval at my risk, which allows you plenty of time to fully examine the birds and make sure they are exactly what you require before you decide to keep them. Do not be put off with small unshapely sickly cross-bred rubbish when you can have good quality typical birds at the same prices.

Norwich Cocks, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each.

Hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6 6/6 each.

Matched Breeding Pairs, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-.

Crested & Crestbred Cocks, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each.

Hens, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6 each.

Yorkshires and Norwich Songsters, in full song by day and gaslight, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6 each.

Note these dates; they are all 1909, the originals of which, along with thousands of other unsolicited testimonials, are open for your inspection.

First and Third.—4, Dunedale Cottages, Selkirk. Jan. 22, 1909.—Please forward me birds as per enclosed order. I may let you know that I won 1st and 3rd in large class with the two birds you sent last.—G. Scott to Miss Storey.

Nantille House, Pwllheli. Jan. 23, 1909. — Received Canary safe this morning; I am very well pleased with same, and thank you very much for your honest dealings. I can recommend your birds to all fanciers.—R. Jones to Miss Storey.

143, Freeman Street, Grimsby. Jan. 22, 1909. — Kindly accept my thanks for bird received. I am fully satisfied and will send you more orders.—V. Huggins to Miss Storey.

13, Noel Street, Gainsborough. Jan. 23, 1909.—Received bird safely; am very pleased with it. It gives every satisfaction. I shall be pleased to recommend you to anyone.—R. Mellership to Miss Storey.

Send me your name and address on a post-card for copies of unsolicited testimonials and illustrated price list of all kinds of birds. New illustrated list of birds, cages, etc., 1d. for postage.

All Canaries carriage paid to your door on 7 days' approval at my risk. Neat travelling cages 3d. each extra.

YORKSHIRES.

The old reliable breeder for best value and honest dealings. Read these testimonials from 32, Turzell Lane, Beamish. Jan. 31, 1909.—The yellow hen I had from you won 1st at our show.—Joseph Carr to L. Dykes. Another, from 57, English Street, Ormagh. Jan. 29, 1909.—Birds arrived safe and in good condition, and gives every satisfaction.—Wilson Macartney to L. Dykes. Another, from 45, Argyle Street, Rothesay, Bute. Jan. 31, 1909.—Bird arrived safe and am quite pleased with it. Thanking you for prompt attention to order.—Geo. Moodie to L. Dykes. Another, from Union Street, Leven. Jan. 28. — Received bird safe this morning. It is a nice bird, and very good value.—D. Michie to L. Dykes.

Fine, stylish, lengthy yellow Yorks. cocks at 6/-, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each; large tight-feathered buff cocks at 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each, all on full song, and 7 inches long. Properly matched unrelated pairs (cock and hen), for breeding own winners, ready for immediate breeding, at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 26/-, 25/- per pair. In clears, ticked, green, and cinnamon marked, and clear pink-eyed, colour fed or natural colour; choice collection of long, slim, leggy yellow and buff hens at 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6 each. The above are honestly worth double! and those wanting high-class stock from one of the best strains in the Fancy—my strain is unequalled; and I have won more prizes during the present season than any other exhibitor with the same number of entries. See show reports all through season. All guaranteed healthy and feathered to perfection, and as straight as an arrow; no frills, drop tails or wheezing birds here. All cold rooms bred and kept. Exhibition specimens reasonable. State wants.

Specially selected Yorkshire and Norwich songsters in full rolling song, at 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6 each; large pink-eyed Sib. bred hens, for light or dark Mule breeding, at 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6 each. Place your orders with the old reliable breeder, exhibitor and specialist, that gives every customer satisfaction. And remember, I send all birds on a full week's approval at my risk. Either for cash or deposit with Editor. And though scores have deposited with Editor, I have not had a single deposit that has had to be returned. (Editor holds proof.) Which proves the value I give. No waiting; all orders sent off at once, and best possible value for money. Travelling cages with proper food for journey, 3d. extra on all orders. Inspection invited.

Illustrated new price list of Yorks., Norwich, Crests, songsters, etc., and full particulars of my easy payment system, post free. This is a genuine offer to customers who are not in a position to pay ready cash. Birds sent off on receiving first payment. All on 7 days' approval at my risk.—Note address,

L. DYKES, The Reliable Aviaries, 70, Bolton Hall Road, BOLTON WOODS, BRADFORD.

WM. POWICK.

Champion Yorkshires, standard length and quality feather, the same strain as the winners at all leading shows; stock and show birds in all classes; second to none; cocks, 7/6, 10/6; hens, 5/6, 7/6 each; ten days' approval.—Wm. Powick, Eastfield House, Dewsbury.

H. H. TOWERS

is reluctantly compelled to reduce his stock for business reasons. This strain needs no puff, as proved by results at all Yorkshire Union Shows; satisfaction guaranteed, in clears, cinnamon and green marks; carefully matched pairs from 15/- upwards; on approval; cash or deposit.—Address, Heaton View, Cragg-rd., Windhill, Shipley.

YORKSHIRES,

High-class for stock purposes in clear, ticked, or unevenly marked, cocks, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6 upwards; hens, 4/6, 5/-, 6/- upwards; pairs, properly matched from 12/6 upwards; approval.—6, Ash Mount, Great Horton, Bradford.

SAMUEL DEAN.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

Owing to ill-health, I offer the whole of my Yorkshires for sale; they are acknowledged by Yorkshire judges to be the finest birds ever staged, as their winnings at Crystal Palace and other leading shows indicate They have been most carefully bred for 10 years, with the result that many of the stock birds are producing winners in every nest; these birds also possess length, colour, and quality of feather, seldom obtained in any other strain of birds; state wants.—Morgan Lewis, Haverfordwest.

J. WILCOCK.

The home for Yorkshires and Norwich Plainheads; this strain is, without doubt, one of the oldest and purest in the Fancy; I have over 300 birds to choose from; every bird teeming with quality; purchaser will be sure to breed winners from my noted strain; pairs from 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/-; cocks, Yellows or Buffs, 10/-, 15/-, 29/-, 30/-, 40/-; hens, Yellows or Buff, 7/6, 10/-, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; all birds sent on three days' approval; state your wants; I guarantee to give satisfaction; inspection invited.—14, Chapel-st., Eccleshill, nr. Bradford, Yorkshire.

HUDSON'S CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

In reply to many customers inquiring about birds being ready, all my birds are hard and fit for breeding, and in good condition, and I can recommend to them who want to breed own winners, as they are all bred from or related to winners at all leading shows: Shipley, Windhill, Bingley, Baildon, Bradford, and others too numerous to mention, including Palace. And remember, I want no man's money who does not purchase satisfactory. My stock includes clears, ticked, Greens, marked, and few cinnamon-marked. Long, raking Yellow cocks, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; long, raking Buff cocks, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; few songsters, 6/- each; long Yellow hens, 6/-, 8/-, 10/- each; long Buff hens, 6/-, 8/-, 10/- each; my special matched pairs cannot be beaten by them who have all the bounce; pairs, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, £1, £1 5s.; all on four days' approval; cash or deposit; stamp reply.—Hudson, Confectioner, Thackley, Bradford.

J. C. BARNES,

149, Duncombe-st., Walkley, Sheffield. Challenge cup winner 1905, 1906, 1907. Few choice for disposal; lengthy and well on leg, A1 position, feathered like wax; cocks, 20/- upwards; hens, 10/- upwards; matched pairs a speciality. Approval with pleasure; inspection cordially invited; stamp reply.

WHAT I ADVERTISE I Possess;

What I have not, I do not advertise. See my advertisements under the different headings.

I ask all requiring the best value money can purchase in Canaries, etc., to test my statements by having what they require on approval, and here is one opinion (in a nutshell) that goes exactly to the point, and the statement is not mine, nor one alone, but the opinion of thousands, only differently expressed.

Widnes, Lancashire. Jan. 25, 1909.—The light muling hen arrived in splendid condition. I am perfectly satisfied with your selection. You are certainly to be commended upon the manner in which you practise your declaration of "full value for money." My future wants will certainly be made known to you.—H. Pearce to W. Rudd. Multum in Parvo.

E. Cowes. Feb. 1, 1909.—The birds arrived safely on Friday. The cold weather did not seem to affect them a bit, for they were both as lively as possible. I am very pleased with them, and hope soon to be sending to you again. Will recommend you to all my friends. Only last week I was asked by a man who has about 190 Canaries, if I would care to buy a couple. I said I had already sent to W. Rudd, Norwich. He said: There you are sure to get satisfaction, for Rudd's is by far the best place to buy birds. I thought this was great praise from one who is breeding and selling. When I buy any, I shall always send to you.—C. Thompson to W. Rudd.

HAVE YOU TRIED THESE SPECIALS?

If not, just have a pair on approval. — My special matched pairs of prize - bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 30/-; Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Lancashires 25/-, 30/-, 40/-; Cinnamons, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Lizards, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Border Fancies, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6. These are the best value ever offered. ## TWITTERINGS.

We have sold almost all our winners, writes Mr. David D. Milne (Keith), through advertising in CAGE BIRDS.

I am a long-time reader of good old CAGE BIRDS, and would not be without it even if I did not keep birds.—J. WILD (Birmingham).

I won third in class 75, unflighted Yorkshires, at the recent Tredegar Show, writes Miss E. M. Jelley (Penygray), and not as reported.

I was very pleased with the Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS, which was splendid. The plates were first class.—T. E. NICHOLSON (Pitsmoor).

The Coventry Godiva C.B.S. are holding a table show on February 8th, at 8.30, writes Mr. W. H. Bray, secretary, when all fanciers are invited to attend.

I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS now for over a year, and I find it one of the best papers for birds I have ever seen or heard of.—DAVID KENNEDY (Coleraine).

On January 29th, some workmen employed on a roof in Girdlers Road, West Kensington, found a Sparrow's nest containing four eggs, writes Mr. E. Sharratt.

I have a Crestbred Canary, writes Mr. Franklin (Hendon), which was hatched on January 27th. Is this not very early? The birds were kept in a cold room only.

Twenty-six new members have joined the society since the annual show in November, writes G. A. Jefferys, hon. secretary of the South London Col. and F.A.

I find CAGE BIRDS is the best of all papers for advertisements, as I have always obtained very good results through its medium.—H. SATTERTHWAITE (Morecambe).

I have had so many replies to my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. T. Johnson (Southport), that I simply cannot answer all—only those who sent stamps.

Kindly note change of secretary for the Burnley Cage Bird Breeders' Society, writes Mr. W. Clarkson, 30, Pine Street, Burnley, Lanes. I have been appointed to that office.

I have been a subscriber to CAGE BIRDS for the last six years and have seen it grow, and I hope it will go on growing for a very long time to come.—S. HAIGH (Halifax).

The Inverness O.A. Annual Show, writes Mr. Alex. Urquhart, secretary and treasurer, is fixed for November 24th. Will secretaries of shows please take note of the date?

I saw two young fanciers recently, and brought your valuable paper to their notice, writes Mr. D. Marsden, hon. secretary of the Shipley O.S.; they are now taking it in.

In consequence of the Palace Show we have abandoned our meeting fixed to take place on Monday, February 8th, writes Mr. V. Wynn, hon. secretary City and Suburban A.C.B.

We are sorry to say that we have lost our winning Bramblefinch, write Messrs. Barry Bros. (Bristol), but am pleased that we have several others which, with a good moult, will take its place.

The last advertisement I had in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. W. Risker (Middlesbro'), was a great success. I was tired of taking letters and postcards in; in fact, I had to tip the postman.

As the date originally fixed for our pair show, viz., February 6th, falls on one of the Crystal Palace Show days, writes Mr. J. A. Bartlett, of the Leyton and Dis. C.B.A., it has been postponed to February 13th.

Owing to the very bad fog which enveloped London, the recent meeting respecting the proposed new society for City of London, was not a success, only four gentlemen turning up, writes Mr. H. W. Cook.

I have been appointed secretary of the Shipley O.S., writes Mr. D. Marsden, and all communications respecting same should be addressed to me. I should be glad to hear of anyone desirous of joining the society.

I had four young Yorkshires hatched on January 18th from the bird I won special with at Ruthin Show, writes Mr. William Jones (Bangor). The young are coming on well, and I have found other hens sitting on eggs.

I have changed my address, writes Mr. J. G. Hutchinson, secretary Northern Crest Club, so that future correspondence should be addressed to 72, South View West, Heaton, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

A printer's error occurred in a recent advertisement of that great practical bird specialist, Mr. W. Rudd, of Norwich, which should have read that he held a stock of all kinds of Canaries that has never been equalled either in Quality, Variety, or Quantity.

TWITTERINGS.—Continued.

Will Mr. H. J. Campbell who sent us an advertisement, together with a postal order for sixpence, in the early part of the week, kindly communicate with us? The advertisement could not be inserted as the name of the town was omitted.

The members of the Leith O.S. are to hold a table show and judging competition in the Liberal Club, Hope Street, on Saturday, February 13th, at 4 p.m., writes Mr. George Brown, the secretary. Mr. Jas. F. Dewar has kindly agreed to act as judge.

We hear that Mr. H. Butler, of Dorset Street, Coventry, and Mr. T. E. Waring, of Lower Ford Street, Coventry, have gone into partnership, and will in future exhibit under the name of Messrs. Butler and Waring, of 200, Foleshill Road, Coventry.

Kindly thank the great number, about 50 so far, who have replied to my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS for a Greenfinch and a Siskin hen, writes the Rev. Bernard Wilton (Middlesbrough). It is quite impossible to answer all the letters, or I would gladly do so.

A very tasteful and useful almanac reaches us from Mr. E. Taylor, the well-known "Universal Fanciers' Provider," of Thornton Road, Bradford, a copy of which will be sent to any reader who applies for one. The frontispiece is an excellent picture in colours.

The "Roberts Cup," writes Mr. R. Adamson, hon. secretary of the Scottish Crest Club, was won by Mr. Noble with 152 points. Messrs. McLay and Shillinglaw tied for second place with 106 points apiece. This was the first year of competition, and was confined to the club.

The membership of the Lowestoft and Dis. C.B.S., writes Mr. W. Lang, jun., the hon. secretary, is open to a five-mile radius, and anyone wishing to join will be welcomed at our meetings on the first Monday in each month at the "Fox and Hounds," London Road, at 8.30 p.m.

In my advertisement in the exchange column last week, your printers put "quilts" instead of "quoits; and as I have got so many offers of exchanges, would you please point out the mistake next week, as I shall be unable to answer all the letters I have got?—JAMES DICKSON (Penicuik).

Here is good news for CAGE BIRDS. The postman thinks I ought to have a special mail bag seeing I had over 30 offers for my Lancashire cock Canary, which I advertised for sale last week. This speaks volumes for your journal as an advertising medium. Kindly thank all who offered.—R. DICKINSON (Whitby).

The balance-sheet of the Norwich Amateur C.B.A. for 1908 shows a balance of 5s. 4d., after paying out 245 shares at 1s. 5½d. per member (£17 17s. 3½d.). This result reflects credit on the management, the officials of the association, and the secretary, Mr. E. Fox, and is no doubt very gratifying to the members.

I usually get, when advertising in CAGE BIRDS, about a dozen replies daily from all over England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales. My supply of privet berries this season has ceased, writes Mr. John Tucker (Aldbourne), as the replies from my advertisements in your paper were enormous in number. I should like to thank CAGE BIRDS for this.

The following have just been elected members of the Crested Canary Club, writes Mr. J. Tyson, the secretary:—Mrs. Pearce (St. Albans), Mrs. Galloway (Bedford), Mrs. Litchfield (Streatham), Miss Turner (Southampton), Messrs. P. Hart (Leigh), J. Harrison (St. Ives), A. J. Watcham (Walthamstow), and Major G. E. Gabriel (Lowestoft).

I beg to say that owing to lack of support I have not been able to induce the railway company to run an excursion from the Midlands for the Palace Show, on Saturday next, writes Mr. J. M. de Maillet. There is, however, a half-day fast excursion to London on Monday, February 8th, leaving New Street, Birmingham, at 12.8 noon; return fare 5s.

A meeting of the Council of the London Federation of Cage Bird Societies will be held at the Feathers' Hotel, Great Chapel Street, Westminster, on Thursday next, February 11th, at 7.30 p.m., writes Mr. P. Adamthwaite, the secretary, when the result of the voting for officers will be announced, and some important business transacted.

Judging by their first balance-sheet, to hand from the hon. secretaries, Messrs. Metcalfe and Hillmen, the Liverpool O.S. is established on a firm basis, both financially and as regards membership. A heavy year's work was very creditably got through, and the annual show a great success. There remains cash in hand, £6 4s. 7d., to start the next season with, which must be highly pleasing to all concerned.

A Californian reader, Mr. J. A. Douglas, sends us a cutting from the "Los Angeles Express," which gives the annual report of the Game Wardens. In it is stated: "English Sparrows to the number of 1,682 were killed, at an expense of 241 dollars, men being paid at the rate of 25 cents an hour to hunt the birds." Mr. Douglas remarks: "I am grieved to hear of the slaughter of the dear little English Sparrow."

The Morpeth C.B.S. have arranged to hold a hot supper at the Black Bull Hotel, Morpeth, on Saturday, February 20th, at 7 p.m., writes Mr. E. Cowling, the secretary. An open invitation is extended to all fanciers and friends to join us at this function. A smoking concert will follow, so that friends who can contribute to the harmony of the evening, will kindly bring their songs or instruments. The price will be 1s. 6d. per head. Will all who intend coming send word to me at Fulbeck Cottage, Morpeth?

GREAT SPECIAL NUMBER NEXT WEEK

TO CELEBRATE THE JUBILEE OF THE CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW,

Containing a Beautiful Coloured Plate and Much Highly Interesting Reading Matter.

WE shall next week, in accordance with our usual custom, issue a Special Crystal Palace Show Number. This, as a souvenir of the "Jubilee" Show, we shall do our best to make more than ordinarily attractive. It will contain a splendid coloured plate and some specially written contributions of absorbing interest to all lovers of birds, while the Great Show itself will be found reported in the fullest detail by some of the leading experts in the Fancy to-day. In view of the heavy work such a gigantic number entails upon our printers and the staff of CAGE BIRDS, secretaries of societies and contributors generally will oblige by sending their announcements to reach us by Monday's post, February 8, at latest.

Advertisers will doubtless not be slow to take advantage of the remarkable circulation the Crystal Palace Number always achieves—this year it promises to be more extensively world-wide than ever—and we earnestly impress upon them the necessity of sending in their announcements as early as possible, and in any case not later than first post next Tuesday, February 9. Advertisements may be handed in at our stall at the Crystal Palace Show, where we hope to meet many new friends as well as all the old ones who regularly visit this function. Don't forget to put your name and address in our Visitors' Book.

About a month ago I bought a cock Bullfinch from a friend, writes Mr. C. Bennett (Leyton). It had been with some Canaries a few days before. While we were having tea one day it was trying to imitate some of my Canaries in song. We all call him "Bull." He has got so tame since we have had him that he will take a sunflower seed out of my hand.

A copy of the "Fanciers' Diary," half-crown edition (bound in morocco leather, and with card and stamp pockets), reaches us from Messrs. James and Co., 189, Sirdar Road, Wood Green, London, N. It is a very tasteful pocket diary indeed, exceedingly useful, and we can recommend it to any fancier on the look out for a well-designed and convenient diary for the pocket.

The Hull C.B.S. has issued a very fine programme for the 1909 season, full of items attractive to fanciers, and printed in excellent style, the "get-up" testifying to the ability of the secretary, Mr. E. R. Ridley (19, Lambton Street), who will be glad to hear from birdkeepers desirous of joining the society. There is a splendid list of members' shows, and it is contemplated organising a club excursion to one of the principal cage-bird exhibitions during the coming season.

The Siskin-Canary Mule I had entered for the Palace Show, writes Mr. G. Lander (Leicester), has had the misfortune to knock out the flight feathers of one wing. I quite expected it to get well in the money. A traction engine with a heavy load went by my house, and made such a row that my birds were fairly shook off their perches (being in the front room downstairs). I found handfuls of feathers about the room, and it was quite an hour before the birds settled down after it.

We have received a copy of the February number of "British Birds," a magazine devoted to the birds on the British list. It contains several interesting articles, and a number of valuable notes. Mr. J. M. Dewar's "Field Notes on the 'Powder Down' of the Heron" affords capital reading, as do also Mr. W. H. Mullens' observations on two British Ornithologists, John Ray (1627-1705), and Francis Willughby (1635-1672). "Bird Life in a Spring Snowstorm" is the title given to an article by the Rev. A. Ellison, M.A., B.D., M.B.O.U.

The Heywood and Bury Societies are holding inter-club shows, first at Bury on February 13th, and at Heywood on the following Saturday, February 20th. Each society is to stage 4 birds in the following 6 classes:—1, Yorkshire, A.V., Yellow; 2, Yorkshire, A.V., Buff; 3, Norwich, A.V., Yellow; 4, Norwich, A.V., Buff; 5, A.O.V., Canary; and 6, A.V. British Hardbill. Mr. R Barrass (Rochdale), has kindly consented to place the cards at both shows. Points to count 7 to 1. Local fanciers please note.—A. H. MEADOWCROFT, hon. secretary, Heywood and Dis. O.S.

It gives me great pleasure to congratulate you on your Birthday Number. The plates alone are worth far more than the money. Great was my surprise to find your artist had favoured my Unflighted Yellow Yorks, with a place amongst this season's winners. It has always been my ambition to breed one good enough to catch his eye, but I did not anticipate it so soon. The bird has been out 3 times, 3rd at Bristol F.A., 1st at Cardiff, 1st at Bournemouth. I am pleased to say I had the pleasure of breeding him and his parents and grand-parents, which all won in good company. —MRS. L. GARLAND (Bristol).

I enclose a report of the meeting of the Cinnamon Canary Club at Manchester Show, writes Mr. R. J. Pretty, the hon. secretary. The reason for the delay is that I lost my note book. For some time I searched for it but could not find it anywhere. As a final resort, it struck me that it might have fallen off my desk (as some papers have done before) into a waste-paper basket that I kept underneath. I have emptied that basket twice since November, and always turn the contents into a sack with the other office waste. I had it cleared the week before last, so I wrote to the dealer, and it was restored to its "despairing" owner this week; hence the report. At the meeting at the Palace several questions, or, at least, the type question, will come on. I know several are coming from the North to go into it, and I anticipate a lively meeting.

Having won the Toronto medal for best Green bird in the show at the Green Canary Association old show held recently, may I through your columns thank Mr. J. C. Barnes for his grand recipe—port, honey, and a bit of iron—which he gave in CAGE BIRDS some time ago? I attribute the good condition in which the bird was shown to the use of this recipe. I wish your grand paper every success. —JOHN GORE (Liverpool).

Having taken over the secretaryship of that well-known society, the Liverpool Bird Breeders' Association, writes Mr. F. E. Hawkes, 1, Great Crosshall Street, Liverpool, I am very pleased to state that a great many old fanciers have rallied round with their support, and I have secured a goodly number of specials for the coming night show of pairs, to be held February 11th, at Oldham Hotel. Birds to be staged at 7.30. The list of specials in the 5 classes is as follows:—5s. for most points Yorks. and Norwich Clears; 5s. for most points Yorks. and Norwich Greens; 2s. 6d. for best pair of Yorks. Greens; 4 qrts. of seed for best pair of Norwich Greens, and in the A.O.V. class; also good cash specials. Mr. S. Hadwin will judge.

OBITUARY

Mr. T. BENNISON (Harrogate).

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. G. H. Barnwell, hon. secretary of the Harrogate C.B.S., that I have to announce the death of one of our oldest and most esteemed fanciers, Mr. T. Bennison, of Grove Park Lane, Harrogate. He was ever a genial and true fancier, being well respected by all who came in contact with him. Yorkshires were his Fancy, and he bred several very promising young birds last season, and if he had been spared for another season, I feel sure, he would have come well to the front. His illness only lasted some five weeks. All fanciers will, I feel sure, join me in extending our deepest sympathy to his widow and children.

Mr. REES MILES.

I am sorry to have to announce the death, writes Mr. T. L. Castree (Mountain Ash), of Mr. Rees Miles, brother to Mr. T. Miles, that energetic treasurer and show manager of the Maesteg C.B.S. The deceased was well known and most highly respected in the district, and although only 45 years of age had suffered considerably during the last 12 months. He passed away a day previous to this society's show, which was held on January 27th, and leaves a sorrowing widow and six children to mourn his loss. All who knew him extend, I am sure, their heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family and relatives.

National British Bird and M.C.

The annual general meeting of the N.B.B. and M.C. will be held in the Electric Theatre (instead of the Board Room), at the Crystal Palace on Saturday. This will be more convenient, as it is opposite the show tent.—PLUMBRIDGE AND CARR, hon. secretaries.

Prize Money at the Palace.

In our issue of last week, when speaking of the entry received for the Crystal Palace Show, we stated that twenty-two of the classes had received over 25 entries, and that the v.h.c. birds in those classes thus became entitled to the extra prize of 2s. given by CAGE BIRDS, and the h.c. birds to that of 2s. presented by the London and Provincial Ornithological Society. It is, of course, the birds selected by the judges as the best v.h.c. and h.c. birds which become entitled to the respective prizes. We think it well to make this clear, or possibly someone who has not read the schedule might think every v.h.c. and every h.c. bird became entitled to a prize.

Our Frontispiece.

With reference to the three Norwich Plainheads appearing on our front page this week, their owner, Mr. T. Seed (Rishton), writes: The Buff cock and the unflighted Buff were bred by myself, and the former has won first at the Scottish National (Edinburgh) and second at Preston, while the youngster has secured firsts at Preston, Liverpool, and the Scottish National. The noted Clear Buff, "Little King II." was bred by Mr. T. H. Dent (Preston), and has been exhibited by myself, winning 30 first and specials, or thereabouts.

THE GREAT JUBILEE CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW.

At the time of going to press, the weather in London is very mild and open, and entirely favourable, a state of things which will please alike visitors, exhibitors, and the birds. For the convenience of visitors, we append the best routes to the Palace from the various railway termini:—

PADDINGTON (G.W.R.)—Take the underground from Praed Street to Victoria or Aldersgate Street; then the Chatham Railway to the Crystal Palace High Level Station. Or take the Bakerloo tube (see from Marylebone).

MARYLEBONE (G.C.R.)—"Bakerloo" tube to Elephant and Castle; then transfer to Chatham Railway to High Level Station. Or go to Baker Street Station and take the train to Victoria.

EUSTON (L.N.W.R.), ST. PANCRAS (M.R.), and KING'S CROSS (G.N.R.)—Underground to Aldersgate Street; or 'bus to Ludgate Hill or Holborn Viaduct, and then Chatham Railway to Palace. Or take the City and South London (tube) Railway to London Bridge.

LIVERPOOL STREET (G.E.R.)—Rail direct, via New Cross; or 'bus to London Bridge, Holborn Viaduct, or Ludgate Hill, and then by L.B. and S.C. or Chatham Railway.

WATERLOO (L. and S.W.R.)—Take half-penny car to Elephant and Castle (or the "Bakerloo" tube), then transfer to Chatham Railway.

Victoria, Ludgate Hill, St. Paul's, Snow Hill, Holborn Viaduct, Moorgate Street, and London Bridge.—Rail direct to the Palace from these stations.

Direct trains to the Palace also run from Willesden and Clapham Junctions.

The First Step.

To take the case of an existing building which has already been used for housing some other kind of live stock, the initial step should invariably be to clean and thoroughly disinfect the place from roof or ceiling to floor. In some few cases this may appear somewhat unnecessary, but for the sake of thoroughness and to remove any shadow of doubt it should be insisted upon in every case. After clearing away every visible trace of dirt, and dusty accumulations, the walls and ceiling should be washed down with a fairly strong solution of carbolic, applying it liberally with an ordinary whitewash brush, and washing it well into any cracks or crevices, and all corners.

When this has dried a coat of hot lime-wash prepared with freshly slaked lime should be given. This should not be used too thick, or it will be found most difficult to work it well into small cracks, where it is most of all required. Large cracks should be stopped up as the work proceeds with a little of the thick sediment from the bottom of the bucket, pressed in with the point of a stick trimmed to a convenient shape for the job, which may also be kept in the bucket to stir the wash from time to time. Allow this coat to dry well, and give a fresh coat a trifle thicker to enable it to be worked to a nice smooth surface.

The glaring white cold appearance may, if desired, be relieved by adding a sufficient quantity of dry stain powder, obtainable at any oil and colour shop, to give required shade of colour preferred. In preparing this, one must remember that the mixture in the bucket requires to be several shades darker than the tint one wishes to see when the walls are dry.

To gauge your tints with certainty, add the stain a little at a time, stir in thoroughly, and then brush a little on to a piece of brown paper or card-board and dry it before a fire. You will then see exactly what colour the stuff will be when dry on the walls. A room or shed thus treated will be in as pure and healthful a condition hygienically as it is possible to make it by any ordinary methods. Prepared thus, a room should be allowed to stand some little time for the heat of the lime to pass off before any birds are introduced to fly at liberty, and therefore its preparation should begin at least a few weeks before the breeding season arrives.

If the inmates are to be kept in cages the case is, of course, a little different, and they may be introduced as soon as the walls are quite dry and the floor cleared and got ready for the reception of cages, staging, or the like, and then the work may quite easily be got through any time up to the beginning of March. At the same time, as there is usually much less to do in the bird-room during January and February, it is best to get all such preparatory work as this done during these months, when there is less need to rush it, and consequently, no excuse for lack of thoroughness in carrying it out.

Light and Ventilation.

If any structural alterations have to be carried out to bring these points up to a passable degree of perfection, they should of course be done before the internal whitewashing, either before or after the preliminary disinfecting wash. This, too, is a point which is very largely controlled by site and locality, as must be quite obvious in relation to the question of lighting. In all cases the interior of the building should be quite as well lighted and as bright as any ordinary living-room, so that the birds can see to move about and feed with perfect freedom right up to the hour of sunset at least, and this, in ordinary conditions of weather in autumn or spring. It goes without saying that the site of the proposed aviary and its proximity to other buildings, will very materially affect the quantity of "lights" or size of windows required to obtain this result, and where birds are to be kept in cages instead of flying loose, a rather stronger light will be necessary in the room to ensure the cages being fairly well lit, even if they are arranged on the side opposite the window.

Then, at the same time, it must be borne in mind that any great area of glass is to be avoided, if possible, on account of its rendering the whole interior of the building subject to extreme fluctuations of temperature, and the objectionable "sweating," which it is extremely difficult to avoid in any ordinary building where much glass is a feature. Lighting by "skylights" is also an objectionable feature in many ways, and should be avoided in all cases where sufficient light can be obtained by ordinary windows. These should be of a fairly good type, close-fitting to exclude the fatal cutting draughts, but made to open with ease and freedom, so that they may be utilised at any time in fair weather to give the place a good airing.

Wire-covered frames must be made to fit over the window spaces, which should hang on hinges, in order to be easily movable to allow free and easy access to the windows. (Never, by the way, place any serious obstacle in the way of getting the windows open, as this is apt to cause needed airings to be deferred to a more convenient season, when one is busy, and perhaps omitted altogether.) This wire frame is necessary to prevent the escape of birds, or ingress of feline marauders, when the windows are open, and are most advisable for the latter purpose, even when the birds are being kept in cages.

The ventilation of any given place is a still more difficult matter to advise upon, without being on the spot to see the exact position and surroundings. The chief difficulty is to provide for a thorough and efficient change of air in the building, constantly and in all conditions of weather which may be ruling outside, and yet to avoid all draughts, and also as far as possible avoid too striking contrasts in the temperature inside the house. Any system that provides for a progressive and gradual change to be going on automatically must naturally be the best suited for the purpose in view, but, unfortunately, such an ideal condition of things requires a certain amount of expert knowledge to carry it into effect.

The Elementary Points.

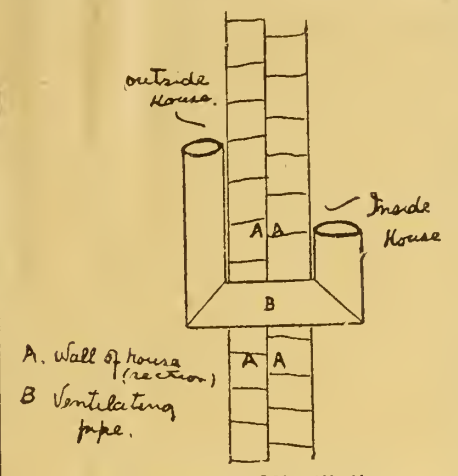
One of the fundamental laws of the science is to provide inlets for fresh pure air at or near the level of the floor, and corresponding outlets for the discharge of foul used-up air in the highest parts of the interior space. Of course this is simply utilising the known natural law that heated air, being lighter than cold, automatically rises to the top in a confined space, and thus the air which becomes more or less heated in the process of heating, and through the presence of animal bodies, rises upwards and passes off through the outlet provided for the purpose, at the same time that a corresponding supply of fresh air is pouring in at the lower apertures. In an existing wooden structure this system may generally be carried out by boring a row of half-inch holes with an auger round the top of the walls, or in the apex of the gables, as the case may be, and a corresponding row around the bottom of the walls.

In building a new structure, however, it would be far better to dispense with such makeshifts, and insert a proper ventilator in the floor; and instead of the holes in the gables of a span roof building, leave an inch or so of open space all across the ridge of the roof, and cover this with a small super-imposed span raised an inch or so above the proper roof.

The amount of space allowed in all cases for ingress and egress of air must be regulated by the size of the structure, and the number of birds it is intended to accommodate. Sufficient should be provided to ensure the atmosphere in the house being free from any stuffy, birdy smell, and yet not enough to make it quite as chilly in cold weather as it is in the open air. A simple and yet practical test is to take a short walk in the open air in the morning, after the birds have been closed up all night, and then go into the room and note the effect of the air in the house. If the ventilation is insufficient, the air will feel quite oppressive and heated, and may even cause a feeling of sickness if the deficiency has been very great. Imagine the effect upon the health of the birds shut up for hours in such an atmosphere. The ingress of fresh air should be increased until the air is tolerably pure and not overheated when the house is unlocked for the first time in the morning after being closed all night.



Tobin's System of Ventilation.

Fresh Air Without Draughts.

To attain this object it is necessary to have some means of regulating the ventilation to suit the varying conditions of weather prevailing outside. It will be obvious to all that during the hot summer months a far greater amount of air will be necessary to keep the place cool and fresh as would suffice in the winter time.

It is, therefore, important to have the ventilating orifices fitted with sliding shutters, which can be pushed to and fro to open or close the aperture, and thus increase or decrease the supply of air in a moment, to suit every passing need. Much as we insist upon the necessity for doing this part of the work thoroughly, we must also impress upon one and all the absolute necessity of guarding against cold draughts in all weathers. Cold of itself will very rarely do any harm to a healthy bird, but it must be generally distributed and not dispensed in tiny cutting streams, as it were, or in cold currents that flow over them when they are at rest and chill them to the marrow. The apertures for the ingress and egress of air must be so arranged as to prevent as far as possible any strong current passing direct from one to the other, and again the cages, or perches for roosting at night must be so arranged as to be out of the path of any such current if it should be temporarily set up by the direction or force of the wind outside.

Tobin's System.

A system of ventilation by means of pipes passing through the wall, which worked on the syphon principle and insured perfect ventilation with absolute riddance of draughts, was dealt with many years ago in the leading press of this country, and was known as Tobin's system of ventilation. If memory serves us correctly, the sketch given here shows the principal features of the system.

It consists of making the inlets by passing a pipe horizontally through the wall, and adding a short elbow pointing upwards inside the house or room, and a similar elbow of at least twice the length on the outside. When this is properly fixed, the pure cool air passing down the long outside elbow is syphoned out at the other end into the room, without any possibility of draughts occurring. It is, in fact, bringing pure air into the room with a syphon, just as much, and in an analogous way, as one might draw off fluid from a vessel of any kind by a syphon pipe This system really seems to be one that is generally applicable to any kind of building, no matter whether the walls are wood or stone, or brick; thick or thin; and its exclusion of draughts should render it peculiarly suitable to the needs of bird fanciers and aviarists.

*An Impudent Parrot.

A Parrot which used to be kept in the kitchen was a great thief. One day some pickled cockles were being cooked at the fire. The Parrot had a good chance of stealing some. It was trying to get them, but it caught its head against the bars and burnt all the feathers off. One day it was taken in the parlour for a change. A gentleman walked in, and taking off his hat the Parrot saw he had a bald head. Then the Parrot said: "He has been at the pickled cockles, too."—Sent by T. Mason (age 12), 6, Victoria Street, Withington, Manchester.

Doctoring a Long-tailed Tit.

I was out playing with a boy recently, when he flung a stone which struck the branch of a tree. There was a Long-tailed Tit on the branch, and it fell to the ground stunned. I picked it up and carried it into the house. My father put it into a box in his bird-room, and covered it up. In the morning we could hear it knocking against the box trying to get out. When it was quite light we took it to the door and let it go. I would have tried to keep it till the weather was better, but father said that it would not live on seed. I was sorry to part with it, but glad to have helped it and to have given it its freedom once again.—Sent by Jack Stenhouse (age 8), Catherine Villa, Sandbank, Argyll.

*Concerning a Stork.

A Stork which had nested near one of the palaces on the Bosphorus, had, by some accident, injured a wing, and was unable to join his fellows when they commenced their winter migration to the banks of the Nile. Before he was able to fly again he was caught, and the flag of the nation to which the palace belonged was tied to his leg, so that he was easily identified at a considerable distance. As his wing grew stronger he made several unsatisfactory experiments at flight, but at last, by a vigorous effort, succeeded in reaching a passing ship, bound southward, and perched himself on a topsail yard.—Cutting sent by William Edward Gardner (age 14), 38, Derby Street West, Ormskirk.

The Elusive Bullfinch Hybrid: My Attempts to Breed It.

By R. JAMES COOK.

At any rate, this particular hen was a good sitter, so I trusted her with my (as I hoped) valuable clutch, and threw away her own eggs. Readers will see how necessary it is for the Hybrid breeder to have plenty of Canary hens to "foster" any eggs one may get from the British pairs. This hen sat well, and at the tenth day I tested the eggs and found to my great joy that two were fertile.

The Bullfinch Hen's Record.

Three day's later two strong, healthy Linnet-Bullfinch Hybrids were born in that nest. A few hours' anxious watching convinced me that the hen would serve them the same as she had served her own young. Here was a poser. At this time I had a friend who possessed an outdoor aviary. I hurried down to him with my precious birds. He had a hen with two young ones four days old. Would he throw them out to give my Hybrids a chance? No; the hen was a good feeder, he said, and would bring them all up. I offered him one of the Hybrids to do as I wished (if they were both reared). But no. Well, I had no other alternative, so I popped them in and left them to their fate. They were dead in two days, smothered by the big Canaries. It seemed but a just fate that those same Canaries should die before they left the nest.

The Bullie hen laid again at odd times. Some of the eggs were soft shelled, some she broke, one or two I accidentally broke, and some were sat on and proved unfertile. In all she laid 23 eggs, and then thought she had done enough, I suppose, for she was dead on the cage bottom one morning. And so ended my first year's Hybrid breeding experiences.

The next few years were worse than my first. I had eggs, fertile ones too, but none hatched out. "Dead in shell" was my great trouble in these years.

I think it was about the year 1900 I set up an outdoor aviary, in a room detached from my house, and decided to stock it with Canary hens, and cock British birds, Linnet, Goldfinch, Greenfinch, Redpoll and Siskin. With these I included a hand-reared Bullfinch hen, and fully expected to breed Mules of all kinds as easily as other people bred Canaries. But that experiment proved to me that I did not know everything about Mule and Hybrid breeding, for at the end of the season I could count up about eighty unfertile Canary eggs, one Linnet and Canary Mule, two Redpoll and Canary Mules, several fertile Bullie eggs, (the birds dead in shell), and also one Bullie and something Hybrid, which did not live long enough for me to know what it was (probably it was a Linnet and Bullie, as I had seen them pair up several times). The hen Bullie built several nests, and laid in them, but never offered to sit.

The next season I put three cock Canaries with about ten hens. I left the Finches there and let them take their chance. No Mules of any kind were bred in the aviary that season, so it does not seem to be of any use mixing cock British birds with Canaries if the latter have Canary mates.

Wild Linnets to the Rescue.

I still had my Bullie hen from the previous season, and paired her to a Greenfinch in a cage. She laid twenty-six eggs at different times, only one of which proved fertile, and that I put out in a wild Linnet's nest among eggs about to hatch out, hoping the natural food it would get would save it until it was nine or ten days old, when I hoped to hand-rear it. A friend and I drove about seven miles to do this. It was safely put in a nest that had eggs in due to hatch either that day or the next. I knew the egg was hatched, for my friend made a special journey to see if the bird had arrived; but upon our next visit we found it had vanished, so I presume it died and was in some way disposed of by the old Linnets, for the young Linnets were there, and I had some of them to hand-rear.

Turning from the Bullfinch hen for a moment, I may say that the same season I paired up a cock Goldfinch and a hen Greenfinch in a cage; the hen built a very decent nest in a German wicker cage inside the breeding cage, and laid four eggs, and sat as well as a hen Canary for eight or nine days. But one morning when I went to feed, all the eggs were on the bottom of the cage. Mr. Goldie had decided to see what was in them, and had found they were not good to eat, I suppose, as they were simply smashed and left for me to see. I saw, too, that they were all fertile. I did not get any more eggs from this pair, as it was late when they went to nest.

How to Hand-rear Young Bullies.

In 1905 my wife and daughter hand-reared a nest of Bullfinches, two cocks and two hens. One of the hens died after the moult, leaving me one hen, and the two cocks. I forget what became of the cocks, but the hen I took great care of, and a very charming pet she became, as tame as possible, and a good sized one at that.

I should like to say here that my wife and daughter have been very successful in rearing young Bullfinches, and have never lost one. Perhaps some of my readers would like to know how it is done. First soak or scald some German rape seed, which must be dried in a cloth and afterwards crushed with a rolling-pin, or a good strong knife. Take half a hard-boiled egg (boiled for ten 10 minutes), chop it very finely and mix with an equal amount in bulk of the crushed rape. Then add to this about a teaspoonful of live ant's eggs, if you can get them, if not, the best dried ones you can buy. Damp with a few drops of water and feed every hour at least from 6 a.m. till dark; if you are awake at 5 a.m. that will not be too early.

When you have fed them for the last time, wrap the cage or basket in an old shawl to keep them warm and dark. They should not be older than ten or eleven days when you take them.

Very Near the Goal.

Early in the spring of 1906, I bought a grand house-moulted Yellow Greenfinch cock, and paired my Bullie hen with him, in a cage. When I saw they were on really good terms, I turned them into my outdoor aviary amongst some Canaries and other birds. This would be about the end of March. They continued very friendly to each other, and had evidently decided to set up housekeeping, for by about the middle of April the hen had built a very nice nest in a small cage hung up in the aviary. She laid six eggs consecutively, sat upon them for the full thirteen days, and hatched the only fertile egg among them.

Now would they rear it? That was the question, and a very anxious one for me you may be sure. I am afraid I spent more time than I should have done watching for the feeding of my prodigy, but the day after hatching, I saw Mr. Greenfinch hop up into the cage and feed the hen. Not many minutes after he left, she carefully raised herself, and from her motions I could see she was feeding the chick, after which she had a turn off the nest. Now was my time. I popped into the aviary and examined the young one. He was crammed as full as he could be. "Hurrah, I shall rear a Hybrid at last" I thought.

For nine days they continued to do the needful in a first-class manner, and the youngster grew strong and lusty. He began to feather nicely, and I was in "high feather," too. Both birds took a little egg-food, but the chief of their food during this time was seeding heads of groundsel, chickweed, dandelion, and every sort of wild weed that had any signs of going to seed that I could find (and they take some finding in the middle of May).

On the 10th day I fancied the young Hybrid looked queer about the head, and on the 11th day he had a decided swelling on one side of it. On the 12th day he died from what appeared to be an abscess over his right eye. His head, in fact, was swelled to twice its normal size; but he continued to open his beak for food until a few hours before his death.

Well, I began this paper with the word patience, and, I may say, I had patience then, for I had never been so near the goal before. The parent birds, too, were healthy, and, in addition, were good feeders. Besides this, the hen was a good sitter. So I hoped for better luck next time.

My Greenie-Bullie Hybrid.

In about a week, the hen was busy building another nest. Six more eggs were laid, and were sat on the full time. Again one chick hatched out—the only good egg in the six.

The parents maintained their good character, and a fine healthy Greenfinch-Bullfinch Hybrid left the nest. He grew and thrived, and had his photo taken (as reproduced on Page 22 of the Birthday Number). The old birds continued to feed him even after the hen Bullie had gone to nest again.

When he was six weeks old I caged him off, and who could be so proud as I was?

He did well, and now came the question: Is it a cock? A few feathers pulled from his breast soon decided this, for they were replaced by others of a fine ruddy yellow, not unlike those of a color-fed Norwich Canary, but not so pure in tint. I did not color-feed him, preferring to give him every natural chance to make the most of his strength in the way of size and stamina. He went through his moult quickly, and easily came out a good color and a fine bird. To this there was only one exception, viz., that he had a slight weakness in his left eye, and would close it at times as if it pained him. He was otherwise in perfect health and plumage. I have said before that I did not color-feed him, but you may be sure he had the first blackberries and elder berries I could find ripe, also every kind of wild seed, including dock, of which he was very fond.

Well, although he was only a baby, I was anxious that he should make his bow to the judge. I entered him at Dudley, and hoped he might be in the money, but I suppose the judge spotted that weak eye, for he was passed in favour of birds in every other way his inferior. Still I am of opinion that his size, color, rarity and staging should have secured him a card, if only a C, for at that time his defect was not a glaring one by any means. I thought I would try him once more, and then give him a rest for that season. Birmingham was his next journey, and I am sorry to say his eye was worse rather than better, but still not really bad, being at worst only a weakness. My opinion of the Dudley judge was confirmed by Mr. Bexson, who gave him V.H.C. in a far better class both in numbers and quality, although the bird was, as I said, worse than at Dudley.

About 14 days after he came home from Birmingham, his eye got very much worse, a bad swelling came on and around it. My wife and I tried hot fomentations in the hope of breaking what was evidently an abscess. Despite all our care, he died very soon, and we were not sorry, for his pain was really trying even for us to watch, especially as he had been a pet and made much of by us all.

The hen Bullie had gone to nest again when he was about a month old, sat on four eggs the full time. One egg was fertile, the young one being dead in shell. She moulted alright, but a week or two after the Hybrid died she went wrong and died—all my hopes dashed to the ground again.

Early in 1907 I bought a Swedish hen Bullie, and paired her to my Greenfinch, the father of the Hybrids. I had no nest and no eggs, and 1907 was a blank. I have her now, and she is a beauty, as big as a good Lark. I am still hoping for the luck that has refused to smile upon me for so many years of earnest endeavour in this particular line. I have been thinking whilst writing this that my critics (of whom there should be not a few) will say, "But this man can scarcely call himself a Hybrid breeder; he has only bred one in 15 years that has lived long enough to be put on the show bench." That is quite true, but at least they will have to admit that I am not easily discouraged, that I have tried, and also that I have at least done everything in my power to ensure success. I would like to say that what I have written is what has happened to me in the course of 15 years' Hybrid breeding; it is all put down as it happened, and every word is absolutely true. I have not drawn on my imagination for one single line. I have had many happy hours with my pets, have learned some very valuable lessons in patience and perseverance, and have acquired the power of bearing with misfortune. In conclusion, I hope the coming season will bring to all Hybrid breeders the success they desire—and to CAGE BIRDS every success.

PLUMSTEAD & WOOLWICH C.B.S.

On January 28th the society held their annual prize distribution, coupled with a concert, which was by no means the least important feature of the evening. The district was wrapped in a very thick fog, but in spite of this a large number of members and friends were present. We were treated to some fine music, arranged by Mr. E. Hartland, which reflected great credit on that gentleman. Mr. Meades occupied the chair, supported by Mr. Best. After a few words of introduction by the chairman, the programme was proceeded with. The first item was a pianoforte duet by Miss Price and Mr. Hartland. Songs were rendered by Mr. Anger, Miss Lucie Rolfe, and Mr. G. A. Ayre. A violin solo was rendered by Miss Rosina Hodge. The next item on the programme was the distribution of the prizes and specials won at the late show, by the president, the Rev. G. Y. Bayley, who made some appropriate remarks. The winners who were present were: Messrs. Allison, Borlase, Brett, Dibley, Hawkes, Hall, Miller, Newnham, Meades, Smith, Spooner, Wood, E. E. Simants, Weaver and Pawley. The president also presented to Mr. Hartland, on behalf of some of the members, a show cage containing a Goldfinch, as a small mark of appreciation of his efforts on their behalf. The music recommenced with a pianoforte solo by Miss Croucher. Miss Hodge again obliged with a violin solo, and Mr. Anger, Miss Rolfe, and Mr. Ayre with some capital songs. Mr. Best proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Hartland and the artistes, which was seconded by Mr. Fairfield on behalf of the visitors, and supported by Mr. Allison. Mr. Hartland having suitably replied and promised us another treat, a very pleasant evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.—W. PAWLEY, hon. sec.

How I Manage My British Finches

By WILLIAM LLOYD.

In trying to relate my experiences on this subject, I hope it will prove a help to all who are on the point of starting to keep British birds, either for pleasure or for exhibition purposes.

The Goldfinch.

The first bird I intend dealing with is the Goldfinch. To my mind this bird is the nicest of our British Finches, making quite a charming pet, with his red face, white collar, the black on his head and down the side of his neck, his black wings and nice yellow bars, and nutty brown body. When on my holiday, I go out watching these birds, in order to study their feeding and their little ways, and find out all I can about them in their wild state.

I find that the Goldfinches choose to build their nest high up between the forks of such trees as elm, ash, poplar, pear, and apple. The nest is made from coltsfoot leaves, and the down off dandelion heads, from which they make a very good nest too by the time it is finished. The hen lays from three to four eggs, of a blueish colour, with little spots of red.

During the incubation I have never seen the cock bird sit, but in some tree not far off the nest he will be found singing in full force. But when the young come there is no time for song, as he makes the best of fathers and may be seen constantly on the wing to and from the nest. The parents feed their young on small insects, green seeds, chickweed, grass seed, the young buds off trees, and other kinds of seedlings.

Supposing the young to be now feathered and ready to leave the nest. The head, breast and under colour are of a kind of dirty grey, the body is brown, the butts of the wings brown, and the flight feathers dark with yellow bars on them. That is why they are called "Greypates." When buying young 'Pates, select them long and snaky-looking, and have those with the longest heads and beaks you can find. If you choose them this way, I guarantee you will be sure of having cock birds, as there are many Goldfinch hens sold as cocks, even when they are in full colour.

I will now say how I catch these birds, and how I treat them when they are newly caught. I never lose any at this stage. I write this especially for the benefit of young catchers. Now, the first thing I do is to find out where the Goldfinches are feeding. I find they feed mostly in turnip fields, as they find plenty of good food there, such as chickweed, groundsel, and the small insects that cling to the leaves of the turnips. This is in August, as the hardheads and thistles are not then quite ripe. I pick out a good place for catching, and then take out my call-bird, one that I take care is in full song. I get a stick out of a hedge, about 5ft. long, and this I place in the ground so that the stick is straight up, and on this I place my call-bird nearly at the top. I fasten it with a piece of wire. This method keeps the call-bird free from the harm and danger which stoats and weasels might otherwise cause. I have had good birds, I may say, killed in this way. I then get a nice bush out of a hedge, and this I place in the ground so as to form a kind of young tree. On this I place my birdlime twigs, and a stuffed Goldfinch in the middle of the bush. This bush, I may add, is placed close to my call-bird. When all is ready I go and hide not far from them, so that I can see all that is going on.

We will now imagine that we have had a catch. I always have with me a store cage, with a cloth top and a stocking fastened to it. Through the latter I am able to put the birds in and out of the store cage. I take the birds off the lime very gently, so that I do not hurt them. I also have by me a bottle of raw linseed oil, and a piece of rag. I put some of the oil on the limed part of the birds, and I see that they are well cleaned, as, if they are not, they stand a poor chance of living. This oil will be found to clean them well. I get them home as quickly as I can, and then give them each a drink of cold water that has been previously boiled. In this I dissolve a small piece of pick-me-up paste. When I have given each of them a drink of this, I crush some hemp seed very finely, and this I throw on to the bottom of the store cage, giving also plenty of inga or niger seed. I keep them for a fortnight on this. I try whole hemp, inga and ripe hardheads, and on this I keep them for another fortnight.

In the selection of exhibition Goldfinches I choose a good, large bird with a square-cut blaze, a nice white collar, and a fine black on the head extending down to the side of neck. The bird must have good tan on the breast, and the butts of wings must be jet black with good yellow bars and fine clean buttons on the ends of the wing feathers. The body must be of a nutty brown. I may say that I have supplied some of the Goldfinches that are doing some winning for their owners on the show benches to-day.

I feed them as follows:—Hemp, 1lb.; teazle, ½lb.; inga, ½lb.; turnip, ½lb.; summer rape, ½lb.; and linseed, ½lb. These I give mixed well together. I also supply separately Canary, sunflower, and maw seeds, seeding watercress, and shepherd's purse. I let them have fresh air and plenty of thistle and hardheads, together with water to bathe in and a piece of old mortar between the wires of cages for them to pick at. Given this food, and the water, as I have described, the birds will come out of their moult in the best of condition and bloom.

The Linnet.

The Linnet, which is well known all over England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales, for its singing abilities, is, I should suggest, next to the Nightingale for its song. I like very much to hear them. They are easily kept birds, and are very cheap too, considering their wonderful song. The best time for buying a linnet or for catching a number of linnets is the latter end of September, as at that time the majority of them are over the moult.

The Linnet builds its nest in any low bush, such as blackberry, gorse, hazel, and hawthorn bushes. When breeding, the cock has a very red breast, the hen being of a very light brown with large dark spots. She lays from three to four eggs, of a dullish colour. I have found that the cock helps the hen to sit, and in one nest I was watching he did so as many as five times a day. The young Linnets are a dark brown in colour when first hatched, but when they are feathered and are ready to leave the nest they are of a light-brown all over.

During the moulting season Linnets generally band together in flocks. When I go catching Linnets I keep the cocks only. I tell the difference between male and female by the fact that the male bird has his wing feathers white on both sides right to the quill, the hen has only one side of the wing feathers white. If anyone goes to buy a Linnet before it has a red breast, let him try this method, and I guarantee he will have a cock bird for his money.

When I take my decoy birds out catching, I mind they are in full song, for if they are not they are of no use as call-birds, as the Linnet has to be "sung down." I place my decoys on the ground with the bird lime twigs placed on small stones all round the cage, so that the lime is kept clean. The Linnets, when they see them up off the ground a little, hop on to them when going round the cage after the Canary seed that has been thrown out of it by the decoy bird. The lime is so placed that no harm can come to the decoys. Some times I catch the birds on bushes. If I do, I get a large stone to put my call-birds on, so that the vermin cannot hurt them. I place it close to the bush, and then put the lime twigs on the latter. They should be as flat as you can get them to lie down. Always try to keep the lime from shining in the sun, and always set the trap against the sun too, in catching any birds. If I should have a good catch I make off home and treat them as described in the case of Goldfinches, except that for food I give Canary, German rape that has been soaking three or four days, winter rape (also soaked), and teazel seed.

How does the Linnet get the twist? is often asked. Well, I will tell you. When first caught, they are in full song, so in a day or two after being caught they resume their song again. Then they are often put into a small hop cage, which allows them hardly room enough to turn round, and the top of the cage is also very low. The Linnet, so caged, turns his head back and pecks at the top of the cage. He gets into this habit, so that he keeps it up when put into a larger cage.

I have told you how they are spoiled; I will now tell you how to cure the "twist." It is my own method (invented by myself) of curing them, and has never failed, either in my own case or in the cases of others to whom I have told it. Get a good-sized Linnet cage, and before you turn the Linnet into it, get a long clay pipe stem, as long as will make a perch across the cage. We will say you have a perch at either end of the cage; now you want one for the middle. Get a piece of cage wire and place the pipe stem on it, fastening the wire on both sides of the cage. Leave enough room for the pipe stem to work about on the wire. As soon as this is done, turn your Linnet in and you will see him fall off the top perch, but he will not hurt himself. Next time he will be more careful, and when he trys to twist he will not be able to balance himself, and in this way he forgets his twisting. This, I know, will be helpful to many. I remember going out one afternoon to catch birds on a coal-pit bank which was not in use, there being plenty of feeding on it. When I had set my birds out and the lime also, eighteen more catchers whom I knew well, all set out; a bet having been made over my bird (which was then 13 years old and supposed to be the best Linnet for 20 miles round). That the bet was on was unknown to me, as I did not allow bets on my birds. When my old bird began singing all the others started, but they soon finished with the exception of two—mine and another—and these sang for 15 minutes without a break. Mine was beaten right out for the first time. I offered 15s. for the other, but I did not get it. It beat mine four times out of five. The result of our catch in two hours' time was 165 birds between us all. The result was that they made me a present of all the birds, but I did not want them, as I was only catching for sport.

The food I give Linnets is as follows:—Canary, 1lb.; hemp, ½lb.; German rape, 1lb.; winter rape, ½lb.; teazel, ½lb.; linseed, ½lb.; all mixed together; with plantain, dandelion seed, maw, shepherd's purse, and screenings from the thrashing machine, which I give to all kinds of birds. Linnets must also have plenty of water to bathe in, as this is the conditioner to all kinds of birds.

CLUB REPORTS.

BRIGHOUSE AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Mr. W. Blakey (Gt. Horton), gave a paper on inbreeding before the members on January 19th, after which he dealt with the subject in a still more interesting and instructive manner. Several questions were asked, but were as easily answered by Mr. Blakey. A vote of thanks to him brought a very enjoyable meeting to a close. A members' show will be held at headquarters on February 6th, when we shall be pleased to see any fancier present. Mr. S. Hirst, Halifax, will judge.—F. MITCHELL, sec.

SALE OPEN O.S.

A meeting of the above was held on January 25th, when a Pairs Show was fixed to be held, but, owing to the very severe weather, few pairs were brought out. Some grand birds were put down by Mr. F. Fields and Mr. C. H. Smitb. Mr. G. Massey placed the cards, and afterwards gave some very interesting and useful information, using the birds present as examples in explaining the various ways of pairing up for breeding. Cigars were handed round by the treasurer, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. Thanks were accorded to Mr. Massey for his services, also to those members who bad brought birds, and the meeting then terminated.—JAS. IRLAM, Hon. Sec.

LONGTON AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual meeting held at Castle Inu, High-st., when Mr. Enoch Tams was appointed secretary, Mr. J. Edwards treasurer, Mr. J. Birks chairman, Mr. J. Davis vice-cbairman, and Messrs. H. Perrins and J. Bowley auditors, for 1909. The secretary reported a balance in hand of £4 19s. 3½d., which was considered very satisfactory for the first year. It was decided to reduce the subscription to 3s. per year to induce new members to join, and that the society again join the C.B.U. Also that the open show be held on October 9th. It was further decided to hold a table show at the next meeting on February 2nd. Classes: Goldfinch, Linnet, A.O.S. Brit., and one Mule class. New members are invited. E. TAMS, hon. secretary.

GREAT HARWOOD & DIS. C.B.S.

Annual meeting held at headquarters, Town Gate, January 11th, when the following officers were elected for 1909:—President, Dr. J Cran; vice-presidents, J. Rutherford, M.P., T. Noble, J.P., J. W. Baron, and J. Bentley; cbairman, J. Wilson; auditor, D. Bentley; treasurer, R. Melling. I was again elected secretary, with Mr. J. Marsh as my assistant. Committee: J. T. Hargreaves, jun., H. Smalley, R. Worthington, T. Worthington, J. W. Cottier, and J. Whittaker. The members' first feather show will be held on June 12th. My Committee wish me to state that we have decided to give up our usual open show date, viz., October 8th, the settling of another date being deferred until next meeting. The society is open to all fanciers. Subscription, 5s. per annum.—GEO. WADDINGTON, hon. sec.

NORTHERN CREST CLUB.

Meeting held at Sunderland on Jan. 20th, when Mr. Currah presided. The following members were present: Messrs. C. Dobson, W. F. Swan, J. Farrar, J. Riseborough, A. Brown, J. Stanger, F. Almond, J. Currah, junr., J. M. Walker, and myself. The balance sheet for past year was presented and passed. It was decided that the cup patronage of our club be given to Sunderland this year. It was also decided to resign from the Cage Bird Union; all our members being members of societies that are affiliated to the Union we thought it unnecessary for a specialist club to be attached to the Union. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Brown for the trouble he had taken in auditing the books, etc., for the past year. Mr. Brown suitably replied. Members are reminded that subscriptions will be due by March 31st. The following new members were proposed, viz.: Messrs. J. Waugh and A. Mather, of Newcastle, and Mr. Dixon, of Blaydon. Members and others please note my new address, 72, South View West, Heaton, Newcastle-on-Tyne.—J. E. HUTCHINSON, Hon. Sec.

GREAT HORTON GOOD INTENT ORNITHOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

Annual meeting held January 30th at Great Horton Church Schools, Mr. D. Hollas in the chair. The balance-sheet was adopted; it shows the flourishing condition of the society. The secretary pleaded for a better attendance at the meetings, adding that members' shows last year had been a success both in entries and gates. Officers elected for 1909:—President, Mr. D. Hollas; vice-presidents, Messrs. G. Riley, H. F. Chubb, and W. Ketteringham; treasurer, Mr. A. Holden; trustees, Messrs. A. Holden, D. Hollas, and S. Briggs; auditors, Messrs. Ketteringham, and G. R. Rushworth; secretary, Mr. H. Schofield; assist.-secretary, Mr. H. F. Chubb. Members' shows are to be held in February, June, September, and December, and £2 will be given for money specials for same in sums of 10s. for first most points, 8s. for second, 7s. for third, 5s. for fourth, 4s. for fifth, 3s. for sixth, 2s. for seventh, 1s. for eighth, and extra specials to be allotted later. Four new members were elected. Meetings held on the last Saturday in each month at the Church Schools, Southfield-lane.—H. SCHOFIELD, Hon. Sec.

HIGHGATE, HAMPSTEAD AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held at headquarters, Spencer Hall, Spencer Road, Dartmouth Park Hill, N.W., Mr. Geo. Gardner in the chair. The election of officers for ensuing year resulted as follows:—Chairman, Mr. Geo. Gardner; vice-chairman, Mr. W. Ward; treasurer, Mr. . Fisher; hon. secretary, Mr. Geo. H. Neal, 163, Junction Road, Upper Holloway, N.; hon. assistant secretaries, Messrs. W. Rawlinson and J. Hyde; auditors, Messrs. W. S. C. Horner and W. Shearer; committee, Messrs. W. Shakespeare, W. Knight, B. Johnson, C. Penny, W. Cooper, Mrs. Wood, G. Street, G. T. Pile, R. Green, E. Bush, C. G. Martin, B. Coventry. The secretary then read balance-sheets, which showed a cash balance of £1 17s. 5½d., with assets to the amount of £15 7s. 11½d. The chairman made a few remarks on same, stating that the assets were not exaggerated, as the cup was of solid silver, and the cyclostyle was shown at only half-value. A great number of new rules (both general and show) were added. A vote of thanks to the retiring officers was carried, also one to the auditors. New members were nominated, and specials for pair show were handed in. The show is to be held on February 27th at headquarters. The show dates fixed for 1909 were:—Young stock, July 10th; annual, November 12th and 13th; pair show, February 27th, 1910. The judges are to be elected at committee meeting. A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close. Points at pair show count for the £5 5s. silver cup; members please get their birds ready.—GEO. H. NEAL, Hon. sec.

ROCHDALE GOOD INTENT C.B.S.

A very successful whist drive was held on January 26th, about 90 persons being present. This added to the funds of the society a nice little item of £2 11s. 5d. We also decided to have our annual open show on November 6th, and our First Feather Show (annual) on June 19th.—FRED. RAYNER, Hon. Sec.

GREAT HORTON O.S.

General meeting held Jan. 23rd, when the balance sheets for the past year were read and the prizes won at the members' monthly shows presented by the president, Mr. J. Mann. In the open section Mr. F. Self won 1st prize with 138 points; 2, Mr. J. Waterworth, 115; 3, A. Lister, 94; 4, A. Young, 73; 5, A. W. Hartley, 56. In the novice section Mr. A. Whitaker won 1st with 118 points; 2, W. Oliver, 106; 3, F. Crabtree, 78; Messrs. H. Simonett and H. C. Gibson dividing the 4th and 5th prizes, each gaining 67 points. All fanciers are invited to join the society.—J. HOLROYD, Sec.

DERBY C.B.C.

Monthly meeting, held Jan. 30th. It was decided to hold a members' show on Feb. 13th in the large room of the Scarsdale Arms, Colyear-st. There will be eight classes for Norwich, and six for Crests and Crest-breds; A.O.V., British, and Mules one each. The object is to try and make up the big loss sustained on the open show, and it is hoped that all members and friends interested in the fancy will assist to make it a success. There will be one class for any variety British, 1s. entry fee, to be returned in prize money, for non-members only residing within six miles of Derby. One new member was elected.—W. STEVENS, Secretary.

HULL C.B.S.

Usual monthly meeting held at Oddfellows' Hall, Feb. 1st, when a very large number of members was present. Mr. G. W. Oliver presided. The late secretary, Mr. Potter, read the balance sheet for last year, showing a balance in hand, which was considered very satisfactory. Scottish National, Manchester, and Gateshead shows were suggested for the society to visit during the coming show season, and it was decided to run a saloon train to the Gateshead show of 1909. Messrs. Bray, Hogg, Hinson, and Parker were elected members, these making eleven new ones this year. Judges were nominated for the open show, fixed for Nov. 19th and 20th, and will be announced in the Fancy Press shortly.—E. R. RIDLEY, Hon. Sec.

METROPOLITAN C.B.A.

Pairs' show held January 28th, but owing to the foggy weather many birds entered were absent. After judging, Mr. Robson delivered a lecture on pairing, which was very instructive to novices present. Mr. Robson explained the results of inbreeding, also the browing and loose feather of the Norwich Plainhead. He used the exhibits in the room to show the points that breeders should carefully study when pairing up their birds, and the different types of birds they should get from the various pairs. With regard to Lizards, he explained the results of pairing up two broken caps, and gold and silver caps were clearly defined. Mr. Robson also touched upon the Border Fancies, and answered numerous questions. Mr. Martin (chairman) presided. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to Mr. Robson.—R. DEAR, Hon. Sec.

WOLVERHAMPTON C.B.S.

Annual meeting and election of officers held at headquarters, Swan and Peacock Hotel, on January 26th. Mr. F. J. Weaver presided over a good attendance. The chairman referred at some length to the loss the society had sustained in the death of their respected and energetic secretary, Mr. F. Howes, and some little means of helping the widow and fatherless children was placed in the hands of Mr. J. A. Tonks. The report and balance-sheet for the past year as made out by the late secretary was read by the chairman, and showed the society to be in a very sound position, with a membership of close on 40, a profit on the great open show of 10s., and a balance of £2 4s. on the year's working, after paying off a stiff adverse balance on 1907, with assets in staging valued at over £2. These accounts were passed as read, and Mr. Willows, the auditor, was thanked for the careful way in which he had gone through the books. The election of secretary was gone into first, and eventually a young fancier of some promise—Mr. J. Gibbons—was approached, and upon Mr. Weaver offering to give all the help possible, he consented to have "a good try." The chairman, F. J. Weaver, the vice-chairman, Mr. J. A. Tonks, and Mr. R. Willoughby were again re-elected, for the third year, which speaks well for the esteem in which these officers are held by the members. Mr. F. Garfield was appointed treasurer, and a real good committee of well-tried and hard workers was appointed in Messrs. MacJacquemin, A. W. Cadman, G. Osborne, J. Millencamp, J. Wakelam, and J. Bird. One new member was proposed. It was decided to make our next meeting on February 9th a special one for fixing date of open show, selecting judges, etc. All fanciers are cordially invited. The secretary's address, to which all communications respecting the society should be sent, is 74, Napier Road, Wolverhampton.

OLDHAM AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Members and friends held their annual party at the Textile Dining Rooms, Shaw-road, on January 30th, and it was one of the most convivial they have ever held. An excellent tea was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Dunkerley, host and hostess. The chair was taken by Mr. J. Sharples, and an excellent entertainment was provided, consisting of songs (by Messrs. Turner, Kendrick, and Hitchin), concertina solos (by Messrs. Westley and Steeples), and dancing. Mr. H. Hargreaves presided at the piano, and Mr. Turner was M.C.—F. STEEPLES.

LEEDS C.B.S.

Committee meeting held at Lockhart's Restaurant, Briggate, January 28th, Mr. Chambers in the chair. It was announced that the well-known fancier, Mr. W. Turton, had offered a two-guinea silver cup to be competed for and won outright on points at the five members' shows to be held this season. Messrs. Chew and Stokoe also gave a silver medal, and Messrs. Poulter and Bolton three show cages, either Yorkshire or Norwich. The committee thankfully accepted the offers, and proceeded with the syllabus for the ensuing season, which could not be finally settled until monthly meeting on February 6th. A general canvas was also arranged for getting fanciers to join the society. All interested are invited to become members at the next meeting. They will then be able to compete for the valuable prizes to be offered.—WM. TOSE, Hon. Sec.

NORTHERN B.B.M. AND F.B.O.

Monthly meeting held in Lockhart's cafe, 65, Grainger-st., Newcastle, when 2 new members, Messrs. E. Atkinson and F. Atkinson, were enrolled. The show season report was then given. Medal winners were as follows:—British birds: Messrs. J. Maddison 1, J. W. Bruce 1, J. Foster 1, C. Waters 2, J. W. Nicholson and Son 1. Mules: Messrs. Jackson and Bond 2, J. Maddison 1, G. Graham 1, W. J. Taylor 2 Forcign birds: Messrs. J. McKenzie 2, J. T. Poretous 2, J. W. Nicholson and C. J. Potterson 1. Cups for three highest birds over six shows where patronage was given resulted as follows:—British birds: Mr. J. W. Bruce (Coldstream), 72 points; Mules, Mr. W. J. Taylor (Newcastle), 64 points; foreign birds, Mr. J. McKenzie (Low Fell), 76 points. It was proposed by Mr. McKenzie, seconded by Mr. Curry, that the annual meeting be held on March 17th, which was carried unanimously. Proposed by Mr. McKenzie and seconded by Mr. Storey, that we hold a table show at next meeting, and that we have four classes, viz., Linnet, Greenfinch, Chaffinch, and Brambling, with one for Softbill, any variety, field moulted; all exhibitors to judge. Birds receiving highest number of votes will constitute the winners. This terminated a very interesting meeting.—J. BERTRAM, sec.

CLAPHAM AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

Annual general meeting held January 11th at the Avondale Hotel, Landor. Mr. W. H. Vale presided over a good attendance. The society regrets the resignatiou of Mr. S. H. W. Baker, hon. secretary, owing to the unforeseen circumstances of that true pilot and financier. I am glad to say the balance-sheet shows a substantial amount to be carried forward, this being most gratifying to the society, especially seeing that full prize money was paid in all classes at our open show, thanks to the careful and good management of our late secretary. We were unanimous in making Mr. Baker a vice-president of the society. Mr. W. H. Vale was again unanimously elected as chairman. The election of officers and committee resulted as follows:—President, P. M. Thornton, Esq., M.P.; hon. vice-presidents, A. C. Morton, Esq., M.P., Sir Clement Kinloch Cook, L.C.C., and J. W. Downey, Esq., L.C.C.; vice-presidents, Messrs. J. Dawson, J. Frostick, F. Harnett, G. Harrison, W. A. Lott, C. T. Maxwell, H. Parry, J. Robson, S. A. Sandy, Allen Silver, T. R. Trower, W. H. Vale, G. E. Weston, Baker, Rehm, and Hayward; chairman, Mr. W. H. Vale; vice-chairman, Mr. H. Yeoman; hon. treasurer, Mr. C. T. Maxwell; hon. auditors, Messrs. J. Frostick and S. A. Sandy; committee—for Canaries: Messrs. Thorp, Priest, Baker, Worley, Wall, Barker, Masters, Maybank, and T. G. Morris; British: Messrs. F. Clark, E. Hathaway, W. Francis, T. J. Hose, and T. Beard; Hybrids: Mr. E. Sexton; and Foreign: Mr. C. Cooper; hon. secretary, A. C. Askew, 152, Manor-street, Clapham; and assistant-secretary, Mr. C. Cutting. After a few well-chosen words by the chairman thanking the retiring officers, the pair show was fixed for February 20th. A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.—A. C. ASKEW, Secretary.

NORTHERN YORKSHIRE C.C.

Annual general meeting held in Lockhart's Cafe, Granger Street, Newcastle, on January 27th, Mr. J. R. Slack in the chair. The balance-sheet, showing a balance in hand of 1s. 8d., was adopted, as was also the secretary's report of the year's work. In this our secretary congratulated the members upon the advance the club had made during the year, there being 31 members as against 22 last year. The competitions had been keener than previously. The novice section had received good support. In the champion section, Mr. J. Stewart won the gold medal for most points won by three nominated birds. Dr. O'Neal was 2nd, Mr. Cuthbertson being runner-up. In the novice section, Mr. Davison was first. Mr. Hutler tied with Mr. Cockburn for 2nd and 3rd places, whilst Mr. Mather was 4th. The winners of medals for the best old bird at various shows were: Messrs. Stewart, Cuthbertson, Dr. O'Neal, Heddon, Tweedie, and Crawhall. The medals for young birds went to Dr. O'Neal, Messrs. Cuthbertson, Stewart, Carr, Cockburn, and Crawhall. Novice medals were won by Messrs. Grieve, Hutler, Davison, Mather, Cockburn, and Harrison. The challenge cup for best young bird bred by a member was won by Dr. O'Neal; Sandiford's Cup (for young bird moulted on Sandiford's Feed) by Mr. Cuthbertson. Dr. O'Neal's special was won by himself. The secretary was instructed to write to the Carlisle secretary, expressing our sympathy and regret that there should have been a loss on the Yorkshire section at their show, and that, owing to our small balance, we could not make them a donation this year. The following were elected officers for the coming year:—President, G. W. Cuthbertson; vice-presidents, Dr. O'Neal, W. G. Taylor, T. Pearce, and T. J. Buckingham; chairman, J. R. Slack; vice-chairman, J. Shepherd; committee as last year, with the addition of Messrs. Grieve, Mather, Parker, Tindold, and Wigglesworth. The following were elected members:—Mrs. Irwin Dees (Mayoress of Wallsend), Messrs. Wigglesworth, Brown, Johnston, and Whitfield. It was decided to hold a pair show on February 16th, when there will be two classes—yellow cock and buff hen, and buff cock and yellow hen. Mr. Shepherd kindly consented to judge. A great deal of interest centres round this show, as members are hoping to breed the cup winner next year, and have brought birds from Bradford and other places, which are destined to be the parents of this winner, as we up North want to breed our own. Votes of thanks all round brought a very pleasant evening to a close. Dr. O'Neal has promised a cup for novice competition for next season.—T. C. CRAWHALL, hon. sec.

BORDER FANCY CANARY CLUB.

Annual general meeting held in Corn Exchange Buildings, Edinburgh, on January 1st, Mr. Richardson presiding over a large attendance. Mr. Richardson was again appointed president, and M. Jamieson, Green Terrace, Hawick, N.B., hon. secretary and treasurer. Auditors, Messrs. Neil and Bennet (Kelso). The delegates were all re-elected, and Mr. Hamilton was elected for Dalkeith district. The following new delegates were appointed:—Leven district, Mr. D. Baird (Stirlingshire), Mr. Reid (Bathgate), and Mr. Forest. Mr. Bennet moved that committee who attended meeting in Edinburgh should be allowed their train fares. This was agreed to. The balance sheet was gone over. It showed a deficiency on the year's working, but this was explained by a few extra items, viz., £2 for special prizes at contest, also secretary's expenses attending contest; and more medals were granted this year than last; also committee's expenses. The secretary intimated that the B.F.C.C. points totalled 239, against 26 for the English and Welsh club, only four members of the last named club competing at the contest. A motion that the next general meeting be held at Carlisle was moved and seconded, and also an amendment that it be again held in Edinburgh, which, after a heated discussion, was lost, the motion being carried. A letter was read from Mr. Cubby (Carlisle), who said he thought a little consideration should be given to Marked and Greeu or Cinnamon birds when medals were being judged for, as a Clear or Ticked bird nearly always won the medal. Mr. Duncan suggested that when societies had a good classification there should be an extra medal granted. After a few of the members had spoken on the matter, it was allowed to drop. A few new members were proposed, and admitted. There being no other business, the meeting closed with vote of thanks to the chairman.—M. JAMIESON, hon. sec.

MANCHESTER AND NORTHERN COUNTIES O.S.

The following officers for 1909 were elected at the annual meeting:—President, Mr. W. A. Bladon; vice-presidents, Messrs. R. Barrass, J. Baguley, W. Booth, J. E. Davies, A. G. Davis, J. Garner, H. T. Graham, J. Steele Higgins, T. Pease and J. Raynes; committee, Messrs. J. H. Aspinall, C. Bruce, S. Cook, J. Coulson, D. H. Creasey, W. Downing, G. F. Gray, J. Hughes, S. McCann, E. Riley, J. Spencer, and A. G. Smith; hon. treasurer, Mr. J. Raynes; hon. auditors, Messrs. Cook, Creasey, and Graham; hon. assist.-secretaries, Messrs. E. Jones and E. Riley. The meetings are held at the Deansgate Hotel, Deansgate, Manchester, every first and third Monday in the month at 7.30 p.m. New members may be nominated at any meeting. Nomination fee, 1s. Annual subscription, 6s. The programme for 1909 is as follows:—February 1st, Paper by Mr. R. B. Fryer, on "Hybrid Breeding"; February 15th, table show of Yorkshires, and Paper by Mr. H. T. Graham; March 1st, Paper by Mr. Downing, on "The Breeding of Thrushes"; March 15th, table show of British birds, and Paper by Mr. Birchley; April 5th, table show of Norwich, and Paper by a prominent exhibitor; April 19th, Paper by Mr. Smith, on "British Birds, Their Feeding, Steadying, Etc."; May 3rd, discussion on show management, staging and judging, opened by Mr. Fryer; May 17th, cage-making competition, special for the best utility, breeding or stock cage; June 7th, discussion on pairing, rearing, and feeding during breeding, opened by Mr. Raynes; June 19th, first feather show business, and proposal for ramble; July, members' annual first feather show; October, demonstration in washing and staging; October 29th and 30th, 27th annual open show. Friends and fanciers are heartily invited to any of these meetings.—GEO. W. F. LYTHGOE, Hon. Sec., 25, Stamford-street, Old Trafford, Manchester.

NORTH LONDON C.B.A.

Annual general meeting held on January 20th at headquarters, and was well attended. The secretary presented the balance-sheet, duly audited, which showed a slight decrease on last year's, owing chiefly to the shows being held rather too early. However, it was pleasing to note that each show worked out on the right side. Mr. G. D. Harris, one of the auditors, spoke at some length as to the satisfactory manner in which the accounts were presented, and also stated that full depreciation had been allowed as usual, and that the association was still in a sound and flourishing condition. The treasurer, Mr. H. Sweetman, also gave a brief outline of the year's working, and complimented the association on having a satisfactory balance, in spite of the general depression which seemed to have affected several shows this sason. There were several items on the agenda, the most important being those respecting alteration of rules as to points and entry fees for monthly and young stock shows. These were thoroughly discussed, and it was decided to adopt same as printed. Result of ballot for officers for the year was as follows:—Chairman, F. Williamson; vice-chairman, J. Hale; treasurer, H. Sweetman; auditors, G. Mortlock and G. D. Harris; assist.-secretary, H. Pike; committee, W. Penton, W. Morris, J. Bell, W. Lacey, G. Williams, T. Cawthorne, B. F. Forse, and A. B. Forse; secretary, R. P. Harper, 26, Brighton-road, Stoke Newington, N. A vote of thanks was duly accorded both auditors and scrutineers for their services. Challenge cups, trophies, and points' specials were presented to the various winners. Show dates were fixed as follows:—Pair Show, February 17th; Young Stock Show, July 3rd; Annual Show, December 3rd and 4th. Mr. J. Robson was appointed to judge at all three shows, another judge to be appointed later to officiate with Mr. Robson at the annual show. The date of Finch show will be announced shortly. Several nominations were handed in, and also suggestions, which were held over for consideration by the committee.—R. P. HARPER, Hon. Sec.

Presentation to the Rev. C. D. Farrar.

In celebration of the completion of 21 years' service as Vicar of Micklefield, the Rev. C. D. Farrar was recently made the recipient of a number of beautiful presents subscribed for by the parishioners. At the presentation ceremony in the Church School, which was crowded, Mr. Linniker, manager of the Micklefield Colliery, presided, and there were also on the platform the Bishop of Beverley, the Rev. C. D. Farrar, Mrs. Farrar, Miss Farrar, Rev. R. G. Glennie (Sherburn), Rev. Father Wilde (Leeds), and others. The gifts to the Vicar were an illuminated address, gold watch, writing table, silver inkstand, silver coffee service, and other articles, while Mrs. Farrar received a diamond ring. The Rev. C. D. Farrar will be well-known to our readers as the author of that highly popular series of papers entitled "Through a Birdroom Window," now appearing in the columns of CAGE BIRDS, which convey so much practical information in a witty, breezy, style that is quite unique amongst those who write about our hobby.

Mr. Limbert, speaking of Mr. Farrar's work, said that the seats of the church had been made free, the communicants had increased from about 10 to 120, and the church was now filled to over-flowing on Sunday nights. Mr. Farrar's work among the children, too, was touched upon, and he declared that there was no more conscientious man living. Mrs. Farrar had done what she could for the benefit of the mothers in the parish, and he hoped both Mr. and Mrs. Farrar would long be spared to work among them.

The Bishop of Beverley, in making the presentation, said that he was convinced Mr. Farrar had striven to do his duty. He had visited Micklefield on several occasions; one of these was when the colliery disaster occurred, and he came because he happened to know Mr. Farrar was away from home. Immediately Mr. Farrar heard of the disaster he returned, and that proved he was determind to do his duty, and be helpful to the people. They rejoiced that he had been spared so long to labour amongst them. He asked his acceptance of the gifts mentioned, and presented Mrs. Farrar with the ring, remarking that only a parson knew what it was to have a good parson's wife. (Applause.)

The Rev. C. D. Farrar, in returning thanks, said that when he came to Micklefield his first impressions were distinctly discouraging, and he related some of his early experiences. He remembered asking a man to come to church by way of experiment, and he came. When he saw him afterwards he asked him if he learnt anything, and he said, "Yes, I have. The parson told us Sodom and Gomorrah were two cities. I always thought they were man and wife." Ignorance, prejudice, and opposition had to be overcome, but the opposition had not come from the people of Micklefield. In concluding Mr. Farrar made a touching reference to his wife, and the help she had given him.

Mr. H. Pawson, in the course of some remarks, said that the Vicar had not only taught them how to live but had shown them by his own life. He was broad-minded, a man of unbounded generosity, and people had no idea what he gave. He (the speaker) came to Micklefield in fear and trembling after what he had heard about the Vicar, but he had proved his best friend, and he had never met such a kind-hearted man. After a tribute to Mr. Farrar's work in the schools, he said the children in attendance numbered now, instead of 40, getting on to 500, and the schools would compare with any in the district. (Applause.)

The address to Mr. Farrar is as follows:—"We, the parishioners of St. Mary's, Micklefield, beg your acceptance of this address, and the accompanying gifts, as a small token of the regard which we entertain for your personal character and of appreciation of your conscientious work during the 21 years you have been vicar of the parish. And we sincerely trust and pray that God's blessing may rest on your work for the future, and that health and happiness may be granted for many years to come, to you and your family." It is signed by Messrs. G. Haselgrave, R. Firth, A. Hardy, R. Linniker, W. Lund, A. Cawood, and C. Atack, committee; W. Limbert, and W. Blythe, churchwardens; T. Crossland, J. Overton, H. Pawson, and D. Patrick, sidesmen; W. Blythe, hon. treasurer; H. Pawson, hon. sec.; and J. G. Linniker, chairman.

LIVERPOOL ORNITHOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

Lecture on Mendelism, by Mr. J. S. Clinch.

At the monthly meeting of the Liverpool O.S. held on January 19th, a highly interesting address on "Mendelism" was given by Mr. J. S. Clinch to a large assembly of members and friends. Mr. Clinch dealt with the researches which had been carried out by Mendel, and which had resulted in his satisfying himself beyond doubt that, by scientific crossing of the various forms of life, it was possible to produce with certainty Hybrids, in the third and later generations, in which every possible combination of the parent characters occurs, the combinations appearing in definite proportions, as well as pure dominants and pure recessives.

Before dealing with the "birdy" aspect of the matter, Mr. Clinch showed how the knowledge thus obtained was being applied agriculturally, and he instanced the case of wheat, where, by crossing a pure recessive strain with a dominant strain liable to "rust," it was possible to produce a strain which would contain the good qualities of the dominant one, but would be quite immune from the disease. He also referred to the experiments which had been carried out in connection with the culinary pea, in which giant varieties had been crossed with dwarf varieties to give constitution or fecundity or any other quality, without losing their own special character.

After alluding to experiments in connection with poultry, Mr. Clinch got down to the "birdy" world, and opened his remarks by dealing with the vexed question of Cinnamons. He stated that Cinnamon was a mutation of Green, and his audience knew well that a Cinnamon bred with a Cinnamon would produce true Cinnamons. If, however, a Green cock were paired to a Cinnamon hen, the progeny would be all Greens. If the offspring of these Greens were paired together, all the young Cinnamons would be hens. On the other hand, a Cinnamon cock paired to a Green hen, would produce Greens and Cinnamons, the Cinnamons being hens. These being paired together would produce Greens and Cinnamons of both sexes.

Mr. Clinch advised his audience to try some experiments with their stock. He himself had been experimenting for some five years, and had been amply repaid. Nothing was more charming than to find that certain results would follow certain practices, and it was much better to work according to an established rule, than to pair birds together by "rule of thumb."

At the close of his address, Mr. Clinch was inundated with queries, and among other posers put to him was the question of how to breed light Mules. Mr. Clinch stated that the difficulty, of course, was that so far Mules had been considered as impossible to breed from. Personally he was not at all satisfied with this. If, of course, a Mule could be paired up to a Canary, the production of light Mules would be a simple matter. It must be remembered, said the lecturer, that it is in the second and succeeding families that Mendel's law became apparent, and not in the first cross.

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

CANARY QUERIES.

Wanting to Bathe.

Cytula.—As a rule, it is only birds in good health and condition which show any desire for frequent bathing; and so long as they show no ill-effect from cold or chill in consequence of their ablution, they may be allowed to bathe as much as they like. I hardly think there can be much wrong with your Crest-bred hen, which shows such desires, but as you say she is in soft condition, there is just a probability that she may be worried by red-mite attacks. Therefore, you should thoroughly examine the cage for this pest, and also examine the bird for the presence of grey lice, and if any of either are found eradicate them, and add a few quassia chips to the bath for a time. If no such cause is found, give the hen a pinch of Epsom salts in the water daily, for three days, and afterwards give two drops of tincture of steel and six of dandelion juice in the water every second day for a week, and on the alternate days twelve drops of chemical food. By the way, I hope you do not mistake a profuse feathery condition for softness. You must not expect a Crest-bred with any quality at all to appear as tight in feather as a Norwich or Yorkshire.

Various.

W.N.—Your first two queries are intimately connected with one another. In all probability the cause of your last year's young bird, assuming, of course, that it is a cock, does not sing, is because of the mopy condition you refer to, and the latter is undoubtedly due to mismanagement. I should rather doubt the bird in question being a cock, but even if it is, it will not sing as long as it does nothing but eat and sit on the perch sleeping. Keep its cage clean, well strewn with gritty sand, and in a comfortable temperature, but not an heated one. Feed on plain canary only as a staple, as you are now doing, but in addition, give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape twice a week; three times a week a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake in which in the case of the sick bird, well mix two drops of sherry and one of cod liver oil emulsion, and sprinkle a few grains of gold of pleasure seed over it each time, until the bird is better; and on two other days, give the cocks a few grains of hemp and the hen a few grains of inga. Give all these extras alternately, and on different days, not any two on one day. A small spray of green food, free from frost, may be given three or four times a week. In the drinking water of all the birds add as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for three consecutive days, and afterwards six drops of dandelion juice and two of tincture of steel daily for a week. In the case of the particular bird enquired about, give the salts three days each week for a fortnight and then give the other mixture every second day, and on the alternate days twenty drops of chemical food. The use of the seed you name should be limited to special occasions. Hemp is heating and fattening. A few grains as an occasional tit-bit are useful, and a liberal supply may be given when there are growing young ones to be fed. Niga or inga (both are the same) is a very oily and highly stimulating seed. It is useful as an occasional pick-me-up, and in the spring, or from now onwards, a pinch now and again given to the hen is a good preventive of egg-binding later on. Maw is most useful during the early stages of moult, as it helps the shedding of the feathers, and hastens the moult generally. It is also useful to add a sprinkling to the egg food to tempt birds to eat it more freely when they do not seem to care much for soft food.

Will They Come Clear?

Tryfanydd.—1, It depends entirely upon how these birds have been bred whether they will produce clear, or what proportion of clear, young. If the Green cock has been bred from Greens, or the yellow hen is closely related to Greens, the proportion of clear young would probably be very small. On the other hand, if the yellow hen is the produce of clear for a generation or two, and the Green cock is bred from variegated parents, which had a large proportion of clear blood in them, then you might get a fair sprinkling of clear young. 2, It would be practically the same in the case of the buff cock and green hen. In either case, you must not expect all clears, nor yet a very large proportion of them. If the green blood is at all strong in the clears you would get a majority of heavily variegated, a fair proportion of greens, and perhaps ticked, and a stray clear now and again; if the green was not very strong, the majority would still be heavily variegated, with a larger proportion of ticks, and a few stray greens and clears.

Wouldn't Sit at Nights.

M.D. (Edinburgh).—I can only suggest two causes of your hen sitting on her eggs steadily during the day last season, and leaving them at night and returning to them in the morning. The first is that you may possibly have been keeping the birds in a living room, and in such a position that when the lamps were lit at night they caused some alarming shadows, from the bird's point of view, which caused her to leave the nest from fright. The second possible, and, I fear, the most rational, explanation, is that the cage was thoroughly infested with red mite, which had got located in the nest box, and when they began their nightly peregrinations, literally worried the hen off the nest. Had you taken out the nest when she left it, you would soon have discovered whether this was the cause. Attend to the cages well before starting this year, and thus put this trouble out of the question. Feed her now on a diet of plain canary seed, with a half-teaspoonful of summer rape, given separately twice a week; a pinch of inga on two other days, and a half teaspoonful of egg food or crushed sponge cake once or twice a week, if she does not seem to be getting too forward, in which case you would withhold it. Give a little green food when no frost is about three times a week; when not available, substitute a little fruit of some kind.

Various Samples.

Tipperary.—Most of the seeds sent range from very fair to excellent quality. Of the three samples of canary, Nos. 1 and 2 are the best, and there is practically nothing to choose in quality between them. Both are of first-rate quality. No. 1 seems very slightly the largest, so that at the same price I should prefer it, but if the price was materially higher, I should go for No. 2. Teazle, No. 1, is the best seed, but it contains a lot more extraneous matter than No. 2, which is just a fair quality, but seems to be very free from waste. Niger, No. 2, is the best, the other only fair. Linseed, here again, No. 2 is decidedly the best. It is a much smaller seed, but is very clean and bright, whereas the other sample has every appearance of being infested with mites in the bulk. Maw, yet again No. 2 is the best sample, and seems to be a first rate sample, although it was rather crushed in transit. No. 1 is only fair in quality.

An Ancient Breeder.

New Reader.—Nine years old is certainly a mature age for a Canary to breed, to say the least. As he is in good health and song, I have no doubt he will breed all right, but the chances of the "weaker sex" predominating among his progeny are, in my experience, rather strong. As he appears in such good health and song I would not advise you to alter his diet at all with a view to getting him ready for breeding. At his age it is quite on the cards that any drastic change, if such were required, might not work out well in practice, and might perhaps make things go wrong, and upset all your chances of success. Although you give me no idea how you feed, I do not hesitate to advise you to adhere to it, at least until you have tried your success at breeding. The best hen to mate him with to meet all your requirements is a common Roller; if of a good singing strain, the better. Such a hen should be readily procurable for 2/6 or a trifle less.

Laboured Breathing.

G. Smith.—Your feeding is very bad, and is doubtless to a great extent the cause of the trouble. I also suspect the bird is either exposed to great variation of temperature, or to draughts. Keep her in a comfortable and regular temperature, not necessarily overheated, but quite free from draughts. Give plain canary only as a staple, and two days each week give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on three other days a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and a few grains of gold of pleasure seed sprinkled over it. Every second day give a small spray of watercress or other greenstuff when available, quite free from frost. Keep cage clean, and well provided with gritty sand. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and six drops of dandelion juice daily for the first three days, and afterwards every second day for the remainder of the week, and on the alternate days give four drops of aromatic sulphuric acid. During the second week omit the above, and give instead six drops of dandelion juice, and two of tincture of steel every second day, and on the alternate days twelve drops of chemical food. If not quite well by that time, you may begin over again, and repeat the two week's treatment in the same order.

Wheezy Yorkshire.

Yorkshire.—You must first of all remove the cause before beginning any treatment which doubtless lies in the birds' being exposed to draughts, or being kept where there are great variations in temperature. Keep them in just a comfortable temperature, but not by any means an heated one, free from all suspicion of draughts, and where there are no very striking variations between day and night temperatures. In addition to the staple diet of plain canary, give half a teaspoonful of summer rape twice a week, and the same quantity of crushed sponge cake with two drops of sherry and one drop of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it every second day. Give a scrap of green food three or four times a week. Stop all other seeds you have been giving, and limit the diet to the above for the time being. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts daily for the first three days, and afterwards twenty drops of whisky, ten each of glycerine and syrup of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil well shaken together every second day, for a fortnight. In the case of the bird you have bought, which is the worst affected, give the last-named mixture two days in every three for the first fortnight, and, if necessary, continue it every second day for a fortnight after.

Successful Treatment.

W.F.—Am very glad to hear the treatment advised has been so successful. Gradually drop off all the extra items of diet and medicine in the case of the birds that are now in good condition, and as soon as the weather gets mild again put them on the plain winter diet frequently advised here. As regards the two that have not made so good progress, feed them on plain canary as a staple, and give this in unlimited quantities; and every second day give half a teaspoonful of dry summer rape, and on the alternate days half a teaspoonful of sponge cake with two drops of sherry and one drop of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and a few grains of gold of pleasure seed sprinkled over it. Give a mealworm each daily also, if you have them handy, and a small spray of watercress or a bit of banana three or four times a week. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for two consecutive days each week, and on the other days give twenty drops of chemical food every second day, and on the alternate days two drops each of tincture of gentian, and tincture of steel, and five drops of dandelion juice. Continue this until well. In the event of either of these birds dying, I would advise you to have a post mortem on it, to ascertain whether there is any septic taint among your birds. I hardly think this has anything to do with the trouble; still, it would be best to know with certainty.

Breeding Queries.

A Constant Reader.—1, No, decidedly not. I give this unmistakable reply to your first query, because I think you would be simply courting failure to attempt breeding with two hens and one cock in a cage 22 inches long by 18 inches high. You omit the depth, but it matters nothing, as I imagine the cage in question is just an ordinary single compartment breeder. You might breed with one cock and two hens, by having two such cages as the one you describe, and keeping each hen separately in the two cages. Mate the cock first with the freshest hen when ready, and when she has laid and begun to sit, remove the cock and mate him with No. 2 hen, leaving hen No. 1 to rear the brood herself. When hen No. 2 has begun to sit, remove the cock to a small cage, and keep him alone until hen No. 1 is again ready for mating, when you would repeat the same procedure. Query 2, is negatived in the above reply. It is extremely doubtful whether things would run smoothly even in a large aviary, with Canaries nesting in double-holed nest-boxes. Some individuals may agree and make no mistakes or interference, but the great majority will make a muddle of it. 3, Same remarks as No. 2 will apply. Altogether, if you want to have a sporting chance of success, keep the hens separately, and mate the cock with them alternately, as mentioned in first part of reply.

Droops and Wheezes.

W. J. Jass.—Your treatment of the bird is not very good, and you are probably also keeping it in a draughty position, or where there are great fluctuations between day and night temperatures. Your first step must be to remedy either of these causes by keeping the bird where the temperature is fairly equable night and day, and just nicely comfortable, but not overheated. Also see that the cage is not infested with mites. Then feed it on plain canary seed only as a staple, and give separately, in addition, half a teaspoonful of summer rape twice a week; on two other days, give a pinch of hemp; and every second day for the next fortnight, give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of sherry and one drop of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and a few grains of gold of pleasure seed sprinkled over it. Give a scrap of green food or a bit of banana about three times a week. Discontinue all the other seeds, and foods you have been giving. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, six of dandelion juice, and two of oil of eucalyptus well shaken together every second day until the wheeziness is quite removed, and on the alternate days give four drops of tincture of steel, continuing the latter only, until the plumage is properly braced up.

A Tale of a Tail.

M.W.B.—It is very likely the hen got a chill in some way to start the trouble, and being kept in an open wire cage will not help her to throw off the effects. Place her in a box cage by herself, and keep her in a comfortable temperature, but still go on keeping her well away from the fire where the variations of heat are least. For the next month feed her on a mixture of three parts canary to one part rape as a staple, and give a pinch of inga twice a week, and every second day for a fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and a few grains of gold of pleasure seed sprinkled over it. After the first fortnight give this only twice a week. A small spray of green food may be given three or four times a week, when no frost is about. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and six drops of dandelion juice every second day for a week, and afterwards give two drops each of tincture of steel and tincture of gentian every second day for a week, and on the alternate days twenty drops of chemical food, continuing the latter to the end of the month on alternate days, after the aforenamed mixtures are left off. If not all right by that time, write in again, and refer to this reply.

Baldness and Fits.

Welsh, M.C.—I, You do not say how old the bird is, but if it has left its youth behind, I hardly think you will do much to cure the growing baldness. It is very often the outcome of prolonged mismanagement. See the bird is quite free from insect pests, both on its body, and in the cage; encourage it to bathe freely, and it will be helpful to add a crystal or two of permanganate of potash to the bathing water occasionally. Feed as frequently advised for singing birds, and give a half teaspoonful of egg food or crushed sponge cake twice a week, on one occasion in each week well mixing with it two drops of cod liver oil emulsion, and the second time add a very slight dusting of flowers of sulphur, and a pinch of maw seed. Give green food regularly, and in the drinking water as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and five drops of lemon juice twice a week, and on three other days each week, add twenty drops of chemical food to the water. Continue for a month, after which drop the salts, and give chemical food every second day for a few weeks longer. Slightly anoint bare place with sulphur ointment, Zam-buk, or even pure vaseline, twice a week. 2, The only practical way of treating a hen Canary with fits is to build up the general health by proper food and management, keep the bowels free with saline aperients, and avoid exciting it in any way If the fits are very bad or frequent, the best remedy is a dose of chloroform. That may appear rather harsh advice, but it is the best you can have.

Diet Again Wrong.

W. Livesey.—Your seeds are doubtless the chief cause of your trouble. The sample of so-called rape you send is not rape at all of any kind. The sample of canary is very small, but sweet, and of just fair quality If you get better seeds, the bird will doubtless soon improve. Feed on a mixture of two parts canary to one part summer rape—the real stuff—as a staple, and give separately a few grains only of hemp once or twice a week; half a teaspoonful of egg food, or crushed sponge cake, twice a week, and a spray of green food three or four times a week. A mealworm a day for a time would certainly help him to recover. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, six drops of dandelion juice, and twenty drops of whisky every alternate day for a week, and in the following week give two drops each of tincture of gentian and tincture of steel every second day, and twelve drops of chemical food on the alternate days. A small piece of fat boiled bacon stuck in the wires for it to peck at would be beneficial. "Profitable Canary Breeding," deals solely with the Roller Canary, and this may be had from the Manager, CAGE BIRDS Office.

Brevities.

Seeds for Opinion (Wireless).—The samples of canary are of very good quality, and fair size, sweet and clean. There is very little to choose between them, but No. 2 is just a trifle larger than No. 1, and as this is lower in price, according to your letter, it is certainly the cheapest. By the bye, you might, perhaps, have numbered the packet in error. The summer rape is also of excellent quality but, mon, 5d. per lb. is nearly sixpence. It's a great price truly, even though the seed is good. Both samples of canary are cheap. There is no need to trouble to get better seeds than either of these.

The Temperature (Anxious).—I never really troubled to take the temperature of a "Canary's nest of eggs when she is sitting," by which I presume you mean to enquire what heat is generated in the nest to hatch the eggs. I believe the average temperature of small birds such as the Canary is about 110 degs. F., so I should expect the heat developed in the nest of a sitting hen to be somewhat about the same—or somewhere within the limits of 105 degs. F. and 110 degs. F. Still, please do not take it as definite. I will try to bear the matter in mind this coming season.

Sample of Canary (Geo. G. Hay).—The sample is a trifle small, but is very clean, bright, and perfectly sweet. It appears a well-ripened sample, and none too dry for a well-harvested and properly-stored seed. Apart from its rather small size, which is not sufficient to be a serious detriment, the seed is quite good. I do not profess to have prophetic insight to tell whether any given sample is kiln-dried or not. I do not think you need have any objection to using this seed.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Chaffinch and Redpoll.

Merton.—The feeding of a Chaffinch is dealt with in the reply given "Young Joe." I should advise you to read the Hardbill section of the "British Bird Manual," which will tell you all about caging, etc.; too lengthy matters to deal with in these columns. The cage known as the "Finch stock cage," is the best kind, about 16 inches long by 12 high by 8 or 9 wide. Redpolls require exactly the same treatment as a Linnet (see reply to James Law this week). There is one easy way to distinguish the cock Lesser Redpoll from the hen, for if you see a bird of this species with a red breast, that is a certain cock. When house-moulted they are extremely hard to sex, though the cock is generally brighter in colour, and denser (blacker) in pencilling. But even the cocks vary astonishingly in colour. A good, free songster, of course, is a certain cock.

Feeding a Chaffinch.

Young Joe.—The brown beak shows that the bird has not yet come into condition after the moult, the blue beak being only found on birds in forward (breeding) condition. It should change to blue when the Spring comes in; probably will do so before then. As a staple seed mixture give the following: Canary and teazle four parts each, summer rape, charlock and linseed one part each, maw a quarter part. In addition, give a good feed of white sunflower seed or safflower seed daily. Smashed walnuts (and other nuts) are greatly relished also, and should be given occasionally in the light of a special treat. As the bird is so backward, a teaspoonful of hemp might be given every other day. Give a mealworm or two every day or so, varying same with flies, smooth caterpillars, grubs, earwigs, spiders, aphides, gentles, wasp grubs, etc., as obtainable. Chaffinches will eat most kinds of live food. These birds are not particularly keen on green food but will nibble with appreciation a sprig of shepherd's purse, chickweed, groundsel, dandelion, etc. Radish, turnip, and summer rape seedlings, are usually eagerly devoured, however, when just sprouting, which they soon begin to do when soaked in cold water.

Sexing and Feeding Skylarks.

A. Scott.—The cock and hen Skylark are coloured and marked exactly alike, practically speaking, and no beginner could sex them by these points. The cock Skylark is always an appreciably bigger bird than the hen, and has a longer sweep of wing. The difference in these points is very apparent when a good cock bird is compared with an average hen. Even when folded, the wings of the cock can be seen to reach farther down over the tail. The feeding I have often dealt with. A good and simple stock food which will keep practically for ever when sealed in tins, and which any good corn dealer or seller of bird food will mix for you, is:—Game (or Pheasant) meal (without grit) four parts: meat meal, good ants' eggs and dried flies, one part each, by measure. Damp quantity required for daily use with a little grated raw carrot or cold boiled potato, or finely-chopped lettuce, chickweed, watercress, or other green food in season, and add a teaspoonful of preserved egg-flake or half a hard-boiled egg twice or so a week. Give four or five mealworms daily, and any other of the live foods so frequently mentioned by me that you can lay hands on. Give a little seed in a separate vessel (not along with the soft food), about a teaspoonful of canary seed daily, with, for a change, crushed hemp, groats, maw, or rape. Let the bird have a fresh clover turf as often as possible. Cover the floor of the cage with (or give in a deep pan) a mixture of fine road dust and sand, in which a teaspoonful of insect powder, or powdered sulphur, has been mixed. The bird will dust itself in this. It is a very excellent plan, too, to have a second drawer bottom to the cage, made of tin or zinc, which is run in occasionally filled with water, in which the bird will paddle, and so keep its feet in order, or you can fill it with very wet chickweed.

Sex of Linnets, etc.

Constant Reader.—I am afraid you are not a constant reader of my own column, for in our issue of January 23rd I gave a long answer on feeding fresh-caught Linnets. However, see another reply in this issue. With regard to the sexing of Linnets, the best guide for the novice is to choose a bird with a good edging of white to the tail feathers, and which has the white on the flight (wing) feathers extending right back to the quill (shaft), and white underneath the wing as well as on top. The hens are grey in colour, and heavily streaked with markings on the breast; the cock has a nut-brown back and wing butts, and signs of red are to be observed on the breast feathers, especially if ruffled with a finger, and at the end of winter and the approach of the breeding season the breast of the cock becomes very perceptibly red. On the breast of the cock the tips of the feathers have a "mooned" appearance—an edging of colour disposed in a shape resembling that of the new moon. Any red feathers on the breast infallibly denote a cock—unless, of course, the "red" has been applied by human hands. A three-year-old cock Linnet in the breeding season develops a really gorgeous crimson head and breast. To sum up: In an adult bird always look for good whites, a rich nut-brown back, and a "mooned" breast, and you can't go wrong.

Seeds and Bushes for Aviary.

Alpha.—In our issue of January 16th last I explained that it is very wasteful, and consequently expensive to use a seed mixture in a large aviary containing many species of birds. The best method is to give the principal seeds (say canary, teazle, hemp, summer rape, charlock and sunflower, or, preferably, a mixture of half sunflower, half safflower) in separate boppers or dishes, and throw a little of the other seeds in occasionally, by way of a change, or as "tit-bits," as fanciers say. If you must have your seed-mixture, then for a varied collection of Finches and Canaries you will find it difficult to beat this: Canary and teazle three pints each, hemp two pints, summer rape and charlock one pint each, linseed half-a-pint, with about a half-pint of mixed sunflower and safflower seeds, increasing or decreasing the quantity of these latter according to whether the birds eat it all up or not—it depends on the composition of the collection, as some birds like these seeds more than others. The other seeds—niger, maw, wild seeds, wild seed mixture, etc.—you can give now and again, as indicated above. The exact quantity of hemp should vary according to the season (less in summer—unless feeding youngsters is going on—than in winter). A little more linseed is also useful during the moult. As regards bushes, elder is certainly bad, and I believe laburnum is looked on with suspicion. Personally I have never found anything beat the evergreens, such as ivy, holly, box, fir, privet, and the like. Ordinary bushes—hawthorn, fruit, etc.—are soon stripped bare. For your place, evergreens would certainly be best.

Batch of Fresh-caught Goldies.

Miss Blaxland.—I really do not know why you should have such trouble with the fresh-caught Goldfinches. I may say, however, that it is quite possible to interfere with them too much. They should be left alone in a quiet spot until they begin to get used to captivity; go to them only for feeding purposes—you must not go disturbing them every few minutes. Let them have niger, maw and cracked hemp (cracked afresh every day), as much as they will eat; also, in addition, canary, teazle, linseed, cracked sunflower and coarse oatmeal. An important point is to be sure and see the captives get at the water—both water and seed are better inside the cage. I would also offer ample sunflower and summer rape, which had been soaked in cold water until it burst, or had just commenced to sprout, dabbing it as dry as possible with a cloth before offering it. Or a good substitute is a supply of the stock seed mixture which has been soaked for at least 24 hours in cold water, and well rinsed and dabbed dry. In addition to the above, a plentiful supply of thistle-heads, knap-weed, sow-thistle, seeding groundsel, etc., is simply invaluable with such birds. Of course, you are too late to gather these things now, but thistle (and dandelion) seed can be bought. When you have a bird look a little "thick," try it at once with a dose of sulphate of soda—as much as will lie on a shilling dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Repeat, but at half strength, and with the addition of a half-teaspoonful of good brandy, after a day's interval on plain water.

Feeding Fresh Caught Linnets.

James Lane.—I can't quite understand your trouble, and I should think you must keep the birds under wrong conditions (note reply to Miss Blaxland). The feeding I dealt with as recently as Jan. 23 issue. Here you are again:—Fresh caught Linnets should have soaked seed of some kind. My method of feeding newly-caught Linnets is as follows:—For their stock food I mix one pint each of best canary, and sound ripe teazle, with half a pint each of genuine summer rape, linseed, and charlock seeds. Some real good, new teazle is now on the market. Charlock is sometimes dark bluish red, almost black in colour; sometimes exactly like summer rape; and it tastes very hot when chewed—hence its name of "mustard" seed. In addition to the stock mixture, in a separate dish I give an unlimited supply of maw seed and niger, also lightly cracked hemp seed. These I gradually discontinue, arranging to drop them altogether after the birds have been in my possession twelve to fourteen days. As green food (or "soft-seed" food), I provide summer rape and sunflower seed soaked in cold water until just commencing to germinate (dabbing it dry in a towel before giving it to the birds), and seeding shepherd's purse, plantain, and chickweed and flowering groundsel tops, when obtainable. If I think my birds were caught during a wet spell, I soak the stock mixture for them at first. I very seldom lose a bird on the above treatment.

Brevities.

Linnet Muling (Muler).—I have no doubt you would notice that all your questions were answered in the reply given "S. A. Brough" last week.

The Red Breast (T. Henderson).—No; I have never known a Linnet to be moulted in a cage and come through such a moult with a red breast. They then always have a brown (more-or-less pale) or greyish breast.

Linnet Mules (Roffe).—If you will put any questions to me, I shall be pleased to answer—you don't say exactly what it is you want to know. I dealt with the subject last week (Jan. 30), in the reply given "S. A. Brough." I do not know of any special book.

Siskin's Bad Foot (K. W.).—Get an ounce of colourless tincture of iodine from a chemist, and a small camel-hair brush. Paint the swollen joint lightly with this twice daily, morning and evening. Wash the foot thoroughly with hot water and soap before you first commence doing so. Keep the bird quiet, in a small cage, and on thin perches.

Out All Weathers (E. M. Roberts).—I have often said in this column that I should not care to leave any bird of mine outdoors day and night, no matter what the weather, when in a cage. You can hang them out in the day-time, if the weather is at all decent, and the spot a sheltered one; but put them in an unheated room, or outhouse, for the night.

A Trio (M. W. B.).—1: A "kind" Finch, such as this is almost certain to prove a muler. 2: Use just a little of the contents of an ordinary blue bag; this will tone down the white distemper. Two coats is enough for any cage, unless it be very rough, or the wood exceptionally porous. 3: When the Goldie is in full song, and has a quite clear (or almost clear) beak, he is fit to breed with.

A Mixture (S. O., Oldham).—You will be very ill-advised to turn Budgerigars into your place. They are often spiteful, and will not be good companions for breeding hen Canaries. Should advise you to let the occupants of the place be 6 hen Canaries, with the one Goldfinch and three Linnet cocks. You would stand a chance of breeding Mules. See other replies this week on feeding Goldies and Linnets.

Song Thrush Ailing (E. H. R.).—Crush one or two chlorate of potash lozenges and mix with them twice their bulk of crushed Epsom salts. Of this mixture, dissolve as much as will lie on a shilling in three tablespoonfuls of drinking water, fresh daily for two or three days. This should bring relief. Use a little crushed and scalded dog biscuit, or "Melox," with the stock food mentioned.

When Should It Sing? (Aher).—A deal depends on the "temper" (or disposition) of the birds, but both a Woodlark and Skylark ought to break into song as soon as we experience a spell of mild, sunny, spring-like weather. If the birds are very wild and intractable, however, this would keep them from singing, especially if hung in a place where people are constantly passing by their cages.

Song of Thrush (Novice).—A hand-reared (1908) Song Thrush, if a male and in good health and condition, ought certainly to have given some hint of song ere this. It looks as though you have a hen, though you might be well advised if you waited until we had a bright sunny spring day or two before finally deciding this to be the case. Add some crushed dog biscuit, or "Melox" to the stock food mentioned.

Two Matters (Miner).—Rain-water is splendid when you can get it quite clean; not an easy matter for town dwellers. Dirty rain-water would spoil any bird. I prefer tap water softened by the addition of a pinch of borax, or a drop or two of cloudy ammonia. Hard water is certainly bad. 2: If you throw birds into a large flight or aviary (not too well lighted), about the middle of July, they will usually drop into moult early.

Non-Success with Linnets (Sillin).—I cannot add anything to the long answers recently given on the feeding of Linnets. My own birds thrive splendidly. Possibly there is something wrong with the conditions under which you keep them; there is nothing in your letter to throw any light on the losses. If you have another go wrong, try the effect of a small teaspoonful of good brandy in about three tablespoonfuls of drinking water.

Inmates of Aviary (Aviary Matter).—The fewer birds one has in a place the better it is for prospects of breeding anything, and this applies with special force to moderate-sized aviaries such as your own. The seventeen hens will be ample; and you will do well to thin out the hen Canaries if they fight much. You will probably find one cock Bramble and two cock Greenfinches all you can accommodate, on account of fighting. The other Britishers should be all right.

Bullfinch with Cold (L. B. W.).—You must keep the bird in an equable temperature, and in a box cage—that is, one wired at front only. In each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water (use a glass or pot vessel only), stir a small teaspoonful of the following mixture: Glycerine, oxymel of squills and ipecacuanha wine, one ounce of each. This must be continued for at least 10 to 14 days, though an occasional drink of plain water should be allowed.

Goldfinch Ailing (Goldfinch).—Wash out the bird's mouth (also nostrils, if necessary) with warm water coloured light red by the addition of a few drops of Condy's fluid—a tiny feather being a handy thing to do it with. Do this twice daily for three or four days. Also let the bird's drinking water (use a glass or pot vessel) be similarly coloured with Condy's fluid for a few days. There cannot be much the matter with him, or he would not sing at all.

Thrush and Bullfinch (B. W., Sheffield).—For the colds you cannot better the treatment advised "L. B. W.," this week. But it is no use whatever giving it for a few days only; colds are often hard to cure. You must keep the birds dry and out of draughts. Cover the Bullfinch's cage over at night with a warm yet light (not heavy) wrapper. In the soft food of the Thrush mix daily for 7 or 8 days as much flowers of sulphur (from chemist) as will cover a shilling.

About a Goldfinch (A. Minton).—My own way of feeding Goldfinches will be found given in another reply this week. The Finch Mixture you mention is very good to give occasionally. Goldfinch-Redpoll Hybrids are very good exhibition birds if really good specimens of the cross—big and excelling in colour. It is the cocks, of course, which are valuable; all hen Hybrids are at a discount. I believe a class for hens at the shows would pay its way well. A fine exhibition Goldie-Redpoll might be worth anything from 50/- to 80/-; an ordinary one about 20/-.

Nests for Bullie Hens (Socialist).—I don't think you will find "earthenware nestpans lined with swansdown" any good for Bullfinch hens. I have never had a hen Bullie which would look at them. Madam Bullie is very funny in captivity, and often prefers a tangled heap of dried grasses, or a turf of dried grass, on the cage floor, to anything else in which to build; she also likes to line and use an old nest of the Thrush, or Blackbird, or Greenfinch. These latter are the best things to put in some corner of the cage, and screened with dried grasses.

A Skylark (C. Hodson).—It is not easy from your letter to judge what is the matter with the bird. I should think the fact of your hanging him out of doors upset him, and caused him to bang about and chafe his wing-butts. If sore, anoint with a little carbolised vaseline. If the bird has developed a cold, write me again. A dust bath is a mixture of dry road dust and dry bird sand in about equal parts, with a good dash of insect powder (Keatings) amongst it. It can be thickly strewn on the cage floor; or given in a box (cigar box, for instance). The bird will soon enjoy himself in it.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

Parrot with Long Claws.

A. Parker.—You will certainly have to cut the claws back; a pair of sharp nail nippers is as good a tool as any. You must mind and not cut back too far. There is a vein running down the centre of claw, and if this be cut into, it will bleed rather badly. I should advise you to cut back so as to leave the bird comfortable, and then do it regularly as required. If you should have a mishap and cut too far, promptly apply a little Friar's Balsam, which will check the bleeding, and as far as possible prevent the bird from pecking at the claw, till the Balsam has dried on. However, this should not occur. As a rule, it is quite sufficient to nip away 1-16th or 1-8th of an inch at the most. If the bird's claws are light and held against the light the vein can generally be seen; in such case cut back so as to miss.

Converting a Greenhouse.

Sirdar.—Am of opinion the difficulty you speak of cannot be surmounted, unless the whole length of roof lifts. I do most decidedly advise that half the glass roof be covered with felt. Of course ventilating sashes must be left uncovered—you will be surprised at the equable temperature you will get compared with what it is now. The greenhouse will need to have wire netting over the glass inside to keep the birds from bashing against same; this also will keep them away from paint, though I have never lost a Parrakeet from such a cause, and I have had some take a fair portion of painted putty without being any the worse. You must cover the glass with netting, as birds do not seem to recognise glass as an obstacle. I do not think Budgerigars, even in your locality, will take any harm in unheated quarters, but 45 to 50 degs. F. will be very satisfactory to your birds, providing you can get it without having a vitiated atmosphere. I hope I made myself clear; don't mix Budgerigars with your Finches, or you will rue it later. Give the Budgies the potting shed with an open air flight, and let the Finches, etc., have the greenhouse and also a flight. In very severe weather they can be kept in the shelters. For Budgerigars or Parrakeets it is no use planting trees or bushes—they are soon cut to pieces. Sow the ground at intervals with grain, oats, rape, maize, wheat, etc., and fix in ground dead trees. Such an aviary has a very pleasing appearance. In the Finch aviary you can have all the trees you mention and any others of non-poisonous foliage, but I doubt if they will let peas of any kind reach the flowering stage. Bamboos make good cover, so do spruce and various conifers.

Parrot Pulling Feathers.

Robinson.—I fear you are treating this bird altogether wrongly, and that this is the cause of the trouble. Don't give tea, coffee or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food. Diet: Seed mixture, equal parts of canary, wheat, dari maize, hemp and sunflower seeds; well mix and always keep a supply in cage. The following may all be supplied at intervals so as to vary diet: ripe fruit, plain biscuits, nuts, and a crust of household bread. Grit, water, and cuttlefish must be regularly supplied. Grey Parrots are far better and healthier on a seed and fruit diet as above, but as it is used to soaked bread, this can still be given, soaked in water only, squeezed dry and then dusted with flowers of sulphur. Make drinking water for one day quite saline with Epsom salts, then afterwards put sufficient Parrish's Chemical Food in it to make it the colour of pale port wine. Spray the bird with weak quassia solution. Report progress in a few weeks' time with full details.

Diet for Moustache Parrakeet.

Vogel.—Seed mixture: Canary, white millet, hemp and sunflower seeds, oats, maize, wheat and dari, in equal parts except the last two items, of which only use half quantities. Ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuit, and green food should also be given, while grit, water, and cuttlefish must be regularly supplied. If it is a young bird a little boiled maize should be given for a time. This only keeps fresh one day, and the food vessel must be kept strictly clean; as soon, however, as it is eating freely of the dry seed mixture, wean it from the boiled maize. As it is a fresh importation, for two or three weeks put Parrish's Chemical Food in the drinking water (see other replies). If there should be any sign of constipation, making the drinking water saline with Epsom salts will give relief. See warning re slops, etc., in other replies in this issue. The dainty bit must be that which an individual bird favours most; observation will soon indicate this.

Roselias Dying.

R.W.W.—You have been very unfortunate with this pair of birds. The male, probably badly scared by some occurrence, had evidently flown wildly against the wire netting, twisted the lower mandible across the upper and perished miserably. I do not know whether you opened the bird, but I should be inclined to think the skull was damaged as well. It would hardly be likely to die of starvation before its predicament was noticed. Re the hen; by all means try the "Tatcho"; also put her on a course of phosphates, and as she is in an aviary, and can take plenty of exercise, get a little "game meal" or "chicken meal," and put sufficient boiling water over a small quantity to thoroughly swell it; do not leave it wet, but crumbly moist. When it is cool, stir in one teaspoonful of flowers of sulphur to two tablespoonfuls of the meal. This should be sufficient for the daily supply. Also supply a leaf of fresh lettuce, and a liberal supply of such fruit as it will eat. Also give a regular supply of phosphates in the drinking water.

Breeding Budgerigars & Zebras.

Novice.—Budgerigars purchased now, providing they are not nestlings, should breed before the year is out. However, by far the best plan is to secure a really good pair (the cheapest often prove very dear) and fully adult, even if they cost you a little more. It is no good breeding save from the strongest and healthiest stock, it is simply waste of time and money; the young of weakly parents are not worth rearing. A really good Budgerigar—whether of the yellow or green variety—is one of the handsomest of birds, but there is more rubbish about with these than with perhaps any other kind of birds. Accept nothing save those which are in full feather, alert and healthy, and you will then meet with success. Providing they have the cage to themselves, there is a reasonable prospect of the Zebra Finches nesting. Hang up a Hartz travelling cage in one corner (any dealer will sell you one for a copper or two); supply hay and a little moss, and leave the birds to themselves. When they settle down to nesting refrain from prying into the nest and you will be delighted with a brood of young birds. You do not say how or where you are going to keep the Budgerigars. If in a cage, it should not be less than 24 in. by 14 in. by 18 in., with a husk at either end, hung near top of cage.

Sexing Grey Singing Finches.

H. T. T. H.—In the first place the bird with a red beak is not a grey Singing Finch; possibly it is a hen Zebra Finch, but your description is too vague for me to be more definite. The grey Singing Finch is a small grey bird (not larger than a Redpoll), grey striated with darker on the upper surface, and pale or whitish grey with irregular striations, on the lower surface; the beak is a darkish horn-colour. When the male is singing there is a small white patch visible on the throat, which is obscured at other times; also all the hens I have possessed have had the striations or darker markings of their plumage less distinct and more irregular than those of the male. The only certain test is that of song, because unless the birds were fully adult, the above distinctions would not apply, as the nestlings of very many species resemble the hen while immature. A large number of these birds usually arrive immature, but a careful observation of a cage full for a short time, should enable you to make a reasonably correct choice. The largest, brightest, boldest and clearly marked birds are mostly males.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post-mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Yellow Yorkshire Cock (X.Y.Z.).—"Severe chill," or inflammation of liver and lungs, ending in apoplexy.

Norwich Canary (Pretoria).—Enlargement and softening of liver, giving rise to inflammation, in which the lungs became involved.

PARK & LAKE AVICULTURE

Squirrels and Californian Quails.

W.M.—1. No, squirrels are not polygamous, and you can safely keep a pair together all the year round. They have only one litter a year, at midsummer. 2. Californian Quails are not polygamous; in fact, if you have two hens with one cock, there is likely to be trouble, as these birds are most quarrelsome. The cock also helps to look after the brood.

Dove Queries.

Barlastonian.—1. I do not know that any hoppers are made specially for Doves; why not look in CAGE BIRDS advertisements? Hoppers are usually only made for Pigeons and Canaries. 2. I doubt if it will do your Doves any harm to nest now; breaking their eggs to stop them would not be of much use, as they would only lay again, and that would weaken them. If you do not want them to breed yet the only plan is to separate them. After all, you need not let them hatch more than one egg out of each couple laid, if you want to spare them exertion in rearing.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

A Bird (E. English).—The bird is a Marsh Tit. Pity he got drowned. Thanks for your kind remarks.

Letter Forwarded (W. E. Steinschen).—The letter has been duly addressed and posted, as requested.

Cutting Gauge (R. Fox).—A "cutting" gauge is the same as a marking gauge, but the cutting point is lengthened (when necessary) and made very sharp, when it then easily cuts through the thin wood used in cage-making.

Extra Third in Scotch Fancies (C. Farrow).—We should be pleased to notify your win, but you do not give the name of the show. Will you send it along? We regret the omission.

CRESTED CANARY CLUB.

The annual general meeting will be held in the Garden Hall at the Crystal Palace on February 6th, at 3 p.m. prompt:

(A) To receive the balance-sheet and annual report; the following notices of motion will also be discussed:—

(B) Mr. G. C. Ley suggests the better classification at shows to obtain the club's support.

(C) Mr. Crisp moves: "That all members of a family, or residents in the same house, must show in the highest section in which any of them may have won a first prize."

(D) "That there must be four competitors to warrant the awarding of the first year champion points specials."

(E) "That the first paragraph of Rule 11 be deleted."

(F) "That a diploma and medal be awarded for the best bird exhibited by a lady member at each show, or that three points prizes be given during the season for ladies' competition only."

(G) "That limit classes of £5 and over be considered open classes." The following resolutions stand in the name of Mr. J. S. Clarke:—

(H) "To discuss the best means of extending the club's membership."

(I) "To discuss the practicability of London and the provinces exchanging lecturers to give papers on the Crested Canary to local societies with a view of increasing interest in the variety."

(J) "To discuss the possibility of establishing a monthly or quarterly magazine."

(K) "To approach the Fancy Press with a view to their granting, say, half a column weekly, the members of the C.C.C. guaranteeing to support the same."

(L) "To discuss the advisability of electing two or more assistant secretaries, whose duty should be to look after the interests of Crest fanciers in the district in which they reside."

(M) In view of the dull decorum observed at C.C.C. meetings, to discuss the advisability of printing on the rule books, memos., voting papers, etc., those lines,

"O dulness! portion of the truly blest,
Calm shelter'd haven of eternal rest."—Burns.

CORRESPONDENCE.

PROPOSED NEW SOCIETY FOR DEWSBURY & DISTRICT.

SIR,—A meeting of Canary fanciers will be held at the Little Saddle Hotel on Feb. 6th at 7.30 o'clock, to try and form a new society for Dewsbury and District. It is hoped there will be a large attendance.

G. G. STAFFORD.

THE SOUTHAMPTON ORNITHOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

SIR,—A few fanciers having met have formed the above-named society. Our next meeting is fixed for Feb. 10th next, at 7.30, when a table show for Goldfinches is to take place. We are anxious to make a big affair from a very small beginning, and request the co-operation of all good fanciers in the district. Members and their friends and all lovers of the Fancy are invited, and will receive a hearty welcome.

C. PARMITER.

A CRESTED CANARY CLUB MATTER.

SIR,—Please allow me to support Messrs. Evins Bros. in their contention "that points won at the Palace should not count for Mr. Roberts cup, on the ground that the 20 specified shows have already been held." With regard to myself, I should not have exhibited at the Palace had it not been for Mr. Tyson's letter in your issue of January 23rd. I had ceased showing, and, like Messrs. Evins, had trimmed most of my show birds, but on reading Mr. Tyson's letter, I thought I had better make a few entries, even if I only got inferior positions.

T. J. KING.

PROPOSED NEW SOCIETY FOR THE CITY OF LONDON.

SIR,—Owing to the very bad fog which enveloped London on the evening of the 27th January, the meeting which I had arranged to take place on that day was very poorly attended, and in consequence no real business could be done. Under the circumstances I propose to hold another meeting, at the undermentioned address, on Wednesday evening, February 10th, at 8 p.m., when I trust, weather permitting, the attendance will be a larger one. I again extend the invitation to all Fanciers residing within the City of London especially to attend this meeting.

H. W. COOK.

WAS THIS EXHIBITION CANARY FRIGHTENED TO DEATH?

SIR,—I am very sorry to have to inform you that my winning 1908 breast-marked buff cock Canary died suddenly this morning. He won 1st at Swindon, 1st at Bournemouth, 1st at Dudley only last week, 2nd at Winchester, and 4th at West Bromwich in a class of 18. Ever since the Winchester Show the bird was much frightened and very nervous at times. He would see a Thrush on the clothes post, scream out, and almost fall in the corner of the cage, where he would stop three or four minutes. Then he would be all right again. I put it down to the shock he received at our show, where pigeons were staged in front of the Norwich classes, and my bird, as soon as he saw the pigeons, almost battered his head to pieces. Since then he has been very nervous. You can imagine I am very sorry to have lost him; he was a really good one and I was looking forward to the breeding season to see what I could get from him. The father of the bird was claimed at Swindon Show, so you see I am very unlucky for a beginner. I am going to have the bird stuffed. No doubt readers will be sorry to hear that another good one is gone.

H. SCHNEIDER.

PRIZE MONEY AT KILMARNOCK O.C.B.S. SHOW.

SIR,—As Mr. Miller still asserts his figures are correct, I am obliged to quote from his first letter on the subject. He says: "Just think for one moment: 7 entries, 14s., the sixpence taken off for 1st and 2nd cards makes it 15s.; pay out 5s. for 1st and 2s. for 2nd, total 7s., and 8s. left to the Society." Anyone possessing a rudimentary knowledge of arithmetic can surely detect errors in his calculations. Half prize money is 13s. per class. I still adhere to the opinion that it is the custom to pay half-prize money when the class is not a full one. If Mr. Miller wishes to prove the contrary, I would suggest that he examine the schedules of the seventeen Scottish Societies, which last year availed themselves of CAGE BIRDS, "dates fixed" columns and report thereon. It is, however, a matter of little importance whether societies pay half-prize money, or 2nd prize money to the 1st bird when there is not a full class, as it usually amounts to the same sum. At Kilmarnock under the one system it is 13s. per class, under the other 14s. per class. Before entering his birds, Mr. Miller had surely the privilege of studying the schedule, and if he was not satisfied, no one could compel him to exhibit. In having to accept half-prize money, he has my sympathy, as I exhibited five birds, and there was not a full class in the case of any of them. The short entries affected my prize money in a greater degree than his, yet I don't suppose I would have fared better at any show where full prize money was not guaranteed. With reference to the 1907 show, I would point out to Mr. Miller that I have no occasion to resort to falsehoods, and can substantiate all I have said. On the day in question I saw the committee examine scores of exhibits and pen-slips, so that Mr. Miller has no reason to think his was an isolated case. As far as I am aware, he is as honest as any other exhibitor, but that does not signify that he is exempt from examination. I am inclined to think Mr. Miller belongs to that unfortunate class of people who delude themselves into the belief that they are continually the victims of injustice. A too vivid imagination plays havoc with the faculty of reason.

G. F. ADAMSON.

SIR,—In my last letter I stated in my first sentence that I did not intend answering Mr. Miller's letter, but there are some statements in his of last week that I cannot let pass unchallenged. In my last I explained my error regarding Mr. Roddie's prize-money; I will pass that bit over (but I may say I had a letter from Mr. Roddie expressing his regret at having written to the Press, as he did not wish to do our Society any harm, but on the contrary, wished it every success). The figures Mr. Adamson gives are quite correct, as anyone looking over our schedule or catalogue can see for himself. I believe we did make an error in our schedule, in not stating that half-prize money would be paid in classes containing less than seven exhibits. If we had done so, I do not expect there would have been any letters on the subject at all. I quite agree with Mr. Miller that we could have paid anything to exhibitors, but it was our intention all along to pay half prize money in these classes, and we did so, never having thought of any other thing, until it was brought to our notice by Mr. Miller's letter, and by one private letter I had myself. We did not adopt any underhand means to make our show pay, as anyone knowing Kilmarnock Fanciers also knows that they are too jealous of their honour to do an underhand trick, for the sake of a few shillings or pounds. I wish to keep away from personalities, but I must say I am surprised that Mr. Miller did not read Bathgate schedule a little more carefully (I would not have mentioned this Society or any other if he had not done so). The latter part of rule 10 reads: "If not more than 7 in class, first prize money will be withheld." Their prize money is 10s., 5s., 3s., 2s. Now if they had paid half prize money, where would the difference have been? Not in the first prize, as exhibitors would still have been getting the second prize money, 5s., and the Society would have been paying 10s. in a class with half-prize money, and 10s. by withholding first prize. Again I say, where does the difference come in to the Society? Unfortunately I have destroyed the Kilsyth and Broxburn schedules, so I cannot go into their cases, but I can go into those of two others. I have beside me (I enclose their names in a private letter to the Editor, as I do not believe in bringing other societies into the matter) the schedules of the Societies I refer to. One of them pays 12s., 6s., 3s., and states in their rules that first prize money will be withheld unless there are more than 6 birds in a class. If they had paid half-prize money, they would have had 1s. 6d. per class more to pay than they had to pay by withholding the first prize. The other society paid 10s., 5s., 2s. 6d. in full classes (unfortunately there were none full) and withheld first prize if not full. Had they paid half-prize money, they would have lost 1s. 3d. per class. I have received dozens of schedules the same as these, and the only fault I can find with ours is that we omitted to state half-prize money: I think Mr. Miller must have taken me up wrongly at the New Year. What I said was, "I did not know who had written to Mr. Young." There is only one secretary to the K.O.C.B.S., but there are also a president, vice-presidents, and a hard-working committee, who I am pleased to say gave me every assistance in their power, both in receiving the entries, and forwarding numbers, etc. I prefer to pass over the remark, "stuck at 7," as Mr. Miller was interested in that class. With the latter portion of his letter I will have absolutely nothing to do, as I do not believe in personalities, but I will say this much, that the committeeman whom he calls a bit officious, was only doing his duty, and is one of the best-known and respected Fanciers in Scotland. Would there were a few more like him! This is my last letter on the subject, as I do not believe in paper controversy.

JAS B. Y. MURDOCK.

PROPOSED PLAINHEAD CLUB FOR FIFE.

SIR,—At the request of a number of Plainhead breeders in Fife I am asked to call a meeting for the purpose of forming a club (confined to Fife) for this variety. The meeting will be held on Feb. 20th, at 6.45 p.m., in Penman's Masonic Arms, Cowdenbeath. We are hoping all or most of the Norwich Plainhead breeders here will attend and give the club a good start right away.

ADAM DICKSON.

NEW ROLLER CANARY SOCIETY FOR BOLTON & DISTRICT.

SIR,—A meeting was held at the Joiners' Arms Hotel, Bolton, on January 27th, when it was agreed that a Roller Canary Society was desirable. Its formation therefore was commenced, and a great amount of business was done. We invite all Fanciers wishing to become members to attend our meetings on the second Tuesday in each month, at the Joiners' Arms Hotel, which was made our headquarters; or write and send their names to

WM. MASSEY, Hon. Secretary.
105, Oxford Grove, off Chorley Old Road, Bolton.

HALESOWEN SHOW AND LATE ENTRIES.

SIR,—In reference to Halesowen Show, I would like to ask if it is the rule for the secretary to enter birds as "late entries" in classes in which only two or three enter? I entered my Norwich hen in the above show. When I got a catalogue I found only three entries, and on looking at the result I found I had reserve prize. I had occasion to go to Halesowen the day after the show, and was informed by the secretary that there was a late entry. I bought a local paper, and found it was the secretary himself that had entered and got third prize. I also note in another class of Yorkshires there were only three entries in the catalogue, and his name not there; but in the prize list he had third prize. Now, in other classes his name was in the catalogue. I cannot understand how the secretary himself was late in entering in these two classes, and not in the others. Is it a general rule for secretaries to do that? I may state it is my first time of showing, and if the above is the case I think it will be the last.

W. CHILDS.

THE TYPE OF PRESENT-DAY WINNING NORWICH PLAINHEADS.

SIR,—I have been watching the judging of Norwich Plainheads, and I think if every breeder bred and showed his own birds we might see more feather and worse birds at shows than we do now. Instead of that, they go to all the leading shows, buy all the best birds they can find, show them at their own shows, and take nearly all the firsts and seconds. Then the novice comes in; he buys some of the man—of course not those show birds, but those he dare not show—say, his own breeding. Poor novice! he goes on breeding, and when he has done, he gets some mongrels, not Norwich; plenty of feather, and poor all round. I am satisfied to show as good as I can get from my own stock. If I were to show, say, 20 birds, I should have to show exhibit like crest breds, but I keep them for stock, not for show. Any breeder who goes in for size must have feather as well; he cannot help it. I know these are facts, for I have seen it. We don't all breed champions, but are satisfied if we get a decent bird or two. I wish those who try to make the type of Norwich could breed them as well as buy them; so, you see, I am

ANOTHER TRUE NORWICH FANCIER.

SIR,—What is all this bother about again over the "Type of the present-day winning Norwich Plainhead?" I see Mr. J. Bertie has filled a column of your valuable space in once more sticking up a bogey in order to knock it down himself. What is his little game? Does he wish to introduce his own model? If he has been to any number of cage bird shows during the season, and is thoroughly disgusted with what he has seen, I am sorry for him. It would take something off his load of trouble if he could only breed some like a few of the winning birds that have travelled the season, for it is certain that the leading Yellows of the year have shown an amount of improvement hardly ever seen before in one season. And Mr. Bertie is "banging the drum" about the Crest bred characteristics shown by the Norwich Plainheads that have won in the season now fast closing. He says some of them have flat heads, some long, snaky heads, and are beetle browed. It is an evidence of his acute observation to be after connecting Crest breds with "long, snaky heads." Mr. Bertie's attack on the judges is rich. One might suppose that no one knew a Norwich but Mr. Bertie. Really some parts of his letter are too funny to let slide. Here is a choice morsel. He says: "Look at the size and colour. Of course we must have size and colour, if all other points are neglected. Oh, yes! We must have the big ones in front at any cost, if they have as much behind them as a duck! Body: This is sometimes long, and of one shape from top to stern, and lacking that round, deep chest, and the essential neck and head properties." The ordinary imagination would have to be cudgelled to conjure up a duck the same size all the way up. It is the judges' fault that Mr. Bertie is not pleased; and it is quite time they reformed their ways. Depend upon it, the judges will never please Mr. Bertie until they do mend their ways, and put such birds in front as will bring into the market the kind Mr. Bertie likes. For Heaven's sake, Mr. Bertie, open your eyes. Have you ever seen Mr. Rennie's winning Yellow? Have you ever seen Mr. Spillman's ticked Yellow? Have you ever seen the grand buff hen known as "The Temptress?" Have you ever seen Mr. Midgley's ticked Yellow? While such as these are being shown, it will be unnecessary to cross the word "Norwich" off our schedules, unless indeed the time arrives when we adopt a new type to be called the "Bertio type." Then the prizes will flow the right way, and there will be great rejoicing, and all the Tom-Tits and Jenny Wrens will join in the chorus.

EXHIBITOR.

SIR,—I was very much pleased to read the letter of J. Bertie, in CAGE BIRDS of January 23rd. I may say I have been a breeder and exhibitor for 40 years, but I never in all my career saw such birds winning on the show benches as I have seen this season. Present day Norwich are not the type and quality that should win on the show bench. Nothing but size and colour is seen by the majority of judges. The birds seem to me to be more fit for the Crest Bred than the Norwich Plainhead Classes. Lashed over the eyes as they are to-day, makes them look broader in the head than they really are. Long feathered! You cannot see their legs! Thick about the vent as they are in front, with long tails, and standing on the perch like half-bred Yorkshires; nearly the size of Lancashire Plainheads. The points of a Norwich should be: Head, short and thick, not lashed over the eyes; not to show much neck. Broad on the shoulders, which will then make a bird broader and better across the chest; short wings, well filled back, with a nice short compact tail. When standing on the perch, a good bird wants to show just its hocks, and allow three parts of the bird to stand before the perch. It should be tapered off to the vent like a short thick wedge. I must give a good big bird preference on condition that it has the right type and quality of a Norwich bird. As for colour, that should be the last point, as colour is manufactured. Wishing CAGE BIRDS every success.

W. RAPSON.

THE ALLEGED STAINED LINNET AT BRISTOL F.A. SHOW.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. House, I beg to say that if he reads my letter again, he will see that I said: "I was given to understand it was by the aid of others that he condemned the Linnet;" and I still adhere to it. With reference to Mr. Magg's letter, what I stated in my former letter to CAGE BIRDS is what I know of communications received from him. As to the matter as a whole, I have had a barrister's advice on the matter, and I am seriously thinking of taking action against the man that sold me the Linnet. I am confident that I can convince any Court of Justice that I did not stain the bird, if I can't the C.B.U. Committee, and I am more than surprised that a body of men can sit and condemn a man for what he has not done. It only once again shows the absolute uselessness of such a Society as the C.B.U. I have been asked in more parts of the country than one to get up a petition for its condemnation, and I shall not hesitate long about it, if I make up my mind to give the time to it. The C.B.U. is what a gentleman, far better known in the Fancy than any of the gentlemen who condemned me on the matter, termed it, viz., a useless institution, and any Society that will lend itself to gross injustice, as it has done in this case, should be put down. I pay nearly fifty shillings a year in subscriptions to various Societies, but I am finishing at this, as I intend to "mark time" now until some more of these hideous suspensions have been brought into play; in time the C.B.U. will hang itself with its own rope. During the past week I have discussed the matter with several of our most prominent exhibitors, and they, like all others who have had the facts laid before them, say it is a very unjust suspension, but like the C.B.U.

S. W. BIRCHLEY.

PROPOSED CAGE BIRD SOCIETY FOR BONNYRIGG & DISTRICT.

SIR,—It has been decided by a few of the Fanciers in Bonnyrigg to form a new club. A meeting will be held in the Forester's Arms on Friday, February 12th, at 7.30, when a good attendance is earnestly requested.

GEORGE HARPER.

A PURE WHITE CANARY.

The Secretary, Crystal Palace, London.

SIR,—Will you tell me if a pure white Canary is very rare, as I have just reared one? It is perfectly white, like a Java Sparrow, except that it has a black mark on one side of its head. It is not an Albino, as its eyes are black. I read in one book that a white Canary has been "hitherto unattainable." I do not know yet if this one is a cock or hen. Its father and mother both had the same father last year, who is a very pale yellow bird. The white bird's father is pale yellow with a yellow and green crest, and its mother is a pale creamy colour with a black patch on her head.

(MISS) MARION V. LEE.

Wellington, New Zealand.

[We are enabled to give the above letter by the courtesy of Mr. J. W. Ramsden, and it is very interesting in view of the fact that a said-to-be pure white Canary has been entered for exhibition at the "Jubilee" Crystal Palace Show this week-end.—EDITOR.]

THE DEATH OF EXHIBITS AT FRASERBURGH SHOW.

SIR,—In the report of the Fraserburgh show which appears in your issue of Jan. 23rd, occurs the following: "We were sorry to be informed that five pairs of foreign birds belonging to Mr. J. M. Whyte (Woodside) arrived dead at the show." May I be allowed to state the facts of the case? I despatched my birds to the Fraserburgh show on Jan. 12th at 7 o'clock p.m. The train arrived there at 9.10 p.m., but the case was not opened until 8 a.m. on the morning of the show, Jan. 13th. I enclose you the letter which I received from the Secretary, Mr. Alex. Grant.

J. M. WHYTE.

[COPY.]

January 16, 1909.

MR. J. M. WHYTE,

DEAR SIR,—Your letter to hand re birds, etc. I am very pleased your birds arrived all safe, but am very disappointed at your misfortune in losing your birds coming. The birds arrived at Fraserburgh on Tuesday night at 9.10 o'clock, and, as you are aware, were not opened up till penning time on Wednesday morning, namely, a little after eight o'clock. Hoping this is a satisfactory report.

ALEX. GRANT, Secretary.

THE DISQUALIFICATIONS AT BATHGATE SHOW.

SIR,—I was pleased to see that some of our British Bird fanciers who have won so many firsts and specials with their birds have been caught at last. I think there should be more than disqualification for such men as these. We amateurs never need expect to get a "look in" with our natural-coloured birds in the prize-list. We can't "fake," nor do we want to deceive the public with birds that can't win in their natural colour.

AMATEUR.

SIR,—All credit is due to Mr. John Brown, of Edinburgh, for the fearless way he went about his business in finding out and testing the "electric-fed" specimens at the above-mentioned show. In fact, I cannot understand how some of these diamonds or gems have been allowed to scoop in the premier honours for so long. In my opinion disqualification should have commenced at the beginning of the season. However, better late than never. But it is well enough known that some of the judges who officiated at the earlier shows in Scotland belong to a circle whose whole desire is to keep each other's exhibits in the money, whether the birds are genuine or not; and I am sure the sooner this clique is put "on the shelf" the better it will be for all concerned. There would then be bigger entries at some of the shows that were failures this last season. Trusting the genuine members of the S.B.B. and M.C. will take this "faking" question in hand, and give the guilty ones the punishment they deserve, I sign myself,

A. J.

SIR,—I cannot help but smile at the indignation assumed by some of the writers concerning the above matter. It is all rot. Surely it is much less expensive and much more easy for fanciers to spend threepence on a bottle of dye than to spend three shillings on a pound of colour-feed. The results are just the same. How can anyone object to colouring birds from the outside when they spend far more time and money artificially colouring them from the inside! As I said before, it is all rot. If we are to have natural colour, let's have it natural. If we are to have unnatural colour, then how can it matter how that colour is put on?

NEW SOCIETY FOR DEANS AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—We have formed a cage bird society here to-night, and it is to be called the Deans and District Cage Birds Society. President, Mr. Jas. Brown; Vice-President, Mr. Tom Peel; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. John Kay. Committee: Messrs. James Boal, Chas. Boal, Robt. Bald, Robt. Hamilton, Jas. Kerr, Tom McIntyre, Joseph Peel, Jas. Smith and R. Wilson. Meets at Deans Workmen's Institute, Livingston Station (night and time not yet fixed). Entrance fee, 1s. 3d.; subscription, 5s.

J. J. KAY, Secretary.

IS IT CRUEL TO KEEP BRITISHERS IN CAPIVITY?

SIR,—As so many people seem to have an idea (and to my mind a mistaken one) that it is nothing short of cruelty to keep a bird, and especially a Britisher, in a cage, may I be permitted space in CAGE BIRDS for an account of the following two incidents? In the month of January, 1907, I took a hen Bullfinch in a trap-cage a distance of over a mile to where a large number of these birds constantly resorted. Unfortunately whilst setting the trap the door of the call-cage opened, and the call-bird escaped. In disgust, I brought home the empty cage, thinking I had seen the last of my bird, but judge of my surprise when, on going out next morning, I found the bird flying from window to window trying to get into the house. On hanging up the open cage on a wall, she went in and commenced to feed at once. The bird had found her way home in preference to remaining at liberty. A somewhat similar case with me occurred some three weeks ago. A Goldfinch, whose cage I was cleaning, escaped, but within two hours came back, got through my bird-room window and allowed itself to be caught and re-caged. I think these two cases afford an answer to the question, "Is it cruel to keep a British bird in captivity?"

THE NON-PAYMENT OF PRIZE MONEY AT SHOWS.

SIR,—I should imagine the gentleman writing under the nom-de-plume of "Fairplay" must be a monied man. Fortunately for the Fancy we are not all monied men. Theoretically he is right, but practically he is wrong. I ask him, where would the support come from if exhibitors knew they had to wait in patience for their prize-money, and then only have a remote chance of getting it? Would they send along their entries? Oh, no! I fear our shows we glory in so much would go to the wall for lack of support. Our national spirit is speculation, but with the Fancy it is fairplay. If it is not given by those who promote these shows, it is quite time they desisted. In my humble opinion you should support those shows which pay up promptly and are run on business lines. They merit your full support. Honour and no pay do not work with exhibitors. I venture to predict you would soon ruin the Fancy, from a working-man's point of view. If "Fairplay," you are a member of one of these defaulting societies, try and get your society to join the London Federation of Cage Bird Societies, remembering that Unity is Strength. By so doing you will not only be helping the Fancy, but also promoting healthy competition, and joining a truly powerful body of fanciers.

LONDON FANCIER.

SHOW BIRDS & MISSING CLAWS.

SIR,—I was delighted on reading Mr. House's reply re the above. I think Mr. Bryden and all other fanciers should now be satisfied. I do not imagine secretaries will take any notice of Mr. B.'s suggestion re the birds with missing claws being excluded from competiton. Societies cannot afford to be so independent. I have a Linnet minus centre claw, and have been more than satisfied with results at six shows. I wish CAGE BIRDS every luck.

J. H. O'NEILE.

SIR,—I did not intend to enter into any more correspondence on this matter, but I beg leave to reply to Mr. Birchley's question: "Do I mean to condemn a bird as useless which is minus a claw?" I don't put a bird down as such unless it is unfit for stock purposes. Also, I had a Greenie-Bullie Hybrid in 1907, hatched minus one claw, and with two growing the wrong way (twisted). So, according to last week's letters, if we can show them without claws then we might as well show them with one leg off.

A. BRYDEN.

SIR,—I have been reading with interest the correspondence on the above subject. I quite endorse Mr. House's opinion that a bird should not be debarred from competition because it is short of a claw or two. It is a slight imperfection, but for a well-known exhibitor like Mr. Andrews to compare a horse with three legs to a bird with two claws missing is absurd. A bird with two toe-nails missing can hop about just as well as if he had them, but a horse would have a job to move. Mr. Birchley writes very sensibly. Many a good bird has lost a nail through hanging it in the wire. Sometimes a bird will pull it off itself. I have a Goldfinch that keeps on biting his claws. I notice Mr. W. P. Bell states that a well-known exhibitor is showing a bird with two nails missing. I don't know whether Mr. Bell means myself, as I am showing a Goldfinch with two claws off, and very successfully, he hardly ever getting out of the first three tickets. I quite agree with Mr. Bell that if two birds of equal merit meet, the one with the missing nails should be put back. I wish your paper all the support it so richly deserves.

MULE BREEDING WITH A GREEN SINGING FINCH.

SIR,—On January 31st, while making my way home, after visiting the bird rooms of Messrs. W. F. Swan and A. Walker, I met Messrs. Waters and Taylor, and we decided to again visit Mr. Miller, and see if he had succeeded in hatching the Linnet-Canary Mules to which I referred in my note a fortnight ago. Mr. Miller at once took us upstairs and showed us two fine, plump, healthy-looking Mules, about ten days old. The remaining two eggs failed to hatch, both birds being dead in the shell. Mr. Miller showed us another nest of young Norwich, hatched on January 30th, and also a Norwich hen sitting on four fertile eggs, while a yellow variegated Norwich hen paired to a Linnet, laid her first egg on Jan. 30th. A very interesting cross which Mr. Miller is trying to produce is between a Green Singing Finch and a Norwich hen, and which, by all appearances, he is likely to succeed in doing. The little foreigner is anything but a prepossessing object at the present time, for the hen has pulled out all his tail, and has totally stripped him of breast feathers, and Mr. Miller told us he has seen the Finch pulling out his breast feathers himself, to help the hen to build her nest. Although a fancier of many years' standing, Mr. Miller declares that this little Finch is the perkiest bird he has ever kept, and he asked us if we would like to hear him sing? When we expressed our doubts about a bird so devoid of plumage being desirous of singing, he placed a cock Canary in the cage. The result was astonishing—at least to us. As soon as the Canary attempted to sing to the hen, the little foreigner dropped his wings and sang a proud song at the hen, and, what is more, sang the cock Canary into the bottom of the cage, and the same thing happened each time the cock Canary took the perch. It was a sight both amusing and instructive to watch.

PRIZE MONEY AT DULWICH O.S. SHOW.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. G. F. Woolhouse's letter in your last issue, my object in writing was certainly not to "try and ruin the future prospects of the D.O.S.," as that gentleman alleges (and from their methods it would seem unnecessary), but to get information as to when the long overdue prize-money was to be paid, as I was unable, as I stated in my first letter, to get a reply to my enquiry through the usual channel. Even now I am not told when the prize money may be expected. Perhaps Mr. Woolhouse will reply in a straightforward way. I also want to know what explanation he has to give of the statement made by an official that all prize-money in the open classes had been paid with the subsequent statements he has himself made through your columns (viz., in your issue of the 16th ultimo): "We owe in the open classes about £8 in prize-money." A report of the annual general meeting on Jan. 7th (signed by Mr. W. as chairman), says: " . . paid out the whole of the prize-money in the open classes, with a few exceptions." In Mr. W.'s latest piece of information he says, "Out of the half-dozen exhibitors we owe prizes to," etc. Mr. W. says I have a lot to learn about customs. I accept his statement. I am sure he will pardon my ignorance in not being able to reconcile the statements I have quoted, when I tell him that I am not used to the "custom" of misleading statements which the society appears to be so adept in making. Might I ask him to put things a little clearer? May I also ask why the prize-money was not paid "pro rata," and not in full to some exhibitors only? May I also point out that Mr. Woolhouse first entered upon personalities (in his first letter), therefore I thought I was quite entitled to follow suit, thinking it might be the Dulwich "custom" that Mr. W. appears to know so much about. It really seems that the more Mr. W. tries to explain away facts the more mess he gets in. Mr. W. seems to overlook the fact that the expense of exhibiting is not light. Why (on Mr. W.'s argument) exhibitors should support societies, and still be out of pocket if successful with their birds, I fail to see. If the correspondence is distasteful to Mr. W., why not pay up and discontinue it, as he has admitted £6 10s. out of £8 in hand for the purpose. To save unpleasant correspondence, might I suggest a guarantee fund for the next show?

HALF-A-DOZEN INTERESTING PETS.

SIR,—Having read with great interest Mr. W. P. Bell's notes on his birds in your issue of January 2nd, and also, like him, being an interested reader of CAGE BIRDS, I should like to be allowed to give a few notes on mine. I also, like him, have six; I have had more, but have found them to require more attention than I could give, so have therefore given them to friends. As I only have two evenings to spare weekly in winter and one in the summer, I find that these half-dozen occupy all that time. The first bird, and the one which I value the most, is a Skylark. I have had him for two years. I keep him in a lengthy runner with a bow-centre; in fact, two cages combined, as I believe in plenty of room. I feed him on softbill food, varying the kinds; also on a couple of mealworms morning and night, eggs, cold potato, etc., which he well earns by singing. The second bird I keep is a Song Thrush, brought up from a nestling two years ago; he seems the general favourite of the lot. My friends come in and generally say, "Hallo, Peter, how is it you are not singing?" My wife will say, "Please don't start him off while he is quiet." Every morning he has a few "rounds" with his shadow, and has worn a large patch of the distemper away where the nail goes through the cage. My third bird is a Linnet, which I had when a brancher, also a favourite, and very tame, and kept in a Canary cage on the table. My fourth bird is a Roller Canary in a show cage, which I find the best. He is always open to compete against the Lark and Thrush. The fifth bird is a Goldfinch, who is tame enough with me, but rather nervous of strangers. The sixth and last bird is a Norwich Canary, which has become rather lazy of late, as he never troubles to sing when the others are doing so. The first number of CAGE BIRDS I received from a friend whom I had the Skylark from; since then have obtained some very good information from it.

Agenda for Delegates' Meeting.

Agenda paper for the meeting of delegates to be held on Saturday, February 6th, at 5.30 in the board-room of the Crystal Palace, London. Messrs. W. A. Bladon (the present president) and Mr. R. Rhodes (Nottingham) were nominated to position of president. Mr. Rhodes declines to stand, so that Mr. Bladon's name only will be put up for election at the meeting. Mr. S. Hadwin, 28, Pembroke-place, Liverpool (secretary of the Green Canary Association); Mr. J. Raynes, 9, Richmond-road, Chorlton-cum-Hardy, Manchester (secretary of the Norwich Plainhead Club); Mr. W. Ridge, 55, Poolstock, Wigan (secretary of the Wigan Cage Bird Society), and myself were nominated for the position of secretary. As I do not wish to take office, I have withdrawn my name. I also give balance-sheet for the year 1907-8, which is subject to auditing and possible correction.

Agenda for delegates' annual meeting: Minutes of last delegates' meeting; report and balance-sheet; elect president and secretary.

Confirm new rules suggested and passed at the last delegates' meeting, viz.: That all proposed alterations in the rules be sent to the general secretary two months prior to the annual meeting, and sent to all affiliated societies six weeks before the meeting. That rules can only be altered or added to at the annual meeting. That licences be not granted to purely cage bird societies. That every delegate be supplied with a copy of the report and balance-sheet before the annual meeting.

Alterations in phraseology of the rules suggested by the Union's solicitors. Add the words "per year" after £1 1s. in the third line of amended Rule 4, and to the end of rule the words, "Any affiliated society and any individual wishing to terminate membership of the Union must give three calendar months' previous notice in writing to the secretary of the Union, to expire on the 1st September in any year." After end of Rule 8 to read, "Any appeal from their decision shall be to the executive council, whose decision shall be final and binding." Add to end of new rule following Rule 8, "A district committee shall not, nor shall the Union be liable for any loss or damage which may arise by reason or in consequence of the publication of any such suspension or proceedings aforesaid." After word "Union" on line 6 of Rule 16, add "or (if not a member of the Union) to be debarred from exhibiting at shows held under the Union's rules." After the words "think fit" of line 8, add, "without rendering the Union or any member of such council liable for any loss or damage occasioned thereby." Rule 19. Delete the words "or umpire," and add to the third line after "birds" the words, "or cage bird shows or," and substitute the word "submission" for the word "reference" in the sixth line. Add to end of Rule 11 of the Show Rules the words "and binding." After the word "affected" in line 4 of Rule 18, add, "without being liable for any loss or damage arising by reason or in consequence of such publication," and at end of line 6 the words, "without the Union or such council being liable for any loss or damage arising by reason or in consequence thereof."

Alterations in rules already submitted:—Accrington amendment to Rule 17, supported by Burnley C.B.S. Amendment by Newcastle C.B.S. that Rule 17 be deleted, and that business brought before district committees be first submitted to the societies, and the delegates instructed to vote according to their decisions. Amendment by Mr. MacPartling, "That no affiliated exhibitor be eligible to compete for any special at affiliated shows." Coventry O.S. suggestions. Suggestions 1 and 2 opposed by the Bristol Fanciers' Association. Amendment by Tideswell C.B.I.S. that where licences are granted to mixed shows, such shows must engage a cage bird judge.

CINNAMON CANARY CLUB.

Half-yearly general meeting held at the Manchester Show. The president, Mr. W. A. Bladon, acted as chairman. A letter was read from Mr. Wones (vice-president), regretting his absence. The secretary read a statement of accounts up to date, and foreshadowed a fair balance in hand at the end of the year; he also asked that a trustee be appointed, so that the funds could be placed in the bank in the club's name, explaining that it was a safeguard to the funds of the club, and would be more satisfactory to himself and the members. On the motion of Mr. Godley, seconded by Mr. Riding, Mr. Bladon was appointed trustee. A letter was read from Mr. Handt on the new club cage; he complained that the pins used to fasten the fronts were liable to catch the birds' claws, and suggested sliding fronts instead. Mr. Godley favoured pins, as they kept the front much firmer, sliding fronts being liable to be knocked out and split the wood; he also quoted a case of the front being driven in and the bird lost. It was ultimately resolved that the cages be all alike, and the loops of the pins filled in with solder and blacked. The old cage was discussed, Mr. Seed advocating the general use of the new pattern cage at the coming club show. Mr. Riding proposed, "That the cages remain as they are, members using the old cages this season, but the new cage to be generally adopted at the Club Show, 1909." Mr. Bentley seconded, and it was carried by six votes to three. Mr. Godley suggested that the secretary acquaint all members respecting the new pattern cage. The secretary asked for guidance as to granting patronage to shows which had not a club judge appointed, as there was nothing in the rules debarring those shows. He quoted Nottingham Show, where Mr. Greeves was to judge the cinnamon classes. As a way out of that difficulty he asked Mr. Greeves to become a member, and Mr. Greeves consented. Mr. Godley said any judge could officiate at a patronage show, but it was compulsory for a club judge to officiate at the club shows. It was unanimously agreed that Mr. Greeves become a member, and that he judge the cinnamons at Nottingham. An animated discussion arose out of a complaint by Mr. Seed that the judges did not go for type as they should do; he maintained that Norwich type and quality were the most essential points of the cinnamon. Mr. Bentley said they had a model set up, and the judges should judge to that model: but what was wanted was an official standard. Judges put up the birds to their own fancy, and all we had to go by was the judges. He advocated the adoption of a standard by the club as the only remedy. Mr. Bladon stated that at the formation of the club it was size and colour; a few years later type was added, and that they ought to get the judges to judge to the Norwich type. The bird should be, in type and colour, equal to the best of the Norwich. He agreed that our judges should be instructed to go for quality and Norwich type. Mr. Mallinson referred to the old days when they had the type, also silkiness of feather. Mr. Godley maintained that the birds were coming back to the Norwich type each year, and that there was an improvement in that direction at this show. Mr. Bladon disagreed, saying that the birds were not so good as last year. Mr. Seed also disagreed with Mr. Godley's views. Mr. Bentley said that the word cinnamon meant colour, but he was of opinion that 50 points was too much to allow for colour, as the judges went too strongly for colour, and neglected other points. Mr. Riding suggested that the secretary write to the judges saying that the members were dissatisfied with their not judging to the club model, and asking them to give more attention to it. Mr. Bladon thought that would be a bit too strong, but the secretary could give the judges a gentle hint on the subject. He suggested that at some future time the club draw up a new standard in which they might with advantage lower the points for colour a trifle. Mr. Bentley moved, "That we get out a new standard, and that suggestions as to points be invited." Mr. Riding seconded, and it was agreed to. Mr. Seed raised a point on the novice specials, complaining that the resolution at last year's meeting had not been adhered to. The champions were getting 10s. at each show, and not the novices. The secretary pointed out that Mr. Godley was giving 5s. at each show for the novices, and Mr. Dormer an umbrella value 10s., divided between certain shows. He maintained that the novices were receiving 10s. per show that way, and where Mr. Dormer's special was not given, 5s. was awarded from the funds—at Blackburn, for an instance. Mr. Riding and Mr. Bentley were of opinion that the allotment of the specials was fair to each section. A suggestion was made that the secretary ask the colour-food vendors for specials for the birds fed upon their foods. Mr. Dormer wrote suggesting that the club withdraw from the Cage Bird Union, as the members were mostly affiliated through their respective societies. The secretary suggested that a vote of the members be taken, when the voting papers were issued for the election of officers next year. This was agreed to.

CRESTED CANARY CLUB.

The election for 1909 resulted as follows:—Committee, Messrs. T. Heath, 43; T. W. Barnett, 39; W. E. Greeves, 38; R. L. Crisp, 37; J. Robson, 37; T. J. King, 34; R. Rhodes, 33; J. Dobson, 30; G. Collidge, 29; Rev. G. W. Joyce, 27; G. C. Ley, 27; J. Tyson, 26; J. S. Clarke, 26; W. Glasscock, 26; T. R. Ind, 25; R. B. Tope 23; Hy. Mills, 19; G. Grant, 18; R. Armstrong, 17; and T. Taylor, 17. From the above-mentioned a president is to be elected. Judges for 1909:—Messrs. Heath, 45; Robson, 45; Greeves, 37; Barnett, 36; Rhodes, 35; King, 33; Tyson, 32; Joyce, 28; Crisp, 26; Tope, 24; Dobson, 21; Collidge, 20. Auditors: Messrs. Heath and Clarke, 35 each. Five papers were spoiled, two unsigned, and three voted for more than 20. Since first post Monday, February 1st (the latest time set out for the return), 14 voting papers have been received, and consequently not included in the counting.—John Tyson, Hon. Secretary.

A NEW EGG AND BISCUIT FOOD.

A discovery which, it is said, will revolutionise bird-keepers' methods of feeding birds.

While the efficacy of minced hard-boiled egg mixed with either crushed biscuit or crumb of household bread as a food for rearing young birds is almost universally acknowledged, yet bird-keepers are not blind to the fact that even this well-tried food has its drawbacks. It takes time to prepare; it is often difficult to keep in that perfectly fresh and sweet condition essential to success—it is not always possible to ensure the freshness of the eggs; it is known at times to be responsible for upsetting the birds' systems; and other objections will occur to all who have had practical experience of its use. A food, then, which claims to be in every way equal to our old-time friend, "egg bread," and to have none of its disadvantages, must of necessity draw upon itself the close attention of all bird-keepers. Messrs. Fox Bros.' Prepared Egg and Biscuit makes this claim. The good points which the inventors claim for this food will be found appended, and we think it will be readily admitted they are of such a character as to make it imperative that everyone who is interested in bird-breeding should see and try this preparation. All who attend the Jubilee Crystal Palace Show this week-end should see to it that they inspect the display on Messrs. Fox Bros. stall, which will be situated close by the entrance to the show enclosure. We would also draw attention to the advertisement on page 113 of this week's issue, from which readers unable to visit the Palace will see that they can obtain sample tins direct from the office of Messrs. Fox Bros., at 26, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C.

Messrs. Fox Bros. say concerning this food: We not only claim to equal home-made egg-food, but surpass it, and we also give a guarantee that 50 per cent. of the food is the actual product of fresh eggs, retaining all their virtue and showing the same analysis as when in a raw state. The other 50 per cent. is pure biscuit, and the whole product is absolutely free from any colouring or foreign matter whatever. It is better than the home-made food, because it is perfectly soluble, and hard-boiled eggs are not; therefore, where our food is easily digested, more especially by young birds, eggs prepared in the ordinary way are indigestible, heating, and binding. We claim that our product is unique in this respect because it prevents the hen from becoming egg-bound.

Economy! that is also another reason. Whilst producing an absolutely genuine article, we have been enabled by up-to-date processes to place it on the market at a reasonable price. A 6d. tin contains the equivalent of about 5 eggs and a 1s. tin about 11 eggs. Thus is our contention proved. Fanciers cannot always, if at all, buy so many reliable eggs at this price, and we are only able to do so by handling enormous quantities; in addition, they also save the time and trouble entailed in boiling eggs, and afterwards preparing them, which is at times a great consideration. This is a daily task we relieve fanciers of.

It is essentially a fancier's food! We have catered to their requirement, and according to their ideas. You have only to give it a trial to make you a regular user and advocate of it. We will send you a sample tin for 8d. or 1s. 3d. post paid.

Here are some facts for bird-keepers to remember: This food is always ready and always fresh; there is no trouble with bad eggs; it is perfectly soluble, therefore digestible; the birds will not get egg-bound; it is always the same price.

BANBURY.

This fixture, held on January 2nd and 3rd, was ably managed by Messrs. Hazlewood and Nelson, the hon. secs., and proved quite a success. The entries were rather disappointing in the cage bird section, but the restricted classification accounted somewhat for this. Mr. T. J. Ambrose judged.

The "Black Canary" Puzzle.

Owing to the enormous number of solutions of the "Black Canary" puzzle which we have received, we find it impossible to announce the result this week. We hope, however, to be able to give the winner's name in our next issue.

THE SHOWS.

FELTHAM.

No guaranteed prize money was offered at this show, which was held in the Public Hall on January 27th, therefore the entry was not large, neither was the quality great. The show was nicely arranged and well managed by the committee, whilst the secretaries, Messrs. Bailey, Bobb, and Ruddock, were most courtcons and energetic. Mr. C. A. House judged.

YORKS. (3): 1, 2, vhc, Chance, three stylish birds, but as it was their owner's first attempt at tubbing, they did not look their best. NOR. (7): 1, 2, W. Smith, yell. and buff of nice shape and colour; 3, vhc, J. A. Smith, variegated buff, shapely, good feather; hc, Bishop; absent, Kilby (2). CAN. A.V. (6): 1, 2, spl, W. Smith, smart, close feathered, nice-coloured buff Norwich, and a warm-coloured shapely yellow; 3, res, vhc, Chance, nice team of Yorkshires; absent, Atwood. BRIT., ETC. (3): 1, 2, Baker, very nice coloured, well-coloured Goldfinch, and a pretty pair of Grey Java Sparrows; absent, Ford.

SOUTH-WEST LONDON C.B.S.

Annual pair show held at the Plough Hotel, Clapham Junction on January 30th. The entries were not up to last year's number in some of the classes, but quality was of great merit, the birds being shown in very excellent condition. No doubt one cause of the shortage was the forthcoming Palace Show, members not wishing to do double duty in washing their birds. Mr. Rohson judged.

CHAMP. NOR.: 1, 2, 3, Harris; 4, vhc, hc, Lilley. YORKS.: 1, 2, 3, 4, McLaughlin. CREST: 1, 2, 3, Lilley AMAT. Mr. Harris won gold-centre medal for best pair in show; Mr. Lilley, the gold-centre medal for 2nd best pair, he also taking 1st and spl. in Mule and Hybrid class. Mr. McLaughlin took the 3s. special for 2nd best pair in same section. Prize-money and specials were paid out before the show closed.—LILLEY, sec.

MAESTEG.

Maesteg cage bird show was held on Jan 27th at the Oddfellows' Hall. Considering the nearness of the date to the Palace show and that of another show at Nantymoel, together with the lateness of the season and the show being confined only to the county of Glamorgan, entries came up as well as could reasonably be expected. Everything passed off without the slightest hitch, which speaks well of the ever-willing and obliging secretary, Mr. W. Jenkins, and his faithful few, whose untiring efforts for the success of their first venture were all that could be desired in every respect. This society, formed 18 months ago, consisted of only five members until November, 1908, when a kind of revival took hold of other fanciers in the district, increasing the membership to 12, when they decided to make their first show venture. The gate, we were sorry to hear, was not all that might have been expected, but prize money will be paid promptly. Messrs. C. Richards, T. Phillips, and the committee as a whole were exceedingly obliging, and paid the best of attention to the birds. Mr. T. Miles was the treasurer and show manager. Mr. T. L. Castree placed the cards and gave every satisfaction.

LEICESTER C.B.S.

The members held a most successful table show on January 27th, the competition being very keen and the entries good. The quality of the birds was excellent, although the season is getting on. The enthusiasm keeps up remarkably well. In placing the cards, the judge, Mr. G. Lander, gave every satisfaction. Several questions were asked at the close, which the judge answered.

LOWESTOFT AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

This society held its first table show for the year at headquarters on Feb. 1, for matched pairs of Plainheads, Crests and Cinnamons. The entries did not come quite up to expectations, but the birds that were staged were a grand lot, and should breed some good youngsters for their owners. Mr. H. Hart judged, and gave general satisfaction.

HULL C.B.S.

Probably the most successful members' night show ever held by the society took place on Feb. 1st, when 157 birds were on view, made up as follows: 63 pairs Canaries matched for breeding, and 31 British birds. Owing to the very large entry, Mr. Harland was asked to judge the Crests, Yorkshires, and A.O.V. Canary in the champion section, and the A.O.V. Canary in the novice section. Messrs. Longhorn and Oliff took the champion and novice Norwich, Mr. F. Medley (the official judge) having his hands full with the Yorkshires and British.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Annual pair show held January 30th, and once more proved an unqualified success. The association must be congratulated upon staging 147 exhibits (the quality of which was of a high standard), seeing that they were distributed amongst 41 members. The well-known comfortable hall of the Church Institute, Paddington-street, was again splendidly filled with London's bird-lovers, besides an unusually large company of ladies. Novice Yorkshires numbered 20, and gave the judge trouble. The novice Plainheads contained 17 pairs, and for quality stood out from the other two sections. The Novice Crest section was well to the fore, containing 11 pairs. In the pairs matched for hybrid breeding, in the classes for Goldfinch, Linnet, and Greenfinch pairs, there was a distinct falling off, but amends were made up in the classes between British bird and Bullie, and between two British birds, some clinking pairs being shown. The following members contributed to the success of the show in rendering every possible assistance:—Mrs. Morrison, Messrs. W. Page, F. Wyse, W. Sanders, R. Stevens, J. Warwick, E. C. Offord, J. Dewhurst, and the worthy vice-chairman, A. W. Curtis. The unavoidable absence of the chairman (Mr. A. C. Burn), through illness, was deeply regretted. Mr. V. Wynn, the hon. sec., had as usual, made capital arrangements, and in his hands everything went with a swing. Mr. J. Robson judged.

NOR. CHAMPION (6): 1, spl best bird shown by a lady, Mrs. B. J. Cooper; 2, 3, Curtis; vhc, hc, Wynn. AMATEUR (6): 1, 2, A. W. Hart; 4, absent, Neal. NOVICE (17): 1, vhc, c, T. ## BRADFORD EAST.

First annual open show held January 30th, in the Park Chapel Schools, West Bowling, under the rules of the Yorkshire Union and the patronage of the Yorkshire Canary Club and the Cinnamon Marked Yorkshire Canary Club. Mr. A. Hirst judged, Mr. R. Halliday assisting by taking the three selling classes. Mr. H. Hill, the secretary, had matters well in hand, while his assistant, Mr. Gelder, rendered useful service, and Messrs. Cruise, Peacock, Rushworth, White, Wilkinson, Laycock, and Stables as stewards were here, there and everywhere, performing their many duties. The exhibition was opened at 2 p.m. by Miss L. Suddards, Councillor R. Capstick officiating as chairman during the ceremony. The room is a good one for a show, very lofty and well lighted, and is centrally situated, being in close proximity to both train (G.N.R.) and tram. The "Bradford East Challenge Trophy," a splendid rose bowl, was up for competition in the unflighted classes, and has to be won three times before becoming the property of the winner; it is given for the best unflighted bird, either yellow or buff, the exhibitor to be also the breeder of the bird. This valuable prize was secured by Mr. G. Bray with his buff that was awarded 2nd in its class (the 1st winner not being marked for competition), and the prize is to be presented at the annual amalgamated prize distribution of the Yorkshire societies to be held on March 6th. The entries throughout the show came up fairly well, 348 birds being on view in the 24 classes—an average of over 14 per class, not bad for the last show but one of the season. Mr. J. Wilcock secured Mr. J. Sandiford's medal for the hottest fed Yorkshire moulted on his feed, and Messrs. Ogden Bros. were successful in winning Mr. J. W. Ramsden's medal for best fed bird, moulted solely on his pure peppers. The winners of the sectional specials were Messrs. Shackleton, Wilson, Peel, Cooper, Ogden Bros., Wilson, White, Crowther, Hammond, Johnson, Rushworth, and Middleton.

The Champion Classes.

CL. YELL. YORKS. ## PRESTON O.S.

Annual members' show, held in the Scientific Society's Rooms, Jan. 30th, when there was an entry of 115, which constituted a record for a members' exhibition. The chief attraction was the Norwich section, where the classes were exceedingly well filled, and there was keen competition. There was also a good show of British birds, especially Linnets and Finches. The judge was Mr. A. Wellings (Prescot).

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

THE Crystal Palace Jubilee Show, which by the time these lines appear will have been opened, is engaging all our attention and monopolising our conversation at the moment, and many conjectures as to probable winners are being put forward. The show closes the competitions of the Y.C.C. and the C.M.Y.C.C., and the results will be awaited with great interest by the whole body of Yorkshire fanciers.

IN the Y.C.C. Challenge Cup Competition there is a keen struggle, for up to the Palace Show Messrs. Bailey and Swanger are leading Mr. W. H. Shackleton by the small margin of three points. Should they be able to keep their lead the cup becomes their own property. If, on the other hand, Mr. Shackleton succeeds in overhauling them, the cup will go forward for competition another year, as it has to be won three times before becoming the absolute property of any exhibitor. Messrs. Bailey and Swanger were successful in the seasons 1905-6 and 1906-7, and Mr. Shackleton in 1907-8.

TRIPS are run for one, two, three, four, six or eight days from most of the "White Rose" towns to the Palace Show, and it is expected that a larger number of fanciers than usual will avail themselves of the opportunity to visit the "Jubilee" show. A strong contingent is going from the Shipley and Windhill districts, and they will welcome any fanciers joining them for the journey on the train leaving Bradford (Midland) at 7.30 a.m. on Saturday morning.

GREAT HORTON O.S. hold their annual Pie Supper and Social this day (Saturday), and as a special attraction a catalogue of the Crystal Palace Show will be there for inspection. The officials will be pleased to see fanciers and friends; and as for the "Pie," well, I can recommend this. I had some last year. After supper, a social evening will be spent; for times, etc., see club notice columns of this issue.

THE Yorkshire Union, Yorkshire Canary Club, Cinnamon Marked Yorkshire Canary Club, Open Norwich Plainhead Club, British Bird and Mule Club of Yorkshire, etc., are making their arrangements for the Grand Amalgamated Prize Distribution and Social Evening, to take place on March 6th, at the Market Tavern, Godwin Street, Bradford. The affair is expected to be even more largely attended than last year, and provision has been made for this by engaging another large room additional to the one occupied last year.

FOR the convenience of fanciers who come from a distance, investigations are to be made to see if a substantial dinner cannot be provided, at a reasonable cost, on the premises. It would be a great help if intending visitors would send in their names to the secretaries of their various clubs, or to the secretary of the Union, notifying such intention, so they may be able to arrange matters with the proprietor.

STRAIGHT 'UN.

Having been a reader of your valuable paper for over three years I am pleased to say that I have gained very valuable information at different times. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success during the new year. I will recommend it to all my friends.—E. BEECH (Widnes).

A sum of £20 has been divided by Danysz Virus Ltd., amongst competitors in their recent competition. The word "Noratzeen" has been registered as trade mark. No competitor sent in this particular word, but words closely resembling it were received from Mr. J. Gavin, Southwark Park Road, S.E., and from Mr. A. Singer, St. Mary's Road, Hoe Street, Walthamstow, and to each the sum of £5 has been awarded, and a further sum of £10 has been divided amongst some 20 other competitors.

Two Wee Gems.

By J. PATTERSON.

A very interesting and practical article written to accompany the coloured plate of Border Fancy Canaries given with the Recent Birthday Number.

Other Points Considered.

Legs: Of medium length, showing little or no thigh, fine, and in harmony with other points (not stilty); feet, small and grasping the perch with a graceful easy couch. Our artist has excelled here, and one glance makes further comments unnecessary.

Size: Not to exceed five and a-half inches in length. Personally, I prefer them under than over this length, as a good wee one is more active, and, therefore, more attractive, and also more jaunty.

Tail: Closely packed, narrow, being nicely rounded at the vent, finishing gradually away fine towards the end. This is the finishing touch to our birds, and unless a breeder takes care to get it, and what is more to keep his stock birds perfect in this respect, he has either to trim the tail and risk being found out, or else keep his bird at home. A wide tail is an eyesore to me, as are all fish-tailed birds, or birds that are what may be termed hinge-tailed; that is, dropping from the vent. All birds must be mated to others which are especially perfect in the point wherein they individually fail, and if they have some other fault as well, should be discarded.

The picture will make clear what is wanted. If anything, the buff is the better finished bird. The yellow is just a shade heavier.

Position: Semi-erect, standing at about the angle of 45 degrees, giving the outline of the side a clear and finished appearance against the wires of cage, which, being black, show off a bird of a nice, jaunty, and lively air. Carriage: Gay and jaunty, with a fine, easy graceful poise of head. Pumage: Close, firm, and fine in quality, presenting a smooth, glossy, and silky appearance; every feather in its place, and no loose frills either at front, side of legs, or wings.

Our ideals are all perfect in these three points, except that the buff cock might be considered a little low, but by looking at him again we find he is taken up with his tit-bit in the drawer, and just at the moment neglecting his natural position.

Finally, when birds are sent out in perfect health and condition, every feather should be spotlessly clean; they then stand a much better chance of drawing the judge's attention at his first glance, and when once in the running they are sure to find a place, if not at the top of the class.

The Tit-Bit.

We will now leave the wee gems, as they are termed by the artist, but before doing so we will thank him most heartily for his very life-like production of our favourites. In saying the birds are life-like, I think all my readers will agree with me. The yellow cock is all attention. His eye is as bright and as bold as that seen in a bird in the springtime, just before being paired to his good lady; indeed, one may be pardoned for stopping to listen for his captivating love song to burst forth. In the buff, what could be more lifelike than his action at the food drawer? If you look at his beak you will see he is not only seeing his food, but tasting as well, and the natural way he is handling the tit-bit fairly "takes one's winker." Such actions are to be seen every day in our bird-rooms, but rarely, if ever, on paper.

Both birds are clears, but there are other varieties, which all receive good attention from the show committee. They are fouls, unevens, evens, greens, and cinnamons. Each variety has its special use. The Clears and Fouls are the most perfect in type and finish, but a good even is the breeder's pick, and may be termed "the cream of the ideal," or, as the boy said, when asked how he liked the steak pie he had stolen, "the meat was grand, but O lor, the gravy," giving his lips a sound smack at the same time. We may say the clears are grand but the mark is like the boy's gravy. Doubly more to be wished-for are the splendid markings of eye and wings, all of which add attractiveness to our bird. And when a really good Even is shown it is sure to arrest the admiration of both breeders and exhibitors, and one hears the remark, "Oh, what a little dear; I wonder if it is for sale?" At the late Scottish National Show, where my even-marked buff hen "Perfection" stood second, a deal of argument was caused as to whether she should have been placed first or not; and while being handled by one of her admirers, a lady and gentleman came past. They gazed for a few moments, and paid her some nice compliments, but the lady said, "Oh, John, how lovely the dear creature would look in my new hat!" John smiled and went away with his lady. I looked after them and fondly wished she might have something more common for her next choice.

Pretty are they, and the wonder is that more breeders are not trying to produce them. Regarding them also from an artistic point of view, I am astonished that Border Fancies are not receiving greater notice, although they are, no doubt, obtaining a fair share. Judging, however, from their admirers at shows, and the appearance of their pictures in the Fancy Press, or on coloured plates, etc., they would be highly appreciated if they did receive greater notice. The combination of markings and their beauty serve to make an ideal evenly-marked Border Fancy, which pleases the eyes of all, whether they be breeders or purely casual visitors to shows where they are on view. Therefore, there can be no doubt that they are well worth all the attention we can bestow upon them.

The Even-mark Described.

Perhaps, for some of my younger readers who may never have seen a good even-marked Border Fancy, it would be as well if I tried to make each point sufficiently clear. The following description will, perhaps, suffice.

I will take the eyes first, as they are, without doubt, the most difficult to get, and what is more, far more difficult to keep in a strain. At times, too, they may be got more by a stroke of luck than by good guidance. But although one may turn up here and there by luck, the breeder, he may depend, has only got to thank the careful fancier from which he procured his stock. Each year I try, I am the more convinced that each point has to be carefully thought out in a breeder's mind, and finally brought out in his stock by careful selection of birds, matched so as to breed the weak points out.

The eyes should be fairly large, equal in size and shape, marked to an equal extent, both before and behind the eyes, and also well balanced below as well as above, being more the shape of a diamond than the old-fashioned round shapes, which, I am happy to say, are fast disappearing from this variety. Further, the diamond shaped eyes are more handsome even than the pear-shaped eyes. They look better on the head of a bird, but I may mention they are more difficult to procure. I am pleased to say they are now more numerous on the show bench.

The wings should also be equal in markings, and personally I do not care for a wing that is heavily marked. From four to five dark feathers in each are quite enough, as these make the sides and back of a bird look better, the bird at the same time looking more pleasing and graceful than when there are from ten to twelve dark feathers in each wing, which gives the wings a heavy appearance. The bird is also made to look a little hollow in the back, when it seems, to my eye, not quite finished; this puts a bird at a great disadvantage when in keen competition.

Breeding for the Ideal.

How to breed for the ideal, or rather, for birds that should be paired to produce—or are likely to produce—"charmers," is an important question. I am still of the opinion that there is no fixed rule or successful method whereby we can assure ourselves that any given pair will produce the largest percentage of their progeny either good evens or unevens. In trying to get the former, we are always sure to have a fair share of the latter, which are quite as useful for stock birds, or even for the show bench. Always keep in your mind's eye, however, the finished ideal, and be like the boy—never happy until you get it, which may not be in either one season or two. Indeed, the breeder must know the pedigree of his stock for many years before he can make sure of breeding even one decent "mark" from each pair. But as time rolls on one begins to find out each peculiar turn the markings of one's strain now and again take, and after the breeder has mastered this point he feels more confident in pairing up, so as to get the markings of a right shape, which he does by introducing or subtracting the dark blood or markings just when his attention may be required, especially if line-breeding, which all must do in this variety if they want to be fully successful.

ILLUSTRATED IDEAS

Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird-keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird-room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

MICE IN THE BIRDROOM.

Sent by W. Jones, 84, Radcliffe Street, Liverpool.

Many bird-keepers desire to clear mice from their bird-rooms. I send you my way of doing this. Get some pieces of cardboard, length about 1ft. and 6in. wide. Put some birdlime on one board and put another board on top of it. When each board has the birdlime on, draw it away and then set in in the runs and along by the cages. You will find you have solved the problem of how to banish these pests from the room. I may state I and others have caught large numbers in this way.—W. JONES.

TO MAKE BOW TOP CAGES.

Sent by J. M. Hickman, Netley Villa, Market Drayton.

I am sending an idea which I think will be of use to amateur cagemakers who wish to make bow-top cages, but who find a difficulty in bending all wires alike. A is a piece of wood 12 inches square. B is a piece of hard wood ½ inch thick, nailed on to A as shown. C is strip of wood nailed on A just close enough to B to allow the gauge of wire which is being used to go between. To use, insert wire between C and B, bend round block B (as shown by dotted lines), and cut off at D. All wires will then be the same bow and length. I think the illustrations will explain. —J. M. HICKMAN.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

The Housing and Treating of Foreign Birds in Captivity.

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

THE BLACK-CAPPED FINCH—S. pileata.—Adult male: Upper surface, pale brown, much mottled with obscure blackish centres and light ashy margins to the feathers; rump, tawny-brown; wings, blackish, edged with pale brown; secondaries margined with whitish, and inner primaries white at the base of outer webs, forming a prominent white patch; upper tail-coverts and tail feathers dark brown edged with paler brown, with whitish tips; crown, nape, and lores, black; under surface, pale reddish, darker on the sides and flanks; centre of abdomen, white; under tail-coverts pale reddish. Beak, horn colour, darker at the base; legs and feet, greyish-brown. Total length, 3⅜in., tail 1½in. Habitat: Brazil.

THE COLLARED FINCH (BLACK-BREASTED GROSBEAK. Lath).—S. cucullata.—Adult male: Crown of the head, nape, neck, mantle, upper and middle back, black; lower back, ashy, tinged with ochre; a band of ochre crosses the rump; upper tail-coverts and tail feathers, blackish, the former edged with brown, the latter broadly with ashy; wings, blackish, lesser and median coverts edged with ashy and tipped with ochre, primaries and quills edged with ashy, secondaries edged with hoary-grey, middle primaries white at the base of outer webs, forming a large oblong patch; eye region and ear-coverts, black; loral spot, patch under eye, cheeks and throat, pale buffish-ochre; sides of necks, bright ochre; a broad black band crosses the fore-neck; remainder of under surface, tawny buff, darker on the under-tail-coverts; beak pale horn, darker at the base; legs and feet, brown. Total length, 5in., tail 2in.

Adult female: Differs from the male, being mostly brown on the upper surface, tinged with olive on the head and back; wing coverts and quills edged with dusky; tail, dark brown, with paler edges; under parts, pale tawny buff, lighter on the abdomen and darker on the under tail-coverts. Habitat: Brazil and Guiana.

Sub species A: S. polionota.—"Adult male: Similar to S. cucullata, but wants the ochreous buff on the underparts, rump, and sides of neck, all of which are whitish; lower back and thighs, ashy-grey. Total length 4½in., tail 1⅞in." (British Museum Catalogue.)

Adult female: According to the Museum Catalogue she is similar to cucullata, but more sandy on the upper surface; ear-coverts, pale olive-brown; sides of neck and under surface, pale yellowish buff, more tawny on the abdomen, flanks, thighs, and under tail-coverts. Habitat. Brazil.

THE BLACK-HEADED FINCH—S. melanocephala.—Adult male: Crown of the head, nape, neck, mantle and back, black; rump, rufous-chestnut; wings and tail, black, the former edged with brown, and the latter with ashy; lesser wing-coverts, rufous-chestnut; throat, white; breast band, black; under surface, pale rufous-buff, darker on the flanks and ventral region; beak, blackish; legs and feet, black. Total length, 5in., tail 2in. Habitat: Argentina, Bolivia, S. Brazil.

S. torquela.—Adult male: Crown of the head, lores, sides of the face, ear-coverts, back, wings, tail, and upper tail-coverts, black; there is a white wing patch at base of middle primaries; coverts tipped with buff, and tail feathers fringed and tipped with pale brown; lower back and rump, pale cinnamon; the side of each neck is adorned with a patch of white, and a black band crosses the neck; remainder of under surface, tawny, with a rufous tinge; beak, blackish horn; legs and feet, blackish. Total length 4¾in., tail 2in.

"The seasonal plumage of the adult male is brown; all the black feathers of the upper surface having sandy-brown edges, which are doubtless shed at the breeding season; the white patch at the sides of the neck is also tinged with sandy-buff. The young male resembles the adult male in seasonal plumage, being brown instead of black. At first the black collar on the fore-neck is altogether absent, and when assumed it is much narrower than in the adult male. The reddish colour of the under parts is also much paler."

The adult female differs from the male, being principally light olive-brown above, and same colour below, but much paler; the principal wing feathers and also those of the tail being dusky-brown, edged with pale olive. Habitat: Mexico.

S. albitorquis.—"Adult male: Similar to S. torquela, but distinguished by a white collar round the hind neck. Total length 4.4in., tail 1.85in." Habitat: Mexico.

THE SPECTACLED FINCH—S. ophthalmica.—Adult male: Crown of head, nape, lores, sides of face, ear-coverts, mantle, back, wings and tail, black; the feathers of the lower back and rump have the bases grey, merging into black, with the tips pure white, giving a mottled whitish-grey surface; lesser coverts edged with white; the greater coverts with a white streak at the ends; primaries and quills with white bases, obscured on the latter, but forming a distinct oblong wing patch on the former; cheeks, throat, sides of neck, breast, abdomen, white slightly mottled with black on the sides and flanks; a broad black band crosses the foreneck, and there is a tiny spot of white below each eye. Total length 4in., tail 1⅝in.

Adult female: Differs considerably from the male, being light brown above; tinged with ashy on head and mantle; wings and tail, blackish; under surface, paler than the upper surface and slightly tinged with yellowish; centre of abdomen, white. Habitat: Ecuador.

THE LINEATED FINCH (RADIATED GROSBEAK. Lath.)—S. lineata.—Adult male: Crown of the head, nape, lore, sides of face, ear-coverts, mantle, back, and upper tail coverts, glossy black, with a greenish sheen; lower back and rump, mottled with ashy-grey; wing coverts, quills and tail-feathers, black; median and greater feathers, tipped with white; inner primaries, white at base of inner web; tail feathers narrowly tipped with ashy; cheeks, tiny spot below each eye; throat, sides of neck, centre of breast and abdomen, and under tail coverts, white; sides of body and flanks ashy; band across foreneck and sides of breast, black. Total length, 4½in., tail 1⅝in.

Adult female: Principally olive-brown; slightly fulvous on the rumps; wing-coverts, quills and tail-feathers, dusky brown, edged with paler brown; under surface, yellowish-buff; centre of breast and abdomen, whitish; sides and flanks, washed with brown.

Habitat: According to Museum Catalogue, Guiana and Amazonia.

S. moreleti.—Adult male: Black on the upper surface; with a broad band of white across the rump; wing-coverts, tipped with white; base of inner primaries, white on the outer web; whole of the head, black; throat, sides of neck, and under surface, white, slightly tinged with yellowish-buff below the breast; a broad black band crosses the foreneck. Total length 3⅝in., tail 1⅝in.

Adult female: Dull yellowish-brown, slightly washed with olive on the upper surface; greater and median wing coverts tipped with yellowish-white forming a double wing-bar; lores and eye region, whitish-ochre; ear-coverts and sides of neck, fulvous-brown; under surface, buff tinged with ochre. Habitat: Texas to Mexico.

S. parva.—Adult male: Crown of the head, nape, mantle, back, wing, upper tail coverts, tail, lores, sides of face, ear-coverts, and band across neck, black; lower back and rump, brown; cheeks, throat, sides of neck and under surface, white; tinged with yellowish below the black neck band, the yellowish being more pronounced on sides, flanks and ventral region; the middle primaries and secondaries have the base of the outer webs white, forming a double wing patch (the latter is not visible when the wing is closed). Total length 4in., tail 1⅝in.

THE BLUISH FINCH—S. cærulescens.—This is very similar to albigularis in plumage, and compared with that species its song is much inferior; nevertheless, it is a pleasing species, and merits a place in all collections of Finches, but unfortunately it is but seldom that an opportunity occurs for obtaining it; up to the present, with the exception of albigularis, all the genus are only occasionally to be purchased. I do not consider it merits a separate description: it differs from albigularis in its slightly smaller size (cærulescens 4¼in., albigularis 4⅜in. full, some specimens quite 4½in.), and black chin-patch; its nest is strong and cup-shaped; its eggs are white, spotted with either black or grey.

"The male in seasonal plumage is washed with olive brown on the back, wings, and tail, and the head and ear-coverts are ashy grey, the black being visible only on the base of the forehead, lores and fore part of the ear-coverts. It is evident that in the full plumage the ashy grey colour becomes abraded and the black spreads over the crown. The black spot on the throat and the band on the fore neck are both overshaded with grey." (British Museum Catalogue, Vol. XII.)

The adult female is mostly olive-brown above; wing and tail-feathers, dusky brown edged with olive-brown; eye region and cheeks, dull white washed with ochreous on the cheeks; under surface mostly buffish brown, pale and washed with yellowish on the abdomen; under tail-coverts, buffish ochre. Total length 4½in. bare, tail 1⅝in. Hab: Upper Amazonia, Guiana, Venezuela and Colombia.

Winter Migrants.

During the severe frost the lower meadows were crowded with flocks of Redwings, Missel and Song Thrushes. When the change came the Redwings departed for the downs and uplands, but the other Thrushes simply scattered to the hedgerows and fields. Fieldfares seldom come into the village; they prefer to keep to the more open country, searching the refuse heaps by the farm yards, and the big heaps at the edges of the fields where the crop of potatoes is safely protected from the weather. Some of these ("clamps" as they are called) have been broken into and a quantity of the contents sorted and carted off to market. The diseased vegetables and some of the very smallest have been thrown out. In hard weather these refuse heaps are daily searched by the larger birds, for in time of famine anything edible is quickly seized. In the autumn when our summer visitors left us for Africa and the south of Europe, our hedgerows, woods, and fields, appeared for a time very short of feathered creatures, but as the days shortened and the nights grew colder, and signs of frost were to be seen by early risers, our bird population was gradually increased. Blackbirds, Thrushes, Robins, Hedge Sparrows, Tits, Goldcrests, and others, were moving from the colder northern climate of our own country to the warmer atmosphere of the southern countries. Although this internal migration is from north to south in the autumn, it does not commence and finish at that time, but is apparent all through the winter months, for our resident birds are constantly on the move. Their movements appear to be very irregular and to be guided simply by the weather conditions and the food supply. I have known districts in the most severe winters when for a time all the birds have left excepting a flock or two of hardy Fieldfares; and these were living upon the root crops (what little was exposed above the snow), and the few berries along the hedgerows and upon the bushes growing in the sheltered hollows of some old chalk-pits, etc. To reach our shores, the Fieldfares and other hardy dwellers in the north must cross the wild north sea, a stretch of water about as bad as any in existence; many thousands must perish in the passage, but generations of birds have followed the route from remote ages, and will continue to do so, until perhaps the northern summers become too cold for existence, and to be used as breeding quarters.

WILD BIRD NOTES

Birds with One Leg.

Many familiar wild birds exist for a length of time with only one leg, for it is no uncommon sight to see such in country places. But any damage to a bird's wings would prove fatal, as they would soon be killed and devoured by ground vermin.

Woodcock in Norfolk.

In Norfolk, sportsmen are delighted at the increased number of Woodcocks seen in the district this year. The increase is attributed to the very favourable weather during the period of migration, and the fact that more of these interesting birds stayed to breed here than formerly. The majority of the migratory Woodcocks coming here in the autumn are bred in Northern Europe, where the ground is in every way favourable to the nesting of this species.

Increase of Herons.

Herons are unusually plentiful in the Midlands this winter. By reports it appears that these interesting birds are increasing, but the surest way of knowing if this is so is to wait until the breeding season, when the number of new nests will quickly decide the point.

Movements of Wildfowl.

We read that the movements of wildfowl are unusually pronounced this winter, that either the breeding season has been exceptionally successful or we are likely to get a touch of real winter soon. Several small flocks have been noticed here in the south, and some of the more noisy have been heard passing over in the night.

The Wandering Osprey.

Once again an Osprey has been seen in the south, and will probably meet the usual fate of these wanderers. There are just a few remote places in the Highlands where these birds manage to exist, and occasionally one wanders southward. Although at one time more numerous in this country, yet it is doubtful if they were ever very plentiful. There were several nesting places known in East Anglia among the fens and broads, and other districts. They were evidently looked upon as harmful, as an Act was passed in 1566 for the destruction of certain fowl and vermin, and the Osprey was included in the list.

Habits of the Guillemot.

As soon as the breeding season is over, the Guillemots leave the cliffs and rocks, where they have hatched their single eggs, and take to the open sea. Excepting when driven in by storms they rarely visit the land, and then only go to some sheltered bay or other suitable spot. During the winter they wander hundreds of miles from their breeding homes, sleeping on the waves, following the shoals of fish across the waste waters. The Guillemot is socially disposed, and other sea-birds may be seen mixed with the flocks. If one disturbs them along the coast they invariably fly out to sea, never by any chance flying inland, even for a short distance. Their home is the restless sea, and they evidently do not feel perfectly safe when passing over the land.

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. MINIMUM, 12 words, 4d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

ARE YOU SO RICH

that you would pay an extra profit unnecessarily? By dealing with me you not only save money, but get better value than elsewhere. Clap nets, made from absolutely finest thread netting extant, all ⅝ in. mesh, 3 yds. long, 4/-, 4 yds. 5/-, 5 yds. 6/-, 6 yds. 7/-, 7 yds. 8/-, 8 yds. 9/-, 9 yds. 10/-, 10 yds. 11/- per pair, all guaranteed 5½ ft. deep and strike 4 ft. Clapnets consist of 2 nets to the pair, and are fitted up complete with staves, pegs, lines, etc., all ready for immediate use. Loose thread netting, ¾ in. mesh, 7 ft. deep, 3d. yd., 9 ft. 4d. yd., 12 ft. deep 5d. yds. all post free. This netting is specially made for bird netting, is very strong, but being fine, does not show on the ground like the thick American cotton netting, often sold as bird netting; self-acting spring net traps 24 in. long, 18 in. wide, 1/- each, ditto, 18 in. long, 9d. each, carriage 4d. extra; these net traps are entirely different in construction from all others on the market, being so simple in action that a child can set them, and are guaranteed to hold any bird from Wren to Rook, absolutely uninjured. Bat-folding Sparrow nets, fitted on 14 ft. bamboo poles with pocket top and bottom 5/6 pair; ditto on 19 ft. bamboo poles 6/6 pair complete. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages (reg. No. 23027), warranted to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each. Single trap cages 6d. each, double ditto 1/- each, treble 1/3 each, round or square topped call cages, 3d. and 4d. each, 2/6 and 3/6 dozen. Real Japanese birdlime, guaranteed strongest made, and only lime to stand all weathers, holds birds in rain, and will hold a Hawk or Fowl, 6d. ¼ lb., 10d. ½ lb., 1/0 lb.; sample 3d., all post free. Imitators may copy name of my lime, but they cannot copy the quality. Every description of catching appliances in stock; send stamp for full list, with sample netting. If you want real good articles at reasonable prices give me a trial; patronised by all the leading catchers throughout the world who swear by my appliances and swear at all others. See British and Roller Canary Column.

Important to CAGE BIRD FANCIERS. Good Grit

Is as essentially necessary as Good Seeds for the maintaining of Health and Vigour in Cage Birds.

The Gold Medal Coronation Grit

is pronounced unequalled by any in the market. All good Fanciers providing it to their feathered pets are conferring the greatest possible benefit on them, while ensuring for themselves the greatest possible success in breeding and exhibiting. Prepared in size to suit all varieties of cage birds, British or Foreign, Parrakeets, etc. In order to give every fancier an opportunity of trying our Grit, we will accept trial orders at a uniform price, as per scale below, during February:—

MR. NORTH, of "CAGE BIRDS," in Reviewing it, Writes:—

"This sample of grit or bird sand is a very highly commendable character. The grains are of just the right size to be absorbent when in bulk, besides which it contains larger particles which the birds will readily appropriate for purposes of grinding their food as it gets into the gizzard. The sample also appears to contain sea shells in fragments, and crushed egg shell, from which growing birds will derive elementary constituents, for bone and feather formation, while the breeding stock will have within their reach plenty of calcareous material with which to constitute strongly-formed shells for their eggs, and enough saline matter to keep their systems free from feverishness. In a word, it is a substance extremely suitable for the purpose of the thousands of Canary and cage-bird enthusiasts, who are always on the look out for high-class goods to aid them in their endeavours to keep their pets in good health and happiness.

THERE MAY BE

a better method of trading than mine; if so, I should like to hear of it. My method is this:—I send everything I sell on approval, on deposit rules of CAGE BIRDS. I take all risk during the whole time of approval and refund every penny of your cash if you are not perfectly satisfied with the transaction. Simple, isn't it? I claim to be originator of this system in connection with wild birds, and have never traded in any other way during the whole of my business career. Grand large Worcestershire cock Goldfinches, in pink of health and condition, 2/- and 2/6 each. Specially selected larger birds for muling, 3/- and 4/- each. Few extra specials, with full complement of show points, and in full song, 5/-, each. Two-year-old white-legged cock, in full song, guaranteed muler, 7/6. Grand lot cock brown Linnets, every one warranted red-breasted, with nut brown backs, 9d. each, three 2/-, six 3/6, twelve 5/6. Few extra special large picked birds, steady as rocks, in full song, and suitable for show or muling, 1/6, and 2/- each. Remember, although I do not call myself a "King," my Linnets have been the talk of United Kingdom for years, and I have sold more winners than any other three men. Splendid lot cock Bullfinches 1/6, 2/-, and 2/6 each. Cock Bramblefinches 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/6; exhibition specimens 1/6 each. Cock Greenfinches three 1/-, six 1/6; exhibition specimens, 1/- each. Cock Twites three 1/6, six 2/6; exhibition specimens 1/- each; cock Yellowhammers 1/- each. Few correctly marked exhibition specimens 2/- each; cock Chaffinches three 1/6, six 2/6, exhibition specimens 1/- each; grand lot Skylarks 9d. each, three 1/6; few guaranteed in loud free song, 1/6, 2/- and 2/6 each. These Larks are a revelation and worth a long journey to hear. Hand-reared cock Thrush, finger-tame, 4/-; wild caught Thrush, guaranteed in free song, 2/6; cock Goldfinch Mules, full song, sing anywhere and any time, 5/-, 6/-, and 7/6 each. Cock Greenfinch Mules, full song, 4/- each; Goldfinch or Linnet cages 6d. each, 4/6 dozen; Lark cages 6d., 8d., 10d. and 1/- each; 3/6, 4/6, 6/-, and 8/- dozen; singing box cages 1/-, 1/4, 1/6, 1/9, and 2/- each; cottage topped Thrush cages 2/6 each; bow-fronted Lark cages 2/6 each; penny tin drinkers three dozen 1/3, 4/- gross, 10/6 penny tin drinkers three dozen three gross; half penny tin drinkers three dozen 10d., 3/- gross, three gross 7/6; dealers should send stamp for wholesale list of cages, etc. Patronise England's premier bird dealer, who sends everything on approval, and if you are not fully satisfied promptly and cheerfully refunds your money. No flat-catching here; everything warranted as advertised. See appliances column. Also Roller Canary column for further advertisements.

A. E. SILK'S Champion Norwich.
Silks' strain has proved itself worth more to the breeder of Norwich Plainheads than any other. Let it prove its worth to you. Silks' champion strain was introduced to the fancy more than 20 years ago. Twenty years ago fanciers bought Silks' Champion Norwich, because they knew exactly what they were getting; they wanted quality they could depend on, just as they do to-day. Silks' Champion Norwich are the finest and best obtainable, and at a moderate price. Silks' Champion Norwich are winning year by year on the show bench in keenest competition; see show reports. The secret of success is Silks' Champion strain; bouncing pairs, 15/6, 20/6, 25/6, 30/6, 35/6, 40/6, 45/6, 50/6. In the whole fancy there is positively no such value; single cocks and hens, yellow and buff, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/6, 25/6, 30/6 each. Compare size, quality and price with any others; approval willingly.—Note the name: A. E. Silk, Whitstable.

If you are interested in high-class singing Canaries, I am just the person to supply you with birds that will meet your every requirement. My birds do not require a lot of fairy tales and empoy bounce to sell them; they are all genuine high-class songsters of superior quality. Every bird advertises itself. To prove the superiority of my songsters, let me send you a bird, carriage paid on seven days' approval, at my risk, that you may compare it with any bird supposed to be of similar quality. You will then be convinced that the quality of my birds is unequalled. I have had a lifetime's experience, breeding, importing, and exporting birds, and study the requirements of my customers. I do, and always have given every customer the utmost satisfaction. The many thousands of unsolicited testimonials and repeat orders I receive annually from delighted customers prove that for quality combined with cheapness, my birds take the lead.

BOHEMIAN ROLLERS.
J. ARCHER.
I have much pleasure in informing the public that I have taken over the well-known business of E. Power. I have received the first consignment of the above celebrated Rollers, which were in such big demand last season, and am now the sole importer of these birds. They are imported direct by me from Boheme, Austria-Hungary, and I guarantee no other Canary equals it for song. They are trained by the flagolet and Swiss pipes, and have the finest notes imaginable. These birds do not need any comment, as last season's purchasers know, price 8/6 each. Genuine Bohemian hens, warranted to breed, or not, money returned, 2/6 each; Hartz cock, guaranteed in full song, 4/6 each, 28/- stick of seven, and 6/- each, 35/- stick of seven; Hartz hens, 1/6 each, 15/- dozen advertisements it must be difficult for a would-be purchaser to select who he considers to be the most likely man to give him best value for money. From those people all I ask is a perusal of the unsolicited testimonials given below, and also those published by me week after week for years upon years past. These letters are from delighted customers of mine who, apart from business transactions, are utter strangers to me, and full name and address is given so that sceptical persons can make any inquiry they think proper, and I offer £50 to any person that can prove that I have ever, either directly or indirectly solicited a testimonial from them, or ever paid a penny piece for one. I claim to be the largest retailer of Roller Canaries in United Kingdom, and only importer of the Leipzic strain of "Webers." At present time I have over one thousand Rollers in stock, all in full song, day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet, silvery trills, soft roulades, waterbubble runs, Nightingale, jug-jug, bell, harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and all guaranteed entirely free from Titlark or any other harsh notes whatever price, 6/6 and 7/6 each. Premier Bandmasters, which excel in the deep, bass rolls and hollow bell rolls, 10/- and 12/6 each. Roller hens, 2/6 each, 4/6 couple. Also a fresh consignment of pure Seifert contest Rollers, in full song, price 15/-, 17/6, and 21/- each. Seifert hens, guaranteed exactly same strain, 3/- and 4/- each. These Seiferts are exceptionally low and mellow in tone, and song is like a cascade of ever-flowing melody. Also in stock grand lot of loud, free singing Hartz cocks, all real ceiling lifters, in full song day and gaslight, cocks, 4/6 each, seven for 28/-; Hartz hens 2/- each or 3/- couple. Every bird is sent on full week's trial on receipt of cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and money fully refunded if your every expectation is not realised. All safely and warmly packed in special travelling cages, with seed and water for 48 hours free of extra cost, and no matter how cold the weather, or long the journey, I take all risk during the whole time. The following letters:—"29, Clifford-road, West Stanley. January 12th. Sir,—Roller I got from you for my friend is quite a champion. He was singing five minutes after being unpacked, and is quite a treat to hear. The two I had for myself are also singing lovely. Please send me a Hartz cock. Yours, Wm. Roe." On January 18th, Mr. Roe writes: "Sir Received Hartz cock safely, and am highly satisfied." "49, Pimlott-st., Longsight, Manchester. January 9th. Sir,—Thanks for prompt attention and satisfactory way you have served me. I think anyone wanting a Roller would not hold back if they could see my bird. Yours, F. Higgins." "4, Canal-terrace, Glasgow Dock, Lancaster, January 17th. Sir, —Have instructed Editor to pay you for Roller Canary. He is a very good bird, and I am sure no better value can be got for money. Yours, J. Robinson." "King-st., Melton Mowbray. January 18th. Sir,—Received Hartz cock with thanks. It is even better than the last I got. Yours, W. Jackson." "Blairgowrie, Scotland. January 18th. Sir,—Bird arrived in good health, and started to sing. I am well pleased with it. Yours, T. Brough." "Cowdenbeath, Fife. January 18th. Sir,— Received Leipzic Roller safe, and am glad to say am delighted with it. He is a grand songster. Yours, Wm. Cooper." "156, Bede Burn-road, Jarrow. January 18th. Sir,—I am delighted with the Seifert Roller purchased from you. Of course, I knew (having dealt with you before) that it would be up to the mark. Rest assured that when wanting another I shall not go past you. Yours, J. Young." "Harness Stores, Byfleet. January 16th. Sir,—Bandmaster arrived at 12.55, was singing at 1.5, and at 2 o'clock I had sold him to a friend. Please send another as before. Thanking you for prompt attention and straightforward dealings. Yours, F. Eyes." "New-street, Chasetown, near Walsall. January 16th. Sir.—Have instructed Editor to pay you deposit for Rollers. They suit me splendidly. Several friends have been in to hear them, and they are delighted with them. Shall recommend you to others. Yours, E. Cooke." "186, County-road, Walton, Liverpool. January 15th. Sir,—I am well pleased with Roller from you, and have instructed Editor to pay you deposit. Yours, G. Bingham." "67, Vorley-road, Highgate, London. January 14th. Sir,—The Roller you sent me is an absolute rattler. I have some that cost me 10/6, and yours is equally as good as any of them. Yours, A. Moy." "Millroad, Haverhill. January 22nd. Sir,—Received Hartz cock safe, and am well satisfied. I think they are well worth the money. Yours, E. Doe." "81, Monteith-st., Bridgeton, Glasgow. Sir,—Received Hartz cock, and it is singing lovely. Yours, J. Holmes." "34, King-st., Westhoughton, near Bolton. January 26th. Sir,—Received birds all right, and they have turned out champion. A friend came to look at them, and he sent to you for three straight away. Yours, T. Morris." "67, High-st., Treorchy. January 25th. Sir,—Received birds safely, and give every satisfaction, both in song and condition. Please send on twelve more cocks, P.O. enclosed. Shall have another order for you soon. Yours, J. Keller." Remember these letters say more for my Rollers than I could ever say myself, and they should settle beyond doubt as to who is best man to send to for satisfaction. You get full week's trial from me, and all your money back if not fully satisfied. See British Birds; also Appliance columns for further advertisements.

AMONG SO MANY

YORKSHIRES.

Taylor's high-class Yorkshires still lead the way Imitators and copyists try to follow. Read the following testimonials, which are only a sample of scores I am receiving daily. From 104, Cromwell Road, Grays, Essex. Feb. 8th, 1909.—Pair of Yorkshires to hand safely, and give every satisfaction. I think they are two gems. Please send me a pair Norwich for enclosed amount.—J. Dunning to J. Taylor. Another from Eden Road, Spennymoor. Feb. 7th, 1909.—The bird to hand alright, and am highly pleased with him. He is a champion, and extraordinary value for money.—R. Elwell to J. Taylor. Another from 29, Lockett Street, Latchford, Warrington. Feb. 7th, 1909. The three Yorkshires received, and are grand birds. Will send for more soon, and recommend you to all my friends.—J. Gleave to J. Taylor. Another, from 2, Lorne Street, Wigan. Feb. 6th, 1909.—Birds arrived quite safe, and give every satisfaction that could be given. The cock is a lovely songster, and I hope to place more orders with you before long. Shall recommend you to my friends.

BIRD SPECIALIST,

CROWLE, via DONCASTER

YORKSHIRES.

It is impossible to get anything to approach the value I can give you in high-class Yorkshires. Why? Because I have the largest and by far the best collection of high-class birds. Let me send you one, or one of my matched pairs and compare them with other advertisers, and judge for yourself who sends the best value for money. Read this testimonial, from 10, St. Andrew Street, Dublin. Feb. 8, 1909. I received the pair of Yorkshires in grand condition after their long journey. They are a pair of beauties, and am highly pleased with them. The cock was singing strongly as soon as unpacked. I thank you very much for your prompt attention, and will send you another order soon.—Thomas Manning to L. Dykes.

Another, from 48, Snowden Street, Penygroes. Feb. 8, 1909.—The hen arrived safe and I can tell you I am very pleased indeed with her. I have had several fanciers to see her, and all say it is well worth the money. If you deal with all orders like mine there is no need for approval; thanking you for your honest and straightforward dealing, and shall certainly place all future orders in your hands. —Bob Morgan to L. Dykes. Scores of others received during the last few days (from almost every customer), which are filed for inspection.

All my birds are cold rooms bred and kept, and guaranteed healthy and tight-feathered, and as straight as a rush; no frills, drop-tails or sickly birds here; colour fed or natural colour, and all cocks on full song and seven inches long. Clears, ticks, green and cinnamon marked, and whole greens. Yorkshire cocks, yellows, at 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each; buff cocks, at 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each. Hens, yellow or buff, at 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6 each. Pairs properly matched to breed winners, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-.

Exhibition specimens that have won in keenest competition (see show reports all through season), very reasonable. State wants. Specially selected Yorkshire or Norwich songsters, on full rolling song by day or gaslight, at 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6 each. Large pink-eyed Sib. bens for dark or light mule breeding, at 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6 each. Grand collection of high-class Norwich; large chubby cocks, at 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; bens at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6. Large Norwich cinnamons, matched pairs, at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- per pair; also splendid collection of high-class Crests, matched pairs, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair. Travelling cages 3d. extra on all orders. Place your orders with the old reliable breeder, exhibitor and specialist, that gives every customer satisfaction. And remember, I send all birds on a full week's approval at my risk; no waiting and no deception here.

Illustrated price list and full particulars of my easy payment system; post free. This is a genuine offer to fanciers who are not in a position to pay ready cash. Birds sent off at once on receiving first payment. All on seven days' approval at my risk. Note address:

also winners at leading shows; I have a grand stock of high-class champion Yorkshires for disposal; cocks, wonderful length, type and quality; hens feathered like wax; the right sort to breed winners; state your wants; on approval; inspection invited. —H. Lindsay, 202, King James'-st., Walkley, Sheffield.

WM. POWICK.

Champion Yorkshires, standard length and quality feather, the same strain as the winners at all leading shows; stock and show birds in all classes; second to none; cocks, 7/6, 10/6; bens, 5/6, 7/6 each; ten days' approval.—Wm. Powick, Eastfield House, Dewsbury.

YORKSHIRES,

High-class for stock purposes in clear, ticked, or unevenly marked, cocks, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6 upwards; bens, 4/6, 5/-, 6/- upwards; pairs, properly matched from 12/6 upwards; approval.—6, Ash Mount, Great Horton, Bradford.

SAMUEL DEAN.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

Owing to ill-health, I offer the whole of my Yorkshires for sale; they are acknowledged by Yorkshire judges to be the finest birds ever staged, as their winnings at Crystal Palace and other leading shows indicate They have been most carefully bred for 10 years, with the result that many of the stock birds are producing winners in every nest; these birds also possess length, colour, and quality of feather, seldom obtained in any other strain of birds; state wants.—Morgan Lewis, Haverfordwest.

CHITTENDEN'S YORKSHIRES.

My stock have won for me at all the leading shows this season (see Yorkshire Union Show reports), and birds I have sold also won at the best shows of the year; not members' shows. The quality of my stock are well known, and my cinnamon marked strain are second to none. Having had a good breeding season, I have over 200 birds for sale, which for length, type, and quality cannot be beaten. My prices will stand comparison with others. Yellow or Buff cocks, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/6; hens, Yellow or Buff, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/-, 15/-, 20/- each; these are all good long birds, fit to breed from. Extra stock birds, cocks or hens, at reasonable prices. I do not publish testimonials; seven days' approval.—108, Bolton Hall-rd., Bolton Woods, Bradford.

STAND OR FALL!

I will stand or fall by the result of fair and unprejudiced public opinion on my system of doing business. My birds and bird appliances are no "catch-penny" items of trade. Everything I sell is sound and genuine. I give you the opportunity of a fair and honourable trial. I want no man's money with any man's grumble. I make my business friends: and (what is not always quite so easy) I KEEP THEM! My Specialities in Cages, Aviaries, Appliances, Foods, etc., for all Cage Birds have something more than merely "a local habitation and a name!" They are known all over the globe. They please all, and disappoint none. My Foods for Cage Birds are ever sound, serviceable, and satisfactory, and my prices all-round are based on terms of both merit and moderation. I sell no rubbish. I have neither time nor room for that class of business. It will afford me pleasure to send you, on receipt of two stamps, to cover postage, my new Illustrated Catalogue; and if you are interested in Bird Life, this work will aid that interest.

Remember that I send every Bird out on one full week's approval.

The terms of which I was the originator, despite statements to the contrary; the back numbers of this Journal will prove this. My Bird Price List, which includes every variety of Canary, will be sent post paid on receipt of post-card.

HUDSON'S CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

In reply to many customers inquiring about birds being ready, all my birds are hard and fit for breeding, and in good condition, and I can recommend to them who want to breed own winners, as they are all bred from or related to winners at all leading shows: Shipley, Windhill, Bingley, Baildon, Bradford, and others too numerous to mention, including Palace. And remember, I want no man's money who does not purchase satisfactory. My stock includes clears, ticked, Greens, marked, and few cinnamon-marked. Long, raking Yellow cocks, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; long, raking Buff cocks, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; few songsters, 6/- each; long Yellow hens, 6/-, 8/-, 10/- each; long Buff hens, 6/-, 8/-, 10/- each; my special matched pairs cannot be beaten by them who have all the bounce; pairs, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, £1, £1 5s.; all on four days' approval; cash or deposit; stamp reply.—Hudson, Confectioner, Thackley, Bradford.

GENUINE PROOF.

Who has the (oftentime told) best stock in Yorkshire? Having done something that no other fancier has done, winning the championship in both C.M.Y.C.C. and Y.C.C., also 3rd place for 20-guinea cup, finishing up with more 1sts at Crystal Palace than any other exhibitor, three 1sts and diploma, for best cinnamon-marked Yorkshire in show; see report this issue. Now that shows are over, we have for sale several absolute winners that have helped to win those competitions, as it is impossible for us to breed with them all. Write for particulars.

THE SHOW OF THE WORLD!

Note THIS week's Prices,

but for value you must have on approval, for quality is the only true test of cheapness. THOUSANDS in Stock.

Clear yellow cocks, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/- to 40/-; clear yellow, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6; clear buff, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-; marked, 2/6, 3/6, 4/-; pairs, Norwich Plainheads, matched for breeding, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6. A lot of rare special bouncing hens at 5/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; cocks for show, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-.

Pairs matched for breeding, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards

YORKSHIRES!

You can read all the claims, and you may or you may not believe them; but if you will allow me to send One or One Pair of mine on approval against any others advertised, at any of the following prices, I shall feel obliged. That's making it actions in place of words.

I have some of the best extant winners at large open shows, cocks and hens, proof given, when and where won, who shown by, etc. as I imitate no-one, and despise fairy tales (plainly speaking, untruths), and all those who make them. I can show my winners to anyone, or send on approval, as I do not make myself into a mere gas-bag, full of pin-pricks, nor trade under a false name, for that is what I call stooping to a low level indeed. Cocks, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; Hens, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-.

You have never before had the chance to get such quality for the price since this paper has been established. Test it by having on approval Crested cocks 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/- 30/-, 40/-, 60/-, 80/-, 100/- upwards. Crested hens, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/- 30/-, to 60/- upwards. Crested-bred cocks, clear yellow, 15/-, 20/-; clear buff 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 20/-, 30/-; ticked or variegated, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-. Crested-bred Hens, ticked or variegated, 4/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/- upwards; clear, 8/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-; green 5/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; pairs matched for crest breeding, one crested and one crested bred, 12/6, 15/-, 23/-, 30/-, 40/-, 60/-; 100/- per pair. Tho above are simply marvels at the price and no other person—dealer, so-called private breeder, or firm, can possibly give it.

TESTIMONIALS.

From SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

To W. Rudd, Esq., Bird Specialist, Norwich.—Dec. 29, 1908. Dear Sir,—I received the birds in splendid condition, and am exceedingly well pleased with same; also very much obliged to you for the manner in which you have treated me. I must confess that I was a little timid when I heard some friends say from Sydney, that I would not get anything from you, as you were a dealer, but as I am writing to Sydney per same mail, I will correct their statement. I hope later on to place another order with you, and I again thank you for your straightforward dealings. Wishing you a happy new year and future prosperity. I am, dear Sir, Yours truly, T. Clarkson.

(Mr. Clarkson's friends forgot that there are dealers and dealers, but they are not the only ones who do not see the fact. The above birds were valuable Crests and crested-breds, costing many pounds.—W. R.)

From VISCOUNT ——.

Powerscourt, Enniskerry, Co. Wicklow. Jan. 27, 1909. Dear Sir,—I am very much pleased with the aviary, which arrived safely yesterday. —Yours faithfully, P——.

Wonderful for the money.

Glendoven Rectory, Letterkenny, Co. Donegal. Feb, 1908.—The birds arrived quite safely, and are splendid. They are wonderful for the money. The person for whom I got the Budgerigars is equally delighted with them.—M. Garstin to W. Rudd.

Every one of his customers very pleased.

116, Blackfriars Road, Southsea. Feb. 4, 1909.—The birds arrived quite safe. I am very pleased with the way you have served me since I have dealt with you. I am quite sure no one could serve me better. The bird sung before being taken out of cage. I have had many from you now, and sold them, and every customer is very pleased with them.—G. Thomas to W. Rudd.

Bought a few cages in his time.

10, Shirley Gardens, Hanwell. Feb. 1, 1909.—Just a line to let you know the cage arrived safe to-day. I must thank you for your promptitude for so small an order. I have bought a few cages, but none to compare with this one, honestly worth double. My wife says it is like a piece of furniture instead of a bird cage; if this is a sample of your goods, then I know where to get my future stock.—W. H. Wheatley to W. Rudd.

A real Clinker.

North Shields, 1909.—Yorkshire songster arrived this morning safe and well, and in grand condition. Never expected it so soon. It is a real clinker. You can look out for a further order.—Dd. Marshall to W. Rudd.

Read this for Yorkshires.

Sheffield. Feb. 1, 1909.—I received the pair of Yorkshires safely, and am highly satisfied with them. My wife tells me when she had taken them from the carrier the cock began to sing before the wrapping was taken off. Everyone that has seen them are surprised at the price. Well, to tell you the truth, the two birds you have sent I would not exchange for all the Canaries in the bird shops in Sheffield. I had a walk round to all the bird shops I knew of to see what they had; they had none to suit me, so I thought I would give you a trial.—F. Jackson to W. Rudd.

How is this for Rollers.

Station Hotel, Newcastle-on-Tyne. Feb. 1, 1909.—Thanks for promptness in sending the Seifert. He arrived quite safe, and after having a good breakfast he started to sing and roll extra well. Shall be pleased to recommend you to anyone wanting fair dealing, and honest prices. This is the fourth time I have had the pleasure of dealing with you. —W. J. Denniss to W. Rudd.

NOW there are not many testimonials given above, but time just now will not permit giving more. This is the old story by a certain class, but I substantiate this (as I am always prepared to do with all public statements I make), by sending a large quantity to the Editor for inspection—or for anyone else's inspection, so far as I am concerned, bearing the official post-marks of most recent dates.

Have you tried these specials?

If not, just have a pair on approval. — My special matched pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 30/-; Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Lancashires 25/-, 30/-, 40/-; Cinnamons, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Lizards, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Border Fancies, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6. These are the best value ever offered. Travelling cages, with proper food and nourishment for journey, 3d. extra on all above prices. For all others see positively free illustrated list and easy payment system.

Songsters. Hundreds caged off and all specially selected, not haphazard birds, quality sent to each, according to price sent, and in all cases the best I can do, and what I cannot do in this line, no other man (or fictitious trader) can in the world. Norwich, Yorkshires, Hartz Mountain Rollers, Cinnamons, Mules (Goldfinch, Linnet, or Siskin). Note prices:—7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-.

Of course, if you want the usual lowest priced birds always called the best, but which common-sense must tell you are not, I have them as low as 4/6 and 5/-.

ASTHMARINE, the most infallible cure for Asthma and other Lung affections in all classes of the Feathered tribe, 9d. and 2/6 bottle. It is not a "cure all," but a genuine, and the only, real remedy for Asthma.

EGGERTINE, the acknowledged best Egg Food, and with by far the largest sale, 1/3 and 2/6 per tin. This will bring breeding hens into condition as no imitation ever did, or ever will. Made from NEW LAID English eggs, not preserved Foreign rubbish. Send for Analytical Report.

Norwich Golden Bloom Tonic Drops will quickly get old or young birds into condition and give a natural gloss, 9d. and 2/6, all post free.

I have used nothing else myself since I introduced the above articles not for any one bird out of all the Millions that have passed through my hands.

£25 REWARD.

Eighteen years ago I introduced Budgerigar breeding husks to the fancying public, they have withstood all opposition, and they remain to-day, unequalled, on account of their superior excellence over all other kinds. The above reward is waiting for any man in the kingdom who has wired up as many as myself. My "Improved Secure" husks are altogether different to all others. I say from experience, don't purchase until you want, as my large stock of seasoned husks is always proof against any "rush," so don't be rushed into buying beforehand. Remember, you get the benefit of 18 years' practical experience in husk wiring. My "Improved Secure" husks are 4/6 dozen; smaller quantities 5d. each; illustrated circular post free; superior Cockatiel, joiner-made nest boxes, 1/0 each.—Harper, Husk Importer, Dudley-rd., Wolverhampton.

The Cage Bird Union Annual Meeting.

A large attendance of delegates, the business despatched in amicable style, and an insurance scheme put up for consideration.

The annual general meeting of the Cage Bird Union held on Saturday evening, February 6th, in the Board Room, at the Crystal Palace, attracted an excellent attendance of delegates. A deal of important business was got through, the sitting lasting close upon four hours. One of the chief items on the agenda was the election of a secretary, and for this important post it was found that Mr. J. Raynes (the present popular secretary of the Norwich Plainhead Club), headed the voting. Mr. Raynes is, we understand, vacating the latter position in order to devote his energies solely to C.B.U. matters. He was introduced to the meeting by the chairman, and, amid hearty applause, expressed his intention of doing his level best to adequately fill the position to which he had been elected. The retiring secretary, Mr. G. W. F. Lythgoe, received a hearty vote of thanks for his past great services to the Union.

Of the rest of the business on the agenda, five items may be said to stand out from the others in importance, and these may be summarised as follows:—

(1) It was decided that district committees should not have the power to alter the show date of any society which had been in the habit of adopting a recurring date, that is, had held its exhibition on approximately the same date or dates for a number of years past.

(2) Purely cage-bird societies are to have first choice of show dates.

(3) The Council is pledged to draw up a scheme of insurance, by means of which exhibitors losing their birds, either when journeying to and from, or actually at, a show, may be compensated in full, or in part, for their loss. The details of this scheme will afterwards be submitted to either the delegates or the societies (or both) for consideration.

(4) The "hated" Rule 17 was once again thoroughly discussed, and once again there was found to be a majority in favour of keeping it in its present form.

(5) It was decided that no further action could be taken with regard to affiliated members exhibiting at Yorkshire Union Shows, it being the general feeling that, though it was regrettable no arrangement could be arrived at, every effort had been already made by the C.B.U. with a view to its members supporting the Y.U. shows.

We had been led to believe that a "hot time" was likely to be spent at the meeting, but we were most woefully disap——, that is to say, our informant proved an unreliable prophet. We floated calmly from one resolution to another, the only approach to a storm being when Mr. Taylor (Bristol), emphatically ejaculated: "What has the C.B.U. done? It never will be no good, and never has been no good. That's my message to you, gentlemen." We all looked a little pained, of course. But no one ventured to answer his question or contradict his sweeping assertion. And no one said anything in support, either. So we had no excitement. Some of us smiled rather broadly, however, to find the representative of the very society (Newcastle) which moved the deletion of Rule 17, impelled by his personal convictions to make an impassioned appeal for its retention! Mr. MacPartling evidently feels very strongly that Rule 17 is a good thing, and he expounded his views with a flow of eloquence and an intensity of expression that would have put even a perfervid socialist orator to the blush.

The chair was ably filled by Mr. W. A. Bladon, and he was supported by the late secretary, Mr. Lythgoe (who is a delegate for the Pendleton and Salford Society). The other delegates present were Messrs. J. Trengove (Accrington), W. Freestone (Norwich Allinnce), S. Hadwin (English and Welsh Border Club), W. Sampson (Cardiff), G. J. Warley (Wimbledon), H. E. Tringham (London and Counties), W. J. Honeysett (Battersea C.B.A.), J. Hampshire (Oldham), T. Pope (Western Counties O.S.) E. Meades (Greenwich and Deptford), H. Newnham (Plumstead and Woolwich), A. M. Innes (Torbay O.S.), J. A. Tyler (Leicester C.B.S.), E. E. Pass (Hucknall Torkard), J. W. Mc'ealfe (Liverpool O.S.), W. D. Franks (Southend and S.C.O.S.), T. S. Moore (Cambridge and Cambs. O.S.), Robert Hall (Leek), H. Yeoman (Clapham and Dis.), D. A. S. Longden (Welsh National), J. Raynes (Norwich Plainhead Club), G. L. Harber (Merthyr Dowlais), T. Taylor (Bristol C.B.S.), J. Tyson (L.C.B.A.), A. E. Rogers (Dulwich O.S.), P. Jonkins (Swansea), A. Bradshaw (Sheffield), G. MacPartling (Newcastle), Thos. Taylor (Gateshead), D. R. Jones (Llanelly), R. Rhodes (Nottingham), G. Peters (Coventry), and J. W. Ramsden (L.P.O.S.), while we rather fancy one or two delegates omitted to sign the attendance book.

The Business.

The first business was the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, which were passed as read.

On the reading of the report, Mr. TYLER raised the question whether the medal competitions were to be gone on with. He wondered whether they would give the medals in each district, on account of the slackness of the competition.—Mr. MEADES thought that this slackness was due to the fact that several shows had been held before particulars as to the competitions began to get known.—Mr. YEOMAN suggested giving a certain number of medals, according to the amount of competition in the various districts.—Messrs. MacPartling, Bradshaw, Hampshire, Freestone, and Hall also spoke, and eventually a proposition and amendment were moved, but Mr. Longden pointed out that they had a rule governing the matter which must be adhered to; and Mr. Meades supported him in this.—Mr. LYTHGOE said that the rule read competitors "may select four shows," not that they "must" take four shows, and he could say that it was not the intention of those who framed it that the latter meaning should be put upon it. Eight competitors had picked four shows, 27 three, and a few others less than that number.—Eventually the balance-sheet was passed as read (subject to correction and audit), on the motion of Mr. Honeysett, seconded by Mr. Rogers, so presumably those entitled to medals will get them in accordance with Mr. Lythgoe's version of the rule.

Chairman and Secretary.

Mr. Bladon was declared elected President for the ensuing year, Mr. Rhodes, the only other nomination, having intimated that he could not accept the post.—Mr. BLADON briefly returned thanks, and said his sole desire was that the Union should be a blessing to the Fancy, and that all fanciers should put their heads together and work amicably for their mutual benefit throughout the country.

The voting for the secretaryship was announced to be: 73 papers returned; Mr. Raynes, 45 votes; Mr. Hadwin, 23 votes; with five votes between two other candidates.—Mr. RAYNES, in returning thanks for the vote, said that he intended to do his best for the Union, and to follow worthily in the footsteps of Mr. Lythgoe. He had a hard task in following so good a man, but he would tackle it to the best of his ability.

Mr. METCALFE raised the point that only 50 per cent. of the societies interested had voted, and said this was due to the fact that he only got his postcard on a Tuesday, and it had to be returned by the following Friday, so that he had no chance of calling a meeting to consult his society. It was an important post, and ought to have full consideration given to its filling.—Mr. LYTHGOE said that a delegate was empowered to vote on behalf of his society, and Mr. YEOMAN said he should not have thought that anyone would have wanted to call a meeting for such a purpose.

Mr. Hadwin proposed, and Mr. Bradshaw seconded, that Mr. Raynes be declared elected. Mr. Taylor (Bristol) moved an amendment that every society be given a chance to record its vote.

Mr. MEADES queried whether an M.P. went to ask his constituents how he should vote every time. He himself did not call a special meeting of his society, and should have thought it absurd to do so. Mr. FREESTONE agreed, and said that, although his society was over 200 strong, he voted "on his own." Mr. MOORE said that he did not vote because both gentlemen were quite unknown to him, and Mr. BLADON said he could quite believe that this was the reason many did not vote.

Mr. Taylor's amendment found no seconder, and Mr. Hadwin's proposition was carried unanimously.

The next business was to confirm new rules suggested and passed at the last delegates' meeting, viz.:—

(1) That all proposed alterations in the rules be sent to the general secretary two months prior to the annual meeting, and sent to all affiliated societies six weeks before the meeting.

(2) That rules can only be altered or added to at the annual meeting.

(3) That licences be not granted to purely cage-bird societies.

(4) That every delegate be supplied with a copy of the report and balance-sheet before the annual meeting. These were all unanimously agreed to.

Then followed alterations in the phraseology of the rules, as suggested by the Union's solicitors, viz.:—

(1) Add the words "per year" after £1 1s. in the third line of amended Rule 4, and to the end of rule the words "Any affiliated society and any individual wishing to terminate membership of the Union must give three calendar months' previous notice in writing to the secretary of the Union, to expire on the 1st September in any year."

(2) After end of Rule 8 to read: "Any appeal from their decision shall be to the Executive Council, whose decision shall be final and binding."

(3) Add to end of new rule, following Rule 8, "A district committee shall not, nor shall the Union, be liable for any loss or damage which may arise by reason or in consequence of the publication of any such suspension or proceedings aforesaid."

(4) After word "Union" on line 6 of Rule 16, add "or (if not a member of the Union) to be debarred from exhibiting at shows held under the Union's rules."

(5) After the words "think fit" of line 8, add "without rendering the Union or any member of such council liable for any loss or damage occasioned thereby."

(6) Rule 19. Delete the words "or umpire," and add to the third line after "birds" the words "or cage bird shows or," and substitute the word "submission" for the word "reference" in the sixth line.

(7) Add to end of Rule 11 of the show rules the words "and binding."

(8) After the word "affected" in line 4 of Rule 18 add "without being liable for any loss or damage arising by reason or in consequence of such publication," and at end of line 6 the words "without the Union or such council being liable for any loss or damage arising by reason or in consequence thereof."

It was explained that the above alterations were purely of a protective character. Alteration No. 1, said Mr. LYTHGOE was to compel societies to remain members for twelve months after they had joined, while the word "individual" was to cover associate members.—Mr. MEADES asked whether a society could rejoin after it had once fallen out, and, if so, on what terms.—Mr. LYTHGOE replied that that would be a matter for the consideration of the Council. Mr. Lythgoe also stated, in reply to further questions, that the Union could not debar a suspended member from competing in members' classes; further, that an affiliated member could show at a non-licensed fixture in members' classes, or in classes confined to the county.

The "Hated" Rule 17.

Then came Rule 17, about which so much controversy has raged, and promises to continue to rage. Newcastle C.B.S. moved that Rule 17 be deleted, and business brought before district committees be first submitted to the societies, and the delegates instructed to vote according to their decisions. Mr. Bradshaw seconded this.

Mr. LYTHGOE said he had received a letter from Hartlepools C.B.S., stating that if Rule 17 were not deleted, they should resign from the Union.—Several delegates expressed the opinion that the Union should not listen to threats.

Mr. HADWIN said that at every meeting he had been in favour of doing away with Rule 17. He believed that if a certain proposition standing in the name of the Coventry Society were passed that day, this would do away with the necessity for it, for after one year's working he was confident they would have no need even to ask fanciers to join—they would do so without compulsion because of the great benefits accruing from membership.—Mr. BRADSHAW said he was dead against Rule 17 in the past, and was more dead against it now than ever. It was a rule they couldn't carry out, and was not worth the candle. It was not for them to say that a fancier should show at this or at that place. They couldn't do it; he defied them to do it. They could go on suspending, but there would soon be nobody left to suspend beyond the chairman and the secretary. (Laughter.) If the Union was worth joining, societies would join without compulsion. Let it be a union of hearts.

Mr. LONGDEN did not see why the rule should be deleted. It had worked all right, and been favourably received up to the present, for every vote taken on it had showed a big majority in its favour. Why should they be ruled by the wishes of a few? Once delete the rule, and you would soon kill the power for good of the Union.—Mr. LYTHGOE pointed out that at the last vote on the rule the figures showed an overwhelming majority in favour of it.—Mr. TYLER said there was a good deal too much of the "all for I" about the opposition, and he would like to see a little more of the "all for we." Fanciers should remember that they were units of a community, and act as was best for the whole body, not simply consider their own case. He was in favour of the rule.

Mr. HADWIN thought they should make the Union such a benefit to fanciers that they would join without any compulsion, even if they hadn't done it in the past. Mr. MOORE said they joined in Cambridge simply because they had to; they couldn't hold an open show without. They didn't like that "have," and he thought the Union could be worked without it.—Mr. YEOMAN strongly supported the rule. He could speak from experience that the Union had been a benefit to his society,, and it should be a benefit to the whole Fancy, consequently it deserved and ought to have the support of all.—Mr. POPE said that at dog shows a similar rule was in force, and no hardship seemed to be felt. He knew hird fanciers who also exhibited dogs, and who talked about Rule 17 "limiting the liberty of the individual," yet they raised no voice against the very similar rule obtaining in their other hobby.—Mr. FREESTONE said he was a great upholder of the rule. He contrasted last year at a certain show, then unlicensed, with the same fixture this year, licensed, and said that this season the birds got watered at the proper time, and properly stewarded.

Mr. TAYLOR (Bristol) said that it was the opinion in Bristol that if there was no Rule 17 there would soon be no Union. To belong to it meant that you were restricted as to where you could show. And what has the C.B.U. done? he asked. It never will be any good, and never has been any good. That's my message to you, gentlemen. Instead of having Rule 17, it would be much better if the C.B.U. representative, instead of hanging round show-rooms, went on to the railway platforms and saw that the cases were not thrown about. (A voice: He would soon get thrown about himself.).—Mr. Taylor was here called to order by the chairman.

Mr. ROGERS suggested making the rule more stringent still. Mr. LYTHGOE said that Mr. Ramsden first set his face firmly against that, for he held that it would debar hundreds of people from showing their one or two pet birds, and so be the means of societies losing a lot of money. Mr. MOORE said he could thoroughly endorse Mr. Ramsden's view. They could never hope to hold a paying show in Cambridge if every exhibitor was compelled to be a member of the C.B.U. They had a great number of small exhibitors of the type alluded to by Mr. Ramsden. To bar them would be to hit the Fancy very hard indeed. He knew his society could not afford to entertain the idea.

Mr. MACPARTLING here made a great speech, reeling off sentences at a rate that precluded the taking of anything but the briefest notes. He said it was the duty of every fancier to belong to a body that was trying its utmost to uplift the Fancy. In spirit he favoured the more stringent wording of Rule 17. Those who talked so much about "liberty" forgot that there was nothing free in nature. Rule 17 he considered beneficial, and most necessary to a body of men anxious to see that right was done. They wanted to bring the "clever" exhibitor down, and put the novice on an equal footing in all things, except, of course, those he must learn, such as colour-feeding. Rule 17 had been strongly opposed in the South. Well, London was the city of ambition, and with ambition one always had selfishness. He looked forward to the day when a sister C.B.U. would rise in Scotland and work hand-in-hand with their own. Could any man say why this should not be? No man could give a sound, valid reason why a Cage Bird Union should not exist, or why fanciers' societies should not belong to it. The language used by its opponents was sometimes degrading. They had only to scan the Press to be convinced of the necessity for such a body as the C.B.U. He hoped to see all true fanciers bound together in a bond of brotherhood. He strongly appealed to them to uphold Rule 17.

The proposition that Rule 17 be deleted was here put. Result: 7 for, 9 against.

The Accrington amendment, an addition to Rule 17, "That all exhibitors not affiliated either directly or indirectly to the C.B.U. be not allowed to exhibit at Union shows," was then discussed. It was supported by Burnley C.B.S.

Mr. HADWIN moved that Rule 17 stand as it is. Mr. RAMSDEN, in seconding this, said he strongly opposed the proposed alteration. He thought it a scandalous thing to try to prevent people from exhibiting, when they could do with all the entries they could possibly get. Scores and scores of shows lost money—in London that year losses of £20 to over £30 had taken place—and if they had to refuse entries they would lose far more in the future. In his opinion, it would work immense harm to the Fancy if the alteration under discussion came to pass, and prove the ruin of the Union as well. He had run fifteen Palace shows, and could say that they had averaged 200 strangers yearly who came and purchased odd birds or pairs; and they had hundreds of what he might term "occasional entries." Were they to turn the latter away and debar all these people from showing? No society could possibly afford to do it.

Mr. YEOMANS said he thought it was their duty to try and get all the new fanciers to become members of societies.—Mr. LYTHGOE said the amendment aimed at a good many fanciers who resigned from their societies in September and then rejoined after the show season was over. In Yorkshire and South Wales, for instance, there were a large number of unlicensed shows. It was not fair of societies to take these members back. They knew of a case in the North where even the chairman of the society resigned as soon as the show season opened, and joined again afterwards.—Mr. MOORE supported Mr. Ramsden strongly. He said that out of 800 entries at Cambridge show, 20 per cent were of one or two birds, and not from regular exhibitors. If the Accrington amendment were carried, it would cripple all societies.—Mr. BRADSHAW said it would involve tremendous work for the show secretaries; in fact, he did not see how they could carry it out. It would be extremely difficult to know whether every man who entered belonged to the C.B.U.

Mr. SAMPSON said that suspended exhibitors showed the birds afterwards in their wives' or sisters' or friends' names, down in Wales, and if this rule were amended that would put a stop to such practices. Mr. HADWIN said that for the first year or two societies would undoubtedly suffer severely from shortage of entries. The suggested alteration would debar all Yorkshire Union members from competing, and they were often responsible for the bulk of the exhibits in their particular section. Things would come right eventually, no doubt, but heavy losses must occur at first. Mr. FREESTONE said that at Norwich they got over 500 entries from outside societies, and if the Accrington proposals were carried, his society would have no option but to secede from the Union.—Mr. METCALFE said that Rule 17 worked very hardly for members of specialist clubs who were competing for their trophies. He knew cases where C.B.U. members lost a lot of points through being unable to send to a non-C.B.U. show having the specialist club patronage. These exhibitors could not stand this; instead, they now resigned from their societies, and got out of the influence of the C.B.U.—Mr. LYTHGOE pointed out that the Crest Club and Norwich P.C. would not grant their patronage to a non-affiliated show, and that if this were adopted the difficulty mentioned by Mr. Metcalfe could not exist.—Mr. METCALFE said that in the specialist club he referred to (the Green Canary Association) many of the members were Yorkshiremen, and naturally they wanted the patronage given to a show or two at their own doors as it were, as well as to shows out of their district.

The amendment of Mr. Hadwin, that Rule 17 stand as at present, was here put to the meeting, and 15 voted in favour, and only two against.

CHATHAM.

An open-to-all-England Linnet singing competition took place on January 31st, at "Three Brothers," for a 10 minutes' contest, the prize being a very nice lamp. There was a grand company of fanciers, who were highly delighted with the way in which the birds were matched together. Two or three good battles were fought out to a close and exciting finish. The first pair was between Messrs. C. Sedgewick's and Sage's birds, the scores being 60 and 37 repectively. Messrs. J. Clifford's and G. Purfect's were the next pair, the score being 69 and 58. Messrs. Harvey's and Cuningham's contest was won easily by the former, with a score of 65 points against 17. The best race of the day was between Messrs. Gardiner's "Nonpariel" and Harvey's "Champion," the score being 70 and 59, the prize being awarded to Mr. Gardiner, amidst much enthusiasm. Messrs. W. Cullum and C. Sedgwick were the scorers and Mr. C. Dorington officiated as timekeeper; they all give every satisfaction. The next of these meetings is to be held on February 7th, and will be open to all comers. Anybody wishing to join can do so.—H. GARDINER, sec.

BOLDON.

Linnet contest held at Railway Tavern, Boldon Colliery, on January 23rd. There were 36 entries, and some good singing. 1st and 3rd, Tucker; 2nd and 4th, Brannen. The first and second birds were a credit to their owners.—G. ELLIOTT.

YORK.

Usual weekly Linnet contest held at the Crown Inn, North Street, when 26 birds competed. Some excellent singing was heard. Result:—1, Moore; 2, Cole; 3, Lee; 4, Gurden; 5, Masshedea; 6, King. Judge, Mr. H. Perry; timekeeper, Mr. Cooper.—J. W. SMITH, Hon. Sec.

Weekly Linnet Contest, held at Bricklayer's Arms, Palmer Lane, Hungate, Jan. 30. Twenty-four birds entered, and some excellent singing was heard. Result: 1, Chaplin; 2, Whitehead; 3, Oldroyd; 4, Andrews; 5, Nicholls; 6, Whitehead. Mr. J. W. Paver judged. Mr. James Limbert, sen., was timekeeper.—W. EMPSON.

LEIGH.

Linnet singing contest held at the Woolpack Hotel on January 30th, when Mr. Shovelton gave six good prizes for time singing only. Twenty-seven birds competed, and the singing was of the best for the time of year. 1, J. Hatham; 2, J. W. Jones; 3, P. Green; 4, R. Fairhurst; 5, J. Sefton; and 6, J. Seddon. Judges, Messrs. J. Poole and J. Fearnley; timekeeper, Mr. H. O'Neil. After the contest we enjoyed ourselves very much. There will be an open contest on February 13th at the Mill Stone, Wigan Lane, Wigan, where we hope to have a record entry from all parts.—JOHN W. JONES, 41, Cotton-st., Leigh.

SHEFFIELD.

Contest, held at the Newmarket Hotel, Sheaf Street, as usual. The result: 1st Palfreyman, 82 secs.; 2nd Palfreyman, 61 secs.; 3, Fenn, 57 secs.—Nineteen birds sang.—H. FENN, Secretary.

BLACKBURN.

The Quality Singing Association held their week-end rehearsal at the Old Red Lion, Snig Brook, and there was plenty of good singing before a good audience. Result: 1, Harrison; 2, Monk; 3, Smith and Hayhurst equal. Judge, Mr. Topping; timekeeper, Mr. Smith.—G. ROSTRON, hon. sec.

Rehearsal held on Jan. 30 before a good number of members and friends. Result: 1, Harrison; 2, Monk; 3, Smith. Judge, Mr. Wm. Totting. Also on Feb. 6. Result: 1, Rostron; 2, Hayhurst; 3, Harrison. Judges, Messrs. Christopherson and Topping. A discussion on quality singing will take place on Feb. 20 and will commence at 8 p.m.—G. ROSTRON, Hon. Sec.

THE CINNAMON CANARY CLUB ANNUAL MEETING.

Annual meeting held on Saturday evening, at the Crystal Palace. Mr. J. Wones presided in the absence of Mr. Bladon (president), and there were also present Messrs. O. Handt, J. Birtwistle, W. E. Seed, W. Dormer, H. Riding, J. H. Hargreaves, R. J. Pretty (hon. sec.). The balance sheet for the year was submitted and passed. It showed an income of £22 5s. 5d., and an expenditure of £19 16s. 2d., leaving a balance in hand of £2 9s. 3d.

The chief business on the agenda was the question of the type of the Cinnamon, and a long and animated discussion took place. Mr. E. Godley (Rishton) wrote suggesting that the bird should be of Norwich type, without restriction as to size. He would allot 25 points for colour; 20 each for type and size; 15 for quality; and 10 each for head and neck and condition—total, 100. Mr. A. Bentley (Great Harwood) wrote suggesting 40 points for colour; 10 each for quality, and wing carriage and compactness of tail; 15 for type, with good round head; 15 for size; and 10 for condition—total, 100. Mr. Dobson said this subject of type was brought up six years ago, and Mr. Bladon and Mr. Norman were deputed to get out a model. They did so; but since then opinions had altered, and the coloured plate as published in CAGE BIRDS was prepared.

Mr. DORMER: That was only to show the difference in the colours.—The CHAIRMAN: I thought that was pronounced to be the finest model ever seen. Mr. Norman simply got that out to show the colour.—Mr. SEED: The buff in the coloured plate is not Norwich type. If Mr. Dormer has plenty like it in his room, he had better get shut of them.—Mr. DORMER (taking the club's ordinary black and white sketch): You can't breed a bird with a body like this one, carrying short wings like this does. The wings do not come to the butt of the tail. What should we hear if we showed a bird like that?—Mr. SEED: You mean to say the tail is too long?—Mr. DOBSON: You are all finding fault. You try to breed one like the model and can't, and you can't show him, consequently the judges can't judge him.—Mr. HARGREAVES: The judges can't judge what is here.—The CHAIRMAN: The question before the meeting is the type of Cinnamon. The black and white sketch shows the bird too much across. It is too big for its wings.—Mr. HARGREAVES: One of the finest birds for type is your 3rd prize yellow.—Mr. DORMER: I move that we stick to the model we have, viz., Mr. Norman's coloured plate.—Mr. DOBSON: You will never breed a bird up to the ideal. It is only an ideal to work up to, that is all. Can we improve upon it?—Mr. DORMER: No; only in the standard of points.—Mr. SEED: I think the bird in the coloured model is too big.—Mr. HARGREAVES: That is what we have to work to.—Mr. DOBSON: Yes; the ideal.—Mr. SEED: If you go into the matter of type, I know of nothing better than to take the Norwich Plainhead Club's standard.—Mr. RIDING: It is better to have as an ideal a bird beyond our reach—a dream—a bird if you like. I second Mr. Dormer's proposal.—After further discussion it was agreed to adopt the coloured model of 1903 as published in CAGE BIRDS.

The following standard of points was drawn up, after much discussion, and adopted:—Depth of colour, 35 points; quality of feather, 15; wing carriage and compactness of tail, 10; shape and type and good round head, 20; size, 10; condition, health and cleanliness, 10—100. The standard as above is to be printed in the rules, and all judges to be notified to judge to the standard.

A discussion ensued regarding the advisability of having show cage perches uniform, and it was agreed that all perches should be of white pine, and all of one thickness.

Mr. Wilson wrote proposing that no judge should judge more than one club show, or where the club's patronage was given; and that a fresh judge be chosen to judge the next club show. Mr. Dormer seconded the proposition, and it was carried. Mr. Hargreaves moved that not more than four birds be nominated by one member to compete for points for specials where the club's patronage is given.—Mr. Riding seconded, and it was agreed to.—Two new members were nominated—Messrs. Seeley Bros. and W. Wortley.—A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the proceedings, which lasted close upon two hours.

HEYWOOD AND DISTRICT C.S.

Annual meeting held January 26th in the Rechabite Hall, the president (Mr. J. Perry) in the chair. The financial statement for the year was read, showing a gain on the working, which proved very satisfactory. The following were elected to hold office for the coming year:—President, Mr. J. Perry; vice-presidents, Councillor Barrett, Messrs. H. Turner and J. W. Howarth; treasurer, Mr. R. Schofield; secretary, Mr. A. H. Meadowcroft; assistant-secretary, Mr. J. Ridings; committee, Messrs. R. D. McMurdo, W. Marsden, J. Mooney, W. Ridings, J. Booth, C. Pregnall, and J. Waddington; auditors, Messrs. L. Mayes and H. J. McNab.—A. H. MEADOWCROFT, Hon. Sec.

HASTINGS UNITED C.B.S.

Annual meeting, held at headquarters, January 21st. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:—President, Mr. E. E. Clarke; vice-presidents, Messrs. T. Parkin, M.A., J.P., F.R.G.S., F. Z. S., Harvey du Cros, J. Booty, A. Cleaver, J. H. Bellamy, P. G. Coombs, B. Jarrett; hon. treasurer, Mr. H. Godden; hon. auditors, Messrs. J. Ashby and W. Ellis; hon. secretaries, Messrs. A. Godden and H. L. Harris; managing committee, Messrs. Barham, Button, Cragg, Stevens, Dawson, Mays, Pennells, Randall, Wilson George, Brooks, Cave, Upton. Holy Trinity Parish Hall was again selected for the annual show, on November 9th and 10th. Mr. J. Rohson was elected to judge.—A. E. GODDEN, Hon. Secretary.

ECCLESHILL C.B.A.

Annual supper and social in connection with the distribution of prizes won by the members at monthly shows was held Jan. 29th. The large dining room at the Fountain Inn was taxed to its utmost. After doing justice to the good things provided we adjourned to the large concert room, where the silver cup and tea urns, etc., were presented to the winners in a few well-chosen words by our late president, Mr. C. Stebbings. During the evening songs were sung by Messrs. S. Wilcock, J. Oddy, S. Webster, and T. Elsegood. Selections on the gramophone were given by Mr. C. Mortimer. A vote of thanks to the host and hostess brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.—TOM ELSEGOOD, Secretary.

Fancy, taken as a whole, are conservative in regard to the foods they use, and especially so with the egg diet. They rigorously adhere to an antiquated method, because, even in these enlightened days, the right thing in a prepared egg food has not been placed before them until now. The drawback to the method of feeding with the hard boiled egg is the time it takes to prepare, and the fact that it will not keep fresh and sweet for any length of time. Furthermore, it is perfectly insoluble and indigestible, giving rise to many evils, the most troublesome being egg-binding. The great of FOX'S EGG & BISCUIT is that the 50% of Egg used shows the same analysis as the raw egg, with the exception of moisture; nothing whatever is taken from it, and the addition of a very little water brings the egg back to its natural state. The fact of the solubility we need not dwell upon, as practical Fanciers know only too well what an advantage this is. We are gradually breaking down the conservatism

IN THE COURTS.

A DEAL IN GOLDFINCHES.

An impudent case of fraud was investigated by the Chesterfield County Magistrates on February 6th, when a Bedford man named Harry Humphries, better known as Thompson, was charged with obtaining under the name of "R. North" the sum of 21s. by false pretences. On the 7th of November last a Bolsover (near Chesterfield) shopkeeper named John William Ward inserted an advertisement in the columns of CAGE BIRDS for some Goldfinches. Some time later he received a communication from Bedford, signed "R. North," which offered some Goldfinches for sale. A telegram was received the following day asking for 21s. to be sent on account, and Ward did this. After receiving an acknowledgment of the money, he had another letter, in which it was explained that the birds had been sold. On two occasions he wrote for the money to be returned, but his requests were not complied with. Enquiries showed that the prisoner had written the letters, and on 25th of January he was arrested at 16, Dane Street, Bedford, by Detective-Sergt. Tingay.

Prisoner's defence was that North told him on a certain date that he had had no response to his telegram asking for a deposit of 21s. to be sent, and so he had sold the birds to a man in London. The following day, however, the money arrived, and so prisoner wrote a letter to the effect that the birds would be sent the following week.—Detectivet Tingay gave prisoner a bad character, and the Bench passed sentence of three months' imprisonment with hard labour.

THE JUDGES' LUNCH AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW.

The judges' lunch, held in the commodious and pretty grill room attached to the Crystal Palace restaurant, was a brilliant success. There was a splendid gathering of ladies and gentlemen interested in our hobby, complimentary alike to the L. and P.O.S. and the great show engineered by the society. Additional interest attached to the proceedings to-day, apart from that arising out of the fact that this was the "Jubilee" gathering, by reason of the presentations which were to be made to Messrs. J. F. Hills and S. Cook, on their retirement from active participation in the shows in an official capacity, after many years of honourable service as judges, and many long years of success as exhibitors. Messrs. Hills and Cook each received the gold medal of the L. and P.O.S., suitably inscribed, and ensconsed in a neat case. Mr. G. Crabb once again very ably fulfilled the duties of chairman. Amongst those gathered round the festivo board we noticed Mrs. Ramsden, Mrs. Matthes, Mrs. Rennie, Mrs. Mortlock, Mrs. Hodder, and Mrs. Anningson, with Messrs. J. W. Ramsden, Ramsden, junr., T. Heath, Russell Humphreys, J. S. Clarke, J. Hodder, W. B. Cobb, F. S. Matthes, J. H. Payne, G. Mortlock, H. Broadley, H. W. Battye, W. Mundell, T. R. Trower, C. Roehl, H. T. Camps, W. Vardy, J. Robson, A. N. Innes, Mooney, Contanche, Brooks,, Wright, E. W. Harper, H. Prentice, W. Read, E. Fox, Colton, Dawn, Lugg, Pearce, Adamthwaite, R. J. Pretty, Ruhl, Duesberg (Belgium), T. Gilbert, J. H. Roe, G. Peters, Morton, G. H. Couzens, Day, R. J. Pretty, W. Swaysland, A. Silver, J. F. Hills, Hills, junr., S. Cook, G. E. Weston, S. R. Compston, W. Hodson, J. Dobson, F. J. Green, J. F. Dewar, W. A. Lott, C. A. House, Fulljames, Inch, H. E. Tringham, H. Norman, J. E. Graves, G. H. Dring, J. Hazell, and F. W. Lester. The Rev. G. H. Raynor and Dr. Anningson were also present, and several with whose names we were unacquainted.

After the luncheon was over, the CHAIRMAN, on rising to make the presentations to Messrs. Hills and Cook, said both were old friends, and it gave him great pleasure to officiate, yet he was sorry that they should not be able to have them again as judges. Still, they had both had a fair innings, Mr. Hills having judged fer thirty years and Mr. Cook for ten. They hoped to see them often and often, although no longer judges. He would like some exhibitor to give his testimony, and tell them if there is any change in the birds nowadays compared with the time when Mr. Hills first began to judge. It's certain there was no Ramsden Colour Feed then. They had with them that day two fanciers from Belgium, one of whom, Mr. Ruhl, has not missed a Palace Show since 1862.

Mr. HILLS, in reply, said: I hope you will all bear with me. It is not a moment for a long speech. My heart is too full to speak. I thank you for this unique presentation—one that is without precedent. It is thirty-one years since I first judged, and there is very little difference in the birds. We used to have as good Goldies then as now. Mr. Jimmy Doel was our great exhibitor, and he used to stage birds quite as good as any staged since. There is no difference in the Linnets, but in Yellowhammers and other birds which are colour-fed there is naturally a difference. Speaking for my old friend, Sam Cook, as well as myself, I say we have done nothing to deserve a presentation. I have fifteen Masonic jewels, all of which are valued, but not one of them do I value as I value this. When I am gone there will be no value beyond their intrinsic worth attached to them, but this medal will be valued greatly, and will be handed down in my family as a most precious heirloom. My son, who is here with me, will think as much of it, and be as proud of it as I am. I thank you all most heartily. I wish you all great happiness, and the society much prosperity. Let me say that I want the likeness of everyone sitting round this table. (Mr. Ramsden caused laughter by handing up a proof of the photograph which had been taken at the commencement of the luncheon, and saying, "Here it is.") I have had an album prepared, and when I am too old to come to the Palace I shall derive much pleasure in looking at your faces, and though no longer able to be with you in the flesh, shall be with you in spirit. I have enough of my own photographs with me to give to all here, but I expect all who take mine to give me theirs in return.

Mr. COOK briefly expressed his thanks. He said he was proud to think they considered him worthy of being honoured in company with his old friend, Mr. Hills, and he, too, could assure them that the medal they had given him would be a treasured possession.

The CHAIRMAN: As this is our "Jubilee" show and our biggest show, and the show which "licks creation," it may not be out of place in proposing the health of the judges if I contrast the first one of all with the "Jubilee" show. To-day we have eighteen judges and nearly 3,000 entries; the first show had three judges and 411 entries. I couple with the toast the names of Messrs. Mundell and Russell Humphrys.

Messrs. Mundell and Russell Humphrys briefly replied, the former saying that it was the proudest moment of his life to be able to say he had judged the "Jubilee" show at the Crystal Palace.

Mr. Heath proposed, "The Chairman," and Mr. Crabb having responded, an enjoyable function came to a close.

The Great Jubilee Event.

THE FIFTIETH CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW SMASHES ALL RECORDS.

Favoured by a Magnificent Entry, Fine Weather, and a Remarkable Attendance of Bird-lovers.

The fiftieth—the "Jubilee"—exhibition of cage birds at the Crystal Palace, held on Friday to Tuesday last, February 5th to 9th inclusive, will go down in history as the breaker of all records. In practically every possible department this notable event put up a new record. The entry of birds, the attendance of the public, the sales of every kind—birds, appliances, catalogues, the business of stall-holders, etc.—all went easily one better than they had ever done before. In the matter of the weather, too, the fates were kind, for though a little on the cold side during the concluding day or so, right through bright skies and sunshine reigned supreme, adding immensely to the comfort of both the birds and the visitors.

The Guiding Spirit.

And what a magnificent display of birds we had. What splendid support the fraternity of bird-keepers accorded the management. It is sufficient to show that the glamour of the Crystal Palace has by no means departed, and that the Faucy places the greatest possible confidence in the officials responsible for the running of its annual exhibition. The "Jubilee" event saw that "tried and trusty" gentleman, Mr. J. W. Ramsden, solely responsible for the conduct of the show, a task that sat lightly on his shoulders, ouerous though the duties and responsibilities attaching to it were in this year of records. Of a truth it may be said that Mr. Ramsden has redneed management to a fine art during the fifteen years or so that he has been identified with the managerial role. Every little detail receives its due share of attention, and every possible contingency is foreseen and provided for with a completeness that puts the possibility of failure right out of court. And Mr. Ramsden is not content to "mark time"; every season he goes one better than his previous attempts,, and never bave we seen the arrangements more astonishingly complete, or more completely effective than on this occasion. Mr. Ramsden's thoughtfulness, his tact and courtesy, and his great organising ability, earn him the thauks and the respect of all bird-keepers. Last year a huge special steam-pipe was erected right down the centre of the show, and dispensed a grateful warmth to the surrouuding atmosphere, but this year Mr. R. had a second pipe specially erected (and the cost of doing so is nos small), and the provision of these added most materially to the comfort of the birds on the benebes, and to the visitors who came to look at them.

A buge paid staff of helpers worked hard and well under Mr. Ramsden's guidance, and not a single hitch occurred in any direction, notwithstanding the tremendous entry and the tremendous crowds which invaded the show enclosure on the Saturday. Those "faithful feeders," Messrs. Small and Grutchfield, were once again at their posts, and we were pleased to see that the services of these veterans—this is Mr. Small's 38th Palace show, and Mr. Grutchfield's 43rd—were being recognised by a subscription list, which we hope may realise a goodly sum for their benefit.

Workers All.

In addition to the paid staff, a tremendous amount of work was got through by Mr. Ramsden's fellow-members of the Londou and Provincial O.S., under whose auspices, as will be well-known to readers, the exhibition is held. Much self-sacrifice is demanded of the committee, and a more willing and cheerful band of enthusiasts it would not be easy to discover. The popular and kindly Mr. George Crabb once again lent valuable help, and his services on behalf of the Press were much appreciated. The hon. assistant secretary of the society, Mr. W. Hodson, a worker of real ability, also did everything that lay in his power to heln matters along. Mrs. Ramsden and Mr. Ramsden, jun., must not be overlooked. It is not easy to estimate the exact amount of assistance they rendered the show manager, but we have the best of reasons for knowing that it was very considerable, and very much appreciated. Others who put in long hours and did great deeds among the "strife and turmoil" incidental to both the unpacking and the despatching of the vast army of exhibits were Messrs. G. H. Couzens, F. J. Day, G. H. Dring, J. E. Graves, J. Hodder, J. Hazell, F. Lathkeiff, F. S. Matthes, G. Mortlock, G. Morton, J. Oldaker, and R. J. Pretty, while Messrs. H. C. Brooks, W. B. Cobb, and F. J. Green were also at one time or another to be found in the thick of the fray. Praise is the legitimate due of one and all, for the greatest possible pains were taken in every direction to ensure the comfort and well-being of the birds under their care, and we did not hear a single grumble or fault found on this score, which in itself is high commendation.

During the show, we may say, the seed-eating birds were fed upon seeds supplied by that well-known firm, the "King's seedsmen," Messrs. James Carter and Company, of High Holborn. and the insectivorous birds upon foods and yolk of egg supplied by Messrs. Trower and Company, of Caledonian-road, N.

The Lookers-on.

The attendance was, as has already been indicated, simply remarkable, astonishing even the optimistic Mr. Ramsden, and entirely upsetting his calculations with regard to the catalogues, for, although he ordered a record number, they were right out of print early on the Monday evening, and he was reduced to various shifts and devices to get a few more to go along with. Bird-lovers came from far and near, and in numbers never before approached—even in the huge crowds which filled the show-room on the Saturday the fancier element was always predominant. The football tie being played at the Palace in the English Cup competition accounted for another record happening. For the first time in the history of the show the doors had to be closed, and the waiting crowds regulated by gentlemen in blue coats. But they were very orderly crowds, so far as the bird show was concerned, and seemed genuinely interested in the many—and no doubt novel—birds they saw. We heard of no untoward incidents, though before the press of visitors came under control, the barriers at one end of the enclosure were removed, the curtains torn down, and people commenced to pour through this improvised opening in, so to speak, the wall. The long distances travelled by some of those present will be realised by reference to the extract we shall give next week from the Visitors' Book which lay upon our stall. With the huge attendance, naturally business was brisk, and the stall-holders had a very busy and profitable time.

At the Sales Office.

Not the least important among the records established at the show was that put up hy the Sales Office. Open from 3 o'clock to 10 o'clock on Friday, from 10 o'clock to 10 o'clock on Saturday, from 3 o'clock to 10 o'clock on Monday, and from 3 o'clock to closing time on Tuesday, the stewards in charge of the sales were kept as busy as they cared to be. At times there were literally scores of people waiting to be made the happy possessors of some bird or birds that had taken their fancy, and among the purchasers were several titled ladies and gentlemen. Close upon 400 sales were effected in all, the Extra Stock class accounting for barely a quarter of this number. The amount realised on the sales was nearly £330—£328 to be precise—which compares with about £260 last year.

The most sensational sale was Mr. Wallace's Crested hen, which was claimed at catalogue price, viz., £15 15s. This bird won 5th prize in a class of only eight exhibits. Mr. T. Irons' Norwich cock, 4th in its class, was claimed at £5 10s., which was the price paid for Mr. Wilcock's highly commended bird in the same class. The first prize bird in the Roller Canary open class, belonging to Mr. C. Roehl, was claimed at £5, and Mr. J. W. Rennie's clear yellow Yorkshire at £3 10s. The second prize bird in the Novice Norwich ticked or unevenly-marked buff class, belonging to Mr. W. T. Hill, was claimed at £3 3s., and Mr. H. Young's Crest-bred hen at £3. Fifty shillings each were paid for Mr. D. H. Tedstone's buff Norwich hen, vhc in its class, and Mr. Burton's yellow Yorkshire hen, 4th in its class. In the British bird classes the highest figure was £5 10s., which was the price at which Mr. R. D. Parlett's Linnet "The Unbeaten," 1st in a class of 40, was catalogued. This bird has won nine 1sts, including that at the recent Scottish National Show. The 2nd prize bird in this same class, belonging to Mr. McLeod, was also claimed, the catalogue price being £3 10s. The winning Bullfinch, belonging to Mr. S. H. Mays, changed hands at £2 10s. The 2nd prize Lesser Redpoll, belonging to Mrs. F. Clark, was claimed at £5 5s. Mr. S. Hakes' 4th prize Hawfinch was claimed at £3 10s., and Mr. W. Bishop's 3rd prize Siskin at £3 3s. Three pounds was the figure at which Mr. W. Francis's Goldfinch, highly commended in its class, changed hands, and the same sum was paid for Mr. C. Botting's Corn Bunting, 1st in its class. We heard, too, that Mr. Maxwell's winning Black Redstart found a new owner at £5. In the foreign bird classes several good sales were effected, the most important being Mr. C. H. Row's pair of Gouldian Finches at £5, and a Superb Tanager, belonging to Mr. J. W. Rose, at £3 3s. The 1st prize in the A.O.V. cage class, a brass Parrot cage, was claimed at £2 5s.

The Chubby Ones.

There was a drop in the entry in the Norwich Plainhead section as compared with that of last year of over fifty, but, taken on the whole, we think the quality was in advance, and must have given those writers who have been exploiting the idea that in the present day there were no good Norwich a severe but, we trust, a pleasant shock. We think the most pessimistic cannot but admit that the past season has seen a great advance in both type and quality, and the size has been well maiutained. We must say we have looked in vain for those said-to-be whole classes containing nothing but birds with big long barrels, long wings, and tails and heads that would do credit to Crested-breds, and feel sure they exist only in the fertile imagination of the writers. We have wondered who would be bold enough to apply these terms to the winners in the unflighted classes, or in fact any of the classes. In the unflighted buff winner we have a fine example of a good big one, a veritable tip-topper—evidence of the breeder's triumph. The breeder of this bird should certainly feel proud of his achievement, and to him we raise our hat. We were struck with the splendid condition of nearly the whole of the exhibits, and the clean and smart style in which they were staged. But very few were showing the effects of the wear and tear of the show season. The special for best bird went to the winning clear yellow, and that for second best to the winning unflighted yellow. Mr. W. Vardy made his debut as a judge at the Crystal Palace, and we think he did his work well, and gave general satisfaction.

The Yorkshire Greens.

There was a good display of Greens, most of the "cream" being on view. Without doubt the symmetry and depth of colour in this variety is progressing. Far better also in quality of feather are these noted dark-hued specimens than what was in evidence some few years back. An item of this kind always gives one pleasure to record. In the Yellow selfs, Mr. T. Wardale stood first with a richly-coloured and grandly-feathered bird, closely followed by a beauty benched by Mr. P. Clayton. Two stylish Buffs were those standing 1st and 2nd, owned respectively by Messrs. T. Rowlands and H. Hughes. Both these were greatly admired by those who swear by the sombre coloured variety, and were admitted to be specimens far above the ordinary—an opinion we feel justified in endorsing. In the fouls, both Yellows and Buffs, Mr. P. Clayton scored both firsts, his representatives being gems of the first water. Of the two birds, pride of honour, we thought, rested with the Yellow, he being a regular stormer, and a pleasure to observe. Mr. T. Rowlands and Mr. N. B. Fielden were in close attendance with a brace of a most pleasing description.

The Norwich Greens.

Norwich Greens made up a nice collection, and as in the Yorksbire section the best birds of the country were on view. This variety is greatly on the improvement, both in type and quality. Rapid strides have been made this last few years, and the improvements that strike one most forcibly are tone of colour, and bead properties. Smoky texture of feather is dimlnishing, and the character of the head is of a far better shape, not so many flat skulls and brows about. What a field day Mr. V. H. Deacon had, claiming all the four first prizes, besides many other mentions of a minor description. His representatives were really magnificent, and we should say just about the best team ever put down by one fancier. The self buff and foul buff were a treat to observe, both real eye-openers, and shown in absolutely the best possible condition. Other very attractive exhibits were those the property of Messrs. J. H. Isaac, Lawson, Jenkins, and Harrison.

The Wee Gems.

With an average of just under a score per class there can be no denying the fact that the Borders have firmly established themselves in the affections of Southern fanciers, who contributed a goodly number of entries and also secured a fair share of the prizes. The entry was about half-a-score below that of last year, but it should be remembered that upon that occasion the Border Club gave its patronage, which it did not to the fixture under notice. Taking the section through, two things struck us particularly, viz., the number of chubby shaped ones in the cards, and the fact that some remarkably good examples of the breed had evidently not received that careful toileting which is so essential to the staging of a high-class Border if all its properties are to be correctly approximated and valued by the judge. It is not right to show birds of the highest quality in anything less than the highest form. Type, carriage, and quality are the great essentials of the breed, but how can a judge weigh up the merits of a bird if the quality of feather is covered with dirt? Those who erred in this respect should take the hint. Those old breeders, Messrs. Duncan and Logan, of historical Coldstream, secured the special for best bird in the section, with a lovely unevenly marked bird, a really grand representative of the breed, but it must have been run very hard by Mr. Patterson's evenly-marked buff, one of the finest birds ever staged, we should say, and is well named "Perfection." Had the special gone to this bird the breeder would have been rewarded for producing such a living picture. In each of the classes the quality was splendid, and there was very little separating a lot of the birds which caught the judge's eye.

With just one under an average of ten per class the Lancashires provided a really special display, and some most excellent representatives of the breed were staged. The general average of merit was higher than has been associated with the Sydenham event in recent years. Birds of great length, with proportionate stoutness, plenty of feather and nice style, were prominent, and as showing how smart a lot they were, it may be said that there was not one cripple amongst them, and all were of nice carriage. One failing we noticed, but it was not general, and that was that some of the birds were not put down in the condition they should have been; certain exhibits looked as though they suffered from lack of soap and water, whilst others bore evidence of the tubbing having been badly done. The section was an interesting one, and those who like to see the old breeds well represented were pleased with the quality staged. The special for the best bird in the section was captured by a fine bulky yellow Plainhead, a strapping bird, full of good Lancashire characteristics and a credit to his owner, the veteran "Teddy" Lowe. Taking the section through, very little fault could be found with Mr. Compston's awards.

A better lot of Lizards have never graced the Palace boards than those which were to be seen there last week-end. Colour, shape, size, spangling, and cap properties were to be seen in great profusion and most beautifully blended. Mr. Dewsnap's Broken Gold is another wonderful bird, but there was no denying the right of his Broken Silver to the special for best in the section, for boldness and distinctness of spangling, regularity of rowing, combined with colour, shape, and size it is one of the best ever bred. In this class Mr. Dewsnap repeated his Rochdale performance by scoring 1, 2, 3, whilst Mr. Rukin owned the next pair as he did at the town on the Roch. This is a coincidence not often recorded, in fact it might be styled unique for the first five birds from two different studs to hold the same positions under two different judges at the first and last shows of the season.

The Choristers.

The great interest which has been taken of late in the Roller Canary fancy was this year clearly proved at the Palace, not only by the members of the British Roller Canary Club, who came from near and far, but notably by the general public coming to listen to the strains of the different birds with a view to obtaining a better idea of the value and richness of the Rollers' song. Strangers and visitors listened with rapt attention to the beautiful tours and rolls of these charming little songsters. One cannot really understand how such sweetness and euphony can be obtained from such slender and delicate throats. The trouhle and care necessary to produce such little musical boxes are almost beyond human conception. The most notable birds of the strain in question have of late years been bred from imported birds by different gentlemen in this country, and with the greatest success, as is shown by the distinction and prizes they have secured for their stock, demonstrating at once that birds bred in this country from good stock can hold their own in any competition. The judging of the Rollers was left in the hands of that able judge, Mr. F. A. Lester, and his awards met with the entire satisfaction of all concerned. He was ably assisted by Mr. C. Mooney as steward.

The Novice Section contained some enormous classes. For instance, there were 42 unflighted Yorkshires in one class; 37 unflighted Norwich Plainheads, 29 Norwich hens, and so on. The quality in the Norwich classes was excellent, and more than once the remark was heard: "Oh! those Novices! They know as much as the Champions." One gratifying feature in these classes, from a breeder's point of view was that the variegated birds got a due share of recognition in competition with the clears and ticks. There was a decided improvement in the matter of quality in the yellows, and this without any sacrifice, but rather with an improvement in shape. The hens made a grand show, type, clean cutting, and richness of colour being well in evidence. In Yorkshires, some truly representative birds were staged, both yellows and buffs being strong classes. It is more than ever evident that the graceful bird of the county of broad-acres is advancing still in popular favour, and the competition in these Novice classes proved that it is as difficult to score therein as in the Champion section, if not more so. Crests and crest-breds were numerous, and very level in point of merit. There were some smart Lancashires, and some really rich and pure coloured cinnamons. These, however, were not numerous. The Limit classes were huge collections, and contained some bargains, which were quickly snapped up. As an illustration of their numerical strength, it may be mentioned that there were 326 specimens in 7 classes, an average of 46 per class!

What a wonderful collection were the Yorkshires! It is many a long day since such superb quality was in evidence, and specimens of a most marvellous character met one's gaze. This variety claimed the honour of providing the most entries in any one section. These creatures of "grace and beauty" were most captivating. Straight as rushes, delightfully clothed as though chiseled out of polished marble, of wonderful length, nervy and stylish, pert to a degree, were the majority of those on view. The equality of merit was most pronounced, and great must have been the difficulty to decide as to which should take precedence. Many hard battles were fought, and condition more than anything else, in most instances told its tale. Birds that have during the season done well were to be seen fairly low down in the cards, "wear and tear" being responsible. The eight champion classes contained 170 exhibits, giving an average of practically 21 birds per lass. Cinnamon Ticks in the 4 classes provided made a total of 44. The Yorksbire Challenge Cup was responsible for the great excitement that prevailed amongst the fanciers of the "Broad-acred Shire." Messrs. Bailey and Swanger and W. H. Shackleton had ruu neck and neck as regards points right through the season, the former being the fortunate winners of this splendid trophy, which now becomes their own property, the Palace Show deciding the matter. Whose was that ruddy and smiling face, who, instantly after knowing the result of the final "Cup-tie," left our reporter hastily to wire his "better half" the glad tidings.

"The finest lot of Mules ever brought together," was the comment of many a Hybrid enthusiast, and we think it very correctly represents the feeling of all who viewed the grand display made at Sydenham. Not only in the matter of rarity and the magnificent manner in which the majority of the exhibits were staged, but also in the most striking manner in which the evidences of the diverse parentage could he seen in the choice and handsome specimens which graced the benches. It was not in one or two classes only that birds of the highest quality were to be seen, but right through the section class after class, and in not one single instance could one say there was a class of mediocrities. Looking at this collection and then casting one's thoughts back to the days when light Goldfinch and Goldfinch-Bullfinch Mules represented the high water mark of the section, one could not but admit that enormous have been the strides made by the followers of the fascinating pursuit of hybridisation. Mr. Dewar judged with marked ability, and the most censorious could find little fault with bis awards.

The British and Foreign Birds.

The classes allotted to British birds were a splendid success, a very fine entry being obtained rigbt through, and the quality, as the judges bore witness, was wonderfully high. The popular seed-eaters mustered very strongly. The Goldfinches were a most level lot, with no really outstanding bird amongst them, and we have no hesitation in saying that the Bullfinches and the Linnets (especially the latter) were the finest classes for numbers and quality seen at the Palace for many years. All in the cards were birds of the highest order of merit. The classes for Redpoll or Twite, and Bramblefinch, and Greenfinch were stingers, and the task of "spotting" the winners one of no small difficulty; we thougbt the judge, Mr. Silver, was very happy in bis selections. The veteran Mr. Hills also had some grand classes put in front of bim, and be, too, got through his task—the last of a long series—in a manner that left very little room for adverse criticism. That he found the best birds in every class could not be questioned. The genial Walter Swaysland found the insectivorous section a particularly fine one, many very beautiful exhibits being entered therein, and the condition in which the birds appeared, and the manner in which they were staged, we have never seen excelled. Truly, exhibitors as a body are making wonderful improvement in their knowledge of Softhills and artistic ways of showing them. The special for the best British bird fell to a perfect Tree Creeper staged by that old fancier, Mr. S. H. Mays. But his bird was severely pressed by the Black Redstart and Chough belonging to Mr. Maxwell, and the Linnet of Mr. Parlett's. A surprising number of the winners found purchasers at high prices, which looks well for the British bird Fancy.

All that good management could do was done both for the comfort of the Foreign Birds and the public, and to ensure a record success. The staging and care of the birds was all that could be desired, and the chief regret is that these efforts were not rewarded with a larger entry, but they were rewarded with a number of rare and uncommon birds among the 116 entries, spread over nine classes, averaging 13 per class. Exigencies of space forbid a description of these, but a bare list of those which are either new to the show bench during the season 1908-9, or have not appeared thereon for some years, will be of much interest. Black-checked Lovebirds (these have become almost common in about a year), Black-throated Lorikeet (see description elsewhere in this issue), Violet-necked Lory, Meyer's Parrot (either a first appearance, or after a long period), Painted Finches, Yellow-browed Buntings (these have possibly appeared previously, though not of late years), Slaty Grey Finch (a first appearance), Black-throated Tanager, Emerald Spotted Tanager, Rufous-throated Blue Tanager, Black-cheeked Tanager (a first appearance), Mexican Green Jays, Rusty-cheeked Scimitar Babbler (probable first appearance), Slaty-headed Scimitar Babbler, White-spotted Laughing Thrushes, Rufous-chinned Laughing Thrush, Yellow-eyed Babbler. Truly a goodly list, of which any management may well be proud; time has not permitted any searching of records or more definite details might have been given, and the list probably increased. Among those not enumerated above were many beautiful and uncommon species, among which we may mention Mr. S. M. Townsend's Black-headed Sugar Birds as being specially noteworthy from the fact that this pair of birds have nested and laid eggs during 1908, showing that this species may yet be bred in captivity

The Judges

The judges were Messrs. H. W. Battye (Novice Yorks), T. Brown (Scots and Belgians), H. T. Camps (Parrots, etc), S. R Compston (Lancs. and Lizards), S. Cook (Cages and Brit.), J. Dewar (Hybrids), J. Dobson (Clnns., etc.), T. Heath (Yorks. and Crests), J. F. Hills (British), Russell Humphrys (Foreign), F. A. Lester (Rollers), W. Mundell (Yorks.), J. Robson (Borders, etc.), J. H. Roe (Novice Nor., etc.), A. Silver (Brit.), W. Swaysland (Brit.), W. Vardy (Norwich), and G. E. Weston (Brit.). Although raining hard first thing on the Friday, during the morning the weather cleared, and except for occasional dark, cloudy intervals, the light during the judging was good. The hard task was completed in every case in excellent time, and the prize-cards—a tremendous job in itself—were affixed to the cages with promptitude by the stewards. We did not hear serious grumbling at the awards in any section, though we met several individuals with "grievances," as is generally the case at a show of any size. It is remarkable how much room for difference of opinion there is to be found about practically every bird, and we overheard many highly animated discussions going on concerning the merits of different specimens. On the whole we think the judges are certainly to be congratulated on emerging from so light ordeal with such conspicuous success.

TWITTERINGS.

We have extended our radius, writes Mr. G. Smith, secretary of the Grangemouth and Dis. O.S., to six miles.

Kindly note my change of address, writes Mr. Jas. Irlam, secretary of the Sale Open O.S., to 86, Harley Road, Sale.

The show of the Cambridge O.S. will be held on December 8th and 9th. The cage birds will be judged by Mr. C. A. House.

Banbury Show report should read, in the Norwich class: 1, spl, Lewin; 2, Hall; 3, Dale, and not Holland.—A. LEWIN (Oxford).

We have decided to hold our annual open show on October 1st and 2nd, writes Mr. W. Clarkson, secretary of the Burnley and District C.B.S.

Hinckley Show will be held on October 22nd and 23rd, writes the secretary, Mr. W. Warner. Will secretaries please note to avoid clashing?

The catalogue of the Crystal Palace Show gives Class 92, No. 1,539, as belonging to Mr. J. H. Williams, whereas it belongs to me.—J. H. WILLOWS.

I had many replies to my last advertisement in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. James Kinsella (Wexford). I could not answer all, only those who enclosed a stamp.

Kindly state that Mr. Cowgill, of Bradford, is the judge elected for the Menai Bridge Cage Bird Show, to be held on February 27th, writes Mr. J. O. Williams (Bangor).

I take the opportunity of congratulating you especially upon the life-like plate of "Foreign Birds" in your birthday number of CAGE BIRDS.—H. B. TIMAEUS (Bedford).

I had so many replies re my Goldfinch advertisement in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. W. F. Monk (Halstead), that I was unable to reply to all. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

All the copies of CAGE BIRDS which were at the show of the Greenock, Port Glasgow, and Gourock O.S., writes Mr. J. Sanderson, the assistant secretary, were eagerly snapped up.

I am pleased to tell you, writes Mr. J. Dobson, London, N., that the engraving (coloured) issued by you November 7th, 1903, has been accepted by the Cinnamon Club as their model.

Kindly announce that I have removed from No. 3 to No. 27, Redland Street, Malpas Road, Newport, Mon., writes Mr. W. H. Barnes, secretary of the Newport and Monmouthshire C.B.S.

Kindly note that I have been appointed secretary to the Pendleton and Salford O.S. in the place of Mr. Jackson, writes Mr. Harry Clayton, 42, Anne Street, Higher Broughton, Manchester.

Mr. Sam Dean will give a lecture before the Morley and District C.B.S., writes Mr. Robt. H. Turner, the hon. secretary, on February 27th, when it is hoped there will be a large attendance.

At the recent Tredegar Show I won extra third in the Scotch Fancy class, writes Mr. C. Farrow (Merthyr Tydvil). I have received prize-money already, which speaks well for the Tredegar Society.

In Messrs. Butler and Waring's, of Coventry, advertisement of Norwich Canaries last week there was a printer's error. The words "Their well-known £22 pair" should have read "Their well-known £2 2s. pair."

I am only a novice, and since taking your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, I have gained a lot of experience, and think it a good penny-worth. It is a paper which no bird-keeper should be without.—JAS. BEATTIE (Liverpool).

We have secured the services of Messrs. W. P. Barnes (Grantham) and A. Brown (Gateshead), writes Mr. E. Cowling, hon. secretary Morpeth and District C.B.S., to judge at our forthcoming show to be held on October 16th next.

You will be interested to know, writes Mr. S. Crook (Scarborough), that the picture of my young Goldcrest, which was reproduced in the Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS, was awarded a bronze plaquette in last month's "Photogram."

Will secretaries please note, writes Mr. T. Duckitt, that I have removed from number 96 to 91, St. Sepulchre Gate, Doncaster. I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS for a good many years, and have always found it valuable and interesting.

Kindly note that I have been appointed secretary of the Bramley and District O.S., writes Mr. Alfred Tate, and that all communications respecting the society should be addressed to me at 5, Prospect Terrace, Bramley, near Leeds.

I was surprised on going to Calow Show, writes a local correspondent, to find it so badly supported, all classes but one (Yorkshires) being cancelled. This was said to be a "boycott" on account of the removal of the snow from Chesterfield to its "native heath," Calow Village.

Owing to the general meeting of the Federation of Cage Bird Societies, taking place on February 11th, writes Mr. J. Dewhurst, hon. secretary of the West London Fanciers' Association, our pair show will be postponed until February 18th. All other details are as per schedule.

Kindly thank all who replied to my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS the week before last, writes Mr. Jas. Pollock (Larkhall). I had 46 replies to same, and am unable to thank all individually. I may say I had replies from all over England, Wales, and Scotland, and got a very satisfactory exchange.

The Eccleshill C.B A., writes Mr. T. Elsegood, the secretary, are to have a paper read to them on the Yorkshire Canary, by Mr. C. Whiting, of Bradford, on February 26th, at the Fountain Inn. Fanciers are invited to hear this experienced breeder give his views. The chair is to be taken at 8 o'clock.

I regret to inform you, writes Mr. A. Tonks (Wednesbury) that I was not able to send my Goldie Greenie to the Crystal Palace Show, as it unfortunately got all its flights knocked out of one wing a few days before. This bird is the one you kindly depicted in your 1908 annual, and has won many prizes.

It may interest readers of CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. G. Rosser (Brixham), to know that we have in our garden a Robin which has built its nest in an old hat, and is sitting on four eggs. It has been sitting since January 24th. Last year a nest was found in a tin can in the same garden, and the young were reared.

Having been asked by many in Leeds and elsewhere if the Hull Linnet Club is still running, writes Mr. Fred Allen (Leeds), allow me, through your valuable paper, to state that it is, and that the great open singing contest will take place, as usual, on Whit Monday. The secretary is Mr. E. Mawes, 47, Spencer Street, Hull.

Mr. JOHN THOMSON (Bankhead-by-Aberdeen).

I am sorry to have to announce the death of Mr. John Thomson, Waterford, Bankhead by Aberdeen, the esteemed president of the Woodside and Bucksburn O.S., whose illness was referred to in your columns on the day of our show last November, writes Mr. Alex. Thomson, secretary of the society, and son of the deceased. He had suffered much since the operation. He was for 25 years the leading light of the society, sparing no pains to further the success of all its ventures. He was a very popular official, and highly esteemed by all fanciers in Aberdeen and district, who feel his loss very keenly. I am sure all will extend their deepest sympathy to his widow and family. Personally, I will feel his loss greatly in the conduct of our shows, as he always took my place on the show days between times when I had to go to business.

Mr. L. A. Cannon, of Hemel Hempstead, when sending us an advertisement of Norwich Canaries, asks us to explain to those who answered his advertisement of some few weeks ago and got no reply, that this was due to unforeseen circumstances taking him away from home, and on returning he found the letters had got mislaid.

Kindly note, writes Mr. W. Reid, hon. secretary of the Sunderland C.B.A., that I have removed from No. 2 to No. 14, Plantation Road, Pallion, Sunderland, and that all communications for the society show should be sent to the new address. We have engaged Messrs. T. Heath and J. Stanger as judges for our annual show, to be held November 19th and 20th.

Kindly announce that the Wandsworth and District F.A. are holding a concert and distribution of prizes, challenge cups, specials, etc., on February 18th, at the Red Lion Rooms, York Road, writes Mr. W. Summers, the hon. secretary. Ladies are specially invited. Admission is free by ticket, to be obtained of any member. Fanciers will be cordially welcomed.

I must congratulate you upon your excellent paper, CAGE BIRDS, both for its good, sound information and for its advertising advantages, writes Mr. W. Lawton (Glossop). Through my last advertisement in CAGE BIRDS I have sold all my surplus stock of Lizards. I have sent birds to all parts of England, Scotland, and Wales, which, I am sure, speaks well for the journal.

The following gentlemen have been elected to judge the forthcoming shows of the Highgate, Hampstead, and Dis. C.B.S., writes Mr. Geo. H. Neal, the hon. secretary:—Pair Show, February 27th, Mr. W. Shakespeare; Finch Show, April 29th, Mr. Allen Silver; Young Stock Show, July 10th, Mr. J. Robson; and Annual Show, November 12th and 13th, Mr. G. Gardner.

TO READERS.

Despite the provision of extra pages, we have been quite unable to cope this week with all the matter awaiting publication.

We have been compelled to hold over our review of the stalls at the Palace Show, and the list of visitors taken from our Visitor's Book, but we hope to give them next week, together with the members' shows, club reports, etc., also "crowded out."—EDITOR.

The Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS was very "hot" indeed.—ARTHUR T. JUPE (Petersfield).

Many thanks to CAGE BIRDS. The last plates we got were real toppers.—JOHN TUCKER (Aldbourne).

I would advise Manx fanciers to be solely guided by your charming paper, CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. P. McClusky (Douglas, I. of M.), as it is impossible for the novice, with this journal, to err. I wish C.B. every success.

I must thank you for insertions of reports, etc., during the past season, writes Mr. W. Stafford, secretary of the Stockport B.F.A., and trust that CAGE BIRDS and the "Cage Birds Annual" will go on increasing in circulation and exceed your expectations.

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL is to hand this morning. I am very pleased with it, and trust you will have good sales for same. It is a very useful book to all fanciers, and handy reference when anyone is in doubt about anything.—THOS. E. NICHOLSON (Pilmoor).

Mr. J. B. Townend having resigned the secretaryship of the Harpenden A. and F.A., the committee, writes Mr. W. P. Jeffcock, the chairman, have appointed Mr. William Young, P.A.S.I. (St. Albans), and Mr. J. W. Wilkinson (Aldwickbury Farm, Harpenden), as joint hon. secretaries, and all communications connected with the association should be addressed to them at the association offices, Station Road, Harpenden.

Kindly call attention to our change of headquarters, writes Mr. David Kay, secretary Musselburg O.S. Our last meeting was held in the Central Halls, Bridge Street, owing to some misunderstanding which we cannot as yet solve. However, our new place is more commodious, and the larger hall is more suitable for a show. With all the inconvenience, however, we had a large meeting, and eight new members were proposed, which is highly satisfactory. I would impress on intending members to join as soon as possible. It is the intention of the office-bearers to make Musselburgh the largest club in Scotland.

Kindly inform all who have not received an answer to their letters sent to me inquiring about the birds that I advertised in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. John B. Henderson (Gourdon), that I could not supply them. I have answered all who enclosed stamps. The post girl here informed me, jokingly, that if this was to continue I would require a boy with a barrow each mail. The demand for Norwich Plainheads shows that there is no decrease in the love for our charming little favourite, the chief requirements being big yellow cocks and marked buff hens. Any fancier having such for disposal should advertise without delay in CAGE BIRDS. Wishing your valuable paper every success.

Bath and District F.A.

There will be a smoking concert held at West's dining rooms, Boro' Walls, Bath, on February 18th, at 7.45 p.m., writes Mr. H. Turtle, hon. secretary, of the Bath and Dis. F.A., when all members and friends are cordially invited. The programme will be contributed to mostly by the members. This is in place of the monthly general meeting.

A Much-Wanted Rule.

The British Ornithological Union has at last passed a much wanted rule to expel any member guilty of taking or receiving eggs of the rarer species of birds breeding in the United Kingdom. It is a pity the Union's laws cannot be enforced beyond their own membership, for many a supposed naturalist and bird lover is a great offender where rare birds' eggs and skins are concerned.

Echoes from Uddingston Show.

That Uddingston's first effort was a big success, and an item in the history of the village; that the "tonians" took a lively interest in it; that Secretary Campbell was congratulated on his double luck on all hands, home luck and show luck; that Mr. Scott Millar's (Broomhouse) four-horned ram was a great attraction to the visitors; that the association appreciates his kindness for the loan for exhibition purposes; that next year they will require more room; that ladies were much in evidence; that greater efforts will be made next year; that Hon. President Prentice, Esq., is very popular, and so were his wins; that President John Kilpatrick is a hard worker; that A. W. Forrester did good service; that the association is on the right lines; that the management are happy.—SCOTCH FANCY.

The Proof of the Pudding.

It is no small satisfaction to the Editor of CAGE BIRDS to hear that his advertisers are pleasing his readers. Every year that popular and successful bird specialist, Mr. W. Rudd, of Norwich, comes up smiling to us with a splendid batch of up-to-date and origiual testimonials he has received from delighted clients. None of these tributes are included in those printed by him in advertisements, and one and all show most convincingly that the methods upon which Mr. Rudd conducts his business are thoroughly sound and straightforward. It is indeed a pleasure to see a business like that of Mr. Rudd's perennially flourishing, for by such tokens as these just to hand, emanating, as they do, from every district in the United Kingdom, and many of them from the Continent and abroad, it deserves to prosper. All the postmarks are recent, and the handwritings serve to show what a varied clientele Mr. Rudd lays himself out to satisfy. The growth of Mr. Rudd's business has been far more phenomenal than the growth of the industry itself; and, indeed, we shall not be overstepping the mark in saying that it is to such enterprising traders as Mr. Rudd that the Fancy owes its present vitality and dimensions.

Chapter XXVI.—My Yellow Budgerigars.

I like to gather opinions. It is an excellent thing. You need never adopt them, like the good Irish Prelate, who declared with emphasis that he never took an important step without consulting his Canons. "But do you always follow their counsel, my Lord?" asked a friend in amazement. "Never," was the emphatic but rather disconcerting reply. That is much my line of conduct. I ask for advice, but seldom take it; for as most of my readers know by this time, I am as wilful as a stalk of ling.

What led me to take up Budgerigars at all was the financial question. I wanted something to pay the seed bill. Foreign bird keeping is nearly all loss. What with the original cost, and what with untimely deaths, a man who keeps a big aviary wants to be a millionaire, and, as I was not, I looked around for something wherewith to economise. Somebody told me that Budgerigars were just the thing, they would breed like chickens, cost next to nothing, and would give absolutely no anxiety on the score of health. I recognised at once that these were the very birds I had been looking for so long. And I determined to invest at the first opportunity.

I had not long to wait, for on consulting the advertisement columns the next Friday, I saw several pairs of Yellow Budgerigars offered for sale. I at once wrote off to have them sent, and as I was told that Budgerigars always do best in company, I ordered four pairs. They duly arrived, but I was not particularly struck with them, as to me they seemed more green than yellow. Moreover, they were not the giant specimens I had been led to believe; nay, I thought them a bit undersized. However, I determined to give them a trial, and put them into a nice sheltered indoor aviary together.

A morning or two afterwards I thought that one or two of them looked a bit "shivery" but I hoped it was only my fancy. They seemed, too, a little bit drowsy, and sat with their heads under their wings in a decidedly melancholy way. I thought they might only be tired after their long journey, as they had come from Devonshire. But sad to relate, they seemed to grow more and more weary from day to day, until one morning I found that several of them had decided to leave this mortal sphere. I wrote and told the lady of their departure, but of course she could not understand it, as they had always been in an outdoor aviary.

It was no good complaining, as I had to put up with my loss. Three hens at 9s. each did not look to me like paying the seed bill; but I had lost so many valuable birds in the past that I felt rather like a friend of mine, who was once taking a Mission for the Vicar of a parish near Bolton. As he was walking with his friend down a side street, they met an old woman, and the Vicar asked her after her husband, who was very ill, saying, "I am afraid he is very ill." "Yes, sir," she answered, "but I do my best to prepare him for what's yet to come. I read the Burial Service to him every day to get him used to it."

At the time, I knew of a neighbour who had some Yellow Budgerigars, and to him I went in my distress, and he very kindly let me have three hens. The widowers showed such joy on their appearance, that I can only hope for the credit of the gentlemen that they imagined their late parners had returned to life. I may remark here in passing that it is always best to put a lot of Budgerigars together, in equal sexes, as they are naturally gregarious in their native state. Never allow an odd bird in the aviary; as there will be continual battles, and disastrous results as far as breeding is concerned.

Budgerigars do not want a big aviary, one about 8ft. square and say 11ft. high will afford ample accommodation for a dozen pairs, but be sure and remove the youngsters, as they get able to fend for themselves, as they will monopolise their parents' attention to the detriment of their little brothers and sisters, besides making constant and too often successful attempts to get into the nest.

For nests, I find boxes far superior to cocoanut husks; these latter are seldom big enough; especially when the youngsters begin to grow. I always get my boxes made by the village joiner, and they are simply miniature Parrakeet boxes, about 4 inches wide and about 8 inches deep. The hole should be near the top, with a short branch of very hard wood placed immediately under the entrance. I have a hinged lid, so that I can see what is going forward within, and of course I make a nice cup-shaped hollow in the bottom to prevent the eggs from getting rolled about.

Put the boxes as high up in the roof as possible, and fix them by preference to a transverse beam so as to baulk the mice. I always put zinc along the beam, as this affords no foothold for mice. It does not matter how close the boxes are together, as each pair of birds knows its own particular box, and woe betide the stranger that pretends to make a mistake.

In putting down a flock of Budgerigars it is well to mark them in some way, as otherwise when you begin to sell the adult youngsters, it is dreadfully easy to sell an old one by mistake, and then you will lose a nest of promising youngsters. A beginner thinks that nobody could mistake an old Budgerigar for a young one, but I know, by fatal experience, how easy it is. Rings are often advertised for the purpose, but I did not find them much good, as the birds made it a point of honour to unfasten them as promptly as possible after I had put them on, and only those who have watched them would credit how clever they are. I found that a far better and less tiring way for their owner was to mark them on the rump with a drop of Judson's dye; it is very little disfigurement, and it lasts till the breeding time is over.

Nobody who has not tried it can realise how a Budgerigar can bite. They always seem to get hold of a nice soft place, and they will hold on long after you are tired of the game. It requires a certain amount of dexterity to avoid a nip. Get hold of the bird just behind the head, and then he is helpless, but miss that particular part of his anatomy, and you will have cause to regret your clumsiness.

Talking about catching Parrakeets, I shall never forget the language of a friend who once tried to get hold of my friend Solomon—not the King of Israel, but an old Cockatoo. I really had to take him to task quite seriously. I said, "My dear fellow, on the next occasion you want to use words that in a calmer moment you will regret, count twenty." I regret to say that his further remarks were, as they say in the Police Court reports, quite unreportable.

In the way of feeding, Budgerigars give no trouble. Give them a constant supply of good, clean Canary seed, a big bit of cuttle fish bone to nibble, and a regular supply of groundsel, and they will never give you a moment's anxiety. I never by any chance give mine any sop. I don't believe they would eat it in the first place, and if they did, I feel pretty sure it would upset their internal arrangements. Green food, however, they must have; not only for their own good, but to enable them to rear their young successfully. Remember, they are as their name implies, Grass Parakeets, and in their native Australia, they subsist almost entirely on half-ripe grass seeds. I should not call Master Budgerigar much of a musician, although he is known as the Warbling Grass Parrakeet. I call him a bit of a trial; he is rather like a certain District Visitor I once knew, who was always tapping like a Woodpecker at the study door of the Rectory, until the poor Vicar confessed that dear Mary Jane was one of those persons who you could neither do with nor without!

As a rule, Budgerigars are not long about family matters. Within a very few days of being introduced to their new abode, they will begin to examine all possible boxes with a view to future breeding operations. The hen will spend a few days fettling up the inside, and then, after looking a little bit puffy, she will one morning disappear into the box. Then you will not have long to wait for eggs. The number laid is anything from three to six; I think the average is about four. About the fifth day I open the lid and take out the eggs and hold them up to the light. If transparent, I know at once they are unfertile, and then I remove them, and things have to begin de novo.

The eggs are laid every other day, so that the young do not all arrive together, which is perhaps a wise provision of Nature; as imagine the labour of feeding a big party of hungry youngsters all of an age! As it is, it often happen that the eldest born will be fully fledged, when perhaps another in the same nest will be only a few hours old. If supplied with an abundance of food, this does not matter a bit, as they will all be successfully reared.

To see the feeding is most interesting. At first you can see nothing, as the hen does all the feeding, the cock coming to the mouth of the hole to supply her with food, which she passes on to the brood. I have seen him go and peep at the nesting hole, but he got but little comfort.

At about the eighth day the lady emerges from the box, and henceforth takes but little interest in the feeding. All is left to the cock, but should he unfortunately die, as is sometimes the case, I have known the hen do all the work and successfully rear a big brood. The young come out at about 21 days, and are then quite as big as their parents, but if the brood is a large one, they come out earlier, often before they are half feathered, and then they can only cling and crawl up and down the wires, but it makes no matter, the cock will find them and gallantly attend to their wants, and, as Shakespeare says, each wise child knows its own father. They are lovely little things at this period; of a pale primrose in colour, and as fat and sleek as moles, with laughing black eyes. The big ones are usually the cocks. I say the colour is "primrose," but some people might call it "yaller," like our postman, who once described a neighbour's face, who was suffering from jaundice, as "that yaller, it made me drop two letters and a parsil."

As I said before, it is always well to remove the youngsters as soon as you see them well on feed, as they only worry the old ones and prevent future nesting operations. When once you get a flock well started, they are no bother, as they would breed all the year round; but I never let mine do so, as in very cold weather the hens are apt to get egg-bound and die; and I believe that what is called "French moult" is very largely the result of allowing birds to breed in the winter. Birds suffering from French moult never grow their flights, and if they do, they are so weak as to be of no use. Such birds never do any good, are always an eyesore, and it is far more merciful to put them out of their misery. I always drown them.

Yellow Budgerigars still pay to breed, as I found that dealers would always give me about 13s. a pair, and when you consider the cost of seed, this will be found to be a very remunerative trade. In fact, Yellow Budgerigars are the only birds that I can truthfully say have paid their way. At one time I went in a good deal for trying to make things pay, but I found, like Mr. Brooke in "Middlemarch," "that it would carry me too far—over the hedge, in fact."

Was it not Dora Greenwell who said "that the meeting of both ends was a somewhat sad ideal at which to aim." Heaven knows I have tried it often enough, but what I should like would be the ends to tie in with a nice bow.

Can Mules Breed?

By FRANK FINN, B.A., F.Z.S.,

Author of "The World's Birds."

A little matter of a couple of dozen centuries ago, Darius, king of Persia, was besieging Babylon, the mighty and the wicked, and a certain Babylonian, jeering at the Persian attacking force from the wall, shouted out "You will take this city when Mules breed." He did not mean Canary Mules, but the horse-and-ass variety; for it was a lot too early in the world's history for our advanced aviculture, though I have but little doubt that the Goldfinch Fancy probably existed even among the Babylonians, if they kept cage-birds at all, as they practically certainly did, being skilled in animal management.

To proceed with the story, however, not long after a baggage mule in the camp of Darius actually did produce a foal. This set Zopyrus, the beast's owner, racking his wits in earnest as to how to take the city, which he succeeded in doing by the simple, if heroic, expedient, of cutting off his nose and ears, and presenting himself to the Babylonians as a deserter who had been thus brutally maltreated by Darius, getting into their confidence, and then betraying the city to his master—a pleasing Oriental device to be pondered on by a generation so fond of trusting easterns as ours is. Thus Herodotus tells the tale, and I repeat it here to show how ancient is the belief in the sterility of the equine mule.

The experience of bird-fanciers has been the same with the Mules between the Canary and our Finches, and of these with each other; and hence has grown up a belief in the universal sterility of Hybrids, which has caused much twaddle to be written by writers scientific and unscientific alike.

The idea which is constantly repeated is that Nature has imposed this sterility on Hybrids to prevent species from being hopelessly mixed up; and this would look very reasonable, only unfortunately it is not universally true, as we now know. It is quite true that many of the best-known Hybrid animals are either completely sterile, or so nearly so that it amounts to the same thing; if the Mule mare did drop a foal before Babylon, the few of her successors who may have repeated the feat, have not succeeded in convincing critical people of the genuineness of the occurrence. A frequent source of error is the fact that a mule mare will sometimes produce milk and suckle the foal of a horse mare, which naturally gives rise to the idea that the foal is her own.

In the case of Mule Canaries, a large opening for error exists by reason of the fact that most people not in the Fancy do not know that a Green Canary is just as much a Canary as a yellow one; hence they think that a pied bird is a Mule, and when it breeds rush into print to record the wondrous fact.

Nevertheless, there are some undoubted cases in which genuinely distinct species have produced Mules or Hybrids which in their turn have bred again, and it is of use to recount some at least of them here. Among beasts, the American bison produces a Hybrid with the common cow, and this hybrid is fertile; no one will pretend that these two creatures are not as distinct as the horse and ass, if not much more so. In the Zoo can be seen at present a hybrid between a polar bear and a brown bear, and a three-quarter-bred animal from this beast mated to a pure polar bear. These bear mules have also bred between themselves, and the two parent species, again, are more different than horses and asses are.

Among cold-blooded creatures, the crested Newt, beloved of aquarium keepers, produces fertile hybrids with the continental marbled newt, a very distinct species, not only in colour, but in the crest on the back of the breeding male, which is notched in the crested and plain edged in the other species.

Now to come to birds; the best known fertile Hybrids are those between the Golden and Amherst Pheasants, these Mules having been known to breed between themselves for at least four generations. Everyone knows the Gold Pheasant, so I will not trouble to describe it. The Amherst differs not only in being mostly white and green, instead of gold and red, but in several points of form which would make it easily distinguishable even if both species were stained black or bleached white. It has a small crest at the back of the head, not a full one all over the crown as in the Gold; the feathers of its ruff are rounded, not squared; its tail is much larger proportionately, and it has a bare patch round the eye. The two species are, in fact, thoroughly distinct; yet they have been so mixed up in captivity, owing to the fertility of the Hybrids, that it is common to see advertisers specially recommending their stock as "pure."

The common duck and Pintail duck—that slim elegant fellow with the long pointed tail, which is conspicuous in any collection of waterfowl, produce a hybrid which is fertile, and, like the Amherst gold pheasant cross, a very handsome bird.

Coming to birds more familiar to cage bird fanciers, some years ago a Parrakeet, very similar to the Rosella, but with more red about it, was described and figured as the Red-mantled Parrakeet (Platycercus erythropeplus). It has now been found out that this bird is merely a Hybrid between the Rosella and the Pennant, and that it will itself breed. These two Parrakeets are decidedly distinct, as the Pennant not only differs from the Rosella in having no white or yellow about it, and much more red and blue, but in being a bigger bird, and having a distinct immature plumage of uniform dull green. Among Doves, the common Collared Dove produces a fertile Hybrid with the Indian Red Dove, a bird in which the sexes are quite different in colour ,and both are smaller and shorter-tailed than the Collared Dove.

Among the very few soft-bill Mules which have ever been bred, are those between the Pied and Grey Wagtails, and these Hybrids have again produced young. Getting nearer home still, the European and Japanese Greenfinches have produced Hybrids, and these have proved fertile, at any rate with the parent stocks. It must be remembered that the Japanese Greenfinch is quite distinct from the European; it is not green at all, but brown and grey, and has the yellow markings on wings and tail much bolder and more distinct; besides, it is a smaller bird.

Now, what is the reason of these discrepancies? In a great many cases, we can only say, we do not know; we cannot see, for instance, why Hybrids in the ox and bear families can reproduce, and in the horse family they cannot. But we can say that the fertility of a Hybrid does depend to some extent, among birds at any rate, on the nearness of the species crossed.

Thus, because the Pintail and Mallard cross will produce fertile Hybrids, we must not jump to the conclusion that any duck-hybrid will be fertile. This is not the case; the commonest of such Hybrids is that between the common and Muscovy ducks, and this is a barren mule. But these two ducks are much further removed in shape, colour, and habits, than the Pintail and common duck.

Then again, the fertility of the Amherst Gold Pheasant Hybrid does not extend to Pheasants as a whole. The Hybrid of the common Pheasant with the Gold or Silver species is not fertile, the original parents being more remote. I attach no importance to the complete fertility of the crosses between the common Pheasant and the Chinese Ring-necked Pheasant, because these two birds are quite alike except in colour, and so can hardly be called full species; the same reasoning applies to the not uncommon wild-bred Hybrids between the Hooded and Carrion Crows, which are also fertile.

Now, applying this reasoning to the Finches, it is not surprising to find the Hybrids between the western and eastern Greenfinches fertile, the species being very close, though undoubtedly distinct; and I think we should very likely see some fertile Hybrids between British Finches, if sufficiently closely-related species were crossed. I do not see why one should expect all the crosses to breed again, or even most of them; but if the Twite and Redpoll were crossed, I should expect the Mule to be fertile, and I believe that between the Chaffinch and Brambling has been proved to be so.

There exists a case in which a Hybrid has been difficult to get at all, and yet has proved fertile when procured. This, the cross between the Wood Pigeon and common Pigeon has only been bred twice to my knowledge, in each case a hand-reared hen Wood Pigeon being the female parent. In the last instance, that of the fine Hybrid cock bred by Mr. P. St. J. Podmore, and now on view at the Zoo the bird has bred with the common Pigeon.

Furthermore, it is possible for a Hybrid to be generally sterile, and yet occasionally, in individual instances, to show fertility. Mr. A. Suchetet, a French observer, who has paid especial attention to Hybrid birds, has found most of such sterile, with some notable exceptions. But in one case he succeeded in getting young from a cross which is usually barren. This was the Hybrid between the common Pigeon and Collared Dove, a not at all uncommon Mule. From one of these, mated with a Dove, he did once secure a three-quarter-bred. But here follows a surprising result. This bird, which might reasonably have been expected to produce young when again mated to a Dove, did not do so.

There is thus no reason to utterly disbelieve the statement of a fancier who says that he or she has got young from a Goldfinch-Canary Mule, or what not. There is always the possibility of one of these abnormally fertile individuals turning up, though the extreme improbability of the occurrence, in the case of so many well-known Hybrids, should lead us to examine the evidence with the greatest care.

It may be of interest to state what happens in the case of a fertile Hybrid breeding back to one of the parent stocks, and I will cite three instances I have studied. In the case of the Hybrid bears at the Zoo, the mule bear is, roughly speaking, a brown bear with a polar bear's head; the three-quarter-bred is a pure polar, except for a brown wash on the back.

In an Amherst Gold Pheasant Hybrid the general appearance is that of a Gold Pheasant with the Amherst's white ruff, and with the crest of a fiery orange red. The three-quarter Amherst has a very similar crest, but is otherwise nearly pure Amherst, but with the red of the Gold still appearing on the abdomen; this may be seen in the British Museum.

In some Hybrid Red and Collared Doves bred at the Zoo, the mules were drab like the hen Red Dove, in both sexes, but a three-quarter-bred red cock was simply rather a duller red than the pure birds.

It would thus seem that two crosses back to one of the parent stocks would eliminate the taint of Hybridism altogether; thus there is no foundation for the assertion that the Canary has been modified by crossing with European Finches, even if these were commonly fertile.

Lastly, if some Hybrids are fertile, why do not such species get mixed up in a wild state? In some cases, the fertile Hybrid has only been produced by man's artificially bringing the parents together, as in the case of the bison and cow. In other cases, the well-known tendency of "birds of a feather" to "flock together," appears to be quite sufficient, and there is often positive antipathy between allied species. Thus, in the wild state, the Amherst and Gold Pheasant both live in China, but the former is more of an Alpine bird, and, being larger and stronger, speedily drives down his gilded rival should he trespass on his ground. Some such feeling as this is no doubt very widely spread, and hence the distinctness of species is often really maintained by mental and moral rather than physical causes.

Nests of birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

OUR COLOURED PLATE.

Some Interesting Notes on the Birds, by Their Owners.

On our coloured plate given away with this week's number, Mr. Norman has selected for pourtrayal a Green Norwich, with a foul wing, and a Yellow Cinnamon, as two of this season's winning Canaries. Of the birds put before us in such life-like manner in this artistic picture, the Norwich Green is to-day possibly more popular than the Cinnamon, or, at least, shows better signs of making progress, for the latter of late years seems to have stood still, competition on the show-bench being limited to a small number of exhibitors.

The Norwich Green.

Concerning the Norwich Green, its owner, Mr. T. Harrison (Altrincham) writes:—

I was very pleasantly surprised to receive from you a proof of the coloured plate on which is depicted one of my winning Norwich Greens which have been exhibited by me very successfully during this season and last. The bird represented on the plate is a foul yellow, bred from my noted foul buff Norwich Green hen, which in her turn was bred by myself, on May 24, 1907, and was the offspring of a variegated Norwich buff cock, and a green-capped Norwich Yellow hen (also bred by myself). This pair of birds produced me a great many winners, including clears and greens. Herewith are a few of this hen's successes for 1907 and 1908-9: 1st and special for best Norwich in show, Sale Nest Feather Show, 1907; 1st Altrincham Nest Feather Show, 1907; 2nd Manchester, 1907; 2nd Scottish National, 1907; 1st Altrincham, 1907; 3rd Warrington, 1907; 1st Manchester, 1908; 1st and special Liverpool O.S. Show, 1908; 1st Wigan, 1908; 1st and special Widnes, 1908; 2nd Altrincham, 1908; 1st Leeds, 1908; 1st Scottish National, 1908-9; 1st Swansea, Welsh National, 1908; 2nd Crystal Palace, 1909. It is worthy of note that the foul yellow which I last season bred from this hen has done a lot of scoring this year for me, including first at Leeds, as stated on the plate.

With regard to the management of Greens, a plentiful supply of baths is very beneficial—in my opinion the greatest aid as a "burnisher" we have, and certainly the healthiest and cheapest. I very rarely use egg-food after the breeding and moulting season, occasionally giving a little scalded rape, and Spratt's Cod Liver Oil, or cage bird food mixed together, to which I add a little sugar and salt. As a staple seed diet 75 per cent. Canary seed, and the remaining 25 per cent. made up as follows:—10 per cent, rape (German), 10 per cent. hemp, and 5 per cent. white millet. During the show season about once a week I add one teaspoonful of the following mixture: White port, ammoniated citrate of iron, dandelion juice, tincture of gentian, glycerine, to 12 teaspoonfuls of the above-mentioned soft feed, and I find this keeps the birds in a very nice condition. If at any time I can give any information to readers of CAGE BIRDS, it will be my very pleasant duty to do so.—TOM HARRISON.

The Cinnamon.

The following notes on the Cinnamon Canary reach us from its owner, Mr. G. E. Bairstow (Halifax):—

I am very pleased you are doing me the honour of putting one of my winning Cinnamons on the coloured plate issued with your Jubilee Palace number. I am a member of the Cinnamon Canary Club, and in the Novice Section I have won the following prizes:—1st and 2nd at the Crystal Palace, 1908; 1st and 2nd at Peterborough, 1908; two 1sts and 2nd and special at Manchester, 1908; and 1st and special at Sunderland, 1908. Having been a Cinnamon breeder for about eight years, it is only in the last three seasons that I have been able to produce birds that were good enough to put on the show bench. Like most young fanciers, when I bought stock I insisted on having young birds, and commenced to breed from them the first year. This proved a great mistake, as I lost size and stamina. So I decided to keep a few young cocks over the first year, which policy has greatly improved my stock. I should advise Novice fanciers to take this hint and with careful treatment and selection (especially when buying stock birds) they should make progress. I think fanciers will find the Cinnamon Canary an interesting variety. I take every care in the feeding and attending to my birds, which, of course, is necessary if one is to meet with success, in all varieties. My yellow cock, the one seen in the painting, was 1st at Manchester and 2nd at Peterborough. My buff cock was 1st at Palace, 1908, 1st at Peterborough, 1908, 1st at Manchester 1908, and 1st and special at Sunderland in Novice Section.—G. E. BAIRSTOW.

OLDEN TIMES AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE CAGE BIRD SHOW (held Feb. 18, 1865).

THE picture reproduced here is a sketch taken at the Crystal Palace Show of 1865, which appears to have been held near the crystal fountain and the famous big clock. According to the account accompanying the drawing there were present "three or four hundred English, German, or Belgian Canaries, with Canary Mules; about fifty British singing birds—namely, Bullfinches, Goldfinches, Linnets, Skylarks, Woodlarks, Blackbirds, and Thrushes; a couple of Magpies, an Owl, a Raven, and a White Jackdaw; a bevy of Grey Parrots, which were clever talkers: a splendid array of Parrakeets, and a no less gorgeous party of Cockatoos, which scolded and screamed as freely as in their native forests; while the gentle songsters, in their little cages, at a judicious distance from that noisy flock, warbled as sweetly as in a lady's drawing-room, and seemed fully conscious of the approval which the company bestowed upon their musical performances. The beauty of the gold and silver Pheasants also called forth many expressions of admiration; and a noble pair of Emus, though dangerous to approach too closely, were surrounded with visitors." Evidently there were birds shown in the old days which would not now be considered desirable exhibits.

Black-cheeked Lovebirds.

One of the most lovely species of Lovebirds yet imported, and one feels the inadequacy of word painting to fittingly describe their glowing beauty, but with the aid of the accompanying drawing I hope to be able in some measure to indicate this. Extremely rare 12 months ago, not even in the Museum catalogue, and skins almost unknown in this country. It is now, if not cheap, almost common as to numbers, and can be procured at from 50s. to 63s. a pair. I think the Rev. H. D. Astley was the first to possess the species, Mr. Reginald Phillips the first to breed it in captivity, and Mr. C. T. Maxwell the first to introduce it to the show bench.

Description.—Adult: Top of the head peach-colour, sides of face dark, dull plum-colour, circle of bare skin round the eyes white, narrow band round base of upper mandible buffish-white, back of the crown, nape, and back of neck bronzy-green; a crescentic patch of brilliant saffron-green adorns the chest, and extends upward in a point almost to the base of lower mandible; remainder of body plumage rich grass-green, wing darker green, flight brownish black on the inner webs, bluish on the outer webs, and each feather finely margined with pale pinkish; bill bright red, legs and feet pinkish. I fear descriptions of the plumage of this lovely species, as the plumage of the head varies with each fresh position taken up.

Sexual distinction.—Till I have had a closer acquaintance with the species I shall confine myself to the distinction first noticed by Mr. R Phillips, viz., the colouration of the eye—male light brown, female dark reddish brown; this I have found to be constant in all the pairs I have yet had the opportunity of examining. Mr. Phillips found the eye of the young male to resemble that of the female.

This species is sure to be popular, as, apart from its great beauty, it appears to be gregarious, and gives indications of being as ready breeders as the ubiquitous Budgerigar. Many of the recent importations have paired and laid eggs in quite small cages.

I should advise my readers not to subject this species to cold or draught till they have become thoroughly acclimatised. The name Black-cheek is certainly a misnomer, for there is no black about this portion of their plumage; but so they have been called, and so will they be known, I presume, so long as enthusiastic and irresponsible aviculturists exist. The pair of birds figured on our plate were exhibited by Mr. W. Cook, carrying off for him premier honours in their class.

Meyer's Parrot.

(Pœocephalus meyeri.)

A rare and chastely-coloured species, which, according to the Museum catalogue is a native of Equatorial Africa from Abyssinia to Transvaal on the east, and through the interior to Benguela and Damara-Land on the west. Though clad in different attire, it reminds one at once of the Senegal Parrot (P. senegalus), but is more beautiful, though the hues of its plumage are in a minor key, the harmony and blending being exquisite.

Description.—Adult: Head, neck, mantle, upper back, wing, tail and throat, greyish-brown; curved band across the crown, bend of wings and thighs, bright canary-yellow; lower back, rump, upper tail coverts and remainder of under surface, bluish-green; bill, greenish horn-colour; legs and feet blackish.

The specimen from which our drawing is made was exhibited by the Rev. W. Raynor, winning for him premier honours in its class. It was in faultless condition, and appeared to be quite a young bird and a female. The greyish-brown of the upper surface harmonises beautifully with the green of the lower back and under-surface, while when the wing was outstretched or uplifted the bird is no longer quietly clad, but is radiant with the yellow of the under-wing coverts and bend of wing. Mr. Raynor is to be congratulated on the possession of so rare a species. A mixture of Canary, white millet, with smaller portions of hemp, sunflower, oats, and paddy rice, make a wholesome staple mixture for this species; ripe fruit, plain biscuits and nuts will amply meet its frugal needs.

Painted Finches.

(Emblema picta.)

A beautiful species, a worthy rival of the beautiful Gouldian Finch, but alas! very rare and costly. In fact it was almost unknown till Messrs. Payne and Wallace imported some fourteen or fifteen pairs in the Spring of 1908, and few present-day aviculturists had seen a living specimen.

I had a pair of these in my possession for four or five months in a large flight cage in my out-door birdroom, but when they were apparently about to settle down to breeding, having built a domed nest in a box, I had the misfortune to lose the hen, and being unable to procure another I parted with the male, and it found its way into Mr. Maxwell's hands, and is one of the birds appearing on our plate. So far they have not bred in this country, but I am hoping that some of the fortunate aviculturists who still possess pairs will succeed in doing so this coming season, and so provide an aviary-bred stock of this lovely species. They thrive and do well on the treatment given to the well-known Gouldian, in fact, should be treated similarly in every respect.

Description.—Upper surface hazel-brown, with the exception of the rump and upper tail coverts, which are brilliant scarlet; sides of face, centre of throat, and middle of abdomen and ventral region, also rich scarlet; remainder of under surface deep black, thickly spotted with pure white crescentic markings; beak, upper mandible, bluish-red at tip, lower mandible red, white at the base, legs and feet reddish flesh colour.

The female differs from the male in having the red areas of the face much smaller in extent, no red on throat, only a few scarlet markings on centre of abdomen, and the white spots are carried almost up to the base of lower mandible. They are natives of Central and Northern Australia.

The late Herr Wiener was the first to introduce this species to English aviculture. In 1869 he procured his first pair under the name of Julian Finches. Four years later he secured another pair under the name of Australian Diamond Sparrows. Neither of these pairs remained long in his possession; since this period practically none have leaked through till Messrs. Payne and Wallace brought about two pairs over in 1906 or 1907, and the aforementioned 15 pairs in 1908. Several of these pairs have nested and laid during the past year, but so far no young have been reared. The pair figured in our plate are the property of Mr. C. T. Maxwell, and secured premier honours in their class.

Black-faced Serin.

(Serinus capistrata.)

All the Serins make handsome cage birds, and have the added charm that the males of most species are good songsters, and none of them are difficult to cater for. The species in question is very rare. It first appeared on the show bench about three years ago, and since that period very few have appeared. It is one of the most, if not the most, beautiful of the genus Serinus, being of a deep rich yellow on the under surface, sides of face and neck, while the upper surface is olive-green, striated with darker green; the ear coverts are black. The areas of the various colours will be readily discerned in the accompanying figure, from which some indication of its extreme beauty will be gathered.

The bird depicted is owned by Mrs. E. Galloway, and has won for her many firsts and other prizes during its three or more seasons on the bench, and it certainly never looked in better condition or richer in colouring than on the occasion of its latest success. The specimens I have seen have all been good songsters, and this species is an acquisition to any bird-room.

Black-throated Tanager.

(Calliste thoracia.)

Of the many beautiful and gorgeous species of the genus Calliste, few, if any, can surpass C. thoracia for rich, gorgeous and iridescent colouring. It is an impossibility in a word-picture to paint its glowing colouring, and equally impossible for any artist to indicate the same in a black and white drawing. Of all the many beautiful Tanagers that have appeared on the show bench during a course of years, none has ever appeared in finer condition than the specimen herein described. Not a feather, nay, not a hair, appeared to be out of place, its plumage glistening like silk, while its glowing and gorgeous colouring was a sight long to be remembered.

I shall certainly not attempt to describe such a bird. It must suffice to say that the general plumage was glistening grass-green, striated on the upper surface with deep black, throat deep black, breast rich golden-chestnut. The play of light even within the limits of a bird show but faintly indicated what extremes of beauty would be visible when light refraction had full play.

Though this is its first season upon the show bench, it is not the first occasion it has secured premier honours for its fortunate owner, Mr. C. T. Maxwell.

King Bird of Paradise.

(Cicinnurus regius.)

Nothing but a coloured plate could indicate the royal robes of this well-named King Bird. I can only describe the upper surface as glowing scarlet, shading to rich orange on the top of the head; the scarlet is continued round the neck and across the throat, being bordered with first orange narrowly and then a broader band of metallic greenish-blue; the remainder of the under surface is white, the side plumes are drab, tipped with metallic green, and when the bird is displaying itself are extended straight out from the body, and at this time the bird has a gorgeous appearance indeed. The tail is short and has two long, wire-like feathers, the tips only are webbed and curled, these are dark-green. Gorgeous as these birds are, they are really crows; a little observation of their deportment and characteristics soon confirm this.

They are natives of the Aru Islands, where they are very common, and held in but little esteem by the natives, and only valued as articles of dress. The nest is of the typical Crow character, merely an open construction of sticks.

The specimen depicted has been exhibited now for two seasons. It has won many prizes, and excited admiration and interest wherever it has appeared, and this interest still attracts the attention of the visiting public. It again won premier honours in its class, and Mr. C. T. Maxwell is to be congratulated not merely upon his being the owner, but more so perhaps upon the manner and fine condition in which he kept the bird, for it certainly is at present in fully as gorgeous robes, and certainly better condition than when first exhibited.

There are now quite a number of species at the London Zoo. They are to have outdoor aviaries provided for them this summer, so that these gorgeous creatures should reveal to us new beauties under the full play of light on their grand plumage, and also unfold somewhat of their life history, courtships and general demeanour than is now possible.

In the aviaries of Mrs. Johnstone, Mr. E. J. Brock and others, these gorgeous birds are now so kept, and we hope in the near future some of them will be successfully bred.

How I Started in the Fancy.

By J. G. WESTGATE.

This short article is not intended as a manual on Canary management, nor yet as a guide for beginners; it is simply the record of the first two year's experience of a starter in the Fancy, and tends to show how hardy Canaries really are, and how luck sometimes follows a blundering novice.

My First Bird.

It was in February that I bought my first bird. I had noticed in a dealer's shop a large cage full of small German hens, and I purchased the cheapest one of the lot, which was a dirty yellow bird without tail and a feather or two short in one wing. Altogether it was the most disreputable Canary I had ever seen. Still, I did not mind, I had got what I asked for, the cheapest (and worst) of the lot. I had no cage ready, so I kept it in a box until I rigged a little place up in the angle of the yard wall and the house—like an oldfashioned three-corner cupboard with boards top and bottom, the rest of small mesh wire.

I put my beauty in this outside cage, with seed, water, and a handful of sand on the floor, and let it go at that. In about a week after this, she was looking so much better that I decided to get her a mate and try my hand at breeding. To get a fitting partner was now my trouble. I did not want (to pay for) one of the aristocracy of the Canary world, but some homely, respectable bird in the same lowly station as my other bird. I tried at several bird shops, but none seemed to keep just the kind of bird I required, but at last, after a lot of trouble, I bought a cock bird from the hospital cage of a dealer at a very low price, and just when leaving the shop I asked him to tell me what was amiss with it, but he laughingly replied that the price I had given did not include questions, and I ought to be thankful I had a living bird of any sort.

A Mate Secured.

I brought my second treasure home, and turned him into my little outside cage, wondering what kind of strain I was going to establish with my two gems. Whatever ailment the cock suffered from, this open-air treatment was the correct thing for him, for after about a week he sang a little, and I then put in the cage a wire nest pan, and a bunch of nesting material.

My birdy friends now told me that I was making a great mistake in attempting to breed Canaries in that outside, draughty corner; it could not be done, they said. I replied that my birds could please themselves about that matter, as I was not putting on them any undue pressure. My friends had also told me that the hen was a common "German," and the cock "looked something like" a Norwich. Be that as it may, the hen built a nest, laid five eggs, though the weather was now very cold and rough, and the wind fluffed her feathers while she was sitting, she hatched out and reared five strong youngsters. Her next nest was one of four, and then two more fives—all the young being hatched, and all reared.

My First Loss.

I removed the young when they could feed themselves to another cage, about the size and shape of an orange box, which I nailed on the wall near the first cage. When I cleaned out the breeding cage I always removed the cock, as he flew about so wildly. One day, when the fourth nest of young were about a week old, in removing him, he suddenly reeled over and died in my hand. The insidious disease from which he suffered had at last done its work, but on looking at the number of orphans on the perches, and the young family in the nest, and remembering the price I had paid for him, I felt I could reasonably cry quits. This closed the breeding operations for my first year.

A fault with both of my cages was that the doors were too large. I lost a few of my quickest youngsters through having to open the door so wide when feeding. I had almost twice as many cocks as hens. I am assuming those which flew away were cocks, on the fisherman's principle that those they nearly catch are always the biggest.

The Next Season's Operations.

I sold the young cocks as soon as they commenced to sing, keeping only six hens for next season's experiments. When breeding time again came round, I put up a young hen with a Yorkshire cock bird which I had had lent to me. Another hen I put up with a Roller cock bird, which was also lent. I put a Chaffinch Cock with the third hen, and I bought a stout Norwich cock to mate with the remaining three hens. He had need to be stout as you will see later.

The Chaffinch's mate was the first with eggs, and sat them well, but they were clear. The hens of the Yorkshire, and of the Roller, both had clear eggs, and also on the next round. So I returned both cocks to their owners; they were evidently not used to outside life, and perhaps it was too cold for them.

I had heard that the Chaffinch-Canary cross was very rare, but I had great hopes of mine. The hen was the largest I had bred, and the Chaffinch, though a wild-caught bird, was wonderfully steady. The second round of eggs from them proved clear again, but my faith never wavered; I meant to get this cross. I had casually mentioned the above matter to a birdy friend, who lived some distance away, and I was talking in a cocksure manner about it when he offered to give me a guinea for the first nest I reared. I immediately gave the Chaffinch its liberty, knowing the case was hopeless, as I knew my man.

The Norwich cock that I was running with the three hens had averaged three young ones to each nest in each round, i.e., twenty-seven in all. I now put him in with the Chaffinch's mate. She reared five young ones. As soon as possible I put him with the Yorkshire mate, who reared only one (a very clear large yellow cock), and then with the Roller's hen, who reared four. This last nest had two self-green young ones in it. This closed my second year's breeding, and I had no cause for complaint, having had thirty-seven young ones from one cock bird. I sold all my stock, both young and old, to a dealer, and then took up with Lizard Canaries, but my experience with these must be related at some other time.

CRESTED CANARY CLUB.

Annual General Meeting.

There was not a very large attendance at the annual meeting of the Crested Canary Club, which was held at the Crystal Palace on February 6th. The president (Mr. R. Rhodes) occupied the chair, and was supported by Mrs. Litchfield, Miss Cooper, Messrs. Crisp, Clarke, Heath, Dawn, Prance, Lazarus, Lee, Robson, Ryder, Jones, Taylor, Mills, Jones, Howard, Sands, Barnett, Dobson, Broad, Johnson, Horton, Pooley, Peters, Franz, Turner, Ley, and J. Tyson, the hon. secretary.

The Balance Sheet.

The balance-sheet, showing £10 7s. 10d. in hand as against £16 0s. 9d. last year, was passed. A question was raised as to the price paid for the illumination of the club certificates. From the very lengthy and excited discussion that followed, it transpired that formerly these diplomas had been illuminated at 2s. 6d. each. Mr. Heath, as one of the auditors, complained of the quality of the workmanship. When the account was originally presented by Mr. Tyson no name appeared on the invoice to show to whom the club was indebted for the work, nor was any receipt attached to indicate who had received the money. The auditors had, therefore, returned the account to Mr. Tyson for an explanation, and then elicited from him the fact that these certificates had been executed by one of his sons. Upon a protest by the auditors, that the amount was too much for such work, Mr. Tyson stated that he had paid his son 1s. 6d. each for the certificates. This amount was, therefore, allowed by the auditors in place of the 2s. 6d. originally invoiced, and the total 37s. 6d. allowed by them appeared on the balance-sheet. Mr. Crisp and Mr. Peters were of the opinion that the auditors had exceeded their duties in questioning this account, it being their view, and that of others, that Mr. Tyson's son was entitled to as much as had been previously paid, and to accept the accounts as presented. The auditors' point, Mr. Heath said, was that, as 1s. 6d. only had been paid for each certificate, they did not think the club ought to be charged more. Mr. J. S. Clarke, the other auditor, rose, and said, with evident emotion, "Although I am a very close friend of Mr. Tyson's and would bow to no man in my admiration for him, I must support my fellow-auditor's version of the facts." There was considerable discussion, no small amount of feeling being shown, but things were eventually smoothed over by Mr. Ley proposing that the original price be paid to Mr. Tyson. Mr. Prance seconded, and it was carried unanimously.

The Secretary's Report.

In presenting his report, Mr. Tyson said he did so with mixed feelings. He deeply regretted that the balance in hand was less, and that £4 of this was due to decrease in members' subscriptions; the donations to the prize fund were also less, whilst their printing bill had been heavier. They had saved 42s. on the guinea specials, owing to the Palace and Plymouth not giving young-bird classes. Members complained of the restrictions attached to the winning of prizes, and there had also been complaints as to questionable conduct of competitors in the young-bird classes. If competitors did not play the game, the committee would have to consider the advisability of adopting closed rings. If this was not done judges would have to consider the club, and not the feelings of exhibitors, and if they had any suspicion as to the exhibits not being of correct age would have to act according as their experience and judgment dictated. They had to deplore a loss of thirty-three members, a decrease of one-third of the whole membership, whilst they had elected only nineteen new members. This, to him, proved that his termination of office was warranted. He had, he said, held the post too long. They had during the year had some good displays of birds in the champion classes, but the novice classes had not been good. Why there had been the falling off he could not understand. He thought that the club's adoption of the C.B.U. novice definition had something to do with it, as it caused young fanciers to be plunged into champion competition before they had the necessary experience to bring success. Thanks to their good friend, Mr. J. S. Clarke, they had been enabled to get most excellent value for their 21s. specials, which this year had taken the form of cruets, and of which he had four on the table for some of the winners to take away with them. He gave the result of the election, and said that, from the papers received in the election of president, Mr. Rhodes had received 5 votes, Mr. Crisp 4, the remainder being split up between several other gentlemen. Their thanks were due to Messrs. Heath and Clarke as auditors, and to the chairman, Mr. Rhodes. In conclusion, he thanked the members for the support he had received during the six years he had been in office, but had determined not to go on as secretary any longer. He had been a good-natured fool long enough. On the motion of Mr. Crisp, seconded by Mr. Robson, the report was adopted.

Presentation of Specials.

The CHAIRMAN then presented cruets to the following gentlemen:—Messrs. Taylor, won at Bristol: J. Broad, won at Norwich; and F. Johnson, won at Westminster.

Suggested Improvements.

Mr. LEY said the club had reached a state when they must seriously consider what could be done to make the members take more interest in it. It was a matter of vital importance to breeders and exhibitors that their classification should be improved. It was necessary for a man to spend about £200 to get together a stud good enough to win, and when he had done it he had no chance to show his birds. Nineteen schedules out of every twenty gave them no more than two classes—A.V. Crest and A.V. Crest-Bred. This was not fair, and it kept the birds at home. We again have a decrease in our membership recorded, he continued, and the inference is that the C.C.C. is not doing enough for its members to make them stay with it. He thought it deplorable that at their club show they should only have eleven classes—eight open, one pair, and two novice—and this the show of the year with their ten-guinea cups in competition, and even then could not be wholly on their own, but had to show side by side with another club. The club should take the bit between its teeth and insist on show committees giving them fifteen or sixteen classes. They had given support to shows with four classes; he thought eight classes should be the least number they should support. They should ask for this number, and insist upon getting it. Further, they should ask their members only to show at such shows. It might be said that if this was done many shows would be shut out. He said, let them be shut out. Those who looked askance at the proposal would do it if the C.C.C. gave them a guarantee that they should not lose more than a guinea. During the season just closed only five shows had given nine or more classes, and in the 54 classes so given the loss worked out at 2s. 3½d. per class. The shows were Nottingham, Gateshead, Norwich, Westminster, and Cheltenham. It is clear from the way that they were going on that something would have to be done, and he suggested that they do it in that direction.

The CHAIRMAN, in inviting suggestions and criticism of Mr. Ley's proposal, said: If I understand it rightly, the proposal is that we shall have not less than 15 classes at the club show and eight at others, and that we guarantee show committees against loss.

Mr. CLARKE: Does Mr. Ley desire that we should ask that the shows should be arranged? Some arrangement would have to be made, because the club could not guarantee against loss and pay the losses, and then when there was a profit for the shows to take it.

Mr. PETERS: We are all grateful to Mr. Ley for bringing this matter forward. I have often thought we could do more by increasing classes or giving specials. The great difficulty which the shows have is making both ends meet. We know there are great risks in exhibiting Crests, but even allowing for this, it is difficult to account for the lack of interest. It is difficult to know what to do, and I would suggest that the committee be asked to consider the matter. More might be done to induce the novices to show, and something to protect them from scamps who exhibited fraudulently, such as by staying novices themselves whilst their wives and other relations exhibited at open shows.

Mr. CRISP: If the members are willing to take prize-money on the sliding scale we might do something; otherwise, show promoters would fight shy of big classifications.

Mr. CLARKE: The principle upon which we have worked in the past has been to spread the interest by supporting shows north, south, east, and west. It would not do for the C.C.C. to cram its support all into one corner of the country. Our only hope of increasing the interest of members is to open out the competition, and not allow two or three big exhibitors to monopolise the C.C.C. support. They also should see to it that Clear Body Dark and Clear Body Clear Crests competed together on equal terms.

Mr. TAYLOR agreed with Mr. Clarke. At Gateshead they thought they did well in giving eleven classes and guaranteeing full prize-money.

Mr. DAWN: It would be a calamity to knock off support to shows not giving eight classes. At Sheffield they could not get support, and they were close to Nottingham. In 1907 one of their supporters guaranteed the classes and gave five guinea specials, and there was a very poor response, not a single C.C.C. member sending an entry. This season, with four 10s. specials, they had a better entry, and ten times better quality. He did not think big classifications would be acceptable.

Mr. JOHNSON, in supporting Mr. Ley, said he had won the C.C.C. specials over and over again, yet could not take them because there had not been enough competition.

Mr. CLARKE: That is the fault of the members, not of classification.

Mr. JOHNSON: We want better classification. Look at the Palace. Is it fair for young birds and old birds to go together?

Mr. TAYLOR: We want a rearrangement of our specials. We offer 5s. for best dark or grizzle cap C.B., but it has never yet been awarded because there has been no competition. It is no use offering specials for classes we cannot get.

Mr. LEY then moved, and Mr. CLARKE seconded, that the committee give the matter their consideration, and it was carried unanimously.

Bogus Novices.

Mr. CRISP, in moving, "That all members of a family, or residents in the same house, must show in the highest section in which any of them have won a first prize," said it did not need any words of his to commend such a motion, as they were all wishful to stop the man who exhibited in his wife's or sister's name. Mr. CLARKE seconded, and it was carried unanimously.

Mr. CRISP moved, and Mr. ROBSON seconded, "That there must be four competitors to warrant the awarding of the first-year champion points. Carried nem. con.

Best Birds v. Points Specials.

Mr. CRISP, in moving, "That the first paragraph of Rule 1 be deleted," said he wished to give the committee a free hand in awarding the clubs and specials.

Mr. CLARKE: It is the acme of absurdity to allow a mass of v.h.c., h.c., and c. birds to beat the winners. I like to see best birds get the specials.

The CHAIRMAN: Mr. Crisp's motion would alter the policy of the club, which has always been against specials. Points specials are all right from a show committee's point of view, as they increase entries, but in a specialist club we want to encourage the production of the best birds. Mr. TYSON seconded the motion, which was lost, only five voting for it.

Mr. Crisp Favours the Ladies.

Mr. CRISP: No one will be so ungallant as not to support my motion, "That a medal and diploma be awarded for the best bird by a lady member at each show, or that three points specials be given during the season for ladies' competition only."

The CHAIRMAN: Mr. Crisp is going for popularity.

Mr. CLARKE: Is the competition for the ladies or their birds. The motion is not quite clear.

Mr. CRISP: The birds, of course.

Mr. LEY: Are the medals to be gold or silver?

The CHAIRMAN: Mr. Crisp does not say what material; he wisely leaves that.

Mr. PETERS: Where is the money to come from?

Mr. ROBSON seconded the motion, but it met with no other supporter, and thus Mr. Crisp's bid for the ladies' favour came to nought.

The Bogus Novice Again.

Mr. CRISP, in moving, "That limit classes of £5 and over be considered open classes," said that many, rather than go up into the open classes when they were no longer eligible for novice classes, kept their birds, and only exhibited in limit classes.

Mr. HOWARD seconded, and it was carried unanimously.

In view of Mr. Ley's proposition having been referred to the committee, Mr. Clarke withdrew a similar motion which stood in his name, whilst that relating to exchange of lectures between country societies and London was left in the hands of the secretary, so that he might arrange matters with gentlemen willing to give lectures.

The C.C.C. in the Press.

Mr. CLARKE, in moving the next two motions, which were blended, said he thought that if they could get more publicity of the doings of the Crest Fancy in the Press in the same manner that different sections of the Dog Fancy obtained publicity in the Press, it would increase the interest felt in the C.C.C. and the Crest Fancy. The first motion read: "To discuss the possibility of establishing a monthly or quarterly magazine"; the second, "To approach the Press with a view to their granting, say, half-a-column weekly, the members of the C.C.C. guaranteeing to support the same."

Mr. LEY: It would be best to leave the matter with the papers. If members will send up news the papers would be pleased to publish it.

It was eventually decided to leave the matter in the hands of Mr. Clarke.

Branch Secretaries.

Mr. CLARKE moved, "To discuss the advisability of electing two or more assistant secretaries, whose duty shall be to look after the interests of Crest fanciers in the district in which they reside," and said: We are languishing; there is a lack of vitality in the club. At present Mr. Tyson is supplying all the energy, and it is not fair that one man should have to run the club; it is too much, and we ought not to expect it. We ought to be represented N.E.S. and W. All the brains are not in London, and the greatest successes come through the decentralisation of effort. I would like to see three or four assistant secretaries appointed to look after the districts in which they reside, and do all they can to promote the interests of the C.C.C.

The CHAIRMAN: How should we do it? From the new committee?

Mr. CLARKE: I have not thought it out, but we might find them from the committee.

Mr. LEY: I have a better scheme, and that is that we pay our secretary something for what he does. After other discussion, it was decided to leave the matter for consideration by the committee.

Mr. Roberts' Cup.

Mr. TYSON announced that Mr. Roberts left the decision as to whether the Palace Show should be included in this competition to the committee. It would not make any difference one way or the other. It was unanimously decided that the Palace should not be included, as it might create an awkward precedent. Mr. Tyson said Mr. King was the leader, but Mr. Taylor queried it, and asked if the Sheffield points had been included. Mr. Tyson replied that he had written for a Sheffield catalogue, but it had not been sent to him; thus the points had not been included. The Rhodes cup had been won by Mr. Burgess.

Votes of Thanks.

Mr. Jones proposed, and Mr. Crisp seconded, a vote of thanks to Mr. Tyson. In supporting it, Mr. Clarke said: No one has sacrificed more time to promote the welfare of the C.C.C. than Mr. Tyson, yet he was worried by members writing ridiculous letters asking why 6½d. was not included in the accounts in such-and-such a year, also criticising his work instead of helping and encouraging him. We are well served. Let us thank him heartily.

Mr. ROBSON: This is a matter upon which the country members should have a say. No words of mine are needed to express admiration for the work of Mr. Tyson. He has done great work for the club since the time when he took over the secretarial reins.

Mr. BROAD: It is not for want of appreciation of Mr. Tyson's work that some of the country members don't speak, but because we are not so gifted with speech as others. We do value and appreciate Mr. Tyson's work, I can assure you.

The CHAIRMAN: No one unless behind the scenes can conceive what Mr. Tyson has done for the club. He has put tremendous energy into it, and its success from the time when he first became secretary is due to that energy. I have pleasure in supporting the vote of thanks in the heartiest manner possible.

Mr. TYSON: Words fail me in trying to express my gratefulness for the vote you have just passed, and the kind words you have uttered, but the time has come when I find it necessary to say that I must stop, and I wish you to understand that you must find someone else to do the work.

Mr. CRISP: Was any other name on the voting papers?

Mr. CLARKE: No.

Mr. Tyson's Successor.

Mr. TYSON having refused to respond to appeals made by several members that he should continue, Mr. Crisp proposed, and Mr. Lazarus seconded, that Mr. J. S. Clarke be elected. Mr. Clarke refused the appointment at first, but after some considerable pressure, consented to take office for one year only. He expressed his gratification at his election, and the kind words spoken of his ability and as they seemed to be at a deadlock he would consent.

Testimonial to Mr. Tyson.

Mr. PETERS proposed that a testimonial be presented to Mr. Tyson, and that it be left in the hands of the committee to approach the members. Mr. Broad seconded. Mr. Ley, in supporting, said let us strike while the iron is hot. I propose that all present give something now. Mr. Clarke, acting on the suggestion, went round with the list, and a total of £6 9s. was the result.

Votes of thanks to the auditors and the committee closed the meeting, which had lasted just under three and a-half hours.

A CHEAP SPRAYER.

Sent by W. B. Jepson, St. John's Vicarage, Lewisham High Road, S.E.

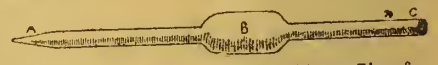
I send herewith an idea for a very simple inexpensive sprayer for birds which do not take a bath. All that is needed is eight or nine inches of glass tubing of ¼ inch diameter. At, say, half an inch from one end heat the glass tubing in a spirit lamp or gas jet, taking care to rotate it the while. When the glass is soft pull it out until it tapers to a thread (a little thinner than that of a fountain pen-filler).



Then break it off carefully. About 3in. from the new end heat the tubing in the same way. When hot and soft, blow gently through the tube and a bulb, as at B, will form. Allow this to cool completely. To spray the bird, dip A into a bowl of water, suck through the tube by putting the end at C to the lips. When B is full of water, blow the water out of the tube and a small spray is sent through A. Care should be taken not to knock A against the cage wires. The tubing may be had for a few pence from any chemist.—W. B. JEPSON.

DEVICE TO PREVENT ESCAPE OF BIRDS.

Sent by R. G. Bremner, 44, Roselea Drive, Dennistown, Glasgow.

Enclosed is an idea which I have in use at present and find it very convenient for preventing birds from escaping by the hole that is left open when the seed-box is withdrawn from the cage. In summer I had a cage outside one of my windows, and found that when I was blowing the husks from the seed the birds frequently got out. It is made of ordinary cage wire which can easily be bent into the shape shown in Fig. 1, without further instructions. The links 1 and 2 are fixed on to the wires immediately above the sides of the seed-box. The drawing shows the arrangement lying in position on the top edge of the box. Anyone can see that when the box is withdrawn the wire appliance will drop down across the hole and thereby prevent escape of any birds.—R. G. BREMNER.

GOSSIP FROM THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

All Smiles.
In no section was there more satisfaction given than in that of the Norwich. Every one agreed that the winners had been found; even an inveterate grumbler thought it "might have been worse." Old-time exhibitors were delighted with the birds.

Perhaps—Perhaps Not.
Another old party was immensely interested in the White Canary, and insisted upon explaining to one of our staff how to breed black ones. But all he could gather was that to do it properly you must start very young.

What Could it Have Been?
The Monday morning arrivals looked terribly fagged. Was it the weighty service at St. Paul's which had had a depressing effect, or the noisy London streets which prevented sleep? "Eh! mon, but we shall be alreet when we get back in our native air," quoth the victims, sadly.

The Maiden Aunt.
At the Palace there are always a lot of exhibits sent out for the first time, and mostly shown by maiden ladies living close by. To explain the reason why their pets have not secured "first and special" is a difficult task. The judge is generally put down as "so ignorant," for the bird is "such a lovely singer!"

Loss of a Rare Bird.
Readers will regret to hear that the Mexican Trogan, which was to have been exhibited at the Crystal Palace Show by Mr. Maxwell, has succumbed to the rigours of our climate. The fog of a few days ago proved too much for it, and despite the best of care, it was found dead in the aviary. It is claimed that there is not now a specimen of this bird in captivity in the world. The Mexican Trogan is supposed to be the laziest bird that lives. Its habit is to sit on a tree with its beak open to let the insects drop in. It has a head resembling a Hawk's, and its body colour is blue, spotted with White.

One from the Shoulder.
In the contest between the Norwich Plainhead Club and the Southern Norwich Plainhead Club, the scoring was: S.N.P.C. 108 points; N.P.C. 52 points.

Matt for a Yorksher.
Mr. Matt Broadley was at the Jubilee Show, after a lapse of seven years since his last journey to the great glass house. He was looking as well and as jovial as ever.

Curly Locks.
Great interest was shown by the fair sex in the Frills. How the curling is done puzzles them. "It can't be natural, you know," we repeatedly heard them saying.

All in Luck.
In the S.N.P.C. competition for the year, Mr. J. W. Rennie wins the £10 10s. cup with 137 points; and the £3 3s. trophy with 102 points. Mr. Hodder is the runner up in each instance. The S.N.P.C. has a balance in hand of about £21, after paying all expenses.

The Old Brigade.
It is astonishing how "old-timers" turn up at each Palace Show, just to have a look round and to chat about the champions of the past. The "bird fever" is a disease that is very hard to cure. Some of these "old boys" don't own a feather now—unless it's one in the wife's hat.

A Nightmare.
It was said by one who shall be nameless, that he caught the popular show manager sitting apart, pondering. When aroused and questioned, he said: "I was just indulging in a quiet hope that never more might a White Canary be seen at the Palace. It has been awful"—the worry, he meant, not the Canary.

Birds of a Feather.
Many a merry party gathered round the tea tables. But just look at them carefully: all Norwich at this table, all Yorkshires at that, Cres's at another, and so on. Who says there is bad blood in the Bird Fancy? It is just pure friendly rivalry, and each is delighted to meet his fellow competitor at the show.

All's Well that Ends Well.
It is a long way round by Shepherd's Bush to get to the Palace, but some appear to prefer that route, even if they get landed on the second venture down Peckham way. Still, "Pa" from Yorkshire eventually picked them up, and passed the time by relating some spicy little stories—but we must not repeat them.

For the Lancashires.
Frank Green, of Redhill, the Lancashire enthusiast, is not quite satisfied with the Lancashire show cage, and has had one made to his own design. A select little party ran a Coppy into it, and the effect was certainly most striking. The experiment attracted a good deal of attention—but more anon.

The Homeward Journey.
By 10 o'clock on the Tuesday night four-fifths of the birds had been dispatched from the show. It was, Mr. Ramsden said, quite impossible to entirely clear the show, there being so many birds to attend to. The remainder were sent off to their respective owners by early trains on the Wednesday morning, receiving every attention during the night.

Dragged Up.
The Dutch Frills were a puzzle to the average visitor, and the comments based on their appearance were often very amusing. We noticed one sweet young thing gaze at them for a moment in blank astonishment. Then she remarked indignantly to her friend: "What awfully untidy birds their parents must have been to let their features get in such a state."

A Cross Question.
The visitors were nearly as varied as the exhibits; and some knew little about each other. One dear old lady asked our artist if he was the "bird-minder," and, if so, would he please see what was the matter with this bird's beak, as it crossed it so badly. He tried to explain to her that was quite natural. It was a Crossbill. But she wasn't having any. Would he, she asked, show her another like it, please? And he couldn't.

Eggspensive.
Mr. C. Roehl's pair of Black-faced Lovebirds laid three eggs during the show. One begins to wonder whether it is not high time the management included an egg-laying competition in the programme. A utility class for foreign birds, eh? We understand that two lads went to the sales office and inquired whether they could purchase the eggs. "Yes, certainly," came the reply, "if you buy the birds with them." Needless to say, the lads went and had a last sad look at the eggs.

Want of Thought.
It is curious how unthinking some exhibitors can be. We noted one or two cases where the hole in front of the water tin was too small to properly permit the bird to drink. One bird in the Greenfinch class (No. 2,068) could hardly get the tip of his beak through the water hole, and was looking very sick and queer when we discovered his plight, and put the water-glass inside to him. Points like these ought never to be overlooked by owners of birds.

The Early Birds.
Almost without exception the birds arrived at the show in good time, and were soon in their places, everything being early in readiness for the judges. We were sorry to note that one exhibitor, a well-known Wellingboro' fancier, suffered in some cases through his birds turning up late. The cages belonging to Mr. E. Pass (Hucknall), also came to hand too late for competition. We understand the "smash" on the Midland line near Bedford had something to do with this.

The L. and P.O.S. resident.
The president of the L. and P.O.S., Lord Decies, paid a visit to the show. His lordship had only just returned from the Continent. We noticed him busy choosing cages at Mr. Newley's stall, with whom he placed a large order.

Airy Persiflage.
Mr. Spencer, the well-known balloonist, was present, we hear, at the show, and when introduced to Mr. Ramsden said: "I am pleased to meet you. You and I ought to know one another, for we both deal with things which fly in the air."

The Fifty-first.
The directors of the Crystal Palace have been pleased to fix the dates of next year's exhibition for February 4th, 5th, 7th, and 8th. We understand that there is every prospect of the present troubles of the "Glass House" being smoothed away at an early date.

Good for the Bank Balance.
The sales easily constituted a record, numbering close upon 400, and totalling nearly £330—last year £260 was the figure. The catalogues (a record printing, too), were "sold out" early on the Monday evening. There was also a record number of stall-holders patronising the exhibition.

Out on the Spree.
A pair of Black-cheeked Lovebirds and a Cirl Bunting took a jaunt round the Palace, and, so far as we know, have not been recaptured. The show-cage of the former had a sliding back; this collapsed, and the birds said good-bye. The door of the Bunting's showcage was open on arrival, and before it was noticed, out the bird popped.

Hybrids at a Premium.
Messrs. Ruhl and Duesburg, visitors from Belgium, put up some keen bidding for rare Mules and Hybrids. They seemed particularly anxious of getting hold of Canary-Bullfinches and, we understand, offered a certain lady, who has been very fortunate in breeding them, £30 for three of her birds.

Heartburnings.
The cage classes are notorious for the difficulty experienced in satisfying the exhibitors therein in the matter of the awards. This year was no exception to the rule, notwithstanding the fact that the judge had the assistance of two well-known fanciers in his task.

Not Found Wanting.
We have reason to believe that several exhibits aroused the curiosity of the judges, and were put to the test, but came through with all colours standing, so to speak. Some unkind person suggested that the exhibitors were getting too clever for their friends the judges. We wonder if it is true?

We Hope So.
We heard that certain information had come to light concerning the recent mysterious disappearance of a cage of birds from a show in the Midlands, that might lead to some of the missing ones being restored to their owner, and possibly to the discovery and punishment of the thief. We hope the rumour may prove to be correct.

Move On There!
On Saturday, for the first time in the history of the Palace Shows, the doors had to be shut owing to the great number of people seeking admission, and the crowds regulated by policemen. At one time a section of the crowd broke the barrier at one corner of the enclosure, tore away the curtains which screen it, and poured in by the score. But Robert soon came to the rescue.

As it Should Be.
The exhibits were splendidly cared for from the first moment they entered the show enclosure to the time of their despatch home. On the Sunday every cage was cleaned, and the water and seed vessels washed out and attended to, by the special staff under the personal direction of Messrs J. W. Ramsden, J. F. Hills, Geo. Crabb, J. W. Norris, and T. Heath.

The Much Be-paragraphed.
To a man the representatives of the daily Press froze on to the white Canary. They must have turned out columns of "copy" concerning this bird. His only serious rival in their affections was the King Bird of Paradise. The visitors who turned up inquiring for the said-to-be "one and only" were legion, and the officials were kept busy piloting expectant patrons to the spot where the Canary of the snow-white plumage sat the perch in solitary state. Truly, it was a great scoop to have him on the premises.

Sympathetic Tones.
One of the most amusing incidents in connection with the Palace Show was the demonstration of Yorkshire vocal ability en route from the Show to the Great City on Saturday evening. A venerable fancier from somewhere near the vicinity of the Norfolk Broads was in the carriage, gay as gay could be, face all smiles, and heart light as air. The Yorkshire lads and lasses, appropriating the words of the song to the occasion sang, as our old friend sat with uncovered head, "As your hair grows whiter we will love you more."

A True Tail.
On the Monday a dear old soul arrived and asked to be shown the Bird of Paradise. She was escorted to it by—well, no matter. She contemplated the bird for a moment, then said: "Oh! so that's it, is it. Well, where's it's tail?" The two wire-like appendages were pointed out to her. "Call that a tail," she exclaimed; "why, they're only two bits of wire. I like to see some feathers, and plenty of 'em." And she turned disgustedly away. Evidently the sort of person who will be particular about her own feathers later on.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions:—

For Rules see page 114 of last week's issue.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—G. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., &c., Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Crestbred with Cough.

Novice.—You do not say whether the bird is kept in a warm or cold room. If it is a cold one this particular bird is probably rather more than usually susceptible, and should be kept in a cosy corner of the room. This is assuming that it has not got a chill after bathing, nor been temporarily exposed to some stray draught. In addition to the present diet you are allowing him give half a teaspoonful of hemp twice a week, and three times a week for the next fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushd sponge cake with two drops of sherry and one drop of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and a few grains of gold of pleasure sprinkled over it. Alternate these additions with the other extra items, so that a different one is given each day. Continue to give the apple or banana in addition to the extra items of seeds and soft food. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whiskey, ten each of glycerine and syrup of squills, and one of oil of eucalyptus, well shaken together every second day for a week, and in the following week give twenty drops of chemical food every second day instead.

Belgians and Yorkshires.

"Pendletonian."—There is no need to make any difference whatever in the manner of feeding and preparing these varieties for breeding other than the regular routine system for any other variety which is frequently given in this column. A staple diet of plain Canary seed only, with a pinch of summer rape twice a week, and a few grains of hemp on two other days for the cocks, and a similar quantity of inga on those days for the hens instead of hemp, and half-a-spoonful egg food once a week will suffice up to the end of February. About this time begin to increase the frequency of the extra supply of rape and egg food, and give the hens a few grains of hemp occasionally, and any of the cocks that appear backward a few grains of inga now and again, and also add a pinch of gold of pleasure seed to their egg food. Always keep the cocks well up in vigour until ready to mate. By the end of March you should be giving a small quantity of egg food every second day, and on each alternate day a pinch of the extra seeds named above, and a leaf of dandelion about every second day, with a scrap of any other green food on the alternate days. The end of March or beginning of April is quite early enough to put the birds together.

Strange Behaviour.

J.S.M.—I do not see much wrong at all in the way you say the birds act. All birds have a habit of yawning and acting as you say at times, and it is not infrequently noticed after eating, especially when partaking of soft food, and when the birds rouse up from a few minutes' rest and are about to visit the food vessels. In the latter case I often think it is probably a little indigestion, or perhaps nothing more than ennui. It is just possible, however, that your birds have been previously accustomed to have gravel on the floor, and now get picking about among the saw-dust, and perhaps nibbling at it and causing some irritation in the mouth and throat. Try giving them a shallow pan of grit on the floor, and in the wires stick a small cube of fat boiled pork or bacon, and add as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, the same quantity of chlorate of potash, and ten drops of glycerine, to the drinking water every second day for a week or so. Your feeding is scarcely correct. In addition to the staple of Canary seed, give the rape twice a week only, and on two other days give each a few grains of inga. Once a week for the present will be often enough to give egg food. Every second or third day give a scrap of green food when obtainable quite free from frost instead of the apple. See also reply to "Pendletonian."

Backyard Aviary.

"Cupboard."—I. I do not think it is possible to give you a satisfactory reply to this question. Only by having an intimate knowledge of the spot, or being on the spot to examine it, could one give a definite reply. If you were quite sure there are no cutting draughts, or cold winds, or driving rain to blow into the recess, and it is well lit—not necessarily having direct sunshine—I should say the birds would thrive all right in the space with all the glass removed from the doors so that the cages would be practically in the open air. This would be far preferable to any attempt to ventilate it. How the latter could be done efficiently, I could only suggest after seeing a rough sketch of the place, and knowing of what material the body is built. If you could manage this, I might be able to help you. 2. See reply to "Pendletonian" in this issue, and get "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., from this office. You will find the latter invaluable this coming season. 3. The best sort of foster-mother for young Mules is any really good feeding hen—generally a common Norwich or nondescript answers well. You must have this hen properly mated and going to nest about the same time as the Muling pair, so that you can, when necessary, substitute the young Mules or eggs for those of the foster-mother, the eggs or the young, as the case may be, of the latter being sacrificed. From this you will gather that the Mule eggs you now have will probably be sacrificed, unless the Finch rears them herself, or you hand-rear them. Next time, get the prospective foster-mother at work ready for any emergency.

A Nocturnal Wheeze.

"Rita."—As your bird seems to be disturbed in his rest only during the early part of the night, there are two possible causes which you should first satisfy yourself do not exist, and if they do, you must remedy them; first, that the cage may have a colony of red mites in it, which come out and worry the bird as soon as it has settled down to rest; secondly, that the cage may hang in such a position as to receive more or less heat and fumes from a burning lamp or gas. Your feeding is very unsuitable. The staple mixture of which you sent a sample is really only suitable for occasional use as a tit-bit. The other mixture is almost worse than useless for caged Canaries. Try following treatment for a month and note result. For staple, give a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape. Twice a week give separately, in addition, half-a-teaspoonful of the mixture you now use as a staple, and on two other days a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake, or egg food. Three or four times a week give a little green food. In the drinking water give a few grains of Epsom salts every second day for a week, and during the next week ten drops of glycerine and five eaoh of syrup of squills and tincture of tolu every second day.

Swollen Abdomen.

H.C.L.—You ought to have said how this bird has been fed and treated. It is almost useless trying to advise for a case of this kind without some reliable data to go upon, and you give me absolutely none. At a random guess I should imagine the bird is blocked up with fat, so if you like to try the following for a fortnight and then report result, and give me some particulars as to how and where the bird has been previously kept, you may do so. In any case, I do not think this treatment can do harm. Keep it is a comfortable temperature, free from draught, and allow plenty of space for exercise. Give plain Canary only, with an unlimited supply of green food as staple diet. Twice a week give half-a-teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, and restrict it solely to this simple diet. In the drinking water give six drops of dandelion juice, as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and the same quantity of chlorate of potash daily for four or five consecutive days. For the remainder of the week give four drops of aromatic sulphuric acid. During the second week give the first-named mixture every second day, and the acid on the alternate days. When writing again please refer to this reply, or enclose it with your letter.

A Duet.

R.A.W.—(1) Your name no object whatever in mating the buff Belgian cock. If you wish to breed pure Belgians, then, of course, you must mate it to a pure Belgian hen, either a foul-marked yellow or a yellow with dark underflue for preference. All other points in type must be balanced as evenly as possible in the two birds; thus, if the cock fails in length of neck, snakiness, or any other point, the hen must be chosen to excel in these points, even if colour has to take a back seat in making the points match. (2) The noise like the cracking of seed your bird makes at night is of no account whatever. Provided the birds are quite free from draught, and are not troubled with red mite at night, no treatment is really necessary for this "cracking" of the beak, which is probably somewhat analogous to a man gnashing his teeth when asleep. You may, if you like, give it six drops of dandelion juice and two of oil of eucalyptus well shaken together in the water, every alternate day for a week.

Lost Use of Legs.

A. C. G.—I fear the prospects of curing this bird are not very bright. It evidently required more generous treatment to build up its strength before its system was called on to bear any extra strain by illness. Now, it is very probably too late for treatment to be of any avail. Anyway, try what the following will do for it. Keep in a medium sized cage, or put an extra perch or two in the ordinary cage, until it gets strong enough to move about freely. Keep in a comfortable temperature, where the warmth is regular, but do not overheat it. Give plain Canary seed only as staple diet, and twice a week give half-a-teaspoonful of summer rape, and every second day the same quantity of egg food, or crushed sponge cake, with two drops of port wine and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and on the alternate days between giving this, give two mealworms, and a bit of banana or apple—the former preferably. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for two days, and after that give twenty drops of Chemical Food every second day for a month, and on the alternate days in the first and third weeks, give thirty drops of port wine, and two each of tincture of steel and tincture of gentian. Shall be glad to hear how the bird is at the end of the month, and will then advise further if necessary. You could get the sand you enquire about in bulk or in small lots, from the factory at Bristol. Doubtless a letter addressed to them, giving the addresses of your local bird food dealers, would set matters right.

Canary in Bad Plumage.

A Novice.—The bird's condition is undoubtedly due to prolonged mismanagement, and is by no means a very hopeful one for you to undertake with a limited knowledge of the subject. I certainly do not advise you to attempt to force a moult now; seeing that new feathers are now being reproduced, it is undoubtedly moulting without any forcing. All you need do is to keep it in a box cage, quite free from draughts, in a fairly warm place, where the heat is regular night and day, and in a rather moist rather than dry warmth. If there is any danger of draught at all, cover the cage-front with some light material, and let the moult progress naturally. Keep cage perfectly clean, free from any suspicion of red mite, and strew with clean, gritty sand. Allow it to bathe frequently in mild weather. As regards food, give a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Once a week give a few grains only of hemp; on one other day a few grains of linseed; and every second day give half-a-teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake or egg food with two drops of cod-liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and once each week for a month slightly dust it over with a mixture of two parts of flowers of sulphur to one part chlorate of potash. If available, a couple of mealworms a day for a time would do good. Give a spray of green food or a bit of banana as a substitute three or four times a week. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence and six drops each of lemon-juice and dandelion juice, every second day for a week; then omit it for a week, and give it again in the following week. On the alternate days, from the first give twenty drops of chemical food, and continue this right through for a month. Shall be glad to hear at the end of that time how the bird is progressing. Advise its owner to read CAGE BIRDS, and get "Canary Breeding for Beginners."

Failing Eyesight.

H.C.B.—Having regard to the bird's age, I think it most likely cataract may be developing. If so, you will notice a peculiar milky white colour pervading the eye if you examine it in a good light. For this there is practically no cure at all, nor any remedy that is applicable to cage birds. You may, if you like, try the effect of the following ointment, but I cannot hold out any hopes of its curing the bird. Get a chemist to mix you two grains of red oxide of mercury in two drams of spermaceti ointment. Catch the bird three times a week, and put a tiny piece, the size of a pin's head, in the eye, holding the bird a short time whilst the ointment melts, gently assisting it to work its way around and underneath the eyelid. The ointment is poisonous, so be careful. Shall be glad to hear result in a month or so. As regards food, discontinue the hemp, and give instead half-a-teaspoonful of egg food with one drop of cod-liver oil emulsion mixed in it, three times a week for a time, and add fifteen drops of chemical food to the water every second day for a month.

The Important Postscript.

Anxious.—Your postscript is about the most essential part of your letter, as without it there would not have been the very slightest clue as to how the birds are fed; and, as it is, the information is not very helpful, as "the ordinary mixed seed" which you say they are fed on might mean anything. The chances, however, are all in favour of it meaning a most unsuitable diet, which is doubtless the cause of the bird's condition. Indeed, everything points to very bad management, and I doubt whether you will meet with any success with these birds. Keep them in fair-sized box cages, which must be perfectly clean and free from any red-mites, and strew them regularly with clean, gritty sand. Keep them in a comfortable temperature, not overheated, nor yet very cold, but see that the warmth, whatever degree it may be, is fairly regular day and night, and not extremely fluctuating—first very hot, and then cold. Draughts, of course, must be rigorously excluded. Put them on a diet of plain Canary seed only as a staple, and give separately twice each week half a teaspoonful of rape per bird, and every second day giv a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with two drops of sherry and one drop of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with a little maw seed. Twice each week for the next fortnight add to th sponge cake a very slight dusting of a mixture of two parts flour of sulpbur to one part chlorate of potash. If obtainable, give a small spray of tender young chickweed or groundsel, free from any wet or frost, three times a week. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whiskey, ten of glycerine, and two of oil of eucalyptus, well shaken together, every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days give twenty drops of chemical food. Shall be glad to hear how birds are in a month.

A Bad Start.

Disheartened.—Am sorry to hear your first attempt at Canary-breeding has been so unfortunate, and trust you will have more success this coming season. To a certain extent, I am afraid your treatment and management generally have been a chief cause of your failure, and as it is impossible to give all the details as to proper management of the breeding stock in this column, I would advise you to get "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d. post free, from this office, and thoroughly digest its contents before the breeding season arrives. The kitchen is not by any means an ideal place to keep the birds in on account of the great fluctuations of temperature, which are usually unavoidable. But if there is no other place available for you, then keep the birds in a place that will afford the least possible variations, and that is perfectly free from draughts. Keep the cages clean, see they are quite free from red mite, and strew the floors with gritty sand. Supply baths regularly, and if there is any suspicion of red mite, add a few quassia chips to the bathing water twice a week. This latter point should be attended to at once, as I am inclined to think the birds are even now troubled with these pests. Feed on plain Canary only as a staple, and give separately half-a-teaspoonful of summer rape twice a week, the same quantity crushed sponge cake the same number of times, and on two other days give the cocks a few grains of hemp, and the hens a pinch of inga. Give a little green food three or four times a week. Give all the extras named separately and alternately, so that a different one is given each day. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and six drops of lemon-juice every second day for a week, and after that twenty drops of chemical food every second day for two or three weeks. Shall be glad to hear what improvement has taken place at the end of a month.

Flying Feathers.

W. Jones.—In the case of the bird that is still continually moulting, I have not the least doubt but that it is either exposed to draughts or great variations of temperature, and as you appear to think it is quite free from draughts it must be the latter cause that is at work. Does the bird hang where it is very warm by day, and likely to be proportionately cold during the night?; or is it anywhere near a burning lamp or gas jet during the evening that would overheat it? If it is, this must be remedied. Keep it in a comfortable temperature, where the warmth is regular night and day. Feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Give separately twice a week half a teaspoonful of hemp, and every second day for a fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of sherry and one drop of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it. Three times a week give a scrap of green food, when available, free from frost. Limit the diet solely to this, and after the first fortnight reduce the sponge cake to twice a week. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and after that give six drops of dandelion juice, and two each of tincture of gentian and tincture of steel every second day, and twenty drops of chemical food on the alternate days. Continue this until the moulting has quite ceased. Feed the bird that does not sing, but appears quite well, the same as above for a fortnight, except that the sponge cake should be given only twice a week, and a few grains of inga and gold of pleasure strewn over it. In the drinking water, after giving the salts as above, give twenty drops of whiskey and ten of glycerine every second day for a week, and on the alternate days two drops each of tincture of gentian and tincture of steel. If it should show no signs of beginning to sing by that time, I should have a doubt about it being a cock.

Brevities.

A Removal (Novice).—Let your bird remain in the kitchen, still in the coolest part, but see he is quite free from draught, until towards the end of March. At any time between the middle of March and the first week in April you may take advantage of any mild weather for a few day to move him to his new quarters for breeding, and allow him a few more days in which to settle down before introducing the hen. Be chary of mating up too early. The first week in April will be quite early enough to begin in a cold room. By taking these simple precautions the removal should not affect his health or breeding.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Which Goldie and Bullie is Best?

Novice (W T.)—Russian and Siberian Goldfinches are much larger than either German or British Goldies, and have much more white in their plumage; the Siberians are the largest and finest of all. Most Germans are the same size as British Goldies, and many cannot be told from them, though they are usually of an appreciably whiter cast of plumage. Russian and Siberian Bullfinches are very much bigger and finer than British Bullies, taken as a whole. The German Bullies which come into this country are mostly "broken pipers"—that is, hand-reared birds which have failed to learn their lessons. They are, of course, usually very tame, also usually very difficult for most people to tell from English Bullfinches. Either of the Goldfinches is quite likely to breed, though fanciers seem inclined to the opinion that Britishers are rather more free than the others. The Siberians certainly breed the biggest Mules. Any of the hen Bullfinches are also likely to breed. Some fancy one, some another—the hand-reared German hens especially, though some say they are very disappointing. The Siberians, here again, would throw the largest young. The kind of Bullie hen I have found best is a very long one, not too stout in build (one that does not put on too much under fat) and which moves about in a lively fashion without, of course, being wild. The same remarks apply equally to the Goldfinch The very heavy, fat, sluggish kind seldom do much good as breeders. A very big English Goldfinch is a grand bird to have in one's room.

Feeding a Linnet.

Enquirist—I answered this query only about a fortnight ago. Pity readers do not look up recent back numbers, and so save themselves time and trouble. This is how I feed my own Linnets, with the best of results, both as regards song, muling and exhibition. Stock seed mixture: Canary three pints, teazle two pints, summer rape, charlock, and linseed one pint each. In the winter (if the birds are in a cold room) and during the moult, about one pint of hemp should be added to the stock mixture. A feed of maw and niger, and a good wild seed mixture can be given frequently (varied) by way of a change. Let them have a little green-food, especially rape seedlings, in the winter, and ripe seeding shepherd's purse, chickweed, plantain and groundsel freely in the summer. Many good makers put up a special Linnet (or Finch) mixture in packets, and a feed of this occasionally makes an acceptable variation from the ordinary stock mixture To bring them on to song and in condition quickly after the moult, the great "secret" is to give them plenty of the best old hemp, and crack it lightly, so that they feed well off it. Also put in the "side-pan," or "tit-bit" drawer, daily a teaspoonful of the following mixture: Two ounces each of gold of pleasure, niger, sesame, and thistle, one ounce each of mustard (the golden-yellow seed), dandelion, maw, cornflower and lettuce. It is the finest "wild seed mixture," or "tit-bit" or "refresher" (call it what you will) that I know, and there is no waste. This treatment will bring any bird into breeding condition at the earliest possible moment.

Steadying an Unruly Bird.

Chaffie.—Am afraid you have set yourself a very thankless task. A "mad" cock Chaffinch is one of the very worst birds to steady. Some are not worth bothering with—if mine, I should feel inclined to open the cage door and let him clear away, and then try another bird. What sort of cage are you keeping him in, however? The only suitable one for a bird like this is a cage wired in front only, about 14 by 10 by 8, with inside food trough and two perches about on a level with top of the latter —in short, the Finch stock-cage sold by most of the cage-makers advertising in these columns. The cage should be hung in some suitable light spot, but away from a window, and be partly sheeted down with a light cover. Feed and clean him out in a very quiet way, and try to get him to take a mealworm from your fingers. When moulted under the above conditions, he may come out nice and steady. Yes; it is generally very old birds which are the worst to get tame. It is impossible to prevent them breaking their plumage. It is often a good and satisfactory dodge (as you have heard) to hand-wash a refractory bird two or three times, allowing a fair interval between each operation. It often has a wonderfully steadying effect.

About Mule Breeding.

Arthur Whyte.—The foods for both Greenfinch and Linnet are given in reply to another querist this week; kindly refer thereto. A little prepared packet egg-food, if made by a good firm, is quite suitable for use with any caged birds which show a liking for it. During the breeding season I personally always use egg and biscuit or egg and bread prepared fresh every day. You must please yourself what course you will pursue. There are certainly some good egg-foods on the market now. Young bred from hens of Yorks. type generally come somewhat slimmer in build to young bred from hens of Norwich type. If good singing Mules only are wanted, however, one kind of hen is quite as good as the other. To get the Linnet into high breeding condition, give it on different days in the week pinches of hemp, niger, maw, and dandelion, etc., seeds, as advised "Enquirist." You must look out for early tender dandelion leaves and the flowering and seeding heads, and give the bird a free supply, seeing they are never in a frosted condition when offered. Dandelion is invaluable as a "conditioner" for breeding birds. For early supplies, look on sheltered banks (railway embankments, for instance) which face south. Also let the bird have sprigs of seeding shepherd's-purse, and chickweed and flowering groundsel tops, looking out for the earliest possible supplies. The hen Canary does not want forcing, or she will go to nest before the Linnet is fit, and the result will be disappointment, in the shape of clear eggs. Let her have good, sound canary seed only, with a little summer rape every second day, and a "nip" of hemp and niger twice a week. A small feed of egg-food once or twice a week will do her no harm; plenty of time to give it oftener when the month of March is drawing to a close. In these matters, however, all fanciers must use their judgment according to the breeding condition or otherwise of their birds.

Management of a Hawfinch.

Southfields.—Pleased to hear that you were smitten with the Hawfinch, and have entered the Fancy by claiming one at the Palace. I remember the bird; I think he was very good value for the money. As regards the proper feeding, the principal food for a caged Hawfinch is sound, plump, white sunflower seed, or mixed sunflower and safflower. Sunflower seed which is black, or striped, however, is not bad, by any means; still, I prefer white, myself, whenever obtainable. Given this, and a mealworm or two every day or so, the bird asks for little more. The mealworms, however, should be given direct from the fingers; they are a great help in keeping (and getting) a bird steady. The bird also appreciates hemp, linseed, canary, oats, and sometimes a little buckwheat, summer rape, small Indian corn, etc His powerful beak makes short work of beechmast, suitable nuts (walnuts, etc.), plum and cherry stones, hawthorn, privet, etc., berries and the like. Green food they are not particularly keen on, but appreciate a little young lettuce, watercress, chickweed, shepherd's purse, also ripe apple, pear, etc., occasionally. They make an exception in favour of tender green garden peas, of which they are passionately fond, and these are especially good given in the pod. They are fond of a bath, so let him have one whenever the weather is suitable; daily, if possible. The free use of water is the finest possible thing to keep him in good condition.

Management of Bullfineh.

Miss Vincent.—As a stock food for Bullfinches at present you could hardly better Canary and teazle three piuts of each, linseed, summer rape, and charlock, half a pint of each. Iu a finger drawer (or separate dish), however, the following would need to be given, in addition, to provide the necessary variety:—A small dessert-spoonful of sunflower seed or safflower seed, every day, except when giving hemp, of which the bird may have a teaspoonful once a week, say, for a Sunday treat. In a tin you could keep a mixture of niger two parts, maw three parts, and give a pinch twice a week. Then you have thistle and dandelion seed and wild seed mixture, small feeds of which may also be occasionally given. Or the special mixture advised "Exquirist" this week would answer admirably. Thus your bird can be provided with a "grateful and comforting" change in the menu daily. For green foods give any of the following, according to season:—Shepherd's-purse, dandelion, groundsel tops, chickweed, flowering grasses, watercress, lettuce, rape or Canary seedlings, etc. The seeding kinds may be freely given. Bullies are very fond of many berries (black, privet, etc.), also fruit, and the buds of fruit trees and bushes; on such things they feed largely when wild. Charlock, dock, thistles, hard-heads, and many other wild seeding plants, these birds are also very fond of, likewise mealworms. Treated on the above lines, your pet should thrive splendidly and moult a good colour.

Muling Greenfinches and Goldfinches.

Beginner.—If you are keeping cocks and hens together, it is always somewhat difficult to suit the needs of each. As I have often said, muling hens, when a first round of Canaries is not being taken, want keeping back in condition as long as is possible. To give them the run of the Finch's stimulating diet tends, of course, in the reverse direction. If they are "sent to nest" before the Finch is ready, then clear eggs result—waste of time and trouble. It is for this reason that the double breeding cage is so advantageous to the Mule-breeder, and especially to one with but limited cages and cage-room. However, the Greenfinch-Canary couple is not difficult to cater for. They will do well on canary and teazle, equal parts, and a little summer rape, which seeds will not hurt the wife. Give a little maw, inga, and hemp now and again in a finger drawer, or throw on the clean sand. The Greenfineh will have to have some sunflower daily. He will shell the latter easily enough, whereas the Canary will experience some difficulty in doing so, and so is not likely to overgorge herself on it. I do not care to keep a Goldfinch without a free supply of hemp, and, of course, his mate is certain to help herself freely to this. The best plan, if one can manage it, is to give canary, teazle, and a little rape (as mentioned previously) in the hopper and twice or thrice a day give a small feed of hemp in a finger drawer. Mr. Goldie is sure to go to this at once and fill himself out with it, when there will be but little left over for his wife. Of course, you will give him also maw, inga, etc., now and again. Look out for dandelion heads and young, tender leaves—a free supply works wonders in getting all muling Finches into prime condition. Give also flowering chickweed, groundsel, and shepherd's purse—these should be freely used, taking care to remove all traces of frost from them, if any. If cock and hen are kept separate, then the Canaries simply want the plain diet mentioned in other replies. Later on in the season, when the nesting time may be said to be here, and other Finches are fit, it does not matter about the hen Canaries having the stimulating seeds

Brevities.

Blackbird Not Singing (W.A.L.).—The bird certainly ought to be singing now. I advise you to give it a fair supply of live food, say a dozen fat mealworms daily, a few snails (provide a biggish stone in the cage for the bird to bang them on), also gentles and blackbeetles (cockroaches); all these things are far from difficult to obtain, in proper season, and ought to bring the bird out in song. Vary them, of course; do not give all at the same time. The food wants supplementing with other things—crushed dog biscuit, or game meal without grit, moistened with hot water; and finely minced hard-boiled egg, and a little scraped raw lean beef or mutton, to mention a few.

Three Items (A.M.).—1. I do not know of anything which will prevent a Redstart's tail getting broken journeying to and from a show. It is a risk one has to take with all birds; but especially with Softbills; 2. It is good if mixed with other food, or other ingredients; not for use alone. 3. Yes; after they have been moulted. The only drawback is the time they take, usually, getting steady.

Bullfinches (J. Rhind).—Yes; it would be possible to breed with a pair of Bullfinches in an outdoor aviary the size you mention. Feed on the same lines as advised another querist this week, giving plenty of seeding green foods, especially if they have young. A young Bullie certainly might learn part of the song of a Roller Canary. Young (if any) bred from chronically asthmatic parents would be sure to be asthmatical themselves.

Starlings (Novice).—I really don't think you stand the slightest chance of breeding Starlings in a three-foot cage; it is hardly big enough to keep one bird in. The hen is a browner-tinged, dingy bird compared with the cock (though more heavily and distinctly spotted), lacking the lustre seen in his coat. He has a yellow beak during the breeding season; his wife has not. The cock is duller when in winter plumage.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Crossing Java Sparrows.

E. S. Cornwall.—Yes, the two varieties, white and grey, readily cross, the resulting progeny being about 90 per cent. pure greys, and the remainder pied birds, many of which are, however, very handsome. If the pure greys resulting from the cross are mated up with wild imported birds they breed very readily and true to colour. The imported Grey Javas show very little inclination to breed in captivity, but by crossing them a free breeding strain is produced which will breed true to colour as above. I should hesitate to turn birds out of doors till April, that is, if they have been kept indoors for some months. The white variety appears to be more susceptible to cold than the grey, but will fare well enough if turned out when the winter is past. Keep them together in the cage, and let them have plenty of exercise and they will probably promptly go to nest as soon as turned out in the spring.

Amazon Parrot Retching.

G.A.C.W.—Am at a loss how to advise you, as you give me no idea as to how you are dieting and treating the bird. If you will repeat query in full with these particulars, I shall be in a position to advise you. In the meantime for one day put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water. If you consider the bird has a cold, get from your chemist the following mixture: Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills, and glycerine in equal parts; take a small portion of the mixture, add double its bulk of water and offer to the bird in a spoon two or three times a day. After it has had what it will take, the balance may be put into the drinking water. Do not give tea, coffee or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever.

Concerning Gouldians, etc.

Novice.—You need not be anxious about your Gouldian Finch; many Australian Finches moult about this time, but when kept in a room which has a very variable temperature, such often causes a moult out of season. So long as they agree together, the other birds will do well enough together. The only harm that is likely to arise from the association of other birds of similar habits and food, is the danger of one of them running "amok," and slaughtering some of its companions. Yes, Gouldian Finches breed in captivity, and if you get for them a roomy breeding cage, there is no reason why yours should not do so. You cannot do better than carry out the instructions given in my booklet. Such a book as you enquire for will be published at no distant date at this office. If you care to send me your address for the Editor, I will send you one of my pamphlets on the Gouldian Finch. There is but little difference between the winter and summer plumage of adult Gouldian Finches.

Birds for Outdoor Aviary.

A.B.C.—(1) Your aviary will accommodate 75 birds the size of a Norwich Canary without overcrowding. In the first place I advise you to let the Chaffinch and Robin go; they are dangerous in a mixed series of British and foreign birds, as also are Bramblefinches and all Tits. You can add Redpolls, Siskin, Twite, and Bullfinch if you desire. Commence with the following: Ribbon Finches, Grey Java Sparrows, Long-tailed Grassfinches, Grey and Green Singing Finches, Common and Green Avadavats, Zebra Waxbills, Orange and Madagascar Weavers. Pekin Robins are quite hardy, but would probably steal the Canaries' eggs. (2) These are all hens; the young cocks usually get the chestnut ear patches and other distinctive markings when about two months old. (3) The sexual distinctions are infinitesimal, and you will have to rely on the test of song; you can keep both varieties of Singing Finches with your Canaries. I am of the opinion the Singing Finches would survive your winter. 5s. to 7s. 6d. (4) The birds offered at very low rates are usually out of colour and you have to take your chances as to whether they are cocks or hens. Orange and Madagascar Weavers or Bishops in colour are worth from 5s. to 7s. 6d. each, according to state of market. Yes. (5) Before naming other kinds I should like to know a little more about your aviary, as the diagram you supply does not show any shelter, only a small space roofed over. Every outdoor aviary should have a shelter shed; this is a sine qua non, and it seems to me you should be able to arrange such against that part marked "Wood side" on diagram. You must also fix up in sheltered portions weatherproof nest boxes, which the birds can use as desired. Please give me a fuller description of your aviary. I can then give you further information. Please supply sufficient details for me to connect up the two queries when you next write. Note: New arrivals must not be put ont of doors till spring, later or earlier according to weather.

Greenhouse Aviary.

T. J. James.—If the damp atmosphere is not too pronounced, that is sufficient to making the woodwork, etc., steamy and moist, your arrangement would answer admirably, and under the conditions you name I do not think that with ordinary cleanliness you need fear insect pests, and can leave the fittings as they are. Make the inside flight roomy so as to enable the birds to take plenty of exercise. The Cordon Bleus should thrive well under the conditions you name. You do not state your county, so I can hardly answer you re Shama and Tanagers out of doors. The Tanagers I have wintered out of doors belong to the genus Tanagra, such as Scarlet, Maroon, Blue, etc. The genus Calliste, which consists of such as Superb, Tricolor, etc., I have not yet wintered out of doors, so cannot advise others to do so till I have first tested their hardiness. You can add the Rosellas to your present stock in your outdoor aviary The Shama would do well enough either indoors or ont, but a Shama must not be kept with smaller or weaker birds than itself; it would ultimately slaughter all such, if not straight away, at intervals. Cage the Shama up separately and give him either a cage or enclosure 3 by 2 by 4 feet high, and he will do well and be a source of interest and delight. If I have not fully met your need, please repeat query.

Virginian Nightingales.

H. B. T.—This bird was evidently in poor condition when the moult took place, and I fear nothing much can be done to improve it till the next moult. You do not say whether you have it in cage or aviary, but I fancy the former; if so, removing it into a room warmer than the one it at present occupies may throw it into moult again, and as soon as the feathers are formed again, it could be moved into cooler quarters gradually. Put half a teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water for one day, and follow this by putting it on a course of Parrish's Chemical Food for a few weeks, using sufficient to make the drinking water the colour of pale port wine. Your diet is very satisfactory, and cannot well be improved upon, but do not overdo the grocer's currants and supply ripe fruit ad lib. Shall be interested if you will kindly report progress a little later.

An Ailing Budgerigar.

A. N. Evans.—Am of opinion your Budgerigar is suffering chiefly from lack of exercise; when confined in restricted quarters, birds fall an easy prey to any chance draught that comes their way and are very susceptible to every change of atmosphere. You have done right to give chemical food, but for one day I should put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water. Also give them a piece of ripe apple daily in addition to the diet you give, which is very satisfactory. Continue the chemical food. Send me full details of the size of your cage, also the breeding cage, average temperature of room you keep them in, and I shall be in a position to fully advise you. If the bird does not improve you will have to get another for breeding purposes. It is waste of time and money to attempt breeding with birds not in first-class condition; the progeny of birds that are at all weakly or unfit are not worth rearing. Get "Budgerigars," 7d., and "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1s. 1d., post free, from "C.B." Office, and you will get much help in breeding these handsome birds.

Another Feather Picker.

F.C.S.—It is as I suspected, you have contributed to the bird's condition by giving it a bit of everything, and it will be a work of time and patience now to eradicate the trouble. I presume you have already given the Dinneford's Magnesia advised in my previous reply; if so, in future only give this sufficiently often to keep the bowels freely moving, not watery loose. Give the chemical food regularly, and also the quassia solution as already advised. Stop at once giving bits of meat, rice pudding, etc., and note carefully our warning in previous reply as to slops, etc. Confine the bird to the following dict, and it should gradually come into a better condition: Seed mixture, oats, canary seed, maize, wheat, hemp and sunflower seeds, well mix and keep a continuous supply in the cage; also a piece of clean cuttlefish, and cage tray well covered with gritty sand. Ripe fruit, nuts in variety, plain biscuit, boiled potato, unseasoned and in small quantity, may all be given. If the bird is tame enough, let it out of its cage as convenience permits for exercise. It is no use treating the bird unless you also alter the diet as above.

A Dirty Amazon.

J.C.—If the bird is tame and will let you handle it, the simplest way is to wash it and then wipe the surplus water off the plumage with a cloth, keeping the bird carefully out of draught till dry. The other course is to syringe the bird with chilled water, twice a week, choosing genial sunny days at this season for the purpose, and using the same precautions as to draughts as above. After the spraying the bird will naturally preen its plumage, and after a few sprayings there should be a great improvement in its appearance. The plumage, however, will lack the freshness of the plumage of your friend's birds, I expect, till after the next moult. A Parrot should have a bath at least once a week in winter and two or three times weekly in the summer. The bird will soon look forward to it and enjoy it. If because of severity of weather, etc., my Parrot is let go without its bath longer than usual, he will try to take one in its drinking glass.

Treating a Young Grey.

Rhondda.—I could have advised you much more simply had you informed me how you were dieting the bird. Sudden changes of diet are very bad for these birds, and if your dietary varies much from what I am about to advise, do not make the change too sudden. Give about a tablespoonful of boiled maize daily; boil till soft and then drain away all water and well dust with flowers of sulphur. For a month or two make its drinking water the colour of pale part wine with Parrish's Chemical Food, giving clear water about once a week. Keep a piece of cuttlefish continually in cage, also a regular supply of the following mixture: Canary, oats, hemp, wheat, dari and sunflower seeds. Ripe fruit, nuts and plain biscuit should also be given to vary the diet. Confine the bird to above diet, which is ample and varied; and do not be tempted to give table scraps and slops; see warning in other replies. Give it at once a little Dinneford's Magnesia in the proportion of 1 of magnesia to 3 of water; remove the water overnight and the first thing in the morning offer the above and it will readily satisfy its thirst with same; repeat as may be necessary to keep its bowels gently moving, but not loose. Spray the bird once or twice a week with weak quassia solution, choosing warm sunny days for the purpose, carefully protecting against draught till dry.

Bath for Grey Parrot.

C. H. T.—Glad to note you have found "C. B." helpful, and that by its aid you have a Grey in good condition. All birds need a bath, but all Parrots will not take one; such must be sprayed with a fine sprayer. Use chilled water, and at this season choose a fine warm day for the purpose, keeping the bird carefully out of draught till dry. Your bird is, however, tame, and will probably take a bath readily. Provide a large shallow dish and place it where the bird's splashing will not make a mess, using the same precautions as if you were spraying it. In the summer it will appreciate being placed outside during a gentle shower, in some sheltered position that is not draughty, but of course a Grey must not be put out of doors even in summer weather during the prevalence of keen winds. Hope it will continue to do well. Any position in your kitchen that is not draughty will suit.

Quail with Sore Feet.

Fieldfare.—Give this bird as much liberty as possible; if you are not over-run with cats, it might have its liberty as soon as the weather is brighter. With one wing cut, it could not wander far away at any rate while you were about to watch it. It is not a safe bird for a Finch aviary. Bathe the swollen part with a hot decoction (such as will not scald your hand) of camomile flowers, well dry, and then rub in some Elliman's Embrocation. Keep the swollen part under observation, and at the first sign of humour release same by gentle pressure and thoroughly cleanse the sore. Am still of opinion a slight wound of some kind has become filled with dirt, etc., and that this has set up the inflammation. However, a run in the open on mild sunny days, even at this season, will be better for it than any other treatment, and this can be easily arranged as above. Shall be interested in hearing how it progresses.

What Parrot?

W G.—Your bird is an Alexandrine Parrakeet, and its probable value is about 15s. to 20s. If in good feather, of course its value would increase. If it became a talented talker Dict: 2 parts each canary seed, crushed maize and oats, and 1 part each wheat, dari, hemp and sunflower seeds; well mix and keep a supply continually in cage. Also supply ripe fruit, nuts, and plain biscuits. A little boiled potato may be given, but this must not be seasoned in any way. Keep a clean piece of cuttlefish continually hanging in cage, and the tray covered with gritty sand. Stop giving tea at once and any animal food; in place of same give chilled water well coloured with Parrish's Chemical Food. If the bird is tame enough to come out of its cage it will probably be ready to take a bath, and this can be given where the splashing will not be a nuisance. If not possible, it should be sprayed (use a fine sprayer) with chilled water. In either case at this season of the year a mild sunny day should be chosen and the bird carefully kept out of draught till dry. At the present time once or twice a week should be sufficient. Keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation and teach it by constant repetition various words and short phrases, and will ultimately repeat at any rate a word or two. The teachableness of Parrots, even of the same species, is very variable.

Jendaya Conures.

M. D. R.—Am afraid there is nothing that will cure the scream of a healthy pair of Jendayas, though I have one out of doors that is fairly quiet for a Conure. One thing, the screams are not constant, but indulged in at intervals during the day; while, if they are feeling neglected at all, or if you appear after an absence of some hours, they will usually voice their neglect, and greet you with screeches loud enough to wake the dead. Jendayas can be tamed, and there are few species that cannot be tamed with patience and kindness. But even tame Conures will emit an ear-splitting screech every now and again, especially if they are wanting anything. Try quietly covering them up and keeping them so for ten minutes or so; most species of Parrots recognise this as a punishment, and the evil has in many cases been much modified. My bird has had to tame itself, as it is simply one of a crowd, and it certainly is not the most noisy of my Parrakeets.

Grey Weak and Unwell.

W.A.—Am glad to note the treatment is proving effective, for owing to the improper diet the bird was in a very bad way, and complete recovery into condition and good plumage must of necessity be slow. Continue the treatment advised in previous reply, which will have to be continued for some little time. If the continued use of the chemical food should produce constipation, a dose of Dinneford's Magnesia will soon rectify this. Keep the bird's nostrils clear by bathing or spraying with diluted glyco-thymoline. When repeating a query it is best to enclose a cutting or copy of the previous reply. Mix a little of the seed mixture with its boiled maize, it will probably become accustomed to it thus. Report progress in, say, 3 weeks' time with full details.

Brevities.

What Bird? (R.L.W.)—Will name your bird for you in next issue. Will you please give me the approximate length of your bird from beak to tip of tail, or say if it is about the same size of your sketch? Continue your present diet, and for one day make its drinking water just saline with Epsom salts.

Paint for Cage for Budgerigars (A.J.H.).—Providing the paint is put on thinly and evenly, no harm should result from the use of paint as sample sent, but it must be allowed to become thoroughly hard before the birds are turned in. By far the better would be to get a tin of Hall's Washable Distemper. In either case, however, the paint or distemper should be put on thinly and evenly and allowed to become quite hard before the cage is used. Budgerigars may nibble up branches and nest busks and logs, but do not usually do much cutting at flat surfaces such as cage backs and sides. Whichever you use will be quite safe under the above conditions, but I recommend the distemper.

Breeding Amherst Pheasants.

Arthur Sage.—Your aviary, 17 feet long, 6 feet wide, and 7 feet high, is quite large enough to breed Amherst Pheasants in; they only need a little more room than Golden Pheasants. It is a good thing you have that amount of height, as Amherst cocks are very apt to be vicious with the hens, in which case it is a good plan to put a good high solid partition in and keep the cock one side, clipping one wing so that he cannot fly over it, while the hens can visit him if they like.

Silver Pheasants.

"Maxco."—(1) I don't think your Silver Pheasants are likely to raise any objections to your keeping a couple of pair of Budgerigars in their aviary, 15 by 9 by 6 feet; birds of this class are not much inclined to interfere with small ones, as you may see with fowls and the sparrows. But you had better put some short, thin perches high up, so that the Pheasants cannot sit there and the Budgerigars can, and also lay the seed and water for the latter high up. Also, hang the Budgerigars up in the aviary in a cage for some days previously to turning them loose, so as to accustom them to the sight of the Pheasants. Also look out when the young leave the nest. (2) I cannot tell you the exact market value of Silver Pheasants' eggs; but I should not expect it to be more than about 6d., Silvers being the cheapest of Pheasants. They are, in fact, so cheap and so easy to rear that I think they should be treated as poultry. I have heard of a hen laying over five dozen eggs in the year, and no doubt by selection a good laying strain could be raised, while the pretty colour of the eggs would be a set-off to their rather small size. Moreover, the birds are not noisy like some, and so would suit town dwellers.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

A Canary Query (Miss Overton).—Your letter bore a halfpenny stamp only, consequently we were surcharged one penny at this end. Kindly note.

Our Thanks to W.S.W., H.P., Frank Potter, A.P., and others for cuttings, news items, etc.

An Enquiry (Peter).—The goods you name bear an excellent reputation among fanciers.

Meyer's Parrot (Rev. G H. Raynor).—Accept our thanks for your interesting letter.

An Advertiser (Cutting, Retford).—We know of nothing to the detriment of the advertiser in question. We shall, of course, be pleased to write him if you care to conform to our rules.

Copying Books (W. Hornby).—We thank you for the suggestion, but are afraid we have too many "irons in the fire" already to permit of our falling in with it. Besides, copying books are supplied very cheaply by most stationers.

Hull Linnet Club (F. Allen).—Such a notice as that you send us we could only publish in full as an advertisement, at advertisement rates.

Disqualification at Bathgate (No a Scolar).—Our printers go "off their feed" if we send them letters written in the Scottish dialect, and we really daren't venture to forward yours on such a week as this. Further, this correspondence has had a good innings, and it now remains for the governing bodies to take action if they see fit so to do.

The Crest & Crest-bred Section.

Judge, Mr. T. Heath.

We did not think this section, as a whole, at all representative for such a show as the Crystal Palace from the good and big classes seen at many provincial shows this season. We fully expected to have seen a big display. The Crested birds were the strongest classes numerically, and here was seen a truly grand bird in Mr. Radley's buff cock, one worth going a long way to see. In the A.O.V. Crested buff class, Mr. T. Taylor put down his well-known pair, "King of the North" and "King Edward," and scored first and second. In the Crested hen class Mr. Lazarus scored another first with his grand hen, and she was looking very fit and well. Mr. Drake's yellow Crest is a good one, and scored easily in its class. The yellow Crest-Breds were a good and strong class, the winners being exhibits of much merit.

CRESTS, YELL. (6): 1, Drake, nearly green, grand Crest of good size, droop, and radition, nice centre, fine frontal crest for a yellow, wins well; 2, Mrs. Crow, even wings, D.C., nice droop and back crest, not the length or width of frontal as the winner; 3, Wallace, grizzle, nice width of frontal crest, good dip, bit open in centre; 4, Drake, even wing marked, nice back crest, fair width of frontal, loses a bit in droop; 5, King, nice frontal crest, bit weak at right side; vhc, Miss Turner. BUFF, CL. BODY (5): 1, Mitchell, dark crest, except for one light feather, nice frontal and good droop, neat centre; 2, Fitton, grizzle, nice round crest, with good spread and width of frontal, splendid body; 3, Piper, dark crest, thick frontal crest, dips well, nice leafy feather of good width we liked; 4, Johnson, neat crest, good droop, a bit open in centre. A.O.V. BUFF (7): 1, 2, Taylor, a truly grand pair, leader even wing marked, magnificent frontal crest, rare width, coming well to beak end, well filled sides and beautiful droop; 2, dark wings and light crest, grand rounding spreading crest of great expanse, good droop and well centred, two gems and hard to separate; 3, Marshall, marked wings, dark crest, thick, heavy dipping crest, sides well filled in, and nice centre; 4, Mrs. Haysom, wing and tail pied green, nice back crest, neat centre and good droop; 5, King, marked wings, good in droop and length of feather, not quite so dense; vhc, Gale. HEN, A.V. (8): 1, Lazarus, dark crest, marked on back, round, well-filled crest of beautiful formation and droop, neat centre, nice veiny feather, a grand hen; 2, Almond, nice frontal crest, of good length and width, dips well, centre a bit far back; 3, Piper, good width and length of frontal crest, nice droop, a few feathers out of centre; 4, King, nice back crest, neat centre, beaten in size of crest and droop; 5, Wallace, thick frontal crest, good dip, but loses in width of front; vhc, Mitchell. C.B., YELL. (19): 1, Wallace, clear, rare width of skull, good entrance, long and wide head, feather of nice quality; 2, King, lightly marked, good rise over beak, nice back skull and width of entrance, head feather of nice length and density; 3, Brotherton, rare width of skull both back and front, good shaped body, and well up in size, hardly the length of head feather; 4, Johnson, well lashed, nice shaped skull, rare length of head feather, just a shade long in beak; 5, Wigginton, green, nice entrance, and rises well over beak, good length of head feather, runs a bit narrow at back skull; vhc, Drake; hc, Cowperwaite; c, Parson. BUFF (15): 1, Radley, a monster, wonderful skull both in formation and size, any amount of feather, well lashed, rare shaped body, a clinker; 2, 3, Taylor, rare length of head feather, well lashed, good entrance to a well-formed skull, rises well over beak, nice body; 3rd good length of head feather, nice entrance, not so wide in back skull or so cushion-shaped; 4, Horton, clear, great length of head feather, well lashed and nice quality, grand shaped skull; 5, Roberts, grandly lashed, nice rise over beak and good wide entrance; vhc, Harrison; hc, Simpson; c, Piper. HEN (9): 1, Taylor, pied tail green, good length of head feather, nice shaped skull, good entrance capital body; 2, Johnson, pied tail green, nice entrance, head feather of good length and width, not quite so wide in back skull; 3, Young, skull of good shape and size, nice entrance and head feather, nice young hen, chimed; 4, Wigginton, yellow, good skull, plenty of rise over beak, nice entrance, well feathered; 5, King, good size and shape of body, well feathered skull, but hardly so wide; vhc, Horton; hc, Mitchell.

By Claude St. John.

A practical, up-to-date guide to the cult of Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner in the hobby. It contains many helpful illustrations and deals very fully, and in an easily understandable manner, with the choice, sexing and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg food, nest building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the details and difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

I am sending a line to say how much I appreciate the good things you give us in the way of coloured plates, etc. I think the plates presented with the Birthday Number were simply magnificent, to say nothing of the splendid supplement that was included. I wonder how you can do it for the money that you charge for such issues.—T. WALKER (Gloucester).

By C. A. House.

This is a thorough and practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, written by a well-known expert and judge. It contains chapters dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, and an illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman, reproduced in the finest art style. There are also exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge approached by no other book of its kind at the price

The Yorkshire Green Section.

Judges, Messrs. Heath and Mundell.

YELL. SELF (18): 1, Wardale, fine upstanding bird, lovely depth of colour, superior feather, A1 back and wing carriage, well on leg, very slimly built, full of nerve and swagger; 2, Clayton, wonderful length, rich colour, position A1, good back flights and tail, well on leg, just beaten in tightness of feather; 3, 5, Fielden, capital tone of colour, good length, nice back and wings, when we saw it was shade soft, when right no doubt a gem; 5th, nice colour and stand, neat in wings and tail, well on leg, hardly the quality of above; 4, vhc, Nimmo, very lengthy and slim, beautiful colour and quality, good legs, somewhat wild, steady him Mr. N., it will pay, be is a "right 'un"; hc, Clayton; c, Gifford. BUFF (19): Good class; 1, vhc, Rowlands, neat and narrow, fine long drawn specimen, stands delightfully, perfect back, wings, and tail, one of the best bulls we have seen for a long time; 2, 4, Hughes, with a couple of very taking exhibits, former wonderful length, A1 colour, stands nicely, good front and back, nice carriage of flights; 4th, plenty of length, straight as a rush, good back and wings, not quite so close in feather, still one we liked very much; 3, Wardle, all there for quality and colour, nice length and position, inclined to be thick in waist, otherwise grand; 5, Rowlands; vhc, Nimmo; hc, Clayton; c, Atherton, all good birds. YELL. FOUL (11): 1, Clayton, foul wing, magnificent tone of colour, wonderful length, neat and narrow, lovely quality, splendid back, flights and tail, real stormer; 2, 4, Rowlands, both foul tails, former equal to winner in every respect except length, where it is just beaten; 4th, full of quality, nervy, and of capital colour, stands well on good legs, shade shorter; 3, hc, Atherton, foul tail, straight as a pencil, rattling colour and quality, perfect wings and tail, again little deficient in length; 5, Hughes, foul tail, beautiful colour, A1 quality, fine length and position, bit heavy in tail, which holds its back; vhc, Fielden; c, Clayton. BUFF (9): 1, Clayton, foul tail, lovely quality and colour, wonderful length, and of capital position, rattling back, wings and tail, well on leg; 2, Fielden, foul tail, teeming with quality, rich depth of colour, delightful stand, beaten a wee bit in length, and length only; 3, Nimmo, foul tail, splendid feather, grand position, rare length, A1 wing carriage; not quite so good in colour; 4, Gore, foul tail, straight as a rush, good colour, shade shorter, and hardly so nice in colour as those above; 5, c, Rowlands, foul tail, rich colour and quality, all there in length and position, rather thick in waist; vhc, Handley; hc, Benson.

The Norwich Green Section.

Judge, Mr. J. H. Roe.

YELL. SELF (15): 1, 2, 3, 5, vhc, Deacon, a quintette of gems; 1st, rich colour and quality, short and thick-set, good carriage, capital body flights and tail; 2nd, more substance, A1 feather and colour, rare head, neck, and chest, neat wings, well across perch; 3rd, wonderful substance, delightful shape, lovely feather and colour, but for inner flights overlapping a little, easily best in class; 5th, rattling colour and feather, nice size, good head, neck and chest, if anything a shade heavy behind, yet very bonny; vhc, good substance, colour and quality, nice head and neck, capital carriage, we thought ought to have been a little higher up; 4, Lawson, all there for shape, colour and quality, full of style, wee bit on the small side; hc, Walker; c, Curtis. BUFF (15): 1, Deacon, a bouncer, beautifully clothed, rich colour, grand shape and carriage, best bird staged by this well-known Liverpool enthusiast, a regular knock-out; 2, 4, 5, Isaac, with a trio of fine specimens; 2nd, even better colour than winner, but not of such good substance, still lovely type and carriage, voted a gem by experts that stood around, and we fully agree; 4th, good in quality and colour, very shapely, not quite so large, but awfully neat and well put down; 5th, all there for colour, nice feather, good size, beaten a little in type, yet very nice specimen; 3, Lawson, fine feather and colour, good body, nice substance, not quite so good in head and neck as might be, yet bonny; vhc, Davies; hc, c, Walker. YELL. FOUL (19): Nice class; 1, hc, Deacon, winner foul tail, slashing tone of colour, short and thick-set, best of bodies, nice in head character, jaunty in carriage, clean cut away; 2, Jenkins, lovely colour, shone like satin, fine shape and substance, but for being a little defective in taking perches firmly would no doubt have won; 3, Harrison, foul wings, unbeatable almost for type, full of quality, rich in colour, rich in colour, fine substance and carriage, a gem; 4, 5, Lawson, former foul tail and body, rattling feather, A1 colour, very shapely, well over perch, clean cut, one we liked; 5th, foul throat, cobby, neat feather and of good colour, not the largest, but one of the smartest; vhc, Hales; c, Houghton. BUFF (19): 1, Deacon, foul tail, grand substance and shape, teeming with quality and colour, lovely carriage, a stormer without doubt, and shown in fine style; 2, 3, Harrison, foul tail, and foul tail and wing respectively, former rich colour and quality, A1 body shape, good carriage, little wanting in head and neck to size of body; 3rd, nice substance and shape, capital colour and feather, might have changed places with its stable companion; 4, c, Isaac, foul tail, very cobby, nice feather and colour, good size and carriage, no one could have grumbled had this bird been higher up; 5, Jenkins, foul tail, A1 colour and quality, nice size, bit long in flights and tail; vhc, Ewen and Anderson; hc, Bretherton.

Cinnamons.

Judge, Mr. J. Dobson.

The four classes had an entry of 56, and with the leading exhibitors all being well represented, as might have been expected, the display was a good one, quality being well to the fore in each of the classes.

YELL. (15): 1, 4, Bentley, good shape, nice size and quality, short wings and tail, fair colour; 4th capital shape, nice quality of feather, and very shapely skull; 2, Seed, nice skull, good feather, not so thick-set as the leader, shows well; 3, c, Godley, any amount of size, good shape and colour, nice skull, a bouncing bird; 5, Hargreaves, nice shape, feather, and quality, clean shapely skull; vhc, Medlin, good shaped body, nice skull; hc, Dormer; c, Godley; No. 576, Dormer, we liked much, a bird full of quality, sound colour, grand head and good shape. BUFF (15): 1, 2, 4, Godley, a trio of good ones and close together, grand in shape and size, splendid colour and quality, nice heads and necks; 3, Hands, good shape, close feather, bit light at throat, and not so bright in colour; 5, Hill, good shape and quality, nice colour, clean round skull; vhc, Bentley; hc, Dormer; c, Riding. UNFLI. (15): 1, Seed, yellow, nice shape, sound colour, short flights and tail; 2, Riding, huff, grand shape and quality, good size, nice wings and tail, well pencilled; 3, 4, Dormer, buff, lovely quality of feather, good shape and skull, sound ground colour, nice wings and tail; 4th yellow, splendid colour, nice shape, short flights and tail, good skull; 5, hc, Hill, buff, good shaped body, nice colour and feather, beaten in skull; vhc, Hands; c, King. HEN (11): 1, 2, 4, hc, Godley, yellow leading, grand skull, splendid size and shape sound level colour; 2nd buff, again splendid shape, nice silky feather, and rich colour, well up in size; 4th buff, nice shape, good colour and quality; 3, Riding, yellow, grand shape and colour, splendid feather, nice clean skull and well burnished, we liked much; 5, vhc, Bentley, yellow, good colour feather and shape, loses a bit in head; c, Dormer.

The Lizard Section.

Judge, Mr. S. R. Compston.

GOLDS (9): 1, Barnes, very rich and sound in ground colour, possesses good broad back, which is filled with clear, rich coloured spangling, large and distinct and of nice formation, his cap is neat, and in shape of body and quality of feather would be hard to beat; 2, 5, J. Dewsnap, 2nd fine big bird, with a wealth of spangle on a sound, rich ground, neat shapely cap, lovely quality of feather, shows well, hardly as good as winner underneath, 5th grand shape, colour, and quality of feather, good headpiece, plenty of work, but it is not so distinct or regular in its placing as that of his mate; 3, c, Rukin, a little gem, and this well describes him, he has colour, shape, and beauty of feather, spangle clear, distinct, and very regular, but not so large as those of the two in front, hardly so stout in body; 4, Whipp, bird of grand colour and feather, beautifully spangled with clear distinct work, but his cap is a little too square in finish; vhc, hc, Hampshire, two grand bodied birds of nice feather, but not so rich in ground colour. BROKEN GOLDS (12): 1, 4, c, J. Dewsnap, leader beauty for colour and work, ground colour sound and rich, spangle bold, large, well framed, and clear, in grand fettle, 4th splendid shape, colour, and feather, plenty of work, but not so evenly put on; 2, Rukin, another gem, full of quality, colour, and spangle, but like his mate in last class on the small side, better ground colour and greater regularity of rowing one could not wish for, but it needed the size to throw it up; 3, Hampshire, grand headed bird, plenty of spangle of good shape and size, but not so sound in ground colour as the birds in front; 5, vhc, W. Dewsnap, both fail somewhat in depth and richness of ground colour, but of lovely shape and quality of feather, and both very nicely spangled, the work being bold and regular and clear; vhc, hc, Whipp, two very nice birds, but we could not get them steady, and this doubtless affected their positions; hc, Barnes; No. 678, Rukin, took Ramsden's colour feed special. SILVER (9): 1, hc, Rukin, the Nottingham winner, bird of grand quality feather, with sound, rich ground colour, he lacks, however, that beautiful silvery luminosity which a high-class bird of this colour should possess, being too nearly like a gold in this respect, his spangling is wonderful, there being plenty of it and each spangle being sharply and clearly defined and very evenly placed, he carries a good headpiece; 2, 4, J. Dewsnap, 2nd a beauty, splendid ground colour, magnificently frosted, and in this point and shape scores over leader, carries a neatly finished cap, the spangling well and evenly distributed on a wide, well filled back, we liked him, 4th not so bright and rich in his ground colour, but a beauty for spangling, shape, and quality of feather, well formed cap; 3, c, Hampshire, splendid shape, size, and quality, carries a tremendous lot of work, but is not so clear in finish as the leaders, nicely silvered on top of a sound ground; 5, Barnes, plenty of spangle, which is bold and distinct, he has good shape, size, and feather, but is hardly so solid in his ground colour; vhc, Whipp, nice shape, beautiful ground colour, fine well filled back with plenty of work, but the rowing hardly so even, the cap is a trifle elongated; hc, Rukin. BROKEN SILVER (11): 1, 2, 3, vhc, two split best Lizard, wonderful team to come from one stud, they won and won well, winner stood out for his shape, size, quality of feather and carriage, his ground colour is beautiful, whilst his spangle is very clear, bold, distinct, and evenly placed, grand skull, nicely finished cheeks, whilst his breast and thighs show very nice work, in addition he has the much desired beautiful metallic lustre and silvery tone, 2nd another beauty, good enough to win nine times out of ten, hardly the size of the leader and does not possess as much work on his breast and thighs, but elsewhere will take beating, 3rd a little beauty, equal to his mates in all except size, vhc, fine and shapely bird of rare colour and quality, not so regular in rowing; 4, 5, c, Rukin, 4th lovely quality feather, with exquisite ground colour, plenty of work, well and evenly placed, but on small side, a little more substance of body in the birds forming the Rawstenstall team would have made a lot of difference in the awards, they are gems, but are little gems, diamonds are said to be wrapped up in little parcels, but we prefer a large one when we can get it, 5th nice bold cl. spangle, beautiful colour, good quality and shape, but hardly so steady, and therefore did not show to advantage; vhc, c, Barnes, grand shape, nice size, good quality of feather, very nicely spangled, but hardly so sound in ground colour; hc, Whipp.

The Lancashire Section.

Judge, Mr. S. R. Compston.

COPPY YELL. (8): 1, 2, Adams, slashing cl., plenty of length, well finished side, gets well up on his legs, stout broad skull, nice shoulders, plenty of feather on body, well formed, nicely centred coppy, 2nd long and stylish ticked, good shape, plenty of feather, not so much substance, coppy well made and nicely spread, but not so lengthy; 3, 4, Green, making good bird, one we liked as well as any in class, has a broad skull over which his coppy lies neatly, it is well centred and wide in front with a well finished back, hardly so stout in reach as winner, but for shape, length, carriage, stoutness of body and hood, we think we should have gone for him, 4th, the old champion, in condition doubtless the best bird in class, but was not so close in feather as we have seen him, and half his tail was half grown, but he is a Lancashire; 5, vhc, hc, Garner, 5th, grand quality ticked bird, very nice coppy of good formation and well turned out, plenty of substance, but wants just a wee bit more length, vhc, another charming bird, full of good properties, and given a bit more stoutness would be a flier; c, Crossley. BUFF (12): 1, Brooks, ticked bird, plenty of length and substance of body, nice carriage, good legs, capital quality of feather, coppy well centred, of nice length, but lifts somewhat; 2, Swalwell, hardly so massive in body, but good length, nice showy carriage, well centred, broad fronted coppy which lies well; 3, Adams, big massive ticked, plenty of substance and feather, rare coppy, carries wings somewhat slackly, which no doubt kept him back, otherwise a beauty; 4, c, Tottle, stout body, well carried, plenty of feather, good neck and shoulders, coppy well centred, plenty of length, it droops somewhat and does not break away behind eye quite as we like, just a shade too Crest-like; 5, vhc, Green, 5th splendid body, plenty of length and substance, well carried, not so broad in skull or finished in coppy, vhc, good stout, well carried, heavily feathered body, better coppy than 5th, but does not carry his wings so well; hc, Fitton. P.H. YELL. (11): 1, spl best Lancashire, 2, Lowe, slashing big ticked, fine noble skull, heavily feathered and well lashed, grand shape, length and substance of body, plenty of feather of good quality, a real good bird and wins well, 2nd cl., full of good Lancashire properties, stands up well, grand shaped skull, plenty of feather, but hardly so stout, grand pair; 3, Crossley, stout, well shaped, nicely feathered skull, hardly so massive in neck, plenty of body substance and feather, stands well, had damaged his tail; 4, c, Garner, ticked, of good skull properties and plenty of body feather of nice quality, not so massive in body; 5, vhc, Green, long sided bird, good body substance, plenty of feather, stands well, massive skull, but had been spoilt in the washing and looked mean about cheeks and brows in consequence, really grand bird spoilt, vhc, lovely quality, better skull, but not so long in side and does not carry himself so well as his stable companion; hc, Adams. BUFF (8): 1, Garner, plenty of length, capital carriage, good substance, rare body feather, well feathered head and fairly stout, shown in magnificent condition; 2, vhc, Crossley, plenty of feather and substance, stands well, good width and substance of skull, carries wealth of feather, vhc grand all-round Lancashire, full of good properties, if better turned out would have done much better; 4, 5, Green, 4th had rather hard lines, a big slashing bird with plenty of feather and substance, great length of body, which is well carried, broad, well lashed skull, 5th capital shape, style, and size of body, not so much skull substance; hc, Swalwell; c, Fitton.

The Border Fancy Section.

Judge, Mr. J. Robson.

YELL. (19): 1, Blackie, very nicely drawn cl., neat head, neck, and shoulders, good back and tail, really excellent carriage, moves just as smartly as a Palace winner should do, tapers away nicely in body, splendid quality of feather; 2, c, spl, Wilson, grand shape, style and feathers, holds himself up splendidly on perch, and keeps wings and tail as tight as a rush, lovely head, neck, shoulders and back, very silky in feather on body, but his cheeks looked a trifle rough, due possibly to bathing in his drinking water; 3, O'Connell, sweet little bird, full of style and quality, neat and compact in every respect, well shown; 4, Toole, another beautiful bodied bird, grand carriage and body feather, looked a bit harsh in cheeks; 5, Mrs. Evans, neat broad shoulders and flights, tail spreads slightly and spoils the general effect, lovely shape and style; vhc, spl, Simpson, charming shape, feather, and carriage, neat head, good back and tail, but a bit rough in flight edges; hc, Patterson. HEN (20): 1, 4, O'Connell, grand shape and carriage, neat head, tapering well away behind, capital wings and tail, "Pride of Wales," lovely poise, 4th lovely shape, style, and quality, neat and compact throughout, had lost a few feathers in her coverts, which doubtless kept her back; 2, Wilson, a Border indeed, and hard to find fault with, charming head, nice neck, well placed shoulders, level back, wings and tail very compact and well carried, tight as wax in feather, and a carriage worthy of a Royal princess; 3, Brownlie, neat head, well carried wings and tail, lovely quality feather, nice carriage, but hardly the figure which would show well in a Directoire gown; 5, Duncan and Logan, lovely little eye ticked, different type to the last mentioned, one of the slim and graceful sort, any amount of style and swagger, fine head, rare wings and tail; vhc, Roberts, just a wee bit flat in skull, but after that there was not much one could take exception to, carried herself splendidly, garbed in a gown of the most beautiful quality; vhc, Gilchrist, a cheek ticked bird which filled our eye immensely, a little charmer indeed, but just a wee bit shy in displaying her charms before strangers; hc, Hancocks; c, Mrs. Evans. BUFF (22): 1, Duncan and Logan, a gem, full of quality, stands up beautifully and handles well, sweet head, lovely shoulders, wings and tail, clever win; 2, Mrs. Thompson, very handsome neck ticked, lovely quality feather, rare style, neat head, very smart in wings and tail; 3, Gilchrist, bonnie little bird, rare outline, tapering away nicely, full of quality, good in flights and tail; 4, Blackie, regular little picture, tight as wax, carries himself like a soldier, put down in rare form; 5, Shearer, grand little bird for shape and carriage, neat wings and tail, but just a trifle soiled; vhc, c, Wilson, brace of gems, full of quality, lovely heads and necks, tight fitting, well modelled shoulders, grand carriage, former not quite so clever with wings as the latter, which we made as good as any in class, former neck ticked, latter a cl.; vhc, Simpson, lovely quality and style, neat head, grand wings and tail, just a shade inclined to stoutness; hc, spl, Bowes; hc, O'Connell. HEN (16): 1, Blackie, very neat in head, well fitting shoulders, nice level back, well braced wings and tail, lovely quality feather, but hardly so slim as we like them; 2, hc, Gilchrist, magnificent little wing ticked, rare shape and carriage, full of quality, shows for all she is worth; 3, Bowes, grand head, back, wings and tail, rare carriage, very nice silky feather, but looked as though a little soap had been left in round the thighs; 4, 5, Duncan and Logan, two gems for shape and style, for beauty of outline one could not wish for anything better, but hardly so clean as we expected them to be; vhc, Mrs. Evans, beautiful shape, very fine and silky in feather, grand body carriage, does not get her flights up quite so nicely as she might; c, O'Connell. EVEN MKD. (17): 1, 3, Patterson, buff, exquisite quality of feather, grand head, neck and back, well cut away behind, superb carriage, beautifully balanced markings, and in our opinion the best Border staged, well named "Perfection," 3rd yellow cinn. mkd., grand shape and carriage, very nicely balanced wings, hardly so level on eyes, very nice quality; 2, c, Scirnac, very smart and pretty yell., full of quality, slim and stylish, capital eyes and wings; 4, Hocking, another charming yell., grand wings, hardly so well balanced in eyes, very smart in feather, splendid style; 5, Wilson, yell., Border all over in figure and carriage, lovely feather properties, good wings, heavy eye markings; vhc, Gilchrist, another most typical yell., very nicely shown, same stamp as last named, with same fault; hc, McVittie. UNEVEN (19): 1 and two spls best Border, Duncan and Logan, yell., for shape, quality of feather, and carriage, one of the best, put down in excellent form, marked head, winner, only one fault, viz., that it is not the property of the writer; 2, vhc, Wilson, another brace of beauties from this steadfast and old-time breeder, in type, beauty of feather, and gracefulness of carriage they were splendid, former marked neck, eyes, and wings, latter a three-pointed, well deserved their places, even if the latter might not have been a bit closer to its mate; 3, Scirnac, marked head, eyes, and wings, wonderful style, grand feather, neat wings and tail, hardly the shape of head and thinner in neck than leaders; 4, Brown, very pretty yell., marked eyes, cheeks, and wings, full of quality and style, very neatly modelled body, we liked much; 4, Brownlie, yell., almost four-pointed, full of quality, rare shape and style, handles extremely well, sweet indeed; hc, Pennington; c, Shearer. GREEN (22): 1, Middleton, one of the most typical Borders in the show, grandly cut away right through, feathered like glass, full of style, nice, rich, even jonque shade throughout; 2, Hancock, rare shape and carriage, nice even tone of colour, neat head, good wings and tail, gone in neck; 3, c, Richards, very smart in shape and carriage, nice even shade of colour, not quite the feather finish of leaders; 4, Stovin, very sound in colour, grand shape and style, lovely body feather, just a trifle coarse in cheeks, all above were yell.; 5, vhc, Arnot and Jamieson, 5th another grand shapely yell., rather a darker tone of colour than the others, full of style, vhc clinking good buff, and had somewhat hard lines in not getting into the money, for a buff wonderfully rich and level in colour, and in shape and carriage it is a gem; hc, O'Connell. CINN. (18): Taking this class right through there was a lack of depth in the colour, cinn. is cinn., not a pale washed out greenish drab; Border men should watch this point. Cinnamon Borders of the days which are gone were cinnamon in colour, and full of the delicate pencilling which does so much enhance the beauty of a cinn. bird. 1, O'Connell, a gem for shape, feather, and style, rare wings and tail, as a Border a topper, but we should like a little more depth of colour; 2, Hancocks, brighter and richer in colour tone, very neat wings and tail, superb carriage, a Border and a cinn. Border, we liked this bird exceedingly; 3, Brownlie, another charmer, full of style and quality, beautifully modelled, but lacking that rich golden-chocolate hue so much desired; 4, 5, Hamilton, 4th the only buff in the money, and a very sweet neat little bird, too, stands remarkably well, grand shape, feathered to perfection, 5th yell., nice colour, grand in shape and style, but had been horned a bit in the washing; vhc, Hocking, another yell., nice colour, good quality feather, hardly so slim; hc, Middleton; c, Arnott and Jamieson.

The Belgian Section.

Judge, Mr. T. Brown.

The one bright spot about the Belgian section was the splendid class of young birds, in which the competitors numbered one short of a score, but why the adults were a worst on record it would be difficult to say. We missed the grand team which Capt. Philp has been wont to send to Sydenham, but although the Edinburgh team were not present to do battle for Scotia, efficient substitutes were found in the grand string put down by Mr. Fairley, of Coatbridge.

YELL. (2): 1, Grey, neat head, long neck, prominent shoulders, nice back, wings and tail, stands well; 2, Baker, handles well, showing plenty of nerve, gets up well on its legs, good length and substance. BUFF (5): 1, Cobb, lovely head and neck, well filled shoulders, nice back, wings and tail, stands well up on legs, and shows plenty of nerve; 2, Horrill, grand shape and length, nice substance, plenty of shoulder, full of nerve; 3, Fairley, nice racy bird, grand length and style, gets head well down, plenty of shoulder, full of nerve; 4, Hales, hardly so much timber, capital shape and action, stands well, nice wings and tail; 5, R. J. Baker, massive and nice length, good style, plenty of nerve, nice clean run from shoulder downwards. HEN (3): 1, G. S. Baker, smart, clean, and sleek in outline, rare head and neck, well formed shoulders, grand back, wings and tail; 2, Horrill, stout and massive, gets her head down nicely and brings her tail well down to perch, nice length of side; 3, Fairley, full of style and action, fine head and neck, well-set, stout shoulders, nice position, shows well. BRED 1908 (19): 1, 3, 4, hc, Fairley, a clinking team, full of quality and style, all grand in shape and showing plenty of side, they get well down to their work, get a good hold of their perches, and show nice pose of body from the shoulders down; 2, Rugg, rare shape, capital head and neck, stout, well filled shoulders, shapely back, grand wings and tail, very nervy; 5, vhc, Horrill, full of nerve and action, fine head and neck, shapely shoulders stands well, well braced wings and tail; c, Walmsley.

Judge, Mr. T. Brown.

The Scots were not numerous, but the quality was splendid, and Mr. Brown, who handled the section, was quite at home amongst the reachy up-to-date specimens which appeared before him. Mr. Harden put down a nice team, and was the most successful exhibitor.

YELL. (8): 1, Harden, long, fine head and neck, rare top end, gets tail well down, and moves freely and easily; 2, 3, Willison, a brace of the right stamp, although one of the veterans, friend Willison keeps well up to present-day requirements, and in length of side, strength of shoulder, and general finish, his exhibits were A1; 4, Lugton, very smart and stylish, fine head and neck, plenty of shoulder, a rare mover; 5, Cobb, grand shape, good length, nice tail, moves well; vhc, hc, Sloan, two useful birds, of nice shape and carriage, hardly the substance; c, Hales. BUFF (8): 1, Davies, plenty of timbre, capital top end and length of side, full of nerve and moves well; 2, Harden, grand shape and length, plenty of substance, handles well; 3, 4, Cobb, very stylish, racy birds, good shape, handle well, nice length of side; 5, Thompson Bros., capital shoulders, good back, flights and tail, moves in nice manner; vhc, Roberts, plenty of nerve and nicely turned, not so massive; hc, Lugton; c, Willison. HEN YELLOW (4): 1, Thompson Bros., rare nerve and action, fine head and neck, gets head well down, and uses her tail nicely; 2, Harden, rare shape and action, plenty of shoulder, nice length of side, uses her tail well; 3, Willison, smart in action, plenty of substance, and nicely modelled; 4, Cobb, nice little hen of good shape and plenty of nerve. BUFF (5): 1, Harden, lovely hen for shape and carriage, nice head and neck, stout shoulders, grips perch well and knows how to use her tail; 2, Cobb, very smart, nervy, stout shoulders, well turned back, handles well; 3, Todd, not one of the heaviest, but a quick active mover, of nice shape; 4, 5, Willison, two heavy shouldered shapely hens, with nice length of side, and travel well.

The Dutch Frill Class.

Judge Mr. J. Robson.

These peculiar specimens of the Canary family made up a grand class, quite the best we have ever seen, not only in numbers, but also in shape, size, and feather properties. Nineteen exhibits in one class should encourage the executive and lead to a division of the sexes next year.

1, vhc, spl, Young, variegated buff of tremendous length and substance, rare shoulders, plenty of side, good tail, wonderful profusion of feather, vhc a clear, hardly so massive, but full of feather; 2, 5, Minty, 2nd another variegated bird, great length, full of feather of splendid width and length, hardly so stout in body, 5th big massive bodied cl., rare shoulders, but not so long in side or tail, plenty of body feather, well arranged; 3, 4, Docherty, two massive, long sided, heavily feathered clears, but being shown in box cages could not be seen to the best advantage; vhc, hc, c, Williams, nice showy team, variegated, ticked, and a cl., all possess plenty of feather, but not so massive in body.

The Roller Section.

Judge, Mr. F. A. Lester.

OPEN CLASS: 1 and 3 spls, Roehl, 30 points, free and melodious, possessing some of the most select tours, including the Koller and Gluck tours, which gave a brilliant effect to the song throughout. This bird was at once claimed by Mr. Randall, who is now the owner. Double the money was offered for this bird three times, but the owner, we understand, declined all offers; 2, Randall, 29 points, evidently a bird of the same strain, full of good tours and very steady in song, but without singing the Koller roll; 3, Kremmer, 28 points, good all round bird, especially in hollow roll; 4, Randall, 27 points, the song of this bird very much resembles that of the first prize bird, and is evidently of the same strain; 5, Whittaker, 25 points, good, full, and deep bird; ex. 5, Roehl, 22 points, bird with great variety of song, but rather shy; vhc, Kremner, 23 points, less 1 point aufzug; vhc, Roehl, 21 points; hc, Roberts, 19 points; hc, Hesling, 18 points; c, Foulds, 17 points; c, Willows, 1 7points. BIRDS BRED BY EXHIBITOR (wearing B.R.C.C. closed ring): 1, Randall, 24 points, well-known bird, last club show cup winner, has retained his beautiful song; 2, Fisher, 23 points, lovely deep and steady songster, with really good and pleasing tours; 3, Cole, 22 points, an exceptionally good bird, but no doubt when judged did not sing his Gluck tour; 4, Randall, 22 points, bird with a variety of tours, singing in splendid style; 5, Wareing, 21 points, exceptionally good bird, particularly in hollow roll; ex. 5, Percival, 21 points, splendid bird, with grand song; vhc, Roehl, 21 points, also a good bird with exceptionally fine hollow and Gluck tour; vhc, Lyons, 20 points, good all round bird with wonderful variety of tours; vbc, Norris, 19 points, very nice bird with some fine tours and rolls; hc, Whittaker, 17 points; hc, Randall, 18 points; c, Pattison, 17 points; c, Wirth, 17 points. LIMIT CLASS: 1, Gostling, 24 points; 2, Gladwin, 22 points; 3, Gostling, 21 points; 4, Schluter, 20 points; 5, Stokes, 20 points; vhc, Kremner, 19 points; vbc, Norris, 19 points; hc, Schluter, 16 points; hc, Robbins, 14 points; c, Burton, 13 points.

The London Fancy Class.

Judge, Mr. J. Robson.

A quintet was all this grand old breed could muster, and four of these came from one stud.

1, 2, 3, 4, Filby, 1st very nice shaped, close feathered buff, good wings and tail, the soundest in body colour, 2nd neat, shapely yell., nice wings, grizzled in neck, good back, pied tail, 3rd buff, good wings and tail, shows a lot of spangling on back, 4th another shapely, close feathered mealy, carries a lot of spangle; 5, Miss Gibbons, again a mealy, where it was clear it was clearer than any in class, nice wings and tail, but is spoilt by a patch on head and neck, possibly due to an introduction of Norwich blood.

The A.O.V. Class.

Judge, Mr. J. Dobson.

This class received a lot of attention because of the presence in it of a white Canary, which was bred, we believe, from two ordinary Yorkshires. Excepting its abnormal colour, it is a very ordinary bird, and of course is a freak pure and simple. It is certainly an extraordinary-looking bird, and acted like a magnet in drawing the fanciers and visitors round its cage. There were some splendid exhibits in the class, however, and the owners of these let out a few grumbles in having, as they termed it, the "results of years of breeding placed behind a sport." There were eight birds in the class.

1, Kiesel, the white Canary; 2, King, about the best even marked cinn. Crest we have yet seen, full of feather on body, nicely centred, well radiated, neatly drooped crest of good length and density; 3, Helliwell, very nicely balanced, evenly marked yell. Yorks., full of quality, nice length and carriage; 4, Thompson, colour-fed buff Border, bonny bird, grand shape and quality; 5, Gibbs, very stout chubby bodied, grand quality, four-pointed buff Nor.; vhc, Fawcett, another good evenly marked yell. Yorkie, rare style and shape; hc, Heigh and Son; c, Brooks.

The Novice Section.

Judge, Mr. J. H. Roe.

NOR. CL. YELL. (13): 1, Mrs. Martin, full of rich colour, short in body, nice head, neat beak, teeming with quality, well shown; 2, Cooper, scarcely so stout as winner, silky feather, great depth of colour, nice head, bonny bird; 3, Crossley, typical bird, fine quality feather, well up in colour, takes perches well, nicely cleaned out; 4, 5, Snowden, former short-bodied bird, lovely tone of colour, neatly built; latter possesses colour and good body, but is just a trifle slacker in feather; vhc, Isom, another of rich colour and quality, close on heels of leaders; hc, Fenwick, nice shape, but scarcely so rich in colour or close in feather; c, Lee and Kearney, taken all in all a bird we liked. BUFF (17): 1, Felce, thick-set body, rich undercolour and bloom, nice short flights, wings and tail, sweetly pretty beak; 2, Hill, very full body, clean at chest, hardly so rich in colour but short flights, neck and beak, grand head, feather, and bloom; 3, Cooper, rich in quality and colour, trifle square behind, very bloomy, just a wee bit soiled around beak; 4, Fenwick, very fine texture of feather, nice colour, under and over, stands just a little upright, neat head and beak; 5, Bellinger, beautiful rich colour, not so much bloom as some, but very short wings and tail, "one of the old type"; vhc, Welch, round at chest and clean cut, grand quality head and neck, fails only in colour; hc, Cadman, full of undercolour, rattling quality; No. 957, Hart, bonny bird, grand type, rich colour. TKD., ETC., YELL. (12): 1, Cooper, varieg., overflowing with colour, none too much chest for a Nor. perhaps, and just a trifle weak on head, but magnificent quality of feather; 2, Handscombe, grand body, just a shade thin in neck and head, lovely quality, well posted; 3, Billington, lovely colour, shade long in flights, which tip occasionally, full of colour and quality; 4, Stevenson, ticked, grand shape, just a little open in feather at neck, else a bouny bird; vhc, Bellinger, ticked, fine body, rare quality, might be a little tighter in feather perhaps; hc, Johnson, varieg., full of quality and colour; c, Spooner, rare feather, not quite so hot in colour. BUFF (15): 1, 3, Havenhand, leader real topper, ticked on eyes and one wing, close in feather, neat head, nice wing carriage, rich undercolour; 3rd, very good type, frosty feather, short body, wings, and tail, tkd. neck; 2, Hill, dark tailed bird with lightly variegated body, close as wax in feather, nice colour; 4, Burgess, varieg., very shapely, nice colour, topping feather; 5, Snowden, tkd. on head, lovely quality and bloom, fine chest and body, a good one; vhc, Robinson, grand type and quality, shade open in feather; hc, Cooper, teems with quality, loses in colour and chubbiness; c, Stock, close in feather and type. HENS (39): 1, Hill, buff, a rattler for type, having short wings and tail, nice firm short legs, stands well across perch, plenty of quality, rare hen; 2, 5, vhc, Havenhand, former bird of grand type, rare chest, wings and tail, good one; 5th, yell., not so well packed perhaps, but rare quality and colour; vhc, buff, rare type, fails a little in colour, nice quality; 3, Gibson, yell., short and shapely, not quite so rich in colour as some, neat head, nice chest; 4, Hill, good ticked yell., fine shape, quality and colour; equal 5, Thomas, varieg. buff, hot colour, high quality, good size and very typical; vhc, Gardner, tkd. buff, nice bloomy feather; vhc, Simpson, varieg., grand shape, just a little open in feather; vhc, Bellinger, grand quality, rich colour; hc, Snowden, yellow, colour and quality; hc, Bellinger, buff, scarcely compact enough; hc, Barratt, sweet yell., possessing colour, quality, and shape, we liked much; hc, Lee and Kearney, varieg., fine quality, good type, bit feathery; c, Billington, yell., rather open feather, nice shape; hc, Johnson, rich colour, good quality; c, Mrs. Litchfield, buff, needs a little more colour, very shapely; c, Welch, best of quality and shape. UNFLI. (37): 1, Vart, varieg. yell., very short wings and tail, well in front of perch, teems with colour and quality, one of the sort to produce good stock from; 2, vhc, Mrs. A. Martin, former very good one, full of colour, well up for quality and shape; 3, Havenhand, buff, the correct texture of feather, rich colour, neat head, good back and wing covering, sweet; 4, Jeyes, yell., rare type, quality and colour, clean cut; 5, Billington, tkd. buff, full of quality, rich colour, crosses wings a little at times; hc, Stock, buff, has good quality and undercolour, nice shape; c, Johnson, really grand-coloured varieg. buff, nice type.

Judge, Mr. S. R. Compston.

LANCS. P.H. (3): 1, Fitton, yell., massive body, bold front, rare skull and clothing thereto, stands in a good position; 2, 3, Risley, yell. and a buff, former good skull, hardly so massive as leader, latter buff, very nice, but again lacks massive build all round of 1st. COPPY (3): 1, Fitton, fine body, nice coppy, well formed; 2, 3, Risley, 2nd neat coppy, not so much of it as winner had, but good length and substance of body; 3rd, stouter but shorter, shows a suspicion of the Norwich crest cross, still good bird.

Judge, Mr. H. W. Battye.

YORKS., CL., ETC., YELL. (17): 1, Furniss, racer, lovely quality, fine whip, nice waist and length behind leg, good back, gets up well, pretty, stands well; 2, Haigh, very similar to 1st, has good position, nervy, clean waist, plenty behind leg, teems with quality; 3, Humphries, little stouter, but shows its breed points well, has quality to boot; 4, Moss, smart bird, not quite so well finished as leaders, but a credit to its owner; 5, Neal, goes into position well, neat head, silky feather; vhc, Hill, stylish, stands well up, clever; hc, Snowden, not so rich in colour as some, trifle stronger across shoulders, nicely folded tail; c, Harrington, grand feather, just a little open in tail and thin in neck. BUFF (22): 1, Angear, stands well on good legs, clean cut and finished, nervy, neat head, plenty of quality; 2, Jeffreys, slim and full of quality, travels well, goes up quickly, neat head, beak, and tail; 3, Schofield, fine drawn, excellent quality, shows its breed well; 4, Fleming, quick into position, well off the perch, clean thighs, good head, back, and taper, fine quality; 5, Jefferies, sweetly pretty when roused, well up on leg, just a trifle open in feather; vhc, Stout, Whittome, both birds of quality, good in position; hc, Hutton, Potter, former not so long as some, but pretty in action, and good quality; latter not quite so well finished behind leg, but full of quality; c, Franks, possesses some good qualities of the breed. YELL. MKD., ETC. (5): 1, Haigh, varieg., plenty of style, quality, and colour, well finished behind leg, stands up gallantly, good one; 2, Fowle, varieg., silky feather, stands well on leg, nice head, good length; 3, Downing, cinn. marked, overflowing with quality, travels well; 4, Thomson, varieg., full of life, colour and quality; 5, Couzens, quality again, stands well. BUFF (11): 1, Clegg, stylish varieg., dances along its perch gaily, well up on leg, a very taking bird; 2, Forse, very similar to 1st in most points, little to choose; 3, Moss, full of nerve, gets up well, knows its drill, and in fine dress; 4, Cowley, moves well, nicely finished, pretty; 5, Jeffries, varieg., of fine breed points; vhc, Franks, heavily varieg., very acceptable to any breeder for style; hc, Couzens, possesses quality and is stylish, fails just a trifle behind leg; c, Mrs. Abrahams, neat, nice feather. UNFLI. (40): 1, Beaumont, gives evidence of the district from whence he hailed, fine position, feather, and colour, high up on leg, full of nerve, and highly finished in breed points; 2, Schofield, full of Yorkie properties as to position, nerve, etc., teems with quality; 3, Cowley, well finished bird, beautifully drawn, overflowing with quality, rare action; 4, Humphries, smart, good length, finely drawn, possesses quality and of generally high merit; 5, Stamford, buff of lovely feather, nervy, nice tail, rich tone; 5, Hutton, very slim and racy, topping quality; vbc, Snowden, lovely quality, hardly so well finished behind leg; vhc, Dewsnap, a beautiful bird in most points, we liked much; vhc, Whittome, smart stand and quality; hc, Leigh, full of nerve; hc, Angear, has breed points, but just a wee bit open in feather; hc, Stout, typical, but a little slack in Fleming, Pickard, Richmond, all three have breed points, but not one quite the finish of leaders. HEN, YELL. (20): 1, Ferguson, quite a Yorks. lass, from the point of view of the breed, dainty dress, elegant mien; 2, Schofield, nearly the equal of 1st, clung as tenaciously to her in the struggle for position as policemen do to suffragettes; 3, Clegg, trifle stronger in build, full of nerve and quality, sweet bird; 4, Jeffries, also very pretty, nicely cleaned off in all respects, and stands well, neat head; 5, Hutton, carries itself sweetly, full of quality, and nice colour; vhc, Stamford, gayer in colour, good style, nicely finished; vhc, Fleming, stylish, rare tone of feather; hc, Atkinson, possesses style, but just a bit weak in head and neck; c, Farrer, a very useful hen of high merit. BUFF (19): 1, Moss, a very stylish dainty lady, carried herself like a queen, in a dress of the first quality; 2, Richmond, vied with the winner keenly for the title to be called the belle of the class, rare style, quality of feather, and action; 3, Fleming, grand action, back, wings, and whip, overflowing with quality; 4, Leigh, very little behind 3rd, if any, typical hen of high merit; vhc, Forse, lovely feather, finely drawn, good head, back, and tail; hc, Buckingham, not quite so rich in quality as some, but very typical; c, Franks, very pretty hen, having fine quality and good in position.

Judge, Mr. J. Dobson.

CRESTS (12): 1, hc, Burgess, leader wing-marked dark crest, with veiny feather to crest, nice in droop, colour and density, neat centre, good frontal, rare body and quality; 2, 3, Mrs. Litchfield, former grizzle, very neat in centre, well filled in back, good frontal; 3rd, one wing marked, rattling body, nice quality crest, a bit weak one side; 4, c, Hoar, leader varieg., neat crest on good body, rare quality of feather; 5, Salisbury, very neat crest, well centred, might be little longer at sides; vhc, Ashby, well groomed, very neat lay and centre, smaller. C.B. (17): 1, Bellman, big-bodied bird, with noble head, dense and long in feather, nice cushion, very long turn-back; 2, Mugford, green, fine head, well clothed with long dense feather, nice dome, good back skull; 8, Mrs. Letchfield, very well formed skull, lovely quality feather all through, wide entrance, plenty of dome, short beak, long head feather, grand body shape; 4, Taylor, lightly varieg., very long and free in body feather, scarcely so dense and plentiful but long in head feather; 5, Slade, green, good quality of feather, rare rise of skull, dense, and lengthy in head feather, all round a neat one; vhc, Archer, varieg., not so good in entrance quite, but a useful bird notwithstanding; hc, Burgess, varieg., fairly good entrance, lashing, and length of head feather; c, Mrs. L. Knapp, varieg., not quite so dense or good in entrance. CINN. YELL. (5): 1, 2, 4, Roberts, nice team from one room, winner good shape, fine in feather and silky, very shiny, lovely sound colour, well burnished, not too heavy in head gear; 2nd, thinner, but very rich in colour, and glossy; 4th, more shapely than 2nd, but not so pure in colour; 3, Smith, good colour again, chief fault a weak head. BUFF (6): 1, 2, 4, Roberts, again a good team. The two first were very much alike in most points, the leader being slightly the purest in colour, both good shape and quality; 4th, as rich in colour as any, but a trifle out in neck feather; 3, Bevan, bonny shape, nice colour and quality, just a trifle light at throat; vhc, Bevan, grand shape, nice feather, hardly so pure in colour. A.O.V. CAN. OR MULE (11): 1, Houghton, wing mkd. Goldfinch Can. Mule, shown in beautiful feather, not over large, but very shapely and in lovely condition; 2, Mrs. Fisher, Lizard, good ground colour and cap, well rowed, and good size; 3, Davies, very good Belgian, stands at a good angle, well filled in shoulders, nice reach, head well down; 4, Gerry and Davis, large and nice-coloured, well-feathered Greenfinch-Can. Mule; 5, Sokell and Binks, Greenie-Bullie, nice exhibit, good size and colour, fine shape, snapped up quickly at catalogue price. £1, cheap; vhc, Houghton, Linnet-Bullie, good colour, fails only in condition; hc, Gerry and Davis; c, Mrs. Fisher, Golden Lizard, nice ground colour.

The Limit Section.

The Mule and Hybrid Section.

Judge, Mr. J. F. Dewar.

CAN. MULES, CL., ETC. (10): 1, 3, 4, and three spls, Galloway, wonderful trio, cl. Siskin, cl. Greenfinch, and ticked Twite, such a hand as no other exhibitor has ever held, for quality, colour, style, and general finish all three would be hard to beat, put down in the best Aberdeen form; 2, Arrighi, large, stout bodied, eye ticked buff, magnificent specimen for size, colour, and quality, but we thought somewhat lucky to get so high up; 5, hc, Lamb, very handsome four-pointed yell., young bird, lovely colour and feather, fine face and bars, very nicely balanced in marking, especially in eyes, bird with a future; vhc, Colton and Dawn, well-known cl. buff, very cobbily built, grand colour and feather; c, Edwards. VARIEG. GOLDIE (18): 1, Arrighi, very handsome, three-pointed buff, full of colour and quality, plenty of size, good shape, shown in rare form; 2, Lewis and Dymoud, very large yell., mkd. eyes, neck, and wings, splendid rich colour, grand quality feather; 3, Galloway, eye and vent marked buff, not one of the largest, but a gem for colour, quality, and style; 4, Lamb, well-known five-pointed yell., hero of many a battle, looking well in spite of age and work done; 5, Beatty, very large varieg. buff, awfully near being a six-pointed, splendid shape and quality of feather, nice colour and finish; vhc, Duncan and Logan, varieg. yell., very rich deep tone of colour right through, nice size, splendid shape, tight as wax, very showy, really high-class specimen; hc, Talbot; c, Williams. VARIEG. LINNET OR GREENIE (6): This was not only the smallest class in the section, but the quality was not of the high standard which generally prevailed. 1, Lawrence, lightly varieg. buff Linnet, capital shape and feather, nice size, put down in good form; 2, Colton and Dawn, big buff varieg. Greenfinch, fine bold bird, plenty of colour, nice feather; 3, Edwards, rather heavily varieg. Linnet, nice shape and style, good feather properties; 4, vhc, Meadows and Bradley, two rich coloured varieg. Greenies, capital feather; 5, Fulbrook, varieg. yell. Greenie, grand colour and quality of feather and nice size. DK. YELL. GOLDIE (19): 1, Taylor, fine big bird, wonderfully rich deep colour throughout, magnificent face and bars, as tight as wax; 2, Coffey, fine big fellow, nice shape, full of colour, but lacks the extra little bit of polish which the leader possesses; 3, Lewis and Dymond, very sleek and smart, rare colour and shape, grand feather, hardly so sound in throat, but a really fine Mule; 4, Arrighi, grand shape and colour, nice size, capital face, splendid style and feather; 5, Duncan and Logan, not quite so large as some, but brimful of rich bright colour and as tight as wax; vhc, Longden, a rare big bird of good shape and feather, but hardly so rich in colour; vhc, Jones, nice face, capital body colour and feather, hardly so smart in carriage; yet a good one; hc, Lashbrook; c, Pierce-Williams. BUFF (14): 1, Arrighi, magnificent colour, plenty of size, grand shape and style, very nicely finished, wins well; 2, Thomson, hardly so large, but hot and brilliant in colour right through, rare finish of feather; 3, Bald, another bird of grand shape, size, and colour, another run over with the polishing brush would have improved him; 4, McVittie, very shapely and nice size, capital feather, good face; 5, Francis, slashing big fellow, nice shape, good body feather, looked as though some of the soap had been left in round the thighs; hc, Best; c, Hingley. DARK GREENIE (17): 1, spl, Scrine, very large jonque, beautiful rich even colour throughout, grandly feathered, nice shape and grandly finished; 2, Leigh, another most charming jonque, full of colour and quality, very shapely, built on smaller lines; 3, Arrighi, yell. of cinnamon hue, very neat in feather, grand shape and size, and a nice level colour throughout; 4, Somerfield, rattling good bird full of colour, but hardly so bright, nice shape and size, splendid quality of feather; 4, Jones, grand in colour, shape, feather, and style, not so taking in head; vhc, Parsons, buff of cinnamon hue, nice level colour, good shape and size, hardly so fit; hc, Rowe; c, Edwards. DARK LINNET (20): 1, Jones, a jonque brimming over with colour which is deep, bright, and level, grandly pencilled, capital shape and size, and beautifully feathered; 2, Morton, another real tip-top jonque, full of quality and colour and splendidly finished; 3, Duncan and Logan, another jonque, rare shape and colour, beautifully shown, as fit as a fiddle; 4, Dick, big slashing jonque, plenty of colour, nice shape, very neat in feather; 5, Arrighi, bold, shapely buff of grand colour, nicely pencilled, and in good form; vhc, c, Buxton, again a jonque, very nice little bird, but awfully wild; hc, Scrine, DARK CAN.-SISKIN, ETC. (16): 1, Bishop, large bold Siskin of grand shape, beautifully marked, rare colour and quality; 2, Todd, very handsome Siskin, possesses a wealth of colour, is very fine and tight in feather, has nice shape and style; 3, 5, Lamb, fine bold Twite, good shape, plenty of size, nice feather, shows well, 5th buff Siskin of cinnamon hue, pretty little bird in nice form; 4, Scrine, slashing Siskin, grand shape and colour, beautifully feathered; vhc, Maxwell, very shapely, stylish Siskin, nice colour, hardly so well marked; hc, Thomson; c, Leigh. A.O.V. CAN. (12): 1, Duncan and Logan, slashing Canary-Buffie, splendid shape, beautifully feathered, very rich in colour, and grandly marked; 2, Lawrence, another of the same cross, plenty of size, capital shape and feather, not quite so hot, very nicely marked; 3, vhc, Galloway, varieg. Twite and varieg. Siskin-Canary, two lovely little birds of exquisite shape, feather, and colour; 4, spl, Mrs. Askham, very smart, high quality Canary-Buffie, hardly the size of leaders, but more colour and feather; hc, Riley, Mascall. A.O.V. BULLFINCH HYB. (20): 1, 4, Colton and Dawn, very handsome Redpoll-Buffie, wonderfully rich and bright in colour, beautiful feather and marking, and as steady as a judge, 4th good big Greenie-Buffie, capital shape, size, and feather, nice even colour of good tone; 2, 4, Ward, the celebrated Linnet-Buffie "Unique II." and Redpoll-Buffie "Excelsior," two lovely specimens, full of colour, grandly marked and in good form; 3, Arrighi, rare coloured Goldie-Buffie, beautifully marked, nice shape and size, full of colour and quality, in splendid form, and singing most brilliantly and sweetly, a homble exhibit, at the Scottish National he beat Mr. Ward's pair, here he splits them, a close thing and quite a matter of fancy, they are a two of gems; vhc, Fulbrook, very handsome Goldie-Buffie, beautifully marked, nice shape and size, hardly so well finished; vhc, Edwards, beautifully feathered, richly coloured, nice shaped Greenie-Buffie; hc, Jones; c, Thomson. A.O.V. BRIT. HYB. (22): 1, Lamb, the noted Redpoll-Goldfinch, beautiful colour and feather, grandly marked, scores his third premier award at the Palace; 2, McQuiston, a charming Goldie-Greenie, fine big bird, splendid shape, lovely quality of feather and beautiful colour; 3, Coffey, very rich coloured, nicely marked, tight feathered Chaffinch-Bramble; 4, Taylor, fine big Greenie-Siskin, capital colour and feather, nicely marked; 5, hc, McLeod, Goldie-Siskin, capital shape, feather, and colour, neatly marked; vhc, Whiteford, fine showy Goldie-Greenie, capital colour and feather; vhc, Barclay, charming little Redpoll-Siskin, beautiful colour and feather, grandly marked; hc, Wickham; c, Mrs. Kirkham.

The British Bird Section.

Judge, Mr. G. E. Weston.

BULLFINCH CK. (42), A remarkable class in numbers, and equally remarkable from the point of view of quality, many birds of the highest class being staged, and there was not a single one which could justly be stigmatised a "Foreigner," though some of those labelled "hand-reared" seemed to speak broken English: 1, S. H. Mays, a veteran exhibitor to the fore with a perfect gem, grand size, the ideal, thick-set type, stylish, jaunty carriage, perfect cap, deep back colour, well-defined wing-bars, very rich, solid and even breast colour, plumage shining like silk, not a feather out of place, put down in lovely trim, and wins with something to spare; 2, Thomson, another beautiful house-moulted specimen, grand type, though hardly so well cut up as the leader, bold, rounded cap, fine, deep breast colour, very lustrous all over, staged in excellent style, another truly beautiful Bullie; 3, vhc, Lewis and Dymond, apparently in field plumage, should moult out a clinker, in style, shape and substance a fine example, splendid head and back, grand bars, very deep, even colour on breast, hardly so polished all over as leaders, and a trifle lacking in confidence as yet; 4, F. Jones, we liked immensely, for beauty of colour and bloom equal to anything in class, wonderful solid breast, fine cap, back and bars, gem for type, style, quality and tightness of feather, some flights missing from one wing, or would have made the winner gallop; extra 4, Coffey, a size smaller than leaders, but a bird of wonderful type, broad in chest, with grand, thick-set neck and head, very steady and stylish, not a feather out of place, we believe took the special for best British bird at the Scottish National Show, but is beaten in breast colour to-day, and lacks that lovely bloom carried by the leaders; 5, Hunter yet another typical bird of grand colour, lovely head, smart and stylish, better polished than the extra 4th, but inclined to be a trifle loose at times on breast, or would have changed places; extra 5, Dunsmuir, bot one for colour, very thick-set and shapely, should moult a warm customer, little frayed on wing-flights to-day; best, vhc, Dickie and Smitb, rare headed bird, fine back and bars, rich even breast, very typical; vhc, Harrison, beautiful Bullie, noted winner, loses a trifle in intensity of breast colour; vhc, Roddie, grand stamp of bird; best, hc, Francis, rare type and condition, well staged; hc, Walsh, lovely colour and condition, shade weak in head; hc, Cullen; c, Rome, Vart, Gunnell. BULLFINCH HEN (21): 1, Lewis and Dymond, charming hen for style and type, very sound and rich in colour, perfect markings, staged in great form, carries a "dress" like silk; 2, 3, Livingstoue and Sharp, two very taking damsels, rare rich colour, fine shape, size and carriage, leader has the best cap and carries the best bloom; 4, Dale, very dense, rich colour, finely marked, good head, nice chubby body, excellent condition, trifle smaller than 3rd, but runs her closely; 5, Alton, fine big hen, grandly built, good condition, paler tone of colour; vhc, Arnott, clinking good one, lost a few flights, very hard lines; vhc, Withers Bros., hc, Wildsmith and Hawkins; c, Frostick, absent, Howe. GOLDFINCH (53), a great class, and a difficult one to judge, several birds being very dull when adjudicated upon, which did not add to the judge's happiness, while quite a dozen birds were so close in order of merit as to be very hard to separate; 1, hc, Prior, another "old hand" scores here, and owes the victory largely to the charming condition in which his bird was put down, tight as wax in feather, and polished like marble, this Finch was a treat to look upon, his greatest failing is a rather pronounced lightness in ground colour, but he is a bird of rare silky quality for a buff, and has many good points, a wonderful expanse of blaze, well-cut, and clean and rich in crimson, being one of the best, and perfection of shape and style far from the least, well-defined bnttons, and grand markings generally, complete a most taking Goldie; 2, Clark and Hodge, very good jonque, excels in chestnut of back and breast, big, grand coloured blaze, very square-cut and free from blemish, though hardly the width of leader's, splendid shape and carriage, shows for all he is worth, carries a lovely bloom, hard as nails in condition which put him above the many fine birds which follow; 3, Jupe, the magnificent Finch which has won so many firsts down south this season (late Harris), slack and "tired" looking to-day, in the form we have seen him at some shows he would probably have won, has a blaze of remarkable width, very correctly cut and rich in colour, rare sized, shapely bird for a jonque, hard luck; 4, 5, Hurst, two more noted Finches, which failed to get on terms with the leaders in tightness of plumage and sprightliness, the "Pride of Liverpool" (4th) is always near the top, he is a wonder for richness of colour and silky feathers, and has a fine face, his companion, "Fighting Mac," has the pull in blaze, which is remarkably expansive and clean-cut, but somewhat pale, while for shape and quality he is hard to beat, might moult a stormer next season; extra 4, Maxwell, very close on the heels of the others, a shade paler in tanning, but has a rare big square-cut blaze, very stylish, shapely, in excellent feather, well staged; extra 5, Carrier, lovely, stylish Goldie, excels in colour and polish, blaze of nice size and shape, in fine form; best, vhc, Hutchison, big, stylish Finch, with a wonderfully large face, but a little "brassy" in colour; vhc, Beatty, lovely coloured bird; vhc, Crompton, rare big blaze, shade rounded, but a fine Finch; vhc, Mitchell, good all round, excels in condition; best hc, Henderson, lovely deep colour, nice face, trifle twisted in neck feather; hc, McMurdo, Francis; c, Lewis and Dymond, we heard was the old champion, but only a shadow of his former self; c, Towers, Axe, Gunnell; wrong class, Best, a Peatbroat, should have been in class 123. LINNET (41), another stinging class, all in the cards being gems, the best lot for all-round merit we have seen for many years: 1, Parlett, "The Unbeaten," and seems to be well named, a Linnet of remarkable colour, rich and nutty, yet not cloudy, wonderfully silky feather for a bird of such great size, splendid shape and style, steady as a rock, well pencilled on flanks, and full of work all over, shows whites well, sound as a bell on breast, a beauty, takes the special prize for best in classes 106 to 114; 2, McLeod, if in the same lovely condition as the winner would probably turn the tables, good as is the other bird, very sound in colour (darker tone than leader), and just about the best pencilled cock Linnet we ever set eyes on, rare size and shape, very steady and stylish, was quickly claimed at catalogue price, £3 10s., and if he should moult well the purchaser got a bargain, to-day is short of bloom, and has the outer flight of one wing frayed; 3, Arrighi, another Linnet bang out of the ordinary, great size, lovely shape and carriage, carries a nice amount of work, rich, sound colour, in good form, though dull in coat compared with the winner; 4, Coffey, in fine trim, very taking bird for colour and quality, nicely marked, good style, steady, big and shapely in build; extra 4, Marley, excellent size and style, lovely width of chest, fine head, sound in colour, very tight in plumage, not so distinct in work as some above it, and minus one or two minor flight feathers to-day; 5, Hurst, well-known winner, good, big, cone-shaped bird, full of colour and bloom, nicely marked, lovely writes, trifle "ditched" in neck feather; extra 5, Maxwell, sweet bird for shape, well built, very sound in colour and tight in feather, a little lacking in work, good in other points; best vhc, Erskine, grand size and shape, fine colour, nice markings, very close up; vhc, Prosser, grand bird, trifle light in front; vhc, Nicholson, great size, finely moulded, also a trifle pale down centre; best hc, Wildsmith and Hawkins, lovely colour, size and shape, indistinct in pencilling; hc, McMurdo, Stamp (the latter in wretched style of cage, impossible for bird to stand up and show itself); c, Mays, Fellows, Askew. CHAFFINCH (23): 1, Hurst, we presume the well-known winner, bird of great size and lovely shape, full of quality, plumage, beautifully polished, grand colour throughout, and plenty of contrast, in very forward condition, steady, stylish, shown to perfection, not a feather out of place; 2, Livingstone and Sharp, another beauty, a noted Scotchman, fine size, splendid shape and carriage, bold head, good blue cap, nice bar, excellent wings; lovely tone of colour, close on winner's heels; 3, 4, R. J. Howe, leader grand chested bird, full of colour throughout, fine head and wings, in very beautiful condition, 4th a bird we liked much, charming silky feather, carrying a peach-like bloom, good size, grand shape and style, though when judging was on this Chaffie was in a curiously dazed state, which we put down to the delay we heard its owner's birds had experienced on the railway; 5, Henderson, beautiful shape and style, big, bold, well-marked bird, nice condition, loses a little for colour; vhc, Wilkinson and Danby, good one, grand condition; vhc, Mrs. Page, spanking size and shape, good bloom, lacks colour contrasts; hc, Coffey, Francis; c, Gerrey and Davis.

Judge, Mr. A. Silver.

LESSER REDPOLL OR TWITE (31): 1, Maxwell, Twite, of good size and nice cobby shape, deep, sound colour, well pencilled, good whites, fine head, has both quality and bloom, soon claimed at catalogue price, £2 2s.; 2, Mrs. Clark, wonderfully big Lesser Redpoll, rare substance and shape, rich, sound colour for house-moulted bird, well polished, good bib and pencilling, perfect feather, claimed at catalogue price, £5 5s.; 3, Dickie and Smitb, Twite, longer than leader, grand head and chest, well coned shape, very bright and rich in colour, lovely bloom, full of work all over, a real beauty, a slight twist in neck feather may have told against him, but he was our choice to win; 4, E. W. Smith, very good Redpoll, bit unsteady, but not house-moulted, rare good bib, fine build and shape, full of work, should make a grand one; 5, McQuiston, very big, sound-coloured Twite, splendid head, grandly pencilled, good whites, close up; best vhc, Lewis and Dymond, another really excellent Redpoll, A1 shape, colour and markings; vhc, Coffey, Caunt; best hc, Marlin; hc, Botting, Henshaw; c, Crundley and Rowley, Bancroft, Cook. SISKIN (16): 1, McDougall, a gem, taken all-round, wonderful size and shape, rich, even colour (slightly fed), very distinct flank markings, beautiful condition, solid in cap and lacking in bib; 2, Russell, lovely non-fed bird, grand tone of colour, coat shines like satin, loses only in size, like winner, fails in bib, these, however, being but small faults in two such good birds otherwise; 3, Bishop, good one for size and shape, fair bib, very hot in colour, nicely laced, in good form; 4, c, Francis, big one, well-laced cap, good colour and bloom; 5, Howe, fine stamp of bird, good colour and condition, close up; vhc, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Waters; hc, Hutchison, Roddie; c, Hunter. BRAMBLEFINCH (20): 1, Longden, the old champion, adds yet another win at the Palace to his long list, a bird of wonderful size and shape, combined with really beautiful quality, while for richness of colour he is an eye-opener, grandly marked and spangled, lustrous, clean-cut hood, to-day is slightly broken in neck feather, yet we think wins deservedly; 2, Carter, a wee bit smaller, but equally well marked, and spangled, splendid colour throughout, very lustrous and tight in plumage, grand hood, well staged, steady, stylish, a credit to its owner; 3, Hurst, close on leaders, perhaps hardly so well contrasted in colours, but equal in markings, shape and style, a gem for condition; 4, Beatty, remarkably hot colour, excellent size and shape, good carriage, hardly so well polished; 5, Coffey, close up, big, nice built bird, splendid colour and bloom; vhc, Axe, wbopper, grand shape and condition, trifle browner on head and back; vhc, Henderson, grand bird, little pale centre of breast; hc, Prosser, Bell, and Fisher; c, Mrs. Page, Livingstone and Sharp. GREENFINCH (27): 1, Hurst, another old champion, a grand, big, bouncing bird, very rich and even in colour (non-fed), lovely quality, bold head, nice wings and tail, claimed at £2 10s.; 2, Coffey, well-built, very stylish bird, rich, even tone of colour, grand feather and bloom, lovely quality, very close on winner's heels; 3, Lewis and Dymond, another rattling, good, non-fed bird, finely built, grand head and chest, excellent wings and tail, in fine form; 4, Bald, red-hot colour, and a grand one for substance and shape, very fine bird, a noted winner, but lucky to-day, as it is off in plumage in the region of both eyes; 5, Bancroft, very big, grand shape, in good trim, rare head, fine tone of colour; best vhc, Maxwell, taking, stylish specimen, fed; vhc, Axe, real fine, damaged feather in tail; vhc, Eales Bros., lovely quality; best hc, c, Marley, good one leading; hc, Hobden, Wickham; c, Francis, Beatty. No. 2078, Howe, very high-class one, both for size, sbape, style, colour and bloom, we thought should have been well in the money. ALBINO, ETC. (16): 1, Johnson, Sparrow, all white except for slight grizzle here and there, pretty, tame, bird, good condition; 2, Lamb, cinnamon-coloured Redpoll, little beauty; 3, Hakes, the noted white Blackbird, a lovely specimen, very pure in colour, pink-eyed, grand size, must have pressed hard; 4, Mulligan, real good black Bullfinch, very dense in colour, good size blaze; 5, Handscombe, pretty pied Goldfinch; vhc, Jones, black Goldfinch; hc, Wyse, pied Linnet; hc, Mrs. Frostick, cream-coloured Blackbird; c, Edwards, pied Bullfinch. HENS—FINCH (18): 1, Chick, the well-known ben Hawfinch, very large, goeal colour, won easily on condition; 2, Wynn, Lapland Bunting, a rarity tbis, in nice condition; 3, Rowles, another very fine hen Hawfinch, well marked, hardly carries the bloom of winner; 4, Mrs. Clark, charming Siskin, finely pencilled; 5, McQuiston, excellent Corn Bunting, steady, good quality; vhc, Bancroft, very good Yellow Bunting; hc, Taylor, Howe; c, Seal.

Mr. J. F. Hill's Classes.

HAWFINCH (16): 1, Chick, tbe noted "Midland Chief," a bird of wonderful body properties, grandly built, very rich, sound colour, nicely contrasted, sleek and silky in plumage, excellent bib and wings, very steady and stylish, a bad one to beat, although its head is hardly bold enough for its immense body; 2, Watson, another topper for size, rare width of chest, nice tone of colour, sound all over, very nice head and bib, fine carriage, real good one, but minus a claw and had damaged its tail feathers; 3, Jupe, splendid big bird, grand chest and head, very sound in colour, good wings and bib, a little "chipped" over tbe beak; 4, Hakes, a size smaller, but a bot one for colour and markings, excellent bib of good shape, in very pleasing condition, claimed at £3 10s.; 5, Prior, really good, though it loses a trifle in colour, fine size and shape, very dense markings, splendid bib; vhc, Maxwell, good bold-fronted bird, nice tone of colour, well marked, hardly so sleek in plumage; hc, Simpson, grand colour and shape; c, Mrs. Cotton; one or two grand ones cardless. YELLOWHAMMER (16): 1, Goodc, shapely and stylish, medium size, nice deep tone of colour, excels in density of markings, grand V head, full of work throughout, with another moult might make a topper; 2, Axe, well-known, beautiful non-fed specimen, grand colour and quality, shines like silk, excellent markings, not one of the biggest, but a real beauty; 3, Arrighi, a whopper, and a splendid bird all through, very deep rich colour (fed) well pencilled, nice chest and head marks, though beaten here by leaders, bold, grandly built, steady, tight as wax, close up; 4, Marlin, fine size and shape, beautiful condition, nicely marked, staged in good style; 5, Johnson, little duller in coat, but a fine Hammer for substance and shape, well marked; vhc, Cleminson and Taylor; hc, Pearce; c, Curry. A.O.S. BUNTING (20): 1, Botting, Corn Bunting, monster, about the biggest we ever saw, shapely, too, and good in feather, very steady, a very fine example, though inferior in colour, polish, and markings to the tbird bird; 2, 5, Henderson, leader a rattling good Snow, very large and well built, nicely marked, excellent tone of colour, steady, good carriage, in very fit condition; 5th, a pretty Black-headed Bunting, big and shapely, very nice colour and condition, good head; 3, Milne Bros., real grand Meadow, splendid size and colour, very bold, well marked head, in the pink of condition, a gem; 4, Arrighi, smart Cirl, very rich tone of colour, clean cut head markings, good size and shape, in excellent condition; vhc (2), Chick, the well-known Corn, splendid size and shape, full of dense, well-defined markings, very steady, marvel for colour and polish, and a good Meadow; hc, Wynn; c, Longden; No. 2119, McVittie, real fine Lapland, grand colour, should have got into the prize-list. BLACKBIRD (14): 1, Ford, real flyer, lovely dense jet-black plumage, set off by the richest eye eeres and beak we remember seeing, very big and shapely bird, grand chest, good neck and head, in charming condition; 2, Maxwell, another very fine specimen, excellent beak and eeres, though losing to winner in this respect, in other points very close up, beautiful condition and ebony colour, steady as a rock, well built all through; 3, 4, hc, Howe, trio of grand birds, 3rd runs a shade thin in neck, otherwise just about perfection, lovely colour, quality, and style; 4th bit nervous when approached, again grand colour and shape; 5, Lee, shade smaller, but a beauty for shape and style, takes the perches grandly, splendid condition; vhc, Lean and Son, good, but has very bad scales on its legs; c, Alton: No. 2141, Axe, beautiful Blackie, in fine condition, well worthy of a card. SONG THRUSH (13): 1 Bruce, that celebrated lady, "Border Queen," won here last yenr, but was left cardless at the recent Scottish National Show, a very beautiful Thrusb, great size, grand chest, bold head and neck, rich ground colour, very dense and distinct in moon-ing on breast and flanks, condition simply lovely, wins with something to spare; 2, Dale, runs a little thinner at neck, a grand allround bird, very deep, sound colour, beautifully marked, fine size, in the pink of condition; 3, Askew, beauty for condition, shines like silk, grand chest and bead, markings very dense, but appreciably broken at the front, ground colour A1; 4, Mays, clinker for size and shape, excellent colour, very tight and silky in feathers, good moonings, just beaten at throat; 5, Acland, fine chested bird, good carriage and condition, little thin in neck, capital colour and mark-ings; vhc, Price, a Thrush was liked much, very thick-set and shapely, finely marked, but looked pale, is not improved by the bad colour of the cage back and wires; hc, Mrs. Frostick; c, Hexter. STARLING (12): 1, Alton, fine bird for size and shape, steady, lovely sheen, mass of pencilling on head and body, runs somewhat indistinct on wings and back, put down in good style; 2, 3, Wildsmith and Hawkins, grand one for size, and lustrous plumage, finely spangled from top to toe, good head, neck and chest, carries wings well, 3rd another grand bird, beautifully marked, very lustrous jacket, big, shapely, good carriage, shows well; 4, Lean and Son, inclined to be a little soft when we saw him, but evidently a grand bird, full of work, very lus-trous, splendid size; 5, Griffin, lovely bird for con-dition and polish, very well spangled, though a trifle faint about neck, fine size and shape; vhc, Thomson, very heavily spotted, good size and shape, but lacks brilliance; hc, S. E. Jones, the noted "Sunshine," and a bird we preferred for high honours, all there for size and shape, carries a lovely sheen, full of distinct spangling all over, etc, clean on wings and back, not brown, like so many above it; c, Francis. CHOUGH (4): 1, Maxwell, one of the best we have seen, great size and sub-stance, wonderful depth and brilliancy of body colour very deep red bill and legs, beautifully staged, must have gone close for the special for best British; 2, Victor Williams, another very fine example for size and shape, grand blue-black glossy plumage, well beaten in bill and legs; 3, Bond Bros., rare size and shape, but lacks the lovely polish of leaders, and pale in colour of beak and legs. MAGPIE, etc. (9): 1, Kilbury Bros,, truly a beautiful Jay, very tight in feather and deep in colour, lovely wings, steady, in spotless condition and not a feather out of place, claimed at the low price of £1; 2, 3, Max-well, former champion Magpie, for purity of white and depth of black has never been beaten, grandly marked, great size, fine shape, quite perfect in feather, a gem, must have given the Jay a race for premier place, 3rd another lovely Jay, not quite so tigbt and shapely as the winner, but equal in other respects; 4, Vale, Magpie, remarkable size, grand shape and style, fine bird, not in the spotless condition of 2nd; 5, Bussey, Jay, rare size, fine wings, good in colour, loses a little to quality and condition; vhc, Milne Bros., big Magpie, bit un-steady; hc, Richards; c, Hughes. Where, oh, where, were the Jackdaws? Surely some exhibitor has one which could pick up a prize in this class.

Judge, Mr. W. Swaysland.

NIGHTINGALE or BLACKCAP (11): 1, Lean and Son, gem of a Nightingale, big, bold, very shapely, lovely tone of colour, tight as wax in plumage, very nicely shown; 2, vhc, Mrs. Frostick, another beauty, close on winner's heels, fine size and shape, charming condition, deep colour, shown to perfec-tion; 3, Chick, one of the best Blackcaps out, rare size and shape, rich colour, bold dense cap, perfect condition, put down in excellent style; 4, Miss Watts, fine tone of colour, very beautiful condition, good size and shape, well shown; 5, Burrows, yet another 'Gale, paler in colour, but a fine allround bird, excellent shape and condition; hc, Baker; c, Miss Hopwood. LARK or PIPIT (13): 1, P. Walsh, an extra good Skylark, big and bold, grand chest and head, very good quality and very tight in feather, full of pencilling on head, back, and breast, sound rich colour, well put down; 2, hc, Paton, another grand Lark, magnificent size and shape, splendidly marked all over, put down in grand condition; 3, Shirley, beautiful Tree Pipit, well-known winner, grand size and shape, lovely quality and colour, tight as wax in feather; 4, Watson; 5, McVay, two more splendid Larks, full of quality, colour, and pencilling, fine size; vhc, Potts, another splendidly marked; c, Mrs. Frostick. No. 2236, McVay, was an interesting and uncommon exhibit, a Calandra (catalogued as "Galarden") Lark, a very fair specimen, in good condition. A.O.S. RESIDENT (not larger than Grey Wagtail) (19): 1 and spl., best British, S. H. Mays, Tree Creeper, perfect gem, big and good in shape, very rich, well marked back, exceptionally pure in breast, good eye-streaks, an object lesson in perfection of condition and staging; 2, Maxwell, cbarming Gold Crest, big one, lovely head, very rich-coloured crest, very tight and sleek in feather and beautifully staged, deserves its place; 3, Mrs. Frostick, extra large and taking "Jenny" Wren, like wax in plumage, fine rich colour, very tame and perky, shown in most attractive manner; 4, Taylor, fine Crested Tit, another beauti-fully staged exhibit, big bird, very cleanly marked, nice colour, lovely head, A1 condition; 5, Fulbrook, fine Long-tailed Tit, very lively, in good health; vhc, Chick, another very high-class Creeper; vhc, Meadows, also a very fine Gold Crest; hc, McDiarmid, about the biggest and best Pied Wagtail we have seen, could have gone up a place or two, grand condition; c, Cushney, nice Nuthatch; a good mealy Redpoll failed to catch the judge's eye, and looked quite out of place in this class. A.O.S. MIGRANT (not larger than Wheatcar) (14): 1, 2, Maxwell, leader a very beautiful Black Redstart, quite the best we have seen, grand size and shape, wonderful colour and bloom, perfect in every detail, claimed, we heard, at catalogue price £5, another close candidate for the best British bird special, 2nd the well-known Yellow Wagtail, a scorcher for colour (takes Ramsden's pepper special), but hardly look-ing so well as we have seen him, a wonderful bird, however, and deserving of his place; 3, Chick, Red-start, excels in colour and bloom, splendidly marked, rich breast, not too heavily frosted, good white forehead, very dense black gorget, grand specimen; 4, F. D. Jones, Whinchat, smart little thing, tight as wax in feather, well marked and good in colour for a hen, which we took it to be, shown in nice style; 5, Pearce, pretty Lesser Whitethroat, nice silvery throat and breast, in pleasing condition; vhc, Mays; hc, Walsh; c, Francis. A Sedge Warbler was exhibited, but unfortunately was some-what down in condition. A.O.S. LARGE (15): 1, Cook, grand Great Grey Shrike, very steady, per-fect in plumage, nice tone of colour, dense mark-ings, in rare good condition, fine exhibit, run very hard however, by 2, Crockett, a very beautiful Waxwing marvellous colour, very tight and sleek in plumage, lovely headed bird, exceptionally good wing and tail appendages, striking exhibit; 3, Max-well, high-class Wryneck, great size, very shapely, A1 condition, nice rich colour, mottled and marked in excellent style; 4, Ross Bros., grand Fieldfare, splendid colour and markings, very big and good in shape, A1 condition, steady; 5, Poole, very good Ring Ouzel, big, lovely shape and style, in fine con-dition, good body colour, nice distinct crescent; vhc, Underwood, another truly beautiful Waxwing; hc, Waisb; c, Francis. There was also exhibited in this class a Wood Pigeon (or "Ring Dove"), No. 2278 Baggally, which the judge possibly did not consider a "cage-bird." It was n remarkably fine specimen, a credit to its owner. No. 2283, Shad-dock, entered as the "Greater," is in reality the Middle Spotted Woodpecker, and ineligible to com-pete as a British bird.

Judge, Mr. S. Cook.

LIMIT, 20/- (26): 1, Henderson, Siberian cock Bullfinch, grand big, bold bird, fine colour, could have competed successfully in the open Foreign class; 2, Swingler and Blackwell, bouncing Haw-finch, good colour and markings, soon found an owner; 3, best vhc, Frostick, Pine Grosbeak, bonny bird, fair colour, beautiful condition, latter good hand-reared Bullfinch; 4, Cook, nice British Gold-finch, good tan and blaze; vho and best hc, Prior, two cheap birds; hc, Francis; c, White, Crompton. FOREIGN GOLD or BULLFINCH (14): 1, McDonald, whopping big Bullfo, plenty of suostance, carries feather well, very nice colour throughout, grand cap, back, and bars; 2, Seal, grand Goldfinch for colour and quality, lovely condition, expansive rich blaze, well tanned, good buttons, a trifle chipped over the beak; 3, Telfer, pressed second very hard, lovely rich square-cut face, of good size, excellent tan and markings, big, well-built, stylish Finch; 4, Mrs. Southcombe, big fine Bullfie, fair colour, looked a little soft when we took our notes; 5, Arrighi, lovely tan and condition, fine blaze, loses underneath; vhc, Robbins, novelty, a piping Bullfie; hc, McGurk; c, Morton.

CRYSTAL PALACE EMPLOYEES (Any Variety Bird) (12): 1, 2, vhc, hc, Wilson, a very smart Missel Thrush, big bold bird, well marked, a good Mule, and a very fair Yorkshire; 3, Woodley, Yorks, very decent type indeed, full of quality; c, Mrs. Drew.

The Foreign Section.

Judges, Messrs. H. T. Camps, F.Z.S., and Russell Humphrys.

BUDGERIGARS, LOVEBIRDS, ETC. (12): An interesting class, remarkable for the fact that Black-cheeked Lovebirds, which were a first appearance on the show bench this season, numbered no less than five out of the 12 entrants, having become in a few months almost common. One regrets to see so few of the ubiquitous Budgerigars; surely with so freely a kept species there should be no diffi-culty in securing entries if a class for Budgerigars were provided. 1, Cook, Black-cheeked Lovebirds, in perfect condition and well staged; 2, Watts, Blue-crowned Hanging Parrakeets, very fine, but still in immature plumage; 3, Maxwell, good Black-cheeked Lovebirds; 4, Miss Greeven, Red-faced Love-bird, good colour and condition; 5, Cushney, Love-birds; vhc, Millsum, good Black-cheeked Love-birds; hc, Maxwell, Blue-crowned Hanging Parra-keet; c, Robbins, good Green Budgerigars. PARRA-KEETS, LORIES, ETC. (17): A good class con-taining several rare and interesting exhibits, not-ably Mr. Maxwell's Black-throated Lorikeet and Mr. Millsum's Black-winged Lory, both of which have, however, graced the bench before; 1, Max-well, Black-throated Lorikeet, an exquisite exhibit, tight as wax, having the general appearance of a Swainson or Red-collar, but has the head bronze and a light green collar round the back of the neck; 2, 4, 5, Millsum, Black-wing Lory, very rare (we only know of one other specimen being in this country at the present time), and in finest condi-tion; 4th, Stanley Parrakeets, good colour and very tight; 5th, Purple-cap Lory, a perfect blaze of colour, very tame and good talker, a beautiful team; 3, Beaty, good pair Pileated Parrakeets; vhc, hc, Maxwell, good Rock Grass Parrakeet, an uncommon exhibit, but a species which usually seems to be hardly treated by the judge; hc, good Stanley Parrakeet; c, Watts, nice young Lineolated Parrakeet, also exhibited, good specimens of Violet-necked Lory, not yet in full mature plumage, very fine Ring-necked Parrakeet, Australian King Parra-keet (an exquisite specimen, one of the best we have ever seen), Redrump and Rosella Parrakeets, and a pair of Cockatiels. PARROTS, MACAWS, ETC. (10): This class is always a great attraction, and on the present occasion several talented birds were a source of interest and entertainment. The rarer and more uncommon species were not so numerous as usual, the most notable being the Rev. C. H. Raynor's Meyer's Parrot, a beautiful but not brilliantly clad species, which, if not new to the show beuch, has not been seen for many years (see picture and description in another part of this issue). 1, Ray-nor, Meyer's Parrot, a beautiful, rare and unique exhibit, in finest condition; 2, Mrs. S. Bury, very fine Grey Parrot; 3, Mrs. C. Cooper, good Black-headed Calque; 4, Archer, another good Grey; 5, Cook, nice pair of Red-vented Parrots, but looking a wee bit soft when these notes were taken; vhc, Miss M. Richardson, Blue-fronted Amazon; hc, c, Robbins, Grey Parrot and Blue-fronted Amazon. WAXBILLS, WEAVERS, ETC. (11): Again one is forced to remark on the smallness of the entry for what ought to be the largest class of the show, and if the one class provided for freely imported species does not fill, how can exhibitors expect the classification extended? 1, Townsend, Golden-breasted Waxbills, rich colour, absolutely faultless; 2, Hadley, good pair Diamond Sparrows; 3, 4, Row, Orange-cheeked Waxbills and Parson Finches, both in faultless condition; 5, 6, Botting, good pair of Zebra Finches and Diamond Sparrow, the latter being a large, well-coloured and tightly-feathered bird, very hardly treated; vhc, Babb, richly-coloured pair of Common Avadavats; hc, Maxwell, also ex-hibited a charming Green Avadavat and perfect pair of St. Helena Waxbills. Though small in num-bers, this class amply illustrates how beautiful and attractive many of the common or freely-imported species are. GRASSFINCHES, ETC. (14): A very interesting class of beautiful exhibits of which the more notable were: Painted Finches, Australian Fire-tailed Finches (Beautiful Finch: Zoo list), and Gaboon or Silver-billed Weaver, none of which, how-ever, is new to the bench. 1, 2, 4, 5, vhc, Maxwell, 1st Painted Finch, a lovely pair of an exquisite species (see picture and notes elsewhere in issue); 2nd, Gaboon Weaver, a beautiful bird of the well-known Weaver type with upper parts of rich vel-vety-black and undersurface of rosy-carmine; 4th, Melba Finches, beautiful and richly-coloured, and in faultless condition; 5th, Violet-eared Waxbills, very richly coloured; vhc, a lovely pair of Aus-tralian Fire-tailed Finches, a beautiful species with finely undulated plumage, crimson tail, and a pair of spectacles, a grand team; 3, Mrs. E. Galloway, an exquisite pair of Scaly-crowned Finches without a flaw; hc, c, Row, good pair of Parrot and Gouldian Finches. Also exhibited good specimens of Crimson and Rufous-tailed Grassfinches. GROS-BEAKS, ETC. (12): An interesting class with two species, probably on exhibit for the first time, viz., the Slatey Grey Finch (Spermophila analis), and Yellow-browed Buntings, neither of which we remem-ber to have seen previously on the bench, but we have not looked up records. 1, Mrs. E. Galloway, Black-faced Serin, an exquisite exhibit, rare, with-out a flaw, undoubtedly one of the most beautiful of the genus Serinus; 2, Maxwell, a faultless pair of Cuba Finches; 3, Cook, good pair of Indigo Bunt-ings (in winter plumage); 4, Sutcliffe, Slatey Grey Finch, rather rough, or would have been higher, this we believe to be the first time living specimens have reached this country; 5, Miss St. A. Wait, nice White-throated Finch; vhc, hc, Townsend, with his well-known Cape Rock Bunting and Dinca Finch; c, Robbins, Yellow-browed Bunting, an uncommon and beautiful Bunting. Also exhibited Japanese Hawfinches, Green Cardinals, and Olive Cuba Finch. TANAGERS (11): For resplendent beauty and tropi-cal colouring, this and the following class is always an easy first, and though the entries were less numerous than usual, there were several very rare exhibits, and one first appearance, viz., the Black-cheeked Tanager (Calliste cayana), which we believe to be the only living specimen in Europe, but not having completed its moult had to be content with a card (c). While the exquisite Black-throated Spotted Emerald and Rufous-throated Blue Tana-gers, though having made several appearances, are yet all new to the show bench this season. The Olivaceous Tanager, W.C. at Westminster show, was present under new ownership (W. Cook), and the question of its identity is still an open one, the aisles being so crowded when these notes were made gave us no opportunity for long and close observa-tion, but it is possible it may prove a Tanager after all. 1, 2, 3, Maxwell, Black-throated Tanager, tight as wax, a glowing mass of iridescent colour-ing; 2nd, Rufous-throated Blue Tanager, not so gorgeous as most Tanagers, but a beautiful bird and in faultless condition; 3rd, Spotted Emerald Tanager, one of the most chastely beautiful of the genus Calliste, and, like the preceding couple, fault-less, a grand team; 4, 5, Townsend, Magpie and Tricolour Tanagers, both well known and beautiful species, and as is usual with this exhibitor, both in finest condition; vhc, Mrs. P. Smith, Magpie Tanager; hc, Watts, Archbishop Tanager; c, Mill-sum, Black-cheeked Tanager, still in moult, and though a little rough, was certainly hardly treated, very rare, a first appearance. Also exhibited, good specimens of Olivaceous (?), Superb, and Scarlet Tanagers. SUGAR BIRDS, ETC. (8): Another class in which the exquisite beauty of the exhibits simply beggars description. 1, 2, Townsend, Black-headed Sugar Birds, not quite so fit as when at Westminster, and some thought should have given way to the second prize winner, one of the best Yellow-winged Sugar Birds I have ever seen, for rich colouring, tight and silken plumage it certainly has never been surpassed; 3, 5, Millsum, very good Blue Sugar Birds, which, after another moult, will be much richer in colour; 4 Maxwell, good Yellow-winged Sugar Bird; vhc, Mrs. E. Galloway, Blue Sugar Bird; hc, Mrs. Hodgson, Gold-fronted Fruitsucker. A.O.S. (21): Always an interesting class, because of the variety and frequent rarities it contains. Among the rare or uncommon exhibits must be men-tioned the Rusty-cheeked Scimitar Babbler Slatey-headed Scimitar Babbler, Yellow-eyed Babbler, Blue-winger Siva, White-spotted and Rufous-chinned Laughing Thrushes, King Bird of Paradise, Rufous-bellied Niltava, Laughing Jackass, and Touracou. 1, 4, hc, Maxwell, King Bird of Paradise, truly a regal bird, and looking better than ever, despite its two seasons on the show bench; 4, Rufous-bellied Niltava, an exquisite bird in faultless con-dition, with upper surface of black and glistening blue, and undersurface of rich rufous-chestnut; 4th, a typical Flycatcher, in form; hc, Blue-winged Siva, a very rare and uncommon exhibit, with plumage of soft browns above and ashy-whitish below, with larger wing feathers rich blue, a rare and interesting trio; 2, Burrows, the well-known Touracou, must be getting quite a veteran, plum-age very tight and silken; 3, 5, Millsum, Slaty-headed Babblers, we believe first appearance, hand-some and interesting, but needing a larger cage in which to display their activities. White-spotted Laughing Thrushes—these interesting and quaint birds look almost out of place in a show cage, but even under these conditions are very handsome in their garment of browns and chestnut, relieved with white triangular spots at the tips of most of the feathers, very uncommon; vhc, Cushney, Pitta, an uncommon exhibit, which in a cage does not show the richer lines of its plumage, this speci-men however was not in full adult plumage; vhc, Mrs. J. Frostick, Sulphur-breasted Toucan, in splen-did condition, tight plumage and rich colour; hc, c, Cook, a nice young Yellow-eyed Babbler, very un common, and makes one of the nicest cage pets imaginable; c, Rusty-cheeked Scimitar Babbler, an-other interesting and very uncommon bird, with a curved bill fully 1½ inch long, and a pleasingly-arranged garment of brown, rusty-brown and white. Also exhibited Shama, Painted Quail, Laughing Kingfisher, Coleys, Black-headed Sibia, Mexican Green Jays (very beautiful, but evidently odd birds of two species), Glossy Starling (one of the finest ever staged), Rufous-chinned Laughing Thrush (very rare, a beautiful but quietly clad bird), and a Gold-fronted Fruitsucker in its wrong class. In many respects the most interesting class in the show.

The Cage Section.

Judge Mr. S. Cook.

A collection of 36 show cages was on view—cages which were suitable for nearly all varieties of Canaries, and all species of British and Foreign birds, although when going through them carefully we noticed no cage for Lancastures, Scotch Fan-cies, or Belgians, and only one for Borders (and this, curiously enough, came from the West and not the North). A good show cage should be light, strong and well made, and the first point should certainly have first consideration, because, unfor-tunately for exhibitors, the railway companies in-sist upon charging wood and wire as "live birds." The two latter points are almost identical, as one can hardly have a cage strong unless it is well put together. Messrs. C. Palmer and Son, of Shore-ditch, were first, second, and fourth, in the class, which was a very creditable performance, con-sidering the number of entries. The leading cage was one for a Blackbird or Thrush, with an oval front of bent wire. It was 20 inches long, and 10 inches deep, which is rather more than usual. It is very nice, no doubt, for the bird, but it might occa-sionally prove somewhat inconvenient at shows where the staging was narrow. This cage was beau-tifully made, with good stout wires, and the feed-ing receptacles easily managed. It struck us, how-ever, that the round perches appeared just a little large, and clumsy for the size of the cage, and the bird it was intended for. The next cage was a Crest show cage, which was absolutely faultless. It combined all the qualities necessary for the ex-hibition of a tip-top bird. The price of this cage, considering the finish, was very low. Fourth was designed for small Foreign Birds, with the wires barely half an inch apart, and just sufficient turn back of the front to give a good view of the in-mates. This was catalogued as a Redstart cage, which we think must have been an error, as the wires could be a shade wider for that bird. A stock cage for a Blackbird or Thrush shown by Messrs. Palmer and Son, secured vhc. This cage is nicely designed for the purpose. It has a sloping roof, wire front, and partly wire sides, the re-mainder being covered in as protection from the weather. Another lightly made Wagtail cage se-cured like honours. Mr. Reece, of Bristol, was vhc, with two exhibits, one a neat little Border cage, put together in a more substantial manner than is usual with this kind of cage, but was exceedingly light and easily handled. The other was for a small British bird. The other awards were: hc, Newley, Palmer, Reece; c, Palmer, Reece, Millsum, who exhibited a combination show and travelling cage, which is undoubtedly a capital idea for a single exhibit. With just a little more ingenuity the case part of it could be made for use as a stock cage, when required; it would then serve a double purpose.

In the breeding cage section it was apparent that cage makers have made big strides from time to time, bringing out new improvements. But even yet there is room for a few new and original ideas. An entry of 31 is distinctly good, and among the exhibits were some fit to grace the staging of the very best appointed bird rooms. Messrs. Palmer and Sons were again to the front, securing all the prizes. The first was a double breeder 36 inches long, to which was attached a nursery and bath. This was a distinctly good idea, and in a sense showed the whole in working condition. By means of a sliding partition, it could be quickly made into two single breeders. The nursery is easily fixed, and kept in position by a wire hook; one suggestion we would make as an improvement to the nursery is that the door be somewhat larger, and the woodwork carried higher at the feeding end. This latter alteration would prevent pluck-ing of tail feathers. The second cage was an exactly similar one and needs no description. The third was a capital single breeder 18 in. by 16 in. by 11 in. It was well made, had the usual fittings, but no front perch; the front, however, was only some 2 inches high, so that a front perch was hardly necessary, although we must say we prefer to keep the birds from the floor of the cage if possible, as they keep so much cleaner, especially about the feet. Dirt of any kind carried to the nest is "matter in the wrong place." The fourth cage was similar to the first and second; vhc, Palmer, a 20 inch cage, fitted complete at the low figure of 3/6, which we consider exceedingly cheap, being well made and strong; vhc, Newley, a good double Norwich cage; hc, Palmer, very smart 20 in. cage nicely finished, cheap; hc, Strong, 20 in. Norwich. A very ingenious cage was exhibited by Mr. Cooper, of West Ham, but did not meet with the approval of the judges. It was very strongly made, and well finished. About two-thirds of the space was given up to the breeding birds, the remainder, by means of a slide, being used as a nursery. The perches can be fitted in any part of the cage in a few seconds, and the inventor claims that they are insect proof, as they do not touch the back of the cage. The seed-box is the best we have seen, as it is impossible for the birds to waste even a grain of seed, which is an impor-tant matter where many are kept.

In the A.O.V. class there were cages of various designs, but mostly for Parrots and pet birds. The 1st went to Stelling and Son, a very swell Parrot cage, quite suited to the mansion, splendidly finished in brass; 2nd, Newley, a fine show cage for a Thrush or Macaw, very strong and not par-ticularly heavy considering its size; 3, Palmer, another Parrot cage, quickly claimed at the price, which is the best criterion of its merits; 4, Stel-ling, an all wire cage, for Finches, the wires about 3-8 in. apart, had moveable bottom and divisions, vhc, Burnett, clean dining cage with 4 partitions, very useful for placing the birds in, as soon as they can perch. There are doors in each partition, but these are hardly necessary, as birds seldom interfere with each other when dining; vhc, Palmer, store cage for Magpie or Jay, made on the same principle as the store cage for Thrush in the pre-vious class; hc, Reece, large strongly made wire cage for big bird, suitable for hall or conservatory; hc, Palmer, dressing-room cage, for small Foreign birds, very neat and strongly put together; c, Newly

ROBBERIES OF BIRDS AT PETERBOROUGH.

SIR.—May I ask through your valuable columns if any Fancier has purchased any cage birds from Peterborough this week, and, if so, whether they will let me know the particulars of same, as eleven were stolen from the outdoor aviary belonging to the Rev. Mandel, New Road, Peterborough, on February 7th, comprising eight Canaries, a pair of Bullfinches, and one Goldfinch. Of course we should guarantee to free anyone from loss who acquired them honestly, as we only want to put a stop to the continual robberies going on.

THE MARSH TIT IN CAPTIVITY.

SIR,—I have had a Marsh Tit about six months. He sang so sweetly for a Tit, and like them, had any amount of call notes, which he was never tired of uttering. The poor little fellow was let out in mother's greenhouse for a treat, and had such a jolly time with the insects, but being fond of bathing, he got in the water tub. It was nearly empty, but when I went to look at him again, to my great sorrow I found him drowned. He was always on the move, and had been kept in a large cage, and fed on Trowers' Improved "Cecto," which he was very fond of. He also had sunflower and hemp, as well as insects daily. He really was the happiest British bird I have ever seen caged, and so tame. He always had a spray for perches, and a cocoanut to sleep in. I must also thank you for CAGE BIRDS. I have taken it in for over two years, and think it A1, especially the coloured plates. My sister and I, although still in our "teens," are very fond of birds, and last year, thanks to CAGE BIRDS, we bred some nice stock birds, as well as a beautiful Norwich Cock, which we hope to put on the show bench this year.

THE ALLEGED STAINED LINNET AT BRISTOL F.A. SHOW.

SIR,—I know nothing of the above matter beyond what I have seen referred to in CAGE BIRDS, and I shouldn't have had anything to say about it had not Mr. Birchley condemned the C.B.U. I have noticed in one or two cases before, that certain parties have had nothing but good to say of the C.B.U.; some have even taken up the cudgels in its defence, and eulogised the Union to the skies; but directly it has trodden on the said parties' toes, they have turned round and abused it. What is the C.B.U. for? Haven't we made the Union to put these malpractices down? Yes! Then we as exhibitors would have something to grumble at if the C.B.U. didn't do their duty. That is what they are there for. Mr. Birchley must understand he has not been suspended for staining the Linnet, but for exhibiting the Linnet stained. Which is a different thing altogether. The C.B.U. have nothing to do with the person who stained the Linnet. As a matter of fact they can't stop anyone from painting a bird either black, blue, or green; it is not within their jurisdiction; but they can stop him from exhibiting it. Therefore, unlike Mr. Birchley, I think it shows the absolute usefulness of such a society as the C.B.U. Anyhow, they have done some good work, and no doubt they would do more if it were brought to their notice; and I congratulate the Council, or district committee, for their stability in condemning and suspending their backsliders. If my advice is of any use to Mr. Birchley, I should advise him not to take the barrister's advice. This, I know, sounds Irish, but it's cheap; and if Mr. B. took the barrister's advice, no one but the barrister would gain in the end. No doubt Mr. B. knows the old proverb about a fool and his money. With regard to Mr. Birchley's threat to get up a petition for the condemnation of the C.B.U., I should think the council of the C.B.U. are trembling even now. Talk about staggering humanity, I should think there would be a regular earthquake when Mr. B. gives up some of his valuable time to it. The various societies that are blessed with the patronage of Mr B. will no doubt receive a severe shock when they read his letter; but I should think that 50s. a year would come in useful for a lot of things. If he is anything of a philanthropist, he might send a cheque down to CAGE BIRDS Office, care of the Editor, and made payable to UNIONITE.

SIR,—After reading in CAGE BIRDS the correspondence re the above, it makes me smile to see the C.B.U. come down on a prominent exhibitor for not knowing and for buying a stained bird, when he is posing as a judge of other people's birds. Instead of "S.W.B." talking of taking action against the man he bought it off, it would be best to own up he does not know a stained bird when he sees one. If he does why did he show this one? If he can convince the court he did not stain the Linnet the seller might bring the same plea. However, success to the C.B.U. and to the judges who have the conrage of their convictions.

THOS. WILLIAMS.

SIR,—After reading Mr. S. W. Birchley's two letters upon this subject, there are one or two little matters in them that puzzle me, and I should like Mr. B. to let us know whether the said Linnet and Yellowhammer were his own bona-fide property at the time of his entering them for Leicester Show? I see they were purchased on November 5th, and sent to Leicester on the 6th; it did not leave very much time for entering. Further was Mr. B. pulled up for staining the bird, or was it for exhibiting a bird that was stained? Again, why should the C.B.U. accept an appeal from him without the deposit (thereby breaking their rules), any more than from the ordinary working man fancier? Mr. B. seems to have taken a sudden idea that the C.B.U. is a useless organisation, but he must remember that it is their duty to make examples of these very cases; and as Mr. B.'s case is not tho first, there is no excuse for anyone who is caught. While sympathising with Mr. B., one hardly knows what the sympathy is for, (1) whether for the idea of a specialist British judge, with a life experience buying a stained bird and exhibiting the same twice and not knowing or being able to find out that it is stained, until found out by one who at any rate does not claim to be a British bird specialist, or (2) the weakness displayed in his second letter, re the smashing up of the C.B.U. In conclusion, I would say to Mr. Birchley, "take your punishment like a man," and thereby deserve the sympathy you would get, or else take the specialist sign off its hooks and let it rest another four years.

THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CLUB.

SIR,—Having been appointed to the office of secretary to the Cage Bird Union, I have decided to resign the office of secretary to the above club, as I think it would be best for both parties. But before doing so should like to make an appeal to those members whom I have written to, to forward their subscriptions for the past year at once, so that I can make up the books for the past year; those not complying will have their names struck off the list of members, much to my regret. Any new members wishing to join the club may do so now on forwarding their names and addresses along with the subscription of 2s. 6d. for the year to me not later than February 27th, so that their names may be included in the revised list of members. The following is a list of winners of specials given by the Club for the past year:—Champion Section, the Challenge Cup (value £10) for most points at five shows, 1st, Cup, and Gold Medal, Mr. S. Cook, 86 points; 2nd, Gold Medal, Mr. T. Seed, 83 points; Club Show (Accrington), Gold Medal for best bird, J. Trengove; best second, J. Trengove; best third, T. Seed; best fourth, W. N. Midgley; best fifth, J. Raynes; best sixth, T. H. Dent. Amateur Section: Gold Medal for best bird, W. T. Hill; best second, E. Sutton; best third and fifth, C. Oliver; best fourth, Leeming Bros.; best sixth, J. Smith; most points during the season: 1st (teapot), T. Crimes, 34 points; 2nd (coffee-pot), C. Oliver, 20; 3rd (cream jug), A. Huggins, 19; Special most points open to all: 1st prize-winners debarred. Bolton: J. Trengove; Manchester: G. H. Massey; Liverpool: C. Blackhurst; Westminster: S. Cook. Scottish Contest Specials, No. 32, 38, 40, and 54, J. Trengove; No. 27, W. Vardy; No. 47, T. Irons. The following unsolicited specials have kindly been promised for next year's competition: A tea urn, by Mr. J. E. Davies (Stockport) for Champion Section, while Mr. W. T. Hill (Levenshulme) gives 10s. cash to the Amateurs. I should be glad to hear of other gentlemen offering similar prizes, or sending a donation to the special fund to wipe off the deficit on the club before I leave it

ROLLER CANARIES AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW.

A £10 Challenge.

SIR,—Being thoroughly satisfied that my bird exhibited in the Roller Classes of the Jubilee Palace Show can surpass all others exhibited at that show, especially the prize winners,—I, R. Kremner, 104, Tib Street, Manchester, am desirous of issuing the above challenge. I will undertake that if any exhibitor accepts this challenge within seven days from date of issue of this paper, to submit my bird to any two recognised judges, one to be selected by myself, and the other by my opponent. And in the event of a disagreement, the two judges to appoint an arbitrator. The match to take place within fourteen days from issue of paper. In support of this challenge, I have deposited the sum of £10 with the Editor of CAGE BIRDS this day, February 9th, 1909.

R. KREMNER (signed).

THE CRESTED CANARY CLUB.

A Testimonial to Mr. J. Tyson.

SIR,—In recognition of his services as hon. secretary to the Crested Canary Club, extending over a period of six years, it has been decided to present a testimonial to Mr. J. Tyson. The following amounts have been already subscribed: Mr. R. Rhodes, president, C.C.C., £1, Messrs. F. W. Barnett 10s., R. L. Crisp 10s., G C. Ley 10s., Jesse Braund 5s., John Broad 5s., J. S. Clarke 5s., J. Dobson 5s., J. Franz 5s., T. Heath 5s., H. Horton 5s., G. Peters 5s., John Robson 5s., T. Taylor 5s., J. Turner 5s., J. Brotherton 2s. 6d., Burns 2s. 6d. A. W. Curtis 2s. 6d. A. W. Hart 2s. 6d., J. Howard 2s. 6d., F. Johnson 2s. 6d., E. Jones 2s. 6d., H. Mills 2s. 6d., W. H. Mugford 2s. 6d., J. Pooley 2s. 6d., W. Prance 2s. 6d., J. Ryder 2s. 6d., Mrs. Litchfield 2s. 6d., A. Lazarus 2s., J. Wright 2s., Maxwell 1s., Sadd 1s.; total £7 4s. 6d. This amount was subscribed very readily at the annual general meeting and I trust the members of the C.C.C. and friends interested in the variety who were absent therefrom will testify their appreciation of the man who has served them for a lengthy period so loyally and well. Contributions will be gladly received by

J. S. CLARKE,

Sunnyside, Prospect Road, Woodford Green, Essex.

IS IT CRUEL TO KEEP BRITISHERS IN CAPTIVITY?

SIR,—In my opinion, most decidedly not; as my experiences, like Mr. Despard's, will show to anyone but an out-and-out crank. I have had lots of birds escape from my aviary, but have very rarely lost one. Only last Sunday I noticed a Bullie hen had escaped, as I found afterwards, through a small hole in a weak place in the wirework. I caught her again in a small trap I have attached to the aviary, and turned her in again. In less than an hour she was out again. Try as I would, I couldn't get her in the trap again that day; but she didn't go away. She still kept about in the trees round about the aviary, and at dark I gave it up as a bad job. I thought I should never see her again; perhaps the cats might get her. Anyhow, I hoped not. But being at work early in the morning, and coming home after dark, I didn't see her again till to-day (Feb. 7th), when I again caught her and returned her to the aviary. But the curious thing about this incident is that this bird hadn't been caught more than six weeks at the most. And she had had a whole week in which to fly "over the hills and far away." How happy she looked, too, when again in the company of her companions; and what a fuss her sister Bullies made over her with their curious tail twisting when she returned to the fold! It quite reminded me of the parable of the lost sheep—even if I had stopped away from church to catch her. But that is only one of many similar incidents that have been my own personal experience. How do the cruelty cranks account for incidents such as this, and those of Mr. Despard's? Why shouldn't a bird be happy and contented when it has plenty of wholesome food and fresh water? I'm sure I can't see why. I should say that I have upwards of a hundred British birds in my aviary; yet I do believe, that were they all to be set at liberty, quite 90 per cent. would return. A great many of these have been out at one time or another. I once had a Greenfinch cock escape during the breeding season, which had previously paired to a Greenie hen. Well, it so happened that he wasn't such a particularly good specimen, and I didn't bother to catch him again. But would he go away? Not a bit. I don't think you could have driven him away with a shot gun. No; he simply wouldn't leave; so at last I caught and returned him to the aviary. I remember once though I had a rare good singing Linnet that I thought a lot about, it being a special favourite of mine. One day, when in the garden, I thought I heard a Linnet's chirp in the trees; when, behold, Mr. Linnet had escaped. I was just fixing the trap to catch him whon I thought I heard a song that sounded to me like "There is a green hill far away." I at once turned round, and there was Master Linnet just flying past the building singing "Beyond the city wall." And that was the last I ever saw (or heard) of him.

REVIVAL OF THE FANCY IN DALTON AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—The bird fanciers of Dalton and district, after a lapse of several years, have revived the interest in cage birds by opening a club to be called the Dalton and District Cage Birds Association. It is open to fanciers throughout the world. The opening meeting took place at headquarters, 189, Chapel-st., Dalton-in-Furness. A splendid assembly of gentlemen was ably presided over by Mr. S. Hanna, who has been elected chairman for the ensuing year. He was ably assisted by the vice-chairman, Mr. J. Parks, who referred to the desire of all present to try and revive the interest of fanciers in cage birds and bring the club up to the state of perfection enjoyed by its predecessor. A very able committee was also formed, and one and all pledged themselves to do all in their power to further the objects of the society. The secretary, Mr. E. Shelly, will be glad to get into communication with any gentlemen interested in the rearing and breeding of birds with a view to membership.

E. SHELLY, Hon. Sec.

THE MEYER'S PARROT AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW.

SIR,—My Meyer's Parrot, which was first at the "Jubilee" Palace Show, is a rare species of Pœocephalus, indigenous to the Transvaal, and perhaps not more than half a dozen specimens have existed in England during the last ten years. It was about the year 1900 (possibly a little earlier) that I obtained the present specimen from Mr. H. J. Fulljames, who was then disposing of his foreigners, which, among other choice specics, included a Hyacinthine Macaw, a Princess of Wales' Parrakeet (which he valued at £40), and a unique pair of Brown's Parrakeets—the Regent bird of Australia. P. Meyeri is not a large bird, and has a ground-colour of dull-blackish-brown. The breast, however, is of a beautiful irridescent blue-green, and the yellow markings on the wings and head are intense and striking. The female (to which sex my bird belongs) has much less yellow on the head, but is, nevertheless, quite good-looking. "Bessie" is chiefly a seed-eater, not caring much for nuts or fruit, but she is a persistent bather, to which fact I largely attribute the splendid condition which she has maintained since she came into my possession. She is a quiet bird, occasionally uttering a thrice-repeated plaintive note (by no means loud), and is greatly devoted to her master, on whose shoulder she will sit for an hour at a time, occasionally pulling his ear when she considers herself entitled to the little piece of sugar which she succeeds in obtaining three or four times a day.

PROPOSED NEW SOCIETY FOR DEWSBURY AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—A meeting of Canary fanciers interested in the forming of the new society was held at the Little Saddle Hotel on Feb. 6, when there was an excellent attendance of intending members. We decided to leave over the election of officers till next meeting, when any fancier who would like to join may attend and take part in their election. Or I should like to hear from any Canary fancier who would like to join and I will give any information he may require. I might say that one or two of the new members knew nothing about the forming of a new society till they saw it in CAGE BIRDS, which speaks well for your widely read paper. Wishing the paper all the success it deserves.

G. G. STAFFORD.

THE CINNAMON DIPLOMA AT THE PALACE SHOW.

SIR,—I would like to know the reason why the judging for Diploma for the Cinnamon classes at the Palace Show should have been left over until Saturday. Further, why the Palace Committee should allow, or why any judge should entertain, such a system. Seeing that they are men who profess to have had many years' experience as exhibitors, they must know the changes that often come over a bird in 24 hours' time through confinement in show rooms, different temperature, and other causes. Therefore, in leaving this over until Saturday it was unfair and unjust to exhibitors. I think the judging for all specials should have commenced directly after the judging of each section, as then, and then only, is the best time for any judge to follow correctly the awards he has previously given. An answer through the medium of your paper will greatly oblige,

ALBERT BENTLEY.

A CANADIAN SHOW FROM THE POINT OF VIEW OF A VISITOR.

SIR,—I see in your issue of January 16th notes on a Canadian Show. It is a very clever letter, indeed; but I must say he is no fancier. On enquiries, I find that three years in succession he paid his 15 cents admission, and he has always had the same cry—the cages, the birds, and now their was no catalogue. Nothing seems to have pleased him except the Scotch. He seems to be a guid judge. Now, Mr. Sharp, why did you not come into the fold as I did? I have not been here three years yet, and that fine display of Scotch Fancies you speak about are nearly all the offspring of two pairs of birds that I brought out from Scotland. You say you are a Yorkshire breeder, so you see, had you done as much for your fancy, what a grand show we might have had! I admit the Yorkshires are not what they should be; still, considering their shows have only been in existence, say five years, it is wonderful the progress that has been made. You also say the birds needed tubbing. Well, I advise you to behave yourself at our next show, or else its you that will be tubbed.

BORDER FANCY CANARY.

SIR,—I was glad to see my friend, Mr. Cubly, of Carlisle, had sent a letter to the B.F.C. Club concerning the medals that are being awarded year by year to the best Borders at our shows, and calling attention to the fact that they are nearly always awarded to the clear or ticked birds. Why this should be I am at a loss to understand, but the fact remains that it is the clear bird that gets it. Now, as a breeder and exhibitor of green and cinnamon Borders, I would just like to put in a plea for these two beautiful varieties, and ask our judges to give them consideration. I think now we have got the green Border to a perfect type. I have seen some that could not be beaten for type and colour. They are as green as grass, what else do we want? From my own experience it is no soft thing to breed an ideal green, and when it is done, I think that the bird that possesses these qualities ought to have careful handling. I have been at several shows where the classes of greens put down by our breeders have been the acme of type, quality, and colour, classes that have numbered 21, 25, 17, 18, and 30, but none of these birds won the medal. I don't say that they were not judged for it; but had that careful consideration been given above-mentioned for the trouble and pains that it must have taken to stage such a bird as I have described? I am a breeder of greens, yet write from no selfish motive, but purely from the love of the wee gems. I trust more able pens than mine will contribute to this correspondence, and see if we cannot get the green and cinnamon Border put on an equality with its clear and ticked brethren, when the medals are doled out.

PROPOSED NEW SOCIETY FOR ARDWICK AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—A meeting was held at the Blacksmith's Arms, Viaduct Street, Ashton Old Road, Ardwick, on Feb. 1st, when there was a large attendance. Eighteen were enrolled as members. It was unanimously agreed to form a society, to be named "The Ardwick and District Cage Bird Society." It was decided that the yearly subscription be 4s., and that meetings be held at the above place on the first and third Tuesday in each month. The following gentlemen were elected officers: President and treasurer, Mr. Joseph Mitchell; chairman, Mr. J. Coulson; secretary (pro tem.), Mr. J. Spencer, 80, Hillkirk Street, Beswick, Manchester; committee: Messrs. H. Harding, W. Robinson, T. Hudson, L. Crabtree, F. Washbourne, G. F. Henson, and Crossley; auditors, Messrs. McLoughlin and Fittes. The secretary will be pleased to hear from fanciers wishing to join, and will forward any further particulars on application.

JOSEPH SPENCER, Secretary (pro tem.).

A DEAL IN YORKSHIRES.

SIR,—You will be pleased to hear that as a result of my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS, I have had a splendid sale, three pairs of my Yorkshires going for £14 10s. The best of the two buffs, depicted on the front page a few weeks ago, went to a gentleman in Glasgow for a high figure. I had many amusing offers for those two buffs, and one would think from the many enquiries sent, that winning Yorkshires "grew upon trees." I am forwarding a sample letter to you which, without mentioning names, you may publish, and if the reading of it causes as much laughter as it did at our meeting the other night, there will be some fun had out of next week's C.B.

E. J. BANKS.

COPY.

MR. BANKS,

SIR,—I see you are advertising Yorkshires. I require a good Yorkshire yellow, or ticked yellow, cock, 7 inches long, fine feather, pipe tail, well up on leg, showing a bit of breed, nice round head, plenty of thigh, tail straight in line with its body, nice and round in back, no hinge tail, or gutter down its back, slim, with short beak, and price 15s. A good, all-round bird, or no use, as I keep Yorkshires, and I do not want one to throw my birds all wrong. I enclose stamp for reply. I want fresh blood. On approval.

TYPE OF THE PRESENT DAY WINNING NORWICH PLAINHEAD.

SIR,—As a lover of the real Norwich Canary, I think Mr. Bertie, in your issue of Jan. 23rd, hits out from the shoulder in its defence, and fanciers ought to be thankful to him for his courage. Although I have not exhibited for many years, I attend a few good shows each season, and, with few exceptions, can quite fully endorse what Mr. B. says. In last week's issue "Exhibitor" attacks him in a most sarcastic manner. We all like our own opinions, but that does not prove our opinions are always right. I don't suppose Mr. B. is conceited enough to think no one knows a bird except himself. I once remember a very prominent judge awarding a prize to an inferior bird. When asked why he did it, he replied, "I always had a fancy for that kind." So, perhaps if exhibitors studied what the judges fancied "as their decision is final," there might not be so many disappointed exhibitors. For example, about three years ago I was at an All-England show, where the judge was inclined to award the prizes for type, instead of for size and colour; result—one exhibitor who, like our friend last week, believed in the cross-winged, coarse-feathered birds, and who had been winning with such, gave up the Fancy in disgust, because type was put before size and colour. Another exhibitor I know, who has been trying for type, according to Mr. B.'s ideas, was so disappointed last November to find the Crest-breds sweeping the decks in Norwich classes, that he foolishly sold out, and said, "Size for me in future; never mind if the feathers are as long as chickens, and tails like Yokohama fowls, they are what the judges go for." I don't think Mr. B. said a duck was the same size all the way up. Again, Mr. B. no doubt has seen some Crest-breds with long, snaky heads, as well as some with flat heads, and if "Exhibitor" has not, it is no proof such birds do not exist. Then "Exhibitor" asks Mr. B. if he has seen four winners. Probably he has, and hundreds besides, and no doubt the majority have been the big Crest-breds, with nothing save size and colour to recommend them. "Exhibitor" concludes his attack, saying, "Judges will never please Mr. B. unless they bring his type of bird to the front." How will "Exhibitor" feel, if judges wake themselves up to type, and put it before size and colour? To my mind, when a standard is fixed, judges should award the prizes to those birds which come nearest to it, and if it were possible to poll all fanciers whether we shall adhere to type in preference to size and colour, I think the verdict would be for Mr. Bertie, leaving "Exhibitor" in the minority.

SIR,—What is the matter with "Exhibitor?" Hello, I see the cap fits him. Well, Mr. "Exhibitor," you can wear it. But why don't you give us your name, or sign yourself judge? Then we should have some idea of what type you are yourself—Tom Tit or Jenny Wren. What's your little game? You seem to be making a lot of fuss about my letter. However, I am pleased the cap has fit someone. That is what we want. Let it be thrashed out thoroughly. That is the only way to settle the question. Let any fancier give his view or idea as to what he thinks of the birds that have been winning of late; but let the discussion be carried on in a friendly way. "Exhibitor" says: "Does Mr. Bertie want to introduce his own model?" No, Sir, I don't, but I wish to see Norwich birds win in Norwich classes. He also says it would take something off my load of trouble if I could only breed a few like some of the winners. Well, that depends what winners he means. Some of them I have seen I would be ashamed to own. Again, he says I am banging the drum about the Crest-bred characteristics shown by the Norwich Plainhead winners, vide their snaky heads. Yes, Sir, again I say that I do connect the long, snaky heads with Crest-breds; it is an evidence of his acute observation if "Exhibitor" has not seen this kind of head on a Crest-bred! Take another look, and I think you will find them. No, Sir, I do not profess to know all about the Norwich Plainhead; there are others, I am well aware. But if I do not know as much as some of the judges, then I don't know very much. Now about the duck. I said that the majority of winners carried as much behind as a duck, referring, of course, to the back part being long and heavy in feather, the same as does a duck. That is where the duck comes in. Quack! quack!! So I don't see that any ordinary imagination needs any prompting to understand this. Yes, it is the judges (some of them) whom I am not pleased with, and, as "Exhibitor" says, it is quite time they reformed their ways. There is a lot of room for it. And when they do mend their ways they will please me and thousands more. That is a fact. Do open your eyes, Mr. "Exhibitor," and take another look at some of the so-called winners that have graced (? disgraced) the show bench of late. Yes, I have seen Mr. Rennie's winning yellow, Mr. Midgley's yellow ticked (and the same gentleman's unflighted yellow for the first time) at the Palace Show last week, and I must confess that they are the best three yellow birds that I have ever seen at any one show. They are the kind wo want—no "Tom Tits" and "Jenny Wrens" about these. Big but good ones are these. These are the "Bertie type" if you like, but where has "Exhibitor" seen birds that have in any way approached these three birds of late? No, I am no advocate of "Tom Tits" and "Jenny Wrens." Such are quite as big an eye-sore to me as those big nondescripts that have been winning of late.

J. BERTIE.

A SKYLARK TWENTY YEARS IN A CAGE.

SIR,—I wonder if any of your readers can give me an answer to a very interesting question? I have a Skylark which has been in his cage 20 years last November. I don't know what his right age is, as he was a netted bird caught on the Downs near Brighton. I have plenty of witnesses to prove my statement as to the length of time I have had him. He is a lovely songster, and is just coming on in song again, going through his notes quietly. I have had people from London and other parts call in during the summer to inquire if I have still got the lark. He has only one wing. He broke the other one some 13 years since; he must have got it through the wire of the cage. I thought of destroying him at the time, but then I thought they meet with mishaps of a similar kind in the fields, and I supposed instinct told them what to do. On the third day after, when taking him down to feed, he fluttered about and the piece of wing dropped off. It didn't seem to affect him in any way. What I want to know is, has anyone any record of a Lark being in a cage twenty or more years? I have been asked this by a great many people, and if any of your readers can kindly answer this through your valuable paper, I should esteem it a great favour.

HARRY FORD.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

THE great Crystal Palace Show is now a memory of the past, and as befits a "Jubilee" event, a record entry was obtained. Of course, in the County of Broad Acres, most of the interest was centred in the section named after it, viz., the Yorkshires, and the cracks, with the valuable aid of the novices, succeeded in once more upholding the prestige of their county. This show is the deciding ground for the trophies of the Y.C.C. and the C.M.Y.C.C., and in another column will probably be found the result of the competitions.

WAKEFIELD Show, which is held to-day (Saturday), closes the competitions of the Yorkshire Union and the Yorkshire County B.B. and M.C., and the latter society are holding a meeting at the show to make arrangements for the prize distribution, which is to take place on March 6th (in conjunction with other societies). It is hoped that as many as can make it convenient will attend; trips are run for 1s. 6d. from Bradford, so that the journey will not be expensive.

GREAT Horton O.S. held their annual Pie Supper and Social on Saturday last, the 6th inst., a good muster putting in an appearance to partake of the fare provided, and in justice to the hostess, Mrs. Mitchell, I must say that the Pie was splendid. I know, for I had some, and was ready for it, having spent a few hours during the afternoon on the "wilds of Wibsey" in anticipation of the event. After supper the time was spent "midst song and smoke." Plenty of volunteers were forthcoming, and somebody said one or two would do with a little egg food, or mixed seed, to bring them up into full song! Altogether a very pleasant evening was spent.

THE Y.C.C. challenge trophy now becomes the property of Messrs. Bailey and Swanger, who secured their third win this season. It is expected that next season a cup to be won outright in one season will be put up for competition.

IT pleases us to hear that those societies whose meeting falls on March 6th, the day selected for the amalgamated prize distribution, are making arrangements to leave that date open, so that all members will be at liberty to attend the social. This is as it should be.

MORLEY and District Society have under consideration the advisability of joining the Yorkshire Union, and it is expected that they will arrive at some decision in regard to the matter early in March. On February 27th, they have a lecture arranged, with Mr. S. Dean the Union secretary, and no doubt will be asking for a little information on Union matters.

The Crystal Palace Bird Show of Fifty Years Ago.

Some Highly Interesting Notes concerning the first of the Crystal Palace Shows; also on the exhibition held 17 years later.

In this "year of Jubilee" it is a matter of considerable interest to look back over the half-century which separates us from the first recorded exhibition of cage birds at the Crystal Palace, and see what manner of show they had in those days, and in what particulars it differs from the shows of to-day. For the notes we are able to give below we have to acknowledge our indobtedness to Mr. T. Heath, a gentleman well-known in the Fancy to-day as a keen and fearless judge, and in the past a highly successful exhibitor, and a one-time manager of the shows held in the Sydenham "Glass House." With his usual courtesy Mr. Heath has gone through the catalogue of the 1859 exhibition, and this is his account of that show, compiled therefrom:—

In the Beginning.

These notes, writes Mr. Heath, were copied from the catalogue of the first Crystal Palace Show of Canaries and British Foreign Cage Birds held at the Crystal Palace on Nov. 19, 21, 22, and 23, 1859. Personally, I do not believe this was the first held, but it is the first show of which we have any record; in fact, the C.P. authorities called the last show they held (in 1897) the 34th annual, when it really was the 38th. I was the show manager for the L. and P. O.S. in 1898, and rectified this, and called it, as it should be, the 39th.

The classification for this first show comprised 14 classes for Canaries, 5 for Mules and Any Other Variety of Canary or Mule, 30 for British, and 45 for Foreign, making a total of 94 classes. The entry fee was 2s., with two prizes in the Canary and Mule classes of £1 and 10s., except in the two classes for London Fancy, which had three prizes of £2, £1, and 10s. British birds had to be content with one prize of 10s., and Foreign birds one prize only, of £1 in some classes, and 10s. in others.

The 11 classes of Canaries had 145 entries, the 4 classes of Mules had 31 entries, one class of Any Other Variety Canary or Mule 49 entries, the 30 classes of British 37 entries, the 44 classes of Foreign had 77 entries, and one extra class "too late for competition," 22, a total of 411. There were three judges, Messrs. A. Willmore and T. Moore, Canaries and Mules, and W. Goodwin, British and Foreign. They did not give the names of the judges in the schedule, but only in the catalogue.

The prices of the Norwich ranged from £2 5s. the highest, to 15s. The winner in the Clear Yellow class stood at 35s., and the Clear Buff 30s. In Belgians prices ranged from £5 to 28s. The winners in the two Crested classes could be bought for 32s. and £3 5s., and the two best Mules for 35s. and 30s. each. In the British birds the prices of the winners went from 12s. 6d. to 35s. In the Foreign birds several good talking Parrots had prohibitive prices, viz., £100 and £50 each.

Readers will not fail to notice that there was not any class for Yorkshires, neither was there a single one in the show. The first time a bird of this variety appeared at the Palace Show was in 1863, one or two specimens being shown in the Any Other Variety Class. They did not include a class for Yorkshires until 1873, when there was one class given for marked or variegated Yorkshires, and it had 11 entries. The Clear Yorkshires had to compete in the A.O.V. class. I cannot find any of the winning exhibitors in this show whose name is, or has been, known in the Fancy during the last 30 years (so far I know) with the exception of the late Mr. G. J. Barnesby, of Derby, who officiated as one of the judges at the Palace for many years.

The Cage Bird Show in these days used to be held in November, and the Poultry and Pigeon Show in February; but this was changed about in 1860, viz., the P. and P. Show in November, 1860, and the Cage Bird Show in February, 1861.

The Exhibition of 1875.

Seventeen years later, in 1875, to wit, the "Illustrated London News" gave several drawings of the birds exhibited at the show of that year, from the pencil of the late Harrison Weir, and also gave details of the exhibition itself, from which we extract the following:—

The twelfth—[It would seem as though this should really be called the seventeenth. —Ed. "C.B."]—annual exhibition of Canaries and British and foreign cage birds was open at the northern end of the nave of the Crystal Palace, from Saturday till Thursday. The bird show at the Crystal Palace has long been favourably known. But though the numbers of entries have been increasing year after year, the present exhibition was most successful, exceeding the last by as many as 300, the number of entries being nearly 1,450. It was no less remarkable for the quality of the birds exhibited. This was shown by numerous tickets appended to the cages bearing the words "Special Prize," "Special Second Prize," "Special Third Prize," and so on. In several of the classes the judges found it extremely difficult to award the prizes, owing to the excellence of the birds shown. Of Norwich Canaries 460 specimens were entered in thirteen classes, each of which afforded good opportunities of studying the points of excellence of those birds. The Belgians were forty-five in number; after these came the London Fancy, Spangled Lizards, Yorkshire, Cinnamon, and others, the total number of single Canaries being 733. Among them was a talking Canary, valued by its owner at 100 guineas, besides a Cape Canary, and an original wild Canary, as well as some rare varieties, such as the Lancashire Crested Coppy, Plainhead, and others. Mules were 207 in number, Class 41 containing many rare specimens. There were many cages of Canaries and Mules, six in each cage, the total number of entries for Canaries and Mules being 873. The Bullfinches and Goldfinches were very fine; among these last was a fine cock cheverel (No. 905). The Chaffinches and Linnets, though not very numerous were excellent; the class of Redpoll or Siskin was exceptionally fine. A white Linnet was shown (No. 962). The Skylarks were excellent; and the Robins, thirteen in number, were in first-rate condition. Blackbirds, Song Thrushes, and Starlings were also good. The Magpie and the Jay were represented by a single bird in each class. Among the peculiar British birds were a cock Blackbird of light-brown plumage, a white cock Goldfinch, a yellow-breasted Wagtail—a bird most difficult to keep caged—a capital Cuckoo, a Nuthatch, two pairs of Blue Titmice, two pairs of Bearded Tits, Snow Buntings, and other interesting specimens. There were six Nightingales in good condition. The entire collection of British birds, including Canaries, occupied 1,085 numbers. Among the foreign birds shown were those in the collection of Mr. A. F. Wiener, who sent thirty-one cages of rare birds to be exhibited, but not for sale or competition. One of these was the Abyssinian helmet-bird (i.e., the Touracco—Ed. "C.B."), the red feather of whose wing, when placed in water, gives off a portion of its pigment. This bird erects and depresses his crest very frequently. There were two Short-tailed Glossy Starlings, a Long-tailed Glossy Starling, Brazilian Hangnests, Brazilian Magpies, a Japanese Mocking-bird, and a marvellous cage containing thirty or forty Australian Zebra Finches or Waxbills, all bred from one pair, during the year 1874, by Mr. Wiener; also Australian Nightingales, American Blue Nightingales, Indian Pagoda Starlings, Tanagers, red and black, and other rare foreign birds. Special prizes were offered for show cages; and some excellent designs, at very moderate prices, were sent in.

On page 144 we are able to give an illustration of the 1865 Crystal Palace Show, together with a few details of the exhibition itself.

THE YOUNG NATURALIST.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given each week for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be children under sixteen years of age, and must state from where stories are taken.

*Nest-Making Tragedy.

Not long ago, while I was walking in my uncle's garden I came across a dead bird hanging from a piece of string, which was tied to a drain pipe. Not far off I saw a half-made nest, and on close inspection I discovered that the bird was a Sparrow, which had endeavoured to add to its nest this piece of string, but had somehow got the string entangled round its neck, thus bringing its life to an untimely end.—Sent by C. B. V. Hodgson (age 15), Heathfield, Morden, Surrey.

Concerning Auks.

The Great Auk, a diving bird, unable to fly, was, till the present century, abundant on the shores of Iceland, Labrador, and Greenland, and even in the Orkneys. It was a very large bird, with black and white feathers, and had short legs, broad, webbed feet, and very small wings. As Auks were good to eat, large numbers of them were killed. There should have been a law to protect them while they were raising their young. As there was no such law the birds were killed at any time, and their eggs taken. Thus year by year they perished, until none were left.—Cutting, sent by Willie Allen (age 11), 26, Mount Street, Cleckheaton, Yorkshire.

*Address to the Robin.

I like to stand upon a stone
And peep into your nest,
Where pretty eggs lie snug and warm
Beneath their mother's breast.

The little birds will break the shells,
And hop out by and by:
And I shall watch you bring them food,
And teach them how to fly.

WILD BIRD LIFE.

Winter Migrants.

The longing to return to their ancestral home (although a cold one) is just as keen in these birds of the north as the sickness of the Swallow in the spring-time to again re-visit our English villages. Directly the weather permits, many return north, only to be driven south again by severe frost or heavy snow storms. Such birds as the Snow Bunting and Shore Lark are constantly trying to get back to their old homes, never going further south than they are absolutely obliged to. They keep daily on the verge of the snow line, feeding upon any seeds or berries visible above the white covering. They are the gypsies of the bird tribe, for ever on the move, restless and dissatisfied, until they finally settle down on the very edge of the snow fields of the arctic circle. Year after year we get a few of these pretty birds driven south by severe weather. They are to be seen upon the wild rough ground by the sea, the salt marshes, extensive sand dunes and other reclaimed lands, by the margin of the waves. They are seldom seen inland, the sea coast is their home, and the edges of the waves their favourite haunts. I once followed a small flock along the shingly beach for some time; it was a dull, dreary day, with a cold north wind that threatened to bring snow with it at times. The birds crouched among the pebbles and hillocks for shelter from the weather. To see them on the wing is one of the prettiest sights imaginable. At times their black and white plumage shows up distinctly, and at others is merged in the greyness of the lowering sky. The wildness of the scene led one to think of the life of these northern strangers, who were probably hatched and reared within a few feet of perpetual snow, far beyond the homes of the most hardy of the human race. So far as one can tell, these birds are identical in structure with some of our birds reared under sunny skies, and yet they appear to be able to withstand any degree of cold, providing they can obtain food. Although they are great feeders when kept in captivity, and get exceedingly fat, yet no doubt when at liberty they are able to exist and do well upon such food as other less hardy species would find quite insufficient to sustain life. With Thrushes, Bramblings, Bluethroats, Goldcrests, Siskins, and a host of wildfowl and waders, our bird population is quite as large during the winter as in the summer months. But as the majority of these frequent the sea shore and wilder stretches of land throughout the country, they are only noticeable to the few who roam these districts during the dull winter months. The presence of the Chats and Warblers which crowd our hedgerows during the spring and summer is made evident to country dwellers by their cheery songs and sprightly ways.

A Swift Plover.

All the Plovers are swift upon the wing, but the Golden Plover is the swiftest of them all. He is also very shy and wary, which he need be to exist at all, as he is much sought after as a table delicacy.

Herons in London Park.

The Heron has taken possession of the enclosure in St. James's Park, vacated by the Cormorants. This bird was at one time protected as a quarry for hawking, the penalty for killing in any other manner being very heavy. This Act was repealed under the game laws of George IV.

Redwings and Fieldfares.

The Redwings and Fieldfares are with us in fairly large numbers this year. Unlike our own Thrushes these birds are gregarious and remain in flocks throughout the year, or nearly so. Both come from the north, although the Redwing has a more northern range than its companion. This extends even to Greenland. The birds nest largely in the Scandinavian forests.

On the Marshes.

There is abundance of bird life now on the marshes and foreshore, for the waders and wild ones have deserted their breeding quarters on the higher ground, and frequent the soft grass land and mudflats where food is plentiful. The cry of the Plover is mingled with the whistle of the Curlew and the alarming call of the wild Drake, as he flaps the water and dashes through the reed tops to safety. A few Golden Plovers join with the Lapwings and circle round in swift flight, their ariel evolutions revealing at times the golden speckled plumage of the back, and then, after a quick turn exposing nothing but the white underparts. In the distance a big Heron flaps away to safety. He is shy and wary, and shuns a closer acquaintance.

BRITISH ROLLER C.C.

There was a good attendance at the annual meeting of the British Roller Canary Club, held at the Crystal Palace on February 6th. Mr. F. A. Lester was elected chairman. The names of the officials for the ensuing year were read, and their election confirmed. They are as follows:—President, Mr. H. R. B. Tweed; vice-president, Mr. A. Merrick; committee, Messrs. E. Fisher, F. Hughes, T. Kerr, T. J. Lester, F. A. Lester, G. Mooney, T. J. Randall, C. Roebl, J. Schluter, J. Steigart, and G. A. Tear; hon. secretary and treasurer, Mr. J. W. Norris, 31, Seylla Road, Peckham Rye, London, S.E. Several new members were elected, and in the course of a few remarks the Chairman stated that the past year had been one of the most satisfactory the club had ever had. On the motion of Mr. Gostling (Bolton), seconded by Mr. Roehl (London, W.), Mr. Corkindale was re-instated a member of the club.

The next business was the confirmation of the present show cage as the recognised club show cage. The Chairman stated that it seemed to be the wish of the bulk of the members that the club should have a fixed type of show cage. Otherwise there were many disadvantages. Under existing circumstances certain boxes and cages were known to belong to certain exhibitors, and the suggestion now was to remove that disadvantage by the adoption of a recognised club show cage, which it should be compulsory upon exhibitors to use.

Mr. PERCIVAL (Smithy Bridge): My objection to the proposal is that I have only recently spent a considerable sum in purchasing new cages, and I will not buy any more.—Mr. WHITTAKER (Bolton): I have five cages here at the show, which I consider far better than the club show cage which it is suggested we should adopt. Besides, all my cages will be absolutely worthless if this proposal is adopted.

Mr. FOULN'S (Manchester) only objection was that the drinkers in the present cage were of zinc, and he had it on the authority of a leading City analyst that zinc was poisonous, and therefore harmless to the birds.—Mr. GOSTLING said that the Yorkshire Canary Club had been considering that question, and were of the same opinion.—Mr. ROEHL stated that he had used zinc drinkers for years, and had never found any harm resulting therefrom.—The CHAIRMAN stated that it did not do to think too much of what analysts said. For instance, he said, we were told of the microbes in the air we breathe, the food we ate, and the water we drank, and if it were all true, then the sooner they closed that meeting and left the room the better. (Laughter.) That minor question was then passed over.—Mr. PERCIVAL stated that he would be prepared to fall in with the wishes of the majority on the larger issue, and his statement was warmly received. After some further discussion, Mr. SCHLUTER (London, S.W.) proposed, and Mr. LYONS (Blackburn) seconded, "that all members should show their birds in the show cage adopted by the club." The motion was carried unanimously.

On the question of the definition of the terms "novice" and "amateur," the secretary read a number of opinions by country members. He afterwards said that this "novice" question was getting a bit of a nuisance, and it was time it was settled once and for all.—Mr. WHITTAKER suggested that the novice and amateur classes should be merged into one, and called "novice." He did not see the need, he said, for "amateur" classes.—The proposition before the meeting was one by Mr. J. W. Norris, and was to the effect that the "novice" definition be "one who has not won three first prizes at any show." On the suggestion of several of the members, he agreed to alter the word "three" to "two," with a similar correction in the "amateur" definition. The motion to amend the rule having been seconded by Mr. Randall (Wimbledon), was carried unanimously, on the understanding that the rule be retrospective in its application.—A heated discussion arose out of an accusation made by Mr. Lyons against the secretary of a certain society. After some considerable discussion, it was agreed that the matter be referred to committee.

On the motion of Mr. LYONS, seconded by Mr. ROEHL, it was unanimously decided to grant Mr. J. W. Norris, the sum of £2 2s. as some small token of the members' appreciation of his valuable services as secretary of the club. Coupled with this was a hearty vote of thanks. Another vote of thanks to Mr. F. A. Lester for presiding brought the meeting to a close.

The members present at the meeting were: Messrs. Cole, Fisher, Randall, Schlüter, Roehl, Mooney, Percival, Whittaker, Foulds, Lyons, Gostling, Ives, Lester, and Norris.

NATIONAL BRITISH BIRD & M.C.

Annual General Meeting, held at the Crystal Palace, on February 6th, Mr. J. Robson in the chair. Present: Messrs. Plumbridge, Carr, Swaysland, Lott, Wyse, Trower, Cooper, Goodchild, Maxwell, Bentley, Dewhurst, Hurst, Thurling, Hills, Fulljames, Vale, Frostick, Shirley, Fullbrook, Withers, Askew, and Norman. The minutes of the last general meeting were read, and confirmed, also a report of the last year's work, the most important items of which are appended.

Annual Report, 1908-1909.

The report of this year's club work will, I am afraid be poor reading. We seem to have got in a "rut," and something must be done if we are to "buck up" and make things move. Not that I am going to cry over our year's work; far from it. In many respects we have broken records, and I am sure the N.B.B. and M.C., in spite of some of our very wise prophets and critics, is now a more firmly established club than ever. The additional birds added to the list last year met with very little favour from our members, so on a vote most of the birds were cancelled, the only additions to the previous list being the Crested Tit, Golden Oriole and Hoopoe. Our next move was in the direction of obtaining ideal show cages for the respective British birds. In this our thanks are due to several expert cage makers, who sent in many different samples, but the Committee finally settled the different sizes and shapes, and published this in the Fancy Press. This ideal cage, if adopted by British bird men, will go to make the desired uniformity at shows, and will be unrivalled both for the health of the birds, and for judging purposes. We have to thank our friend, Mr. H. J. Fulljames, who so kindly took a photograph of the cage, which was also reproduced in the Fancy press. We have this year supported twenty club shows in all parts of the British Isles, giving gold, silver and bronze medals, besides our valuable cups. The competition has on the whole been very good. My co-worker, Mr. Carr, gives me to understand it has been a great pleasure to go through the points this year. No doubt this is due to our new medals, which are of better value than ever. I am very sorry indeed to say that through the non-payment of subscriptions, one or two members have had their medals withheld. Our best thanks are due to Messrs. Trower, Maxwell, Weston, and Vale, also to Mr. Wesley, T. Page, for gifts of medals during the year. Our outing, which was favoured this year by fine weather, was to Oxshott, and greatly interested us.

We are glad to be able to report that in our new headquarters, we are more than satisfied. We have a spacious room at our disposal, with every convenience, at the "Feathers Hotel," We are pleased to say our membership still increases, although not at such a rate as we should have liked, seeing the advantages all British bird men gain by joining our club. Sixteen new members have been added, five members only have resigned, thus leaving us in a position for congratulation. Our club show must once again be put down as a great success, showing very plainly that our members have the right sort of birds to make the British Bird Classes one of the most interesting as well as profitable sections of a show. Our only regret in the past year has been the absence of lectures. Our good friend, Mr. G. E. Weston opened a very interesting debate on the Feeding and Meating-off of Insectivorous Birds, and mentioned several fresh experiments which in his hands had been very successful. We have tried to arrange other lectures, but with such expert men attending our meetings, we find it most difficult to get something fresh to place before them. I am sure after hearing our Hon. Treasurer's report, you will quite agree with me in saying it is a record. I think in all our history, no better financial statement has ever been laid before you. Our warmest thanks are due to Mr. Trower. I feel that our report would not be complete without due thanks being given to the Fancy press, for the great service rendered in always being so ready to find us space. To our chairman, committee and officers, we, your secretaries, give hearty thanks for the help rendered to us in carrying on this work, and we are looking forward with every hope to a greater future.—PLUMBRIDGE AND CARR, Hon. Secs.

A letter was read from Mr. Arrighi re the disqualification of members at two shows, which matter the meeting decided to leave to the committee. A discussion took place following a proposal that members winning several medals could, if they chose, exchange them for a gold one. Upon the matter being put to the vote, the majority were against such an exchange. The Treasurer then read the balance sheet, showing a satisfactory cash balance of £12 11s. 5d., which, added to the value of medals, etc., made a total of nearly £30 assets. Thirty-one voting papers were sent in for the election of committee for the ensuing year. The following were elected:—

LONNON: Dewhurst, Cooper, Carr, Weston, Wyse, Silver, Hathaway, Dobson, Cook, Newley, Francis, Best, Rouse, Cutting, Carter, Crabb. PROVINCIAL: Galloway, Swaysland, Hills, Dewar, Norman, and Plumbridge. A discussion took place respecting the programme for the year. The work of the club appears to be so heavy that the members have no time to spare for lectures, but it was suggested that a separate meeting night should be arranged if possible for the purpose.

The medal winners during the year were as follows:—Clapham: Maxwell (2), Cooper, Best. Cambridge: Mays. Newcastle: Walsh. Derby: Fulbrook. Manchester: Birchley, Walsh. Morecambe: Hurst. Dulwich and Peckham: Howe, Francis. Glasgow: McQuiston, Arrighi. Nottingham: Chick. Dulwich O.S.: Maxwell. Horticultural Hall: Coffey (2), Lamb, Fulbrook, Howe, Hurst, Maxwell, Francis, Cook, Wyse, St. Helens: Hurst, Howe. Scottish National: Howe, Arrighi, McQuiston, Watson. At the Crystal Palace itself the gold medal went to L. J. Arrighi; silver, A. Coffey; bronze, A. P. Hurst. Silver medal, presented by G. E. Weston, won by R. Carter. Gold medal, presented by W. Page for the member proposing the most new members, won by T. R. Trower. The Hybrid Cup was won by A. Coffey; Hardbill Cup by R. J. Howe; Insectivorous Cup by C. T. Maxwell, the latter having now won it outright. The Hardbill Cup for nominated birds was won by A. P. Hurst. A vote of thanks to the officials closed the meeting.

CINNAMON-MARKED Y.C.C.

Committee meeting held January 16th, 1909, at Blue Bell Hotel, Windhill, Mr. W. Gledhill (Huddersfield), president, in the chair. The balance-sheet for whist drive was passed, and it was agreed that each member of the committee do his utmost to raise funds for the club. The question of Novice Classes will be further considered at the next meeting. Resolved that the club join with other specialist clubs and the Yorkshire Union for a united demonstration, and prize distribution. A sub-committee was chosen as follows, to arrange for the purchase of prizes, etc.: Messrs. Crabtree, Ogden, Greaves, and the hon. secretary. Next meeting February 20th, at Market Tavern, Bradford, at 4.30 p.m. It was decided to exchange medals with the Toronto C.B.S. Whilst the club is in a most flourishing condition, it is felt that the committee in their desire to make the special list as attractive as possible, have really given more than the funds of the club will allow. It is therefore hoped that previous contributors to the specials fund, who have not yet done so again, will come forward and assist us in having a balance on the right side at the close of the season. The membership fee at present is only 1s. 6d., for the many advantages to be derived, and it is earnestly desired that the members who have not yet paid their fees will kindly do so at once. Fanciers will please not forget the Palace trip. The train leaves Bradford (M.R. Co.), at 7.30, and Shipley at 7.38 a.m. on Saturday morning. Engaged corridor carriages, all welcome.—H. H. TOWERS, Acting Secretary.

Y.C.C. OF SCOTLAND.

Annual general meeting, held Jan. 26th in the Co-operative Hall, Glasgow. The financial report and balance sheet showed an income of £8 9s. 6d., and expenditure £7 14s. 6d., leaving a balance in hand of 15s. The entries have come out exceedingly well at open shows under club patronage, 13 classes having 185 entries, or an average of over 14 per class. Considering this is the first season of the club, there should be no difficulty in getting open shows in Scotland to accept its patronage in future. Mr. J. B. Paterson (Ayr), with 75 points, wins the challenge bowl and gold medal. The gold medal for second most points was won by Mr. W. H. McDougall (Fort-William) with 54 points; and Mr. W. Fortune's special was won by Mr. Bowman with 37 points. Mr. John McQueen's cheque for £2 was divided between Mr. C. Martin and Mr. J. B. Paterson, who tied for most points with birds fed on his red pepper. The following office-bearers were elected for the coming season: President, Mr. R. B. Gibb; vice-presidents, Messrs. J. B. Paterson and H. Jamieson; secretary and treasurer, Mr. F. Bowman, 5, Parkview Gardens, Tollcross; committee, Messrs. Penman, Martin, Hendry, Mitchell, Cooper, and Marr (Glasgow), Fortune (Edinburgh), McDougall (Fort-William), Baird (Paisley), and Shewan (Fraserburgh); auditors and scrutineers, Messrs. D. F. Webster and J. Smith. It was decided to have a table pair show at next meeting, each member being limited to show one pair only; entry fee, 6d. per pair. Several proposals were left over till the next meeting, including one by Mr. Ford (Keity) re classification to gain the patronage of the club for the coming season. A vote of thanks to the chairman, Mr. R. B. Gibb, terminated the meeting.—F. BOWMAN, Hon. Sec.

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fall within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

DODGE'S FICTITIOUS COW HAIR.

Sterilized and Antiseptic.

If you want success in this year's results you must follow the plans of those who hatch most youngsters. Year after year breeders write and say they have had more youngsters by using

DODGE'S FICTITIOUS COW HAIR.

Why? Because it is a non-conductor of cold, and retains the warmth longer than any other material, because the birds like it, and build perfect nests, and it is Sterilized and Antiseptic; thus warding off disease. Try a sample and see for yourselves. Samples 1/- for ¼ lb., 2/6 per lb.—Morton Dodge, M.P.S., Manufacturing Chemist, 1, Albert Square, Manchester.

THERE MAY BE

a better method of trading than mine; if so, I should like to hear of it. My method is this:—I send everything I sell on approval, on deposit rules of CAGE BIRDS. I take all risk during the whole time of approval and refund every penny of your cash if you are not perfectly satisfied with the transaction. Simple, isn't it? I claim to be originator of this system in connection with wild birds, and have never traded in any other way during the whole of my business career. Grand large Worcestershire cock Goldfinches, in pink of health and condition, 2/- and 2/6 each. Specially selected larger birds for muling, 3/- and 4/- each. Few extra specials, with full complement of show points, and in full song, 5/-, each. Two-year-old white-legged cock, in full song, guaranteed muler, 7/6. Grand lot cock brown Linnets, every one warranted red-breasted, with nut brown backs, 9d. each, three 2/-, six 3/6, twelve 5/6. Few extra special large cocked birds, steady as rocks, in full song, and suitable for show or muling, 1/6, and 2/- each. Remember, although I do not call myself a "King," my Linnets have been the talk of United Kingdom for years, and I have sold more winners than any other three men. Splendid lot cock Bullfinches 1/6, 2/-, and 2/6 each. Cock Bramblefinches 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/6; exhibition specimens 1/6 each. ## BLACKBURN, WIGAN, AND LEITH.

I thank the members of the above clubs for their kind patronage. I also thank the secretary of the Blackburn Linnet Club for having sent me three contest bills for their all-England Linnet contest on Saturday, February 27th, at the Old Red Lion, Smg Brook, Blackburn. I wish you all every success. Now, gentlemen, I have the following for sale: Goldfinches, real Peartree cock Goldfinches, full colour, the largest in England, with deep square cut blaze, beautifully buttoned and mooned, and well tanned on breast, these prize winners 4/6; other grand Goldfinches, same size, full colour, right for muling, 3/6; a few real gems, 7/6. They are the talk of England. Those who want sure mulers; send to me. I hold the world's record for mulers; all one price, 2/6. These are very large, steady birds, and got proud specially for my customers. Linnets, in full song, with a beautiful polished cage, and my book of secrets, and a packet of my special mixture, 3/6; this is a real bargain. Look! Fierce singing cock Linnets, with blood-red breasts and extra loud voices, with new cage, and my book of secrets, right for catching or contest only, 2/6. I defy any dealer in the world to supply the same for the money. Deposit your money with the Editor of this paper for honest stuff. All on seven days approval. Linnets, taught by the world's champion, will sing anywhere, only 1/6. They are beautiful birds. I have a few house-moulted Linnets, taught by the world's champion, nice straight steady birds, some bred Mules last year, in show condition, singing very hard, will suit any lady or gentleman, price 7/6; also some young pink breasted Linnets, been caged since last August, singing daylight and gaslight, with new cage, 7/6. Satisfaction guaranteed. Goldfinch and hen Canary, sure mulers, 6/-; red-breasted Redpolls, with hen Canary, 4/-; cock Greenfinch, with hen Canary, 3/6; cock Linnet, with hen Canary, 5/-; guaranteed to Mule. I have hundreds of good clean Canaries in stock. Cock Canaries, singing hard, from 7/6 upwards; hen Canaries, 2/-, 2/6, 3/-, and 3/6. Gentlemen, these are clean healthy birds. I have a few beautiful large Greenfinches; they are finest I have had this season, fit to win, 1/6 and 2/- each. I have a few very large red-breasted Redpolls, 1/6 and 2/- each. I have some beautiful cock Bullfinches, splendid cap and bib, and beautiful wing bars, these prize winners are 3/6 each. Larks, singing grand, and as steady as rocks and as straight as arrows, in show condition, 1/- and 1/6; a few singing extra loud, 2/6. It is a treat to hear them. The secrets of how to make your birds sing at one another, and how to train them for contests, and to make them sing with their wings down, 9d. each. Please state wants for any of the above, as they are all beautiful birds. For proof of the above, read what others say. "Barrington Schools, Eighton Banks, Wreckenton.—Sir,—The bird arrived safe, and I am well pleased with it. I have been showing it to my friends, and they think it a real good steady bird. You will get further orders from me.—Yours truly, M. Ridley to H. Allen." "South Parade, Chorpington.—Dear Sir,—Bird arrived safe on Tuesday morning. Am well satisfied once more.—R. Coulter to H. Allen" "Waterloo House, Northampton.—Dear Sir,—The bird reached me safe yesterday. I am very pleased; it is singing away to-day as happy as a bird should be, and the little girl is delighted. Thanking you very much.—Yours truly, A. Cole to H. Allen." Those who want real value for their money write to the largest British bird dealer in the world.—Harry Allen, Bird Specialist and Judge, City Aviaries, 40, Beckett-st., Leeds.

Twenty years advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, London.

A PRACTICAL TEST.

In order to prove to you without the shadow of a doubt who is the best man to supply you with Roller Canaries, I invite you to have one from me on a week's trial. Test it side by side with one at a higher price from elsewhere, and if mine is not far better value, return it and I will refund every penny of your money. I claim to be the largest retailer of Rollers in the United Kingdom, and this trade has been built up solely by the merit of the birds. I have an enormous stock of pure St. Andreasburg Rollers direct from Leipzig, and all in full song, day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, soft roulades, water bubble runs, piccolo trills, jug-jug of Nightingale, bell, harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and all warranted entirely free from Titlark or any other objectionable notes whatever; price 6/6 to 7/6 each. Premier Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass and hollow bell rolls, 10/- and 12/6 each. Genuine Seifert contest masters, fit for contesting immediately, 15/-, 17/6, and 21/- each. Leipzig Roller hens, 2/6 each, 4/6 couple; Seifert Roller hens, 3/- and 4/- each. I also have in stock 500 grand loud, free-singing Hartz cocks, every one guaranteed in full vigorous song, all real ceiling-lifters, 4/6 each, seven 28/-; Hartz hens 2/- each, 3/6 couple, 16/- dozen. Roller song cabinets, with folding doors, 2/6 each. Ordinary singing box cages, 1/-, 1/2, 1/4, 1/9, and 2/- each. All sent on full week's trial at my risk, either on receipt of cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and money refunded in full if perfect satisfaction not given. Following letters are entirely unsolicited, and have never before been published. Full address given in each case and all open to inspection any time:—"108, Capstone-road, Springbourne, Bournemouth. Feb. 15th. Sir,—Received Hartz cocks safe. Both are singing well and quite satisfactory. Yours, B. Mackett." "9, Ridley's Buildings, Frosterley. Feb. 10th. Sir,—Birds arrived safe; quite a treat and real beauties. Yours, G. Boon." "St. Albans Buildings, Windy Nook, Gateshead. Sir,—Bird arrived in good condition; he is a first-rate singer. Yours, W. Stephenson." "25, Green Bank-street, Preston. Feb. 13th. Sir,—Please send two Roller hens to pair with Bandmaster I got from you in December. He is a champion. An old breeder of singing birds in the sixties, seventies, and eighties heard it sing its song through and was delighted. "Theer," he said, 'tbat's ow reet; he hesent a wrong note if tha paid 25 hob for one tha wouldn't get a better,' and I believe him. Thanking you for selection and honest dealing. Yours, T. Arkwright." "143, Woodstreet, Elton, near Bury. Sir,—The Seifert Roller is a champion; it commenced singing soon as unpacked. I shall send for two more next week. Yours, W. Hardman." "2, Portland-street, Southampton. Feb. 13th. Sir,—It's impossible to improve upon your Canaries. Please send following. Yours, W. Monnclier." "99, West End-terrace, Aldershot. February 13th. Sir,—Hartz Canaries arrived safe and cock commenced singing as soon as unpacked. I am very pleased and am recommending you to friends. Yours, T. Marshall." "26, Marine-street, Llanelly. Feb. 12th. Sir,—Received bird and am well pleased with it. Thanks for prompt delivery. Yours, D. Grimths." "89, Heathcote-road, Mines Green. Feb. 11th. Sir,—Roller arrived safe. You will know I am satisfied because I am sending herewith P.O. for another. Yours, D. Scott." "31, Whitaker-street, Rose Hill, Derby. Feb. 11th. Sir,—The two Rollers arrived safe and I am much obliged for your promptness. They both give me satisfaction. Yours, W. Barnett." "5, Whitecross-square, Cheltenham. Feb. 11th. Sir,—Seifert Roller sent on 3rd proved very satisfactory. It is a lovely songster. Yours, W. Pounsett." "30, Belmont-road, Luton. Feb. 1st. Sir,—Many thanks for Roller sent last week, which meets my requirements exactly; just the bird I wanted. I think you have tried hard to please me and have succeeded in doing so. Again thanking you for manner in which you have treated me all through. Yours, J. Morris." "9, Queen-street, Consett. February 10th. Sir,—Hartz cock arrived safe and commenced singing immediately. I am well pleased. Yours, T. Kelly." "1, Tithebarn-street, Westhoughton, near Bolton. February 10th. Sir,—Birds arrived in good condition and am well satisfied at so cheap a price. Singing before unpacked and singing yet, Yours, S. Woodward." "27, Cambrian-place, Carmarthen. Feb. 9th. Sir,—Seifert cock I like very much. Thanks for sending such a good healthy bird and capital songster. Yours, W. Evans." "235, Firs-lane, Leigh. Feb. 9th. Sir,—Roller arrived safe and started singing soon as unpacked. I am very pleased with it and shall send for more [illegible] Yours, J. Cowburn." "11, St. Ann-street, Stoke. Sir,—Leipzig Roller gives me every satisfaction. I am well pleased. Please send box cage. Yours, F. Emerton." "11, Yorkshire-street, Glasgow. Sir,—Please send following. The Hartz cock you sent a month ago turned out fine. He is singing away grand. Yours, J. Gardner." "Leeds, Feb. 14th. Sir,—Thanks for Seifert, which is a champion. Expect to send for another next week, so save another good Seifert at same price. Yours, William Barnshaw." "Deanstreet, Oakham, February 8th. Sir,—Please send Roller hen to mate with cock I had last season. He is a champion. Yours, T. Carter." "75, Pentwyn-avenue, Penrhiwceiber. Feb. 8th. Sir,—Roller and Linnets arrived safe. I am perfectly pleased with them and shall certainly send to you for more. Thanking you for quick dispatch. Yours, G. Mills." "10, Horsemarket, Wrexham, Feb. 5th. Sir,—Please send another Bandmaster. I am delighted with last two from you. Yours, E. Dutton." The above are merely a few of the many similar letters received by me, but they are sufficient to prove that my birds are as advertised. All safely and warmly packed free of extra cost. I am the only importer of "Hans Weber's" Leipzig Rollers, and have no agents, so send direct to me for tip-top value at rock-bottom price. Dealers supplied. Fresh arrivals twice weekly.

Saving Money

is only a matter of good sense, and if you will let me I can show you how to save money in the purchasing of your CAGE BIRDS, and APPLIANCES for same.

Send for my Illustrated Catalogue which contains a list of one of the most extensive stocks of Canaries and other Cage-Birds in the United Kingdom. A Postcard will do.

No one of real discernment will be disappointed with the great variety mentioned therein, and all at the lowest prices.

Consider this in conjunction with the reliability of my birds, and it will strongly appeal to you how you can save money.

My old customers know that they can rely upon every bird I send out, and I have made this a special feature of my business for many years. To prove, however, to new customers the value I can give them, I will send to any bona fide enquirer any bird selected from my list for a full week's trial.

Write me at once, and I will gladly send my new Illustrated Catalogue. It will interest you I am sure.

I have an enormous collection of Yorkshires, perfect in type and quality, and feathered like wax, color fed or natural color, in clears, buff or yellow, cinnamon ticked, green marked, cinnamons and greens.

It's the value for money that tells, and that is where I "tell" right through.

You can read all the claims, and you may or you may not believe them; but if you will allow me to send One or One Pair of mine on approval against any others advertised, at any of the following prices, I shall feel obliged. That's making it actions in place of words.

I have some of the best extant winners at large open shows, cocks and hens, proof given, when where and won, who shown by etc, as I imitate no-one, and despise fairy tales (plainly speaking, untruths), and all those who make them. I can show my winners to anyone or send on approval, as I do not make myself into a mere gas-bag, full of pin-pricks, nor trade under a false name, for that is what I call stooping to a low level indeed. Cocks, 5/6, 6/6 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; Hens, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-. Pairs matched for breeding, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards. Cages 3d. extra.

HUDSON'S CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

In reply to many customers inquiring about birds being ready, all my birds are hard and fit for breeding, and in good condition, and I can recommend to them who want to breed own winners, as they are all bred from or related to winners at all leading shows: Shipley, Windhill, Bingley, Baildon, Bradford, and others too numerous to mention, including Palace. And remember, I want no man's money who does not purchase satisfactory. My stock includes clears, ticked, Greens, marked, and few cinnamon-marked. Long, raking Yellow cocks, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; long, raking Buff cocks, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; few songsters, 6/- each; long Yellow hens, 6/-, 8/-, 10/- each; long Buff hens, 6/-, 8/-, 10/- each; my special matched pairs cannot be beaten by them who have all the bounce; pairs, 10/0, 12/6, 15/-, £1, £1 5s.; all on four days' approval; cash or deposit; stamp reply.—Hudson, Confectioner, Thackley, Bradford.

£21 Y.C.C. Challenge Cup, 1902-3.
£21 Y.C.C. Challenge Cup, 1903-4.
Championship best Yorkshire, Crystal Palace.
£21 Y.C.C. Challenge Cup 1904-5.
Championship Best Yorkshire Crystal Palace.
The C.M.Y.C.C. Challenge Trophy 1905-6.
Championship Best Cin. Mark. Crystal Palace.
£25 Y.A. Challenge Trophy 1906-7.
£21 Y.C.C. Challenge Cup, 1907-8.
The H.W.N. Challenge Cup 1907-8.
The Y.W. Challenge Trophy 1908-9.
The H. W.N. Challenge Cup 1908-9.

At Crystal Palace my birds have won first prize in every Yorkshire class (except Greens), in three years combined. I also won at Crystal Palace in two successive years more firsts, medals, and special prizes than all other exhibitors put together during the same period. I state facts that can be easily verified, and not wild exaggerated bounce to catch the inexperienced fancier.

My birds come to the front year after year as regularly as the day dawns, which is ample proof that this is the most pure and reliable strain of the present day. The chief characteristics of my strain are length, position, style, length of leg, and superlative quality of feather, combined with plenty of nerve, which is such an essential quality in a really high-class Yorkshire.

To those who wish to breed their own winners, now is your opportunity, as all birds are in perfect health and condition and cold room bred. Three days' approval. Stamped address for particulars.

TWITTERINGS.

The annual show of the Consett, Blackhill and Dis. P.P.R. and C.B.S. will, we hear, be held on November 13th.

Mr. H. W. Battye has been elected to judge at our annual show, writes Mr. J. Butterworth, secretary of the Rochdale O.C.

The show of the City of Birmingham Cage Bird Society is to be held on December 1st and 2nd. The judge-elect is Mr. C. A. House.

Kindly thank all who replied to my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. J. W. Lee (Norton Malton). I can only answer those who sent stamps.

Class 33 in the schedule of the Tibshelf Show to be held on February 27th, should read "British bird smaller than a Cardinal.—JOS. HILL, hon. secretary.

Although our show resulted in a loss, writes Mr. Daniel John, secretary of the Llanelly and Dis. C.B.S., all prize money has, nevertheless, been sent out.

Kindly note that I am changing my address from Bedford Cottage, Norwich Road, to St. Aubyn's, Tregonwell Road, Bournemouth West, writes Mr. M. Cook.

The 2nd annual show of the Yarm, Eaglescliffe and Dis. C.B.S., write Messrs. Wilkinson and Danby the hon. secretaries, will be held on January 8th, 1910.

We hear that Mr. J. O. Williams (Bangor), is adding a few good Lizards (a variety that is somewhat scarce in N. Wales), to his well-known stud of Yorkshires.

We are, on February 20th, having a table show of matched pairs in the carnival committee rooms, writes Mr. Alf. Tate, hon. secretary of the Bramley and Dis. O.S.

Kindly note, writes Mr. F. Fawcett, that I have removed from Gilderoome to 26, Hetherton Street, Marygate, York, to which address all communications should be sent.

The Crystal Palace Show report, writes Mr. Wm. Hy. Vart (Kendal), in the novice section, Norwich clear buff cock class, gives No. 957 as Hart; this should be Vart, as it was my bird.

I have sold my best exhibition birds to Mr. F. W. Merrin, of Bedale, writes Mr. Frank Stevens (Great Ayton), and I hope they will be as successful for him as they have been for me.

The next open show of the Vale of Conway and Dis. F.A., writes Mr. A. T. Johnson, the secretary, is fixed for July 21st (the day before Colwyn Bay Show), to be held at Llandudno.

Mr. T. H. Dent, of Preston, is engaged to judge the second annual show of breeding pairs of the Ormskirk and Dis. C.B.S., on February 22nd, writes Mr. T. H. Tiffen, the secretary.

The Stockton-on-Tees and Dis. C.B.S. next open show will be held on November 6th, when Mr. H. W. Battye will judge the Canaries, and Mr. C. Houlton the British and foreign birds.—J. W. LOWES, show secetary.

I have just had a dead specimen of a "white" Linnet sent m to be stuffed, writes Mr. B. Hollins (Hull). It is the same size as a Linnet, and pure white, except for just two or three brown bars on wings' coverts.

Kindly thank through your valuable columns all who inquired for my Canaries, which I advertised in CAGE BIRDS last week writes Mr. A. Robinson (Keighley). The applications were too numerous for me to reply to singly.

In the novice section of the Crystal Palace Show report—the unflighted Norwich class—writes Mr. Jas. R. Crossley (Blackpool), Mr. Billington is credited with winning 5th prize, whereas my bird stood fifth in that class.

I am shipping five Crests, etc., to Cape Town, South Africa, per ss. "Beira," writes Mr. J. A. Taylor (Bradford). This order is through my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS, which proves its circulation abroad as well as here at home.

Permit me to state what a boon your paper is to novices. I owe much to it myself, and if novices would only just read one copy of CAGE BIRDS, they would continue reading it.—ROBERT BALLOCH secretary, Lochcraig F. and F.A.

The Crystal Palace Show report credits me with having won 1st and 3rd in class 94 (Rollers), writes Mr. J. Gostling (Bolton), but omits to mention that I won extra 5th in the same class. I had two birds claimed at catalogue prices.

My last advertisement in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. A. T. Johnson (Southport), brought over 30 replies. Will you please mention that I could only reply to those who sent stamps; and that I thank all who answered my advertisement.

At the last meeting of the Edinburgh Northern O.S., writes Mr. Thos. Purdie, the secretary, it was agreed that we obtain a new hall for our show this year, which is to be held a week earlier, i.e., the first Saturday in November. Anyone wishing to join can be enrolled at the next meeting, March 1st.

The Sheffield and Dis. C.B.S. have issued an excellent programme of events for 1909. The syllabus includes lectures by Messrs. G. Browning (on "Breeding and Rearing"), and T. Hemmings (on "Colour Feeding"); a question (by ballot) night; a members' judging competition; and several shows. The secretaries are Messrs. Lindsay and Bingham, 202, King James' Street, Walkley, Sheffield, and the membership radius is 20 miles.

A members' matched pair and single class show is to be held on February 27th, in connection with the Bristol C.B.S., at headquarters, the City Hotel, Wine Street, when Mr. J. H. Payne will judge. The schedule comprises 24 classes, and since its issue five silver medals have, we understand from the secretary, Mr. W. H. Manley, been promised for competition. The show will be opened at 4 o'clock.

I am sorry to inform Lancashire fanciers, writes J. Hampshire (Oldham), of the death of Mr. E. Lowe's old Yellow Plainhead cock. He was a bird that had been a great credit to Mr. Lowe, for he generally stood at the "top of the table," and finished up with first and special for best Lancashire at the Palace Jubilee Show.

The balance-sheet for 1908 of the Newcastle-upon-Tyne C.B.S., of which Messrs. Curry and Hutchinson are the secretaries and treasurers, shows the cash in bank (the "reserve fund") at £15, against £10 at the end of the previous year. The assets are valued at £18. The society is to be congratulated on this successful result.

The Great Horton Good Intent O.S., have secured the following judges for their members' shows, writes Mr. H. Schofield, the hon. secretary:—Mr. Wm. Cruise, February 27th; Mr. Fred. Self, June 26th; Mr. James Bailey, September 26th; Mr. James Wilson, December 11th. Will all intending members please hurry up with their names?

Mr. H. J. Chittenden, of Bolton Woods, will give a lecture on the pairing and breeding of Yorkshire Canaries at the headquarters of the Sandy Lane and Dis. C.B.A., on Tuesday, February 23rd, writes Mr. B. Buckle, the secretary. All members and friends are cordially invited. The chair is to be taken at 7.30 by the president, Mr. P. Drake.

OBITUARY

Mrs. W. SHAKESPEARE (Kentish Town).

We regret to learn of the sad loss sustained by that old and respected London fancier, Mr. W. Shakespeare (Kentish Town), whose wife passed away on February 11th, at the of 64. She had been ailing for a number of years. Mr. Shakespeare will have the sympathy of all bird-lovers.

Mr. JAMES COLLINGE (Rochdale).

It is with sincere regret, writes Mr. John Lees (Rochdale), that I have to announce the death of Mr. James Collinge, of Bunsie Villas, Rochdale, one of Lancashire's oldest breeders of Lancashires and Crests. He had been ailing for some time, but only took to his bed on Sunday, January 31st and died on Friday, February 5th, at the age of 72. The funeral took place on February 9th, at Heywood cemetery. "Old James," as he was always spoken of, was a fancier to the last, ever willing to assist the Fancy with his advice or with financial help, and at the time of his death his stock consisted of 65 of the two varieties, which, I am informed by the family, are to be sold in one lot—breeding, stock, and show cages, and all utensils. He was a gentleman who will be very much missed in the Fancy; and to his wife and family we tender the fanciers' sympathy.

Mr. A. West (Rochdale), also sends a sympathetic letter respecting the death of Mr. Collinge.

The undernoted gentlemen have very kindly consented to act as judges at our annual exhibition on December 11th, 1909, writes Mr. J. R. Meikle, secretary of the Edinburgh O. (Open) S.:—Messrs. A. Nisbet (Galston), J. Hogg (Oakley), G. Fulton (Partick), and J. Watson (Glasgow), for the Scotch Fancy section; and Mr. J. F. Dewar (Edinburgh), for the Belgian section.

The Bolton and Dis. O.S. are promised a very interesting lecture on February 24th, by Mr. J. W. Cleminson (Preston), who is going to speak of his experience with the Norwich, their pairing, etc., writes Mr. H. Parkinson, secretary. He has kindly promised to fetch some birds to demonstrate with, and we are hoping to have a good muster of members and friends. The meeting commences at 8 p.m.

My business arrangements, writes Mr. W. Hodson, hon. secretary Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S., compel me to sell the whole of my stock of Norwich and British birds, which I am advertising in CAGE BIRDS. I have no intention of entirely leaving the Fancy, and I hope to be able to continue the work in connection with the several societies with which my name is associated. At some future time I hope to be able to take up the birds again.

Members and fanciers are requested not to forget that our Pair and Finch Show is to be held at the Landor Hotel, Landor Road, on February 20th, writes Mr. A. C. Askew, secretary of the Clapham and Dis. C.B.A. We shall have some good birds on exhibition. The owner of the rare King Bird of Paradise, Mr. Maxwell, will be the judge in the British bird section, while Mr. Easterling judges the Canary sections. The show opens at 5.30.

The Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S., annual show of pairs and of British birds, will, we hear from "A Member," be held on Thursday, March 4th, at the Peckham Public Hall, and the young bird show on Tuesday, July 1st, the judge for both being Mr. J. Robson. The annual open show has been fixed for Thursday and Friday, November 4th and 5th, and the committee are negotiating for the most magnificent hall in the district. An excellent programme of lectures and competitions is in course of arrangement, and everything is being done to ensure a successful year's work for the society. Mr. A. R. Jay has been appointed assistant secretary, Mr. Hodson having consented to continue in the office of secretary for a further year.

WHAT THEY THINK OF IT.

Some Opinions on "Cage Birds' Annual" for 1909.

Your ANNUAL for 1909 is simply unique, and should be in the hands of every birdie man. The coloured plate of Mr. A. P. Hurst's winning Linnet does your artist great credit.—JNO. B. STONES (Sheffield).

I received my CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL safely. What a grand lot of information it contains! I was agreeably surprised also to receive an order through the ANNUAL by same post.—W. PIMM (Birmingham).

I received my copy of CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL alright, and a splendid book it is. It gets better every year; in fact, it comprises nearly all that any ordinary fancier requires for putting him or her at the top as an exhibitor.—J. ROBERTSON (High Harrington).

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL to hand, for which I thank you. It is better than ever. "Dont's," by the Rev. C. D. Farrar, is a treat. I think every genuine fancier should have a copy of the ANNUAL. It would be cheap at double the money.—WM NISBET (Musselburgh).

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL is to hand. Our members are pleased to find a good specimen of their favourite, and they say it is perfect. I don't know what we secretaries would do without the ANNUAL; it is indispensable.—J. BUTTERWORTH, secretary of the Rochdale O.C.

I have just received my copy of the ANNUAL, and I cannot express how pleased I am with it. It seems even better than last year's, and no fancier should be without it. I find it of very great value to me, although, of course, I am only a young beginner in the Fancy. The plates alone in the ANNUAL are worth far more than the price of the whole book.—WILLIAM C. MCINTOSH (Glasgow).

My copy of the ANNUAL came to hand a few days ago for the seventh successive year. It is thoroughly up-to-date in every respect, and no bird keeper should be without it. The information therein contained is alike helpful and instructive to both novices and those who are more experienced in the Fancy. I am sure it will meet with general appreciation, and cannot fail to give pleasure to its readers.—E. L. A. CROW (Lowestoft).

My CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL is again to hand, for which please kindly accept my best thanks. I have carefully gone over it. Nothing could be finer. It is crammed full of very useful information, which ought to be a great help to fanciers during the forthcoming breeding season. No fanciers should be without a copy of the ANNUAL, as it is indispensable in the bird-room. It is worth double the amount charged for it—a wonderful sixpennyworth, and a useful book for everyday reference. I hope the ANNUAL will have a record sale.—J. S. NAPIER, secretary Arbroath Scotch Fancy Club.

Kindly accept my best thanks for CAGE BIRDS' ANNUAL, just to hand. It is a marvelous sixpennyworth, as, in addition to being brimful of useful information to the budding aviarist, veteran fanciers will find many invaluable hints in its 160 pages. The plates are indeed works of art, and reflect the greatest credit upon yur able staff of artists. I think the glossary of bird names a splendid new feature, and one which will without doubt fill a long-felt want. It was curious to note how easily the footballers could be distinguished from the fanciers on board the northern-bound trains from the Palace on Saturday night, as, while the Burnley boys were mostly engaged in games of whist and nap, or in conversation anent "that blessed coop" the birdy men could be seen snugly ensconced in the corners of the carriages deeply engrossed in the fascinating pages of the just-acquired ANNUAL. May your praiseworthy enterprise reap the reward it so justly deserves is the wish of—JOHN B. WATERMAN (East Dulwich).

Order your copy at once: the demand is phenomenal and the edition limited in number.

Will Kent secretaries please note that the Deal, Walmer, and District Fanciers' Association, writes Mr. W. Wadhams, the secretary, are holding their annual show on November 17th and 18th.

The Dipper in Kent.

Mr. A. H. Hardy has recorded the fact that he saw a Dipper in December, by the river Stour, in Kent. The bird is common enough along the banks of the streams in the west, but we have never heard of its appearance in Kent.

A Thirsty Starling.

A correspondent to a Manchester paper records the catching of a Starling which unfortunately got into his chimney. He offered it food and water before liberating it, and to his surprise it took water only. He says he has watched thousands of Starlings in all sorts of situations and conditions but has never before seen a Starling drink. Who has, we may ask?

The Northern Marsh Tit.

A specimen of the Northern Marsh Titmouse (Parus borealis), was shot at Tetbury, Gloucestershire, by Mr. J. H. Paddock, who presented it to the British Museum, this being the first recorded occurrence of this race in the British Islands. It is difficult to account for the occurrence of this bird in Great Britain, since, so far as is known, it is not a migratory species.

My Experiences as a Mule Breeder.

By F. G. SAVAGE.

Perhaps the most interesting hobby or study in connection with cage birds is the breeding of what are usually referred to as Mules, bred by the crossing of the various wild Finches with the domesticated Canary. To be a successful breeder the owner must be possessed of a fair amount of tact and unlimited patience, coupled with a familiar acquaintance with the feeding, housing, breeding, etc., of the birds he has made up his mind to experiment with. It is true that a novice may by chance breed a nest of young ones even in his first season, containing one or more of the highly prized light Mules, but as a rule these come only to the breeder who has given years of study to the question and knows intimately the strain or history of the Canary hens he is using, and also the points which go to make good Finches, and which he aims at getting transmitted to the offspring.

Some Mules I Have Bred.

It is with a view to stimulating fanciers in this most interesting and profitable hobby that I pen the following remarks, based on my experience extending over more than a dozen years. Up to the present I have succeeded in breeding the following Mules, in each case when paired with a hen Canary:—Goldfinch, Linnet, Greenfinch, Siskin, Redpoll, and Twite. By far the prettiest birds for colour are those of the Goldfinch cross, while their engaging habits and sweet song (which I consider unsurpassed by that of any other bird, either in a wild or domestic state), enable the owner to find a ready sale for them at a good price. The only drawback is that the hens, unless of a good size and colour, are not so saleable, being only worth about 1s. 6d. or 2s. each, unless you should happen to breed the coveted light ones, in which case they would be equally valuable with the male birds as show specimens. The best price I have as yet obtained was for a big light variegated hen bird.

My experience points to the fact that the greater proportion of light Mules are females. The breeder should use the largest and best coloured Goldfinch obtainable; whether British or foreign is immaterial, so long as the bird is fairly steady and has plenty of "swagger" about it. I prefer large yellow hens of the Norwich type, but have bred some equally good Mules from very dark greenish-coloured ones.

Concerning Various Mules.

Next in the order of merit to the Goldfinch ranks the Linnet Mule, and very engaging birds they are, too, while their song, especially if it partakes of the true Linnet note, is very sweet and enjoyable. They are usually dark in colour; in fact, most of them are hardly distinguishable from the Linnet, pure and simple, except ing that they usually have a glow of yellow under-feather on the breast. I have always found a ready market for the cock birds at a remunerative figure, but the females are very unsaleable, except the light, evenly-marked or pied ones, which sell well as show specimens.

The Greenfinch Mules, when bred from a large, good-coloured bird, are often handsome specimens, especially when crossed with a fairly stout but long Yorkshire hen, which I prefer to the Norwich, which I consider too heavy and lumpy, while the Yorkshire adds grace and dignity to this particular cross by counteracting the lumpy effect of the Greenfinch. The cock birds are very fair and incessant songsters, but their sweetness is marred by the rather frequent harsh and unmusical note of the Greenfinch. They are fairly saleable, but do not fetch such good prices as the Goldfinch or Linnet Mules. The hens, however, are practically useless, except the light ones, which are very rare in this cross on account of the predominant vigour and colour of the Greenfinch.

The Siskin cross produces pretty little Mules, which have lively dispositions and most engaging ways, while the song of the male is very sweet and low, if of little variation. I find them very suitable for an invalid's room, where the louder song of the Canary is objected to.

The Redpoll and Twite crosses with Canary hens are not, in my estimation, worth the trouble and expense of breeding, as they usually follow the male birds, being very dark in colour and indifferent in song, which is scarcely audible. The four last crosses mentioned I have now given up breeding, as I find them very unsatisfactory in comparison with the Goldfinch and Linnet Mules, while they are equally as difficult to breed and require quite as much attention.

All the varieties of Mules I find are very hardy, and do well in the bitterest of cold weather, even in fairly exposed outdoor aviaries, while their long life is well known. I have known a Goldfinch Canary Mule to reach the age of twelve years, and a Greenfinch-Canary Mule fifteen years, both of which kept in good health and song, and this while housed in small ordinary wire cages.

Cage versus Aviary.

Mules may be bred either in a cage or an aviary. If in a cage, it should be a fairly large, double one, with a sliding partition in the centre, so as enable you to shut the birds apart if necessary, as in the pairing and breeding season Finches are very inquisitive, and sometimes even vicious, maltreating the hens by plucking their feathers, also pulling the nests out, breaking the eggs, and other tricks. After having given the cage method a fair trial, I have discarded it in favour of aviary breeding, as I find it takes up far less time and trouble, while the breeding results are equally satisfactory, if not better.

The Aviary Described.

The aviary I use is 9ft. long, 4½ft. high, and 3ft. wide, constructed of well-seasoned ¾in. deal wood well painted, with a corrugated iron roof resting on a rough under-roof of boards, as I find iron by itself is too cold in winter, and hot in the summer. A wooden roof covered with a patent smooth felting would be equally as serviceable, while the cost would be considerably lowered. One end of the aviary is entirely boarded up, as is also 3ft. of the front reaching from the floor to roof. This forms a secluded place for the birds to roost in, and a protection in bad weather. In this end is a 1ft. square opening covered with wire from the inside, and a shutter protection outside. This opening admits air when necessary, and also allows me to watch the various nesting operations without disturbing the birds. The opposite end is also boarded up with the exception of an 18in. doorway, extending from top to bottom. This allows free movement for getting in and out, while the opening is protected inside by a wire frame door reaching to within 1ft. of the floor, so as to stop the birds from flying out while feeding. There is a weather board, 18ins. high, along the whole wire front, resting on bricks flush with the ground. The wire is of ½in. mesh, best quality, which is strong enough to completely baffle the cats. At night I fix a light wooden shutter with iron turn fasteners to the wooden uprights over half the wire front. I use branches of trees of varying thickness for perches, preferring them because they give a greater amount of exercise to the birds flying in and out among them, and because they are more natural than straight smooth perches. I fix them to the wall back of the aviary, so as to keep the birds as much as possible off the wire front.

The floor of the aviary is of earth, covered with about two inches of fine gritty red sand, and finely powdered old mortar. I use plenty of boxes for nesting purposes, also small flower pots, which may be wired round the top and hung on nails or stood on small shelves. It is best to fix the boxes or pots at varying heights and always a good distance from each other, but where they can be easily watched from the outside, this plan does away with entering the aviary so often, and thus frightening the occupants. For nesting materials, I give plenty of moss obtained from the banks and hedgerows, which I always scald with a view to killing any insect life there may be in it. This I mix with short cow hair, such as is used by plasterers and builders.

THE YORKSHIRE UNION OF C.B.S.

Results of the Season's Competitions.

Wakefield Show, held on Saturday last, the 13th inst., brought to a close the series of eighteen shows, arranged by, and held under the rules of, the Yorkshire Union of Cage Bird Societies. The following is the result of the various competitions in connection therewith.

The "W. H. Shackleton" Challenge Trophy, value 30 guineas (second year of competition): 1st, and medal value £1, Mr. W. H. Shackleton, 328 points; 2nd, and medal value 15s., Messrs. Ogden Bros., 326 points; 3rd, and medal value 10s., Messrs. Bailey and Swanger, 246 points; 4th, and medal value 7s. 6d., Mr. J. Wilcock, 222 points. This competition runs until the trophy has been won three times (not necessarily in succession) before it becomes the absolute property of any exhibitor. When the first prize (value £15) has been won outright, the second prize £10, third prize £5, and 4th prize medal value £1 10s., will be awarded to those competitors who have scored first, second, and third most points respectively (apart from the actual winner of the first prize), during the time the competition has been open.

The "H. W. Naylor" Challenge Cup, value £5 5s.: 1st, and medal value £1 1s., Mr. W. E. Shackleton, 264 points; runners-up, Messrs. Ogden Bros. with 221 points.

Silver plated cruet, for most points, and silver plated preserve dish, for second most points, presented by Mr. J. W. Ramsden (for birds moulted on Ramsden's Pure Peppers: 1st, Messrs. Ogden Bros., 326 points; 2nd, Mr. W. H. Shackleton, 313 points.

Novice Competition. Prize value £1 1s., presented by Mr. H. H. Towers, of Windhill, to exhibitor gaining most points throughout the season, won by Mr. W. Beaumont, of Skelmanthorpe. Prize 10s. 6d., also presented by Mr. H. H. Towers, for most points in Norwich novice classes, won by Mr. F. Hammond. Union novice medals, value £1 1s. each, 16 medals, 12 for Yorkshire section and four for Norwich section, awarded for most points throughout the season. Yorkshire section: 1st, W. Beaumont, 205 points; 2nd, G. White, 173; 3rd, J. Lane, 151; 4th, W. Laycock, 143; 5th, E. Clegg, 133; 6th, E. Lumb, 109; 7th, A. Livesey, 103; 8th, A. Gill, 102; 9th, H. Kaye, 98; 10th, W. Sowden, 94; 11th, T. W. Wilson, 87; 12th, A. Radley, 87. Runners-up, J. J. Dunn, 83; S. Varley, 78. Norwich section: 1st, F. Hammond, 280; 2nd. W. Markwell, 147; 3rd, T. Fortnam, 116; 4th, J. H. Greenwood, 105.

"Ramsden" Novice Specials. Silver plated preserve dish, for most points, and a miniature goblet for second most points, for birds moulted on Ramsden's Peppers: 1st, F. Hammond, 228 points; 2nd, W. Beaumont, 183 points.

CAGE BIRDS Prizes for the Amateurs of Yorkshire. Three prizes, value 25s. for 1st, 20s. for 2nd, and 15s. for 3rd, to members having gained first, second and third most points during the season. 1st, Mr. H. H. Towers, 149 points; 2nd, Messrs. P. Drake and Son, 96; 3rd, Messrs. Shaw Bros., 95. CAGE BIRDS weekly cash prizes: Mr. H. H. Towers 10s., Drake and Son 10s., Shaw Bros. 10s., J. Hellewell 10s., T. Slater 10s., F. Townsend 10s., L. The points have been taken from the various catalogues, and I shall be glad if any person or persons will communicate with me at once should they find the number of points given differing from their own reckoning.—SAMUEL DEAN, secretary.

Canary Breeding for Beginners - - Post Free. 7d.

By Claude St. John.

A practical, up-to-date guide to the cult of Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner in the hobby. It contains many helpful illustrations, and deals very fully, and in an easily-understandable manner, with the choice, sexing and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the details and difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

A Chat with a Noted Breeder of Norwich and Yorkshire Canaries.

Mr. J. C. BARNES, of Sheffield, well-known as a judge and a highly successful breeder and exhibitor of Norwich Plainheads and Yorkshires, tells of his methods of breeding and management.

In our recent Birthday Number we published the first part of an interview which a representative of CAGE BIRDS had with Mr. J. C. Barnes, of Sheffield, and in which Mr. B. gave some useful information regarding the methods he pursues in his breeding room.

Following on the question as to his manner of feeding, we asked—

"How do you proceed when weaning the young? It is a point over which many young fanciers come to the ground."

Weaning Young Birds.

"When the youngsters are about 14 to 18 days old," replied Mr. Barnes, "it is well to keep one's eyes open, as they will then be on the point of leaving the nest (or may have already done so), and should they be knocking about the bottom of the breeding cage, or even on the perches, many parent birds (especially the hens), are apt to pluck them to utilise their feathers for future building operations. Besides spoiling the plumage of the youngsters for nest feather shows (should you think of exhibiting at all) this greatly weakens them. I always makes a practice of taking the young ones out of the large cage, and placing them in a Yorkshire show cage (which makes a capital "nursery"), hanging same on the front of the breeding cage by means of a small S hook. Leave the door of the breeding cage open, and the parent birds will feed alright through the wires. This does away with a lot of plucking, and pays one well for the little trouble incurred. By the time the youngsters have attained the age of 21 to 24 days, they usually are on the forage for themselves, and can with confidence be taken right away from their parents, and be placed in cages by themselves. The larger the cages the better it is for the birds, as there is nothing like plenty of room for exercise, this assisting their development.

Provide the young birds, with the usual egg and bread crumb (rather more crumb than egg when mixing, making it better for digestive purposes), also a little crushed seed composed of hemp German summer rape, maw, and Spanish Canary, in the following proportions, three parts canary, two parts hemp, one part rape, with a sprinkling of maw. Once a day you can give with advantage a little bread that had been steeped in hot milk, and well squeezed out, sprinkled with a little sugar on top. This assists greatly to obviate bowel trouble in the youngsters. Give no green food until after they have moulted. Green food is rather dangerous, as young birds are apt to gorge upon it, and so upset themselves by bringing on inflammation and diarrhœa.

Some fanciers are very much against giving water to young birds at first, but I always do so, mixing a little Parrish's Chemical Food with it. By way of a change, I sometimes given Allan and Hanbury's Byno-Phosphates mixed with the water. Should you use the chemical food, add just enough to turn the water port wine colour; if you use the phosphates, add one teaspoonful to about half a small teacupful of water.

The Loss of Young Birds.

Mr. Barnes strongly believes that the cause of the mortality amongst young birds is the fanciers' own carelessness, in the majority of cases. Sour food plays havoc, impure water is like poison, while draughts cause death, and rushing the birds on to hard seed too quickly will lead to wholesale destruction. He strongly advises fanciers to use discretion at this critical period, and move slowly. Keep all cages or flights, whichever the birds may be in, scrupulously clean, with nice gritty sand on the bottom (or in receptacles). Once the birds are on to hard seed, little trouble will they be until the moulting season approaches.

Mr. B. does not believe in abusing his stock by over-breeding, as this reduces vitality and leads to weakly youngsters. His old birds he allows to have three nests, generally speaking, and his unflighted birds two nests. The reason Mr. B. restricts his young birds is that he does not care to take too much out of them the first season, preferring to "nurse" them to assist their second-year development. A young bird allowed to breed very hard rarely gains the substance required in present-day competition. In a few cases heavy work during the breeding season may not interfere much with the young birds' growth, he admits, but in majority of cases he holds that it decidedly does; therefore he believes in discretion.

To keep up substance in the stock, Mr. Barnes advises running one cock with one hen. He has always followed this method, and found it pay. He considers that the running of one cock with two or more hens has a tendency to result in loss of size. By keeping one cock to one hen, both birds are on hand when the youngsters appear, and two feeders are better than one, he holds, they dividing the work. A young bird well fed during the first few days of its existence lays the foundation of substance.

A Mixture.

"Are there any other points bearing on the breeding operations you could give a hint on? What nesting material do you use?"

"For nesting purposes I use the ordinary bags of moss and cow hair, sold by seed-dealers and bird-shops. Cuttlefish bone is placed between the wires for the birds to peck at. White earthenware nest-pans are used for building in, as I consider they are far better than wooden nest-boxes, being cooler, and not harbouring red mite so.

As each egg is laid it is taken away and replaced by a dummy pot egg, until the third is laid, then they are all put back, and booked to hatch 14 days hence. Each of my pairs is numbered (on the cage front) so as to correspond with my pedigree diary. As the eggs are taken out of the nest, each one is placed in a box partitioned in squares, and each square numbered to correspond with the cages. All my young birds are marked, so that I know exactly how they have been bred, by referring to the stud book.

When pairing my birds I always book up full particulars regarding strong and weak points, age and colour, and whether clear or marked. During the breeding season I feed morning, noon and night, giving the food fresh every time."

Some Observations on the Fancy.

"How do you think the Fancy stands today, Mr. Barnes? You get about the country a good deal in your capacity as judge. Do you consider fanciers stage their exhibits to better advantage now than they used to do?"

"I can speak in a highly complimentary manner of the way shows are managed," replied Mr. B.; "all I have been to have been excellently carried out. The staging of the exhibits has been greatly improved, and the display rendered more pleasing still by the ferns, palms, etc., used at many of the functions. The fanciers have been, on the whole, very amicable with each other, which is always a very healthy sign. The leading ladies and gentlemen of the various towns and cities have officiated at the opening ceremonies of their local exhibitions with pleasing frequency, and this must be very beneficial to the Hobby.

Sharp practices, and items of a none too straightforward character, have been very few and far between, clean methods having been pursued. Possibly the oft-abused Cage Bird Union has had something to do with this.

In the exhibits, quality and type have predominated, coarseness having had to take a back seat. The greater uniformity of show cages has also tended to beautify our exhibitions.

My advice to young exhibitors is to show their birds perfectly clean, and in clean cages with perches to match. Good birds deserve to be staged well. To win, a man should never be 'sure of winning'; over-confidence very often leads to defeat. Always stage the birds spic and span; leave nothing to chance. Forward the birds the night previous to the show, when possible, so as to give them time to settle down previous to the judging. Also, attend shows whenever possible, as many valuable hints are picked up from the various fanciers. Don't overshow your birds; from six to eight times in a season is quite sufficient, should you require them to do you some service in the breeding season."

A Working Man's Aviary and Small Group of Foreign Birds.

By JOHN THOMPSON.

My purpose in this article is to give a few hints on a working-man's aviary and a few inexpensive birds sufficient to make a fairly attractive and profitable hobby.

Constructing an Aviary.

The first thing to be considered is a suitable position in which to build our aviary. Due south is the most favourable one. If this is not available (and I know that we cannot always get "front view"), we must shelter those sides that are the most exposed to wind and cold, making the open pen to face as near the south as possible.

Two-inch square quartering would be plenty strong enough for the framework of both open pen and shed, that is if you are building both. Be sure you have your aviary of good height, so that you will be able to move about amongst your birds with ease. Make it in squares or sections, using bolts and screws to secure them together. This will involve very little more expense, and will be found to pay you double, if you should wish to remove your aviary.

I prefer a span-roof shaped aviary with a portion of one end boarded, with felted sides and top, and with a good skylight protected with half-inch mesh wire netting. And if the position is in any way dark, I should put another light in one of the ends or sides.

The Furnishing of the Aviary.

Double-net the outside or open half of your aviary, putting half-inch mesh wire-netting inside the framework; inch mesh will also be small enough for the outside of the framework. If you put the netting on this you will find that you will have a space of two inches between the two nettings, and this will make a good and effective safeguard against cats—the terror of birds at night. Be sure that you let your netting into the ground about a foot or fifteen inches, turning outwards at the bottom a few inches, L shape. This will act as a preventive against rats and mice. If you do not adopt this precaution, these pests may be more disastrous than cats.

Fix in the aviary an abundance of natural branches of all sizes (pea sticks answer very well), and also a few old logs with holes in them, if you can procure them; if not procurable, get some Virginian bark, obtainable at any seedsman's or chemist's, and fasten it in various positions, making nesting places of different sizes, and cutting holes for the birds to go in and out by. You will find this to have a pleasing effect. I have this bark in tiers about half a yard apart, rising up or down about the same distance in my aviary, which makes it look very much like a wood. It also looks very artistic, showing off the birds, too, to perfection.

Hang up an abundance of cokernut husks, providing at least two for each pair of birds. Also make a few boxes about fifteen inches square, with a hole cut in one end at the top about four inches across; make the top of the box so that it may be easily lifted off to allow you to clean the box out when the young have left it.

The bottom of the box must be well covered with sawdust, to prevent the eggs getting broken. The birds that we propose to keep do not build nests, so it will be seen that we have been catering for such.

The Selection of Birds.

Now for the selection of our birds. We will take first of all that handsome and popular bird the Budgerigar, with its beautiful green and yellow markings. The species is so well known that it is almost needless for me to describe it.

There are two kinds of Budgerigars, the Greens and Yellows, which make a pleasant contrast when flying together in an aviary. You could purchase good, strong, cold aviary-bred Green Budgerigars for 6s. 6d. per pair, the Yellows fetching 10s. 6d. or thereabouts per pair. The reason I recommend English aviary-bred birds is that they breed very much more freely than imported birds, and will settle down to breeding almost immediately, rearing brood after brood with little else but seed and green food.

White millet, with good sound Canary seed, and a little white oats about once a week when the birds are breeding, also a little in the winter months, together with plenty of grass in flower, chickweed well filled with seed, groundsel, etc., constitute their staple diet. Some fanciers advocate soaked stale bread for the feeding of the young, but I prefer the former treatment, and have used it with very good results.

These birds seldom bathe, but they must have good fresh water given daily in a glass vessel. I prefer glass, as it cannot spoil the water.

The Budgerigar is a very pugnacious bird during breeding operations, And it is not to be trusted with smaller birds at any time, or sooner or later there will surely be some birdie tragedy or other The hens will often fight to the death over one particular husk, so I advise at least two husks for each pair of birds. I have known a hen to clear a whole brood of young out of a nest after a pitched battle with the parent bird, and afterwards take to the husk and breed in it with as little concern as if she and her mate were the rightful owners of the husk.

The Yellow Budgerigars do not breed quite so freely as the Greens, but considering the difference in the price of the birds they are even more profitable. They lay from four to eight white eggs, laying one every alternate day, beginning to sit with the advent of the first eggs. This makes a difference of a few days in the ages of the young; but this is no trouble, the youngest often making the best bird of the brood. The young take about fourteen days to hatch out, and leave the nest when about five weeks old. The above applies to both Green and Yellow Budgerigars.

Introducing Cockatiels.

When we have got these birds settled we may introduce a pair of Cockatiels. These can be procured at about 12/6 per pair. One of these is a little larger than an English Storm-Cock, with a slaty coloured body and a little patch of white on the shoulder butts.

It has a yellow face and crest with a reddish round patch on each cheek. The colouring is more pronounced in the case of the cock than in that of the hen. The Cockatiel is a very docile and inoffensive bird, but it seldom breeds and rears healthy young until two years old, when the pairs are accustomed to their quarters.

They lay from three to seven white eggs the incubation taking about eighteen days. Both birds share in the task of incubation, the cock generally taking his turn in the afternoon.

These birds I find resent interference, and will desert their young if too often meddled with. Otherwise they are affectionate parents and will very seldom allow their young to die. They will often make use of the boxes already described. Cockatiels will also be found to make a fine addition to one's collection.

With birds such as are here described, you will find the hobby an interesting one. Of course, we could add a few other species of Parrakeets. Red and Mealy Rosellas would make a glowing contrast, but these are a little more expensive. White-eared Conures also are good, but as I am representing the more humble fancier, we must be content, and 'bide our time.

How I Manage My British Finches

The Bullfinch.

The Bullfinch, to my mind, comes next as a very pretty bird. He is a great favourite with the ladies, on account of his pretty red breast and his tameness (they become very tame if handled gently).

I am reminded of catching a hen with two young cocks. I took great care with the young ones, and in less than a fortnight they would come out of their cage on to my hand and off it. They became so tame they would sit on my shoulder and remain their while I attended to all the other birds which I had at that time (about seventy-six in all). The other birds were very jealous, so I had to fetch the young Bullies downstairs and let them fly out when they wanted to do so. I also let them out of doors very often, but they would return, and as soon as I got home from work would come on to my shoulder and go upstairs with me into the birdroom. They would also play with baby, but would keep out of the way of any harm. A friend of mine who had a doctor friend to whom he wished to make a present of a bird, when he saw these two of mine offered me a good sum for them, with the result that he took them straight off to his friend and received an order for six more like them at 15s. each.

Bullfinches choose the deepest thicket or wood to breed in. They like hawthorn bushes to build their nests in, especially those close by a stream of water. I have seen the hen birds, when sitting, come and bathe every day while I watched for four days. The nest is made very roughly of roots of grass, and of any trees they may find, and is lined in a way with horse and cow hair.

The hen lays from four to five eggs, which are light with yellow spots on. During the incubation of this species I have known the cocks to sit as many as five times a day, when I have gone to find out what I could about them.

When the young ones are hatched, they are dark in colour. When they leave the nest they are light-brown, except on the wings and tail, which are black. I may say that when the birds are in their nest feathers I cannot tell the difference between the cock and the hen, as they are both alike. When the young are first caught they are very wild for a few days, but with patience and small tit-bits they will soon be found to make the tamest of birds.

If you want a pet to follow you about the house or the bird-room, choose a young Bullie. If trained properly, it is a good musician. The way to train Bullies is to place them in a dark quarter first thing in the morning, before they have had any food. Then play whatever musical instrument you like, three or four times over. When this is done, take him out of his dark place and give him a few hemp or sunflower seeds. Personally, I choose ivy berries, as they seem to cheer the birds up. Continue this each morning until you hear Mr. Bullfinch start to imitate your voice, which he will do in a very low tone.

If you keep on every day in this way, I am sure you will be amply rewarded. The trainer must choose his or her own comic or sentimental song (or even hymns). When it is a learned bird, you can readily get a sale for it, and a good one has been known to fetch as much as fifty pounds.

There are many ways of catching Bullfinches. I will describe my way. The Bullfinch is an easily-caught bird. I get a good call-bird (the Bullies do not require any singing), and I place it on a low hedge close to a wood near where there are plenty of ripe red docks in seed. If there are no docks there, I search about till I find some, and on these I place a stick of lime, setting both dock and lime on the hedge. Lean both the docks and stick nearly flat on the hedge, for if you place them straight up, the birds will not drop on to it. Before I found this out, I used to be out sometimes a week, never catching one bird, though there were plenty of them around. I place a stick or two over the cage and on the lower boughs of the hedge. Have plenty of raw linseed oil with you, for the Bullie when caught makes a mess of itself, through being, as I said, very wild. I clean them well and put them into a store cage similar to that I use when Goldfinch catching. I gather some blackberries and throw them in the store cage; these they will readily eat.

Should I want a few big Bullies I go to where there are plenty of yew trees. Why this is so I cannot say. Last year I caught five of the largest Bullies I ever had, and these were feeding on yew tree berries. I sold them all, and in less than three weeks three of them had taken first prizes.

When I get home, I treat my freshly-caught Bullies the same as Goldfinches as regards water. I then crush a few hemp seeds and throw Canary seed in also, with plenty of crushed sunflower seeds, and from fourteen to sixteen blackberries per day for each dozen birds. On these I find they do well.

In selecting exhibition birds, I like a good big one. I like as broad a head as can be got, with a good jet-black cap and a pure black running well down the side of the beak, forming a bib under the beak. I also like them with a broad chest, with the red as deep as possible. Mind and see that the black is not broken at the sides of the red; the red should run well down and as far under the legs as possible. Mind, too, that they are not loose feathered at the thighs, also that they have a good blue back with red tips just on the top of the coverlets. See, too, that they have good wing and tail feathers, black in colour and well carried, and that they are not open-tailed.

When the birds are feeding, and while they are passing through the moult, I give the following seeds:—Canary, 1lb.; German rape, 1lb.; teazle, ½lb.; and hemp, 2ozs. I give this as a staple food, together with sunflower, ivy berries, blackberries, yew tree berries, docks in seed, elder berries, and plenty of water to bathe in. I may say that I moulted a Bullie myself and showed it, and the judge put it down as a field-moulted bird. I sold it and it has won eleven first prizes for its owner as a house-moulted bird. If any one gets newly-caught Bullfinches, which afterwards seem dull in breast colour, don't be disheartened, for if you fed them on blackberries this will fetch the bloom back. Every newly-caught bird loses its bloom. I was a long time in finding this out. When I caught them they looked so red, but in three or four days I used to find they were very dull. Always handle the birds gently and you will be pleased with the result, and don't forget to give them the bath.

The Chaffinch.

The Chaffinch is another very beautiful bird, with his wonderful markings. He is rather a rough gentleman when first caught, but when flying wild, Chaffinches look grand. Their nesting place is found high up in elm or poplar trees, and are very often found in elderberry hedges, and are nearly always between the forks of the trees or branches. I have tried many times to rear young Chaffinches under Canaries, but have never succeeded.

The nest is made from thistle down, coltsfoot leaves, and dandelion down. These birds, I think, make the best nests of all our British species. The hen lays four or five eggs of a light-ground colour, with dark and yellowish spots on them. I have found many nests, but have never seen the cock sitting. The cock is a grand gentleman, and is very proud with his yellowish-brown breast and his blue cap, which shines like a piece of silk. His white coverlets show up well, and his flights are tinged with yellow. The hen is of a very poor colour, being nearly brown all over. The young are dark and look well with their mouths wide open.

The Chaffinch is a very destructive bird so far as fruit and certain vegetables are concerned. They will pull up the radish seeds and turnip seedlings out of the ground. For this reason the market gardeners shoot a lot of them. The birds, however, are very foud of insects—spiders, wire worms, ants (alive), meal worms, and others.

In selecting exhibition birds I choose the largest I can find. The birds must also have good rich-coloured breasts, with sound colour over the beak and round the eyes, and good blue caps extending down the back. The back of the Chaffinch must be of a very dark-brown and the wings black with yellow tinged bars and good white coverlets. The bird must also be clean white in its tail feathers.

A Menu.

I feed the Chaffinch with Canary seed, ½lb.; German rape, ½lb.; Winter rape, ¼lb.; turnip seed, ½lb.; radish seed, ½lb.; teazel, ½lb.; and hemp, ½lb. These mixed together make a good mixture. I also give live insects, such as spiders, meal worms, and live ants. I usually give soaked radish and turnip seeds that have been split and are shooting. Be sure and give plenty of water for the birds to bathe in, as they are very found of it. Given a good large cage and plenty of wild seed (as I mentioned in the Bullfinch list), I have had them look like fighting cocks with their blue caps reared up on end.

Two Wee Gems.

By J. PATTERSON.

When interbreeding, one must always keep the eye open for the least sign of ill-health in his birds, and never pair up any (but the most robust and sprightly of them) that are even slightly related to one another. Further one must see that each bird is typical in shape, showing no defect in either the head, the wing, or the tail carriage, because by having such birds with their relations, one only helps to render those defects more pronounced in the progeny, and these defects will take many years to breed out. Therefore, when you think of inbreeding, select the most perfect in every point, and always bear in mind that each point wherein any defect may be seen in any one bird, has to be strengthened and corrected by a bird making up for the defect just where it may occur.

For instance, when inbreeding with my birds I find that most birds are either inclined to hang or tip their wings; mostly the former may be looked for. Now; say you have a hen that lets her wings drop a little down, and, perhaps, carries her tail a little poorly; this is when to find the happy medium by pairing up to her a cock, which is either perfect in wing carriage, or slightly tipped. The same applies with regard to other points, always keeping in mind that you are breeding for type first, and quality second; these to be fully balanced by sound markings, also remember never to pair any stock nearer than cousins oftener than once in three years.

I find I get the best results by pairing father to daughter, or vice-versa, and then return to any of the same strain I have in my room. And if you make a proper selection, you will have much benefit from your experience.

I trust my readers will be clear on this point, or they may find many hard rocks ahead. There is no reason for going in for closely related pairs; just have the same blend of blood running through both your cock and hen, however distant. To be sure of this, you must keep a pedigree of each pair, to which you can refer when in need of any information, either as to how they are related to one another, or, as to how you lost markings or gained them by the pairings.

But, as our ain Bobby Burns said, "the best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft agley," and this applies very strongly in the case of even-marked breeding. Many a time you may be thinking you are sure of a champion from a special pair, but the blood does not blend, and the crossing has thrown out the markings, just when you wanted to build up the strain, and the results from the pair are far more variegated and clear birds than marks. But when breeding from a number of pairs, we may find that another pair on which we did not place so much reliance, has given us the ideal, and this will help to cheer one along the road.

When once you find birds throwing a few good marks in each nest, stick to this pair as long as they live, although I am a firm believer in having a young cock put with any hen after she is over the second season's breeding, as the young from such you will find to be higher in colour, and at the same time more sprightly than when both birds are getting old.

Now we will say you have got one or two evens, or perhaps, good unevens, such birds being marked alike on some other point, such as the point of shoulder, a slight tick on neck, or even down at vent, along with the eyes and wings. Always remember that ideal, even-marked birds should only have the eyes and wings dark, which makes them four-pointed. The uneven bird must have either three, five, or more marks. The better the eyes are in shape, the more chance you stand of winning a prize. This point also enhances the value of your bird as a stock bird, as the eyes at all times will need all your careful attention, and you cannot watch the shape of them too closely.

Now, don't pair each year birds that are both marked, or your stock will go rapidly back to the green. This is when the clear bird, bred from good marked stock, comes handy. Always remember to tone down your marking by a clear, or a bird only foul on eyes, and if the strain is running too light, don't be afraid to use one of the variegated birds for one of your pairs.

To be successful, you must have at least four pairs, so as to keep each point, as I have already said, just in its proper place. The same points apply to their more handsome cousins, the cinnamon even-marked, which I admire even more than those handsome, dark-marked birds.

CLUB REPORTS.

BOLTON AND DISTRICT O.S.

A very successful meeting was held at Joiners Arm Hotel, on January 27th, when there was a good muster of members and friends to watch Mr. F. Proctor's exhibition of Canary washing. Many questions were asked, and all of them were ably answered by Mr. Proctor. Messrs. Mitchell, Cooper, and S. Smith showed their different methods. We have decided to hold a social evening on February 10th at headquarters, Joiners Arm Hotel, commencing at 7 p.m.—H. PARKINSON, Secretary.

WHITBURN AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual meeting held in the Lesser Town Hall on Feb. 1, Mr C. Anderson presiding. The secretary submitted the financial statement, which shows an income of £45 6s. 1d. and expenditure of £41 18s., leaving a balance of £3 8s. 1d. This was considered satisfactory, and the report was unanimously adopted. The office-bearers were re-appointed. The date of our open show is fixed for Saturday, Dec. 11, when we hope for a yet bigger success. It was also unanimously agreed upon to start a club show confined to a 4-mile radius, and we wish to have the support of the fanciers within the limit. All intending members are requested to notify the secretary. Membership fees, 2s. 6d. per annum, payable to the secretary. Show to be held on Oct. 2.—JOHN FORREST, Scc., 109, West Main-st., Whitburn.

PLUMSTEAD & WOOLWICH C.B.S.

Annual meeting held Jan. 21 at headquarters. It was decided to let the letter from the C.B.U. stand over. Three members resigned owing to leaving the district. Messrs. Shirvell, Bayssu, Rogers, Brett, and Maclellan were elected members. It was decided to hold the pair show on Feb. 18, Mr. Robson to judge. The officers for 1909 were elected as follows: Chairman, Mr. Meades; vice-chairman Mr. Best; treasurer, Mr. Collins; committee, Messrs. Borlase, Hall, Hawkes, Hartland, Miller, Maclellan, Putner, Smith, and Wood; secretaries, Messrs. Pawley and Newnham. It was agreed that "a member's wife be admitted at 2s. per year" be added to Rule 3. It was decided to hold Finch show in March. A rough programme for the year was drawn up for the secretaries' guidance. It was decided to again hold an open show, the date to be Jan. 6 and 7. A vote of thanks to the officers for the past year was passed, this closing the long evening's work.—W. PAWLEY, Joint Sec.

HYSON GREEN (Notts) C.B.S.

A capital meeting was held on February 2nd. The large room was packed with members and friends to witness a washing exhibition by Mr. J. T. Birch in connection with a table show of Norwich stock pairs. The washing exhibition was, it is almost needless to say, carried out in a practical way, Johnny being an adept at the job. He quickly and carefully put the birds through the suds, which gave one the impression that Jack had been there before many a time. Mr. T. Barker was also asked to put one bird through the wash, and he kindly consented. He also demonstrated that it was not the first time he had used the brush and lather upon the wee little Canary. While the washing exhibition was taking place, sixteen pairs of Norwich Plainheads were being judged, and some capital pairs were staged. The prize winners especially looked capable of turning out short cobby ones. The hens were also good in type, short and cobby, with rare head and well-filled neck. The awards were as follows:—1, Birch; 2, Sharp; 3, Alton; vhc, he, Hill. Mr. J. Bertie judged. It was decided to hold a washing competition on February 16th for novices. Mr. R. Rhodes and other gentlemen kindly offered prizes to be competed for. Several new members were made, and the society is going ahead.

LEEDS ROLLER CANARY CLUB.

Usual monthly meeting, held on Feb. 6th, at Lockhart's Rooms, 55, Briggate. There were a nice few present, Mr. C. Towes presiding. Arrangements were made for a members' show, to be held on Feb. 20, at Lockhart's Rooms. It was decided to have three classes—1 open, 1 novice,, and a £1 limit (without cage). Mr. F. Oldroyd (Wakefield) has kindly consented to judge. It is to be hoped members will turn up in good numbers, and bring their birds along with them. Entries can be made at the show; all birds are to be staged at 3 p.m. prompt. Members are invited to bring their wives, as arrangements have also been made for a tea to be held in connection with the show. If the show is a success, it is the intention of the committee to have a series of members' shows. Amateur judging competitions are also to be arranged to help educate the members as to how the Roller's song should be produced, the names of tours, trills, etc., and render every assistance in the breeding and training of these charming songsters. We wish to make the acquaintance of all Roller fanciers possible. It is to be understood that none are debarred from coming. Those who wish to be educated in the song, etc., should join at once. Four new members were made, so that is a start in the right direction.—THOS. W. WALTON.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Usual meeting held Jan. 30th in the Fawcett-st. Cafe, Mr. J. Farrar presiding over a large attendance. We decided upon the inscription for the silver cup which has been presented for competition amongst members by the president, Mr. C. E. Thompson. As the cup which was presented by Mr. T. Davison has to be won by most points gained by five nominated birds, it was agreed that Mr. Thompson's cup be given for most points throughout members' classes, and must be won three times in succession, or four times in all. The preliminary arrangements for the election of judges for our annual open show, to be held Nov. 19th and 20th, were then proceeded with, and several gentlemen having been nominated, the secretary was instructed to write for terms, etc. The secretary intimated that as the particular branch of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers to which both he and the assistant secretary belonged held their branch meetings on the nights we held ours, they would be obliged if the members would consent to advance the dates of meeting by one week. It was agreed that our next meeting be held on February 6th, at 7.30 p.m., and every fortnight afterwards. The secretary moved that society business be conducted at every other meeting only, except in the case of very urgent business, which would be attended to at any time, and that the intervening meetings be devoted mainly to table shows, lectures, washing exhibitions, discussions, or anything which would be likely to help our novice members, and promote the welfare of our hobby. This was carried unanimously. Fanciers and friends are invited to attend our meetings. A long discussion ensued regarding the various methods of washing birds, which was

GOVAN & DIST. (Confined) O.S.

Usual monthly meeting held in Boilermakers' Hall, Feb. 2. President J. Fraser presided. Some discussion took place regarding judging for special prizes, but this matter was left over till next meeting, March 2, which all members are invited to attend. New members are cordially invited.—ROBERT FERNIE, Sec.

KEIGHLEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

At the meeting, held Jan. 22, the following were elected: President, Z. Booth; Vice-Presidents, F. Judson, L. Varley, C. Binns, B. Holmes, and W. H. Berry; Treasurer, G. Foster; Secretary, Wm. Wright, 15, Ada Street, Keighley. The headquarters are the King's Head Hotel, and the subscriptions 3/- per year. Meetings are held on the last Tuesday in each month.—WM. WRIGHT, Sec.

EDINBURGH WESTERN O.S.

Monthly meeting, held in Reigo Street Hall, on Feb. 4th, when there was a large turn out of members. A cup was presented to the Scotch Fancy section of the club by Kenneth McLennan, to be known as the McLennan Cup. It is to be won three times on points before becoming the winner's absolute property. The same gentleman promised a medal, to go with the cup, each year. A good number of new members were enrolled. Others will be welcomed.—ROBERT LILE, Sec.

CHESTER C.B.A.

Monthly meeting, held Feb. 2nd, at the Nag's Head Cocoa House, Mr. Bracegirdle presiding over a good attendance. The hon. treas. presented the balance sheet of the past year, which, after a few remarks by the hon. auditor, Mr. R. N. Williams, was accepted and passed. Seven new members have been made since Jan. 1st. Rules for the society as now constituted were brought forward and adopted. With the extension of the radius, it is confidently expected there will be a great increase in the membership. The members unanimously decided to continue their affiliation to the C.B.U.—JAS. SWINDLEY, Hon. Sec.

WATFORD AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held at the Conservative Hall on January 28th, Mr. R. J. Pretty in the chair. The secretary read his annual report. The balance-sheets of pair, young bird, and annual shows, also the balance-sheet for the year were passed. Owing to a heavy loss on the annual show it was decided to hold one for members only in 1909. The followiug officers were then elected:—President, Lord Hyde; vice-presidents, Messrs. C. Challands, R. A. Thorpe, E. R. Oxley; chairman, Mr. R. J. Pretty; vice-chairman, Mr. R. J. Watts; committee, Messrs. J. Goodall, W. Buckingham, A. G. Frost, E. Field, G. Fern, G. W. Swain, W. Shirley, A. T. Sears, A. Tucker, R. J. Withers, T. Wright, P. Hedgeman; auditors, Mr. H. B. Withers and Mr. E. F. Bailey; hon. sec. and treasurer, Mr. W. Quantrell. A vote of thanks to the retiring officers was carried with applause, special reference being made to the chairman and to the hon. sec. and treasurer. Several members said they were of opinion that the society derived no benefit from the C.B.U., and a vote of the meeting was taken which resulted in a large majority against renewing the subscription. Thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.—R. J. WATTS.

HARTLEPOOLS C.B.S.

Annual general meeting and election of officers took place at the Y.M.C.A. Rooms, Whitby-st., West Hartlepool, on Feb. 3, Mr. J. Robinson in the chair. The secretary, Mr. Williams, gave an excellent report on the year's work, but was sorry to say that owing to the depression we had lost a few members. There was also a balance on the wrong side which the society hopes to put right by holding a prize draw. We are sorry to have to appeal to fanciers, but owing to so many being out of work we could not do otherwise. Mr. H. J. L. Williams, 30 Lister-st., West Hartlepool, was re-elected hon. secretary; Mr. J. W. Popple, hon. treasurer; Mr. J. Robinson, chairman; Mr. J. Ronald, vice-chairman; and all members form committee. It was decided to leave the Cage Bird Union if the Union did not delete rule 17 at their meeting on the 6th inst. We also decided to hold our open show on Oct. 30, 1909. Secretaries will please note this date. We will hold our annual general meeting in future in January so as to enable us to give details of society's officers to be published in CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL. We added some new members to our list, and if trade revives we will get all our old members back, and no doubt some others with them.—H. J. L. WILLIAMS, Hon. Sec.

KILMARNOCK C.B.F.C.

Annual general meeting held in No. 3 Room, Temperance Hall, on Feb. 4. President W. Guthrie presided over a good attendance. The balance sheet for the past year was considered. Although there has been a deficiency on the year's working, there is still a creditable balance to the good. Mr. J. Murdoch moved that it be passed as printed, which was seconded by Mr. J. Johnstone and agreed to. The following are the office-bearers for the ensuing year: Hon. president, Mr. W. Munro; hon. vice-presidents, Messrs. King and Clark; chairman, Mr. W. Guthrie; vice-chairmen, Messrs. J. Noble and A. Mackie; committee, Messrs. G. Adamson, W. Smith, G. Blair, J. Murdoch, J. Dick, H. Train, W. Strathearn, D. Fisher, A. Bowie, W. Thornton, and J. Jones; auditors, Messrs. W. Cowan and J. Latta. A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.—ROBERT M'CAW, Sec., 7, North Hamilton-st., Kilmarnock.

WARRINGTON C.B.S.

Usual monthly meeting held on Feb. 4 at the Blue Bell Sale Rooms. Mr. W. R. Knowles presided. The following officers were elected: Mr. W. R. Knowles, chairman; Mr. J. Emmett, treasurer; Mr. C. Dukes, 26, Dundonald-avenue, Stockton Heath, near Warrington, secretary. A good lot of special prizes have been given for our show to be held Feb. 20, which should draw a good entry. Mr. J. Hampson gave a washing exhibition, and the information gained by the members ought to prove useful to them. At our next meeting Mr. A. Stout will show members how to make cage fronts. Fanciers wishing to become members of this society should write to me.—C. DUKES, Hon. Sec.

LEEDS C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held at Lockhart's Restaurant, Briggate, on Feb. 6. Mr. Chambers in the chair. The auditors' report for 1908 was discussed and passed. F. Somers, Esq., M.R.C.V.S., was unanimously elected President for the ensuing year. The novice medals for 1908 were presented to the winners, Messrs. Triffit and Seth Fowler. Ten new members were enrolled, which is a record number for years. Schedules of the Members' Pair Show, to be held on March 6th, were handed out, and all seemed eager for it to be a success. Mr. S. Fowler added another special prize to be competed for. This concluded a most interesting meeting.—W. TOSE, Hon. Sec.

KIRKSTALL & DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual meeting held at headquarters, Jan. 30, Mr. Chew in the chair. The following officers were elected for 1909: President, Dr. Lyall; vice-presidents, Messrs. Chew, Hollingworth, Joel, and Wainwright; hon. treasurer, Mr. Shammers; committee to be drawn from members at such times as required; hon. secretary, Mr. Whiteley; assistant secretary, W. Hornby; auditors, Messrs. Bracken and Yelland. We decided to adopt a syllabus for 1909, and an interesting one was drawn up which will be published in due course. We shall be glad to forward one to any intending members when they are ready. Two new members were proposed, viz., Messrs. Smith and Buckley. It was decided not to hold an open show but two or three members' shows, for which some good specials have already been promised. Mr. Yelland kindly offered to give a cup and Vice-president Hollingworth a set of earvers. Mr. Hornby proposed that the surrounding districts be notified through a local medium of our meeting nights, and also that an invitation be sent to all fanciers concerned. The meeting then terminated.—W. HORNBY, Assistant Secretary.

GLASGOW & WEST OF SCOTLAND CAGE BIRD CLUB.

Annual general meeting held Jan. 10 and on Jan. 28 at 122, Ingram-st., Glasgow. The secretary's report was submitted to the members and showed a decided improvement in every department of the club's work except in the open show, which was a serious financial failure, although in other respects an exhibition to be proud of. The membership stands at 95, an increase of 18 over last year's, and the entries for summer monthly shows give an aggregate of 313, or an average of 32.16 for each show. The meetings were very well attended, and the annual outing of the club in July was a great success. The annual members' show in December was the best in the history of the club, 624 birds being staged, and a record number of visitors being present. The balance sheet, which had been posted to all members, was discussed and adopted, and the officials congratulated on coming out so well from the heavy loss on the open show. The thanks of the club are due to all the kind friends who came forward so readily with contributions to help us clear our feet, and also to the press for their kind remarks and condemnation of the tacties adopted with intent to ruin our show. The balance in hand of £4 19s. 0½d., which does not include the staging, tables, and other properties value about £25, shows the strength of the society. The retiring officers were awarded a hearty vote of thanks, and nominations for next year's officials taken, which resulted in the following appointments:—President, Mr R. B. Jarvie; vice-president, Mr. J. Brown; secretary and treasurer, Mr. R. A. Brown, 102, Roslea Drive, Dennistouu, Glasgow; committee, Messrs. J. MacLay, J. Ferguson, M. Craig, H. Jamieson, F. Taylor, J McLeod, M. Donaghy, A. Sloan, G. McPhail, C. Martin, John L. Burnett, F. Bowman, R. Watson, A. Henderson, C. Fyfe, G. Scott, A. McCallum, R. Thomson, A. McLintock, D. Brown, D. S. Gowans, A. Smith, and T. Ferguson; finance committee, Messrs. J. Ferguson and A. K. Chalmers; auditors, Messrs. E. Barron and R. V. Raine. It was agreed that the medals won at club show should be presented at the annual smoker on Feb 18. The winners are: Novice Cup and Young Bird up. Mr. G. Stewart; best old bird, Mr. J. MacLay; best British or foreign, Mr. T. Erskine. The matter of the "Notorious Circular" was reported on by the committee, and it was stated that legal opiuion had been taken, but the advice given practically meant that it would take a large sum to bring the matter home and with no prospect of any return to the club. In these circumstances it was agreed to let the matter drop meantime. The committee were instructed to prepare a series of fixtures for the coming season, and this being all the business, a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman, Mr. M. Craig, terminated an enthusiastic and enjoyable meeting.—R. A. BROWN, Sec.

HAMILTON CADZOW OAKS O.S.

Public meeting, on Feb. 6th, in the Lesser Hall, Victoria Halls, Hamilton, Mr. D. Johnston, vice-president, in the chair. In stating why the meeting was called, the secretary said that it had come to their knowledge that there was a strong body of fanciers resident in Hamilton and District who objected to attend their meetings on account of their being held in licensed premises. As the society was desirous of falling in with the wishes of the majority this meeting had been called to ascertain whether, in the event of it changing its headquarters to unlicensed premises, the society would meet with increased support to enable it to carry out the change. It was no light matter and it would all depend on the members whether it would be possible to move or not. He appealed to all to help the society to lift their hobby to a higher level than heretofore. A friendly discussion then ensued, in the course of which Mr. Braidwood (Burnbank) asked if these were the sentiments of the society as a whole? He was assured that all present members (tectotal and non-tectotal) thoroughly approved of the change if it was possible to carry it out. On a show of hands it was seen that with only three exceptions all present were willing to be members if the change took place. Mr. Braidwood moved "that the meetings be held in a temperance hall for one year." On being seconded by Mr. Shearer, the motion was carried by 14 votes. The secretary then intimated that the annual subscription to the society was 2/6, payable at or before the May meeting. Seven new members were elected: Messrs. J. Braidwood (Burnbank), W. Hamilton, W. Shearer, Senr., W. Shearer, Junr., J. Orr (Hamilton), and J. Docherty. We are negotiating for a room in the Victoria Halls, to hold our meetings in, but our meeting-place will be announced through the Fancy Press later. The annual business meeting was presided over by Mr. W. Haddow (President). The treasurer read the balance sheet, which showed a substantial balance of over £8. The election of office bearers took place and resulted as follows:—President, Mr. W. Haddow; vice-president, Mr. D. Johnston; Treasurer, Sgt. E. J. Smith; Secretary, S.Q.M. Sgt. A. Cant, all re-elected. Working Committee: Messrs. Menzies, Braidwood, W. Shearer, Junr., and D. Hamilton. Auditors: Messrs. G. Marlin and J. B. Smith. Mr. Marlin gave a short speech, in the course of which he complimented both the Secretary and the Treasurer on the manner in which they carried out their duties during the past year, and moved that these officials be granted a donation from the funds. This was seconded by Mr. J. B. Smith. It was decided to print the balance sheet and distribute copies to all donors and members. It was unanimously agreed to bank £4 of the balance, and Messrs. Wm. Haddow and J. B. Smith were appointed to act as trustees for this amount. The discussion on the annual show was deferred till next meeting. The Secretary intimated that they had fixed their social evening for the 20th Feb., in the Lesser Town Hall. It will take the form of a pie tea with fruit; tickets 1/6 each; tea on the table at 6.30 p.m. After the tea there will be songs, etc., and the secretary will give a resume of the year's work. Fanciers and friends, both ladies and gentlemen, are invited. The meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to our worthy chairman.—A. CANT, Hon. Sec.

WIMBLEDON C.B.S.

Presentation to the Secretary.

There was a very large attendance at the annual meeting held 6, The Broadway, on Feb. 1. Mr. W. H. Stoakley presided. The secretary, Mr. H. Smith, reported that he had engaged the room for the pair show on 15th February. It was decided to add two more classes, one for Finches and a selling class, and that entries close on February 13th; all birds must be at the room by 6 o'clock on evening of show. One new member was elected, and one nominated. The secretary announced a Norwich judging competition at the March meeting. The annual report and the statement of accounts showed that, in the judging competitions, Mr. Jordan had taken the chairman's prize with 18 points, that Mr. Dell was second with 12 points, and Mr. Griffiths third with 10. The average attendance at committee meetings had been 8, and at members' meetings 23, while the total membership was 65. The accounts showed there was a balance to the good of £5 5s. 8d. The chairman, in moving the adoption of the accounts, said it was something quite new to have a balance to the good on all their accounts. It was a most satisfactory state of affairs, and they had to thank their hard-working secretary for this, and for the valuable services he had given the society. They all knew the vast amount of work entailed, especially at show times, and were grateful to Mr. Smith for what he had done for them. Mr. F. Piper (the president) also spoke. The chairman said he had to ask Mr. Smith to accept from the officers and members a handsome marble clock, suitably inscribed, as a small and inadequate token of their regard, and of their appreciation of the many services he had performed on their behalf. The time piece was inscribed:—"Presented to Mr. H. Smith by the committee and members of the Wimbledon and District Cage Bird Society, in recognition of his valuable services as secretary, February 1st, 1909." Mr. Smith said it was indeed most kind of the chairman to have made such flattering remarks. When he took the office he did so with great diffidence, since he had the feeling that he would be a failure, but he had pulled through all right, for the simple reason that, from the president to the youngest member of the society, he had received the heartiest of support. The election of officers took place as follows:—President, F. Piper; vice-president, H. W. Birch, E. J. Lamb; G. J. Warley, and Dr. G. Walker; chairman, W. H Stoakley; hon. secretary, H Smith; delegate to the C.B.U., G. J. Warley; delegates to the Federation of London C.B. Societies, J. Carson and H. Smith; committee, J. Carson and A. H. Dyke, P. Rorke, E. W. Dell, G. Griffiths, E. J. Whittome and F. P. Found.

REVIEW OF SCHEDULES.

Gorseinon (C.B.U.).—Feb. 25, in the Drill Hall and the Institute.—Judges, Messrs. T. Gamage and R. W. Jones. 24 open classes: Nor. 4, Yorks. 4, Borders 4, Mules 3, Brit. 8, Sell. 1. Prizes, 10/-, 5/-, 2/6 and spls. Fee, 1/6. Entries close Feb. 20, to GORDON CLARKE, High-st., Gorseinon.

Tibshelf.—Feb. 27, Coronation Hall. Judge, Mr. W. Vardy. 6 open classes: Nor. 2, Yorks. 1, A.O.V. 1, Brit. 1, Sell. 1. Prizes, 10/-, 5/-, 2/6. Fee, 1/6. Entries close Feb. 20, to JOSEPH HILL, 16, Addison-st., Tibshelf, Alfreton.

Through a mistake in the Palace Show catalogue, writes Mr. J. Lees (Rochdale), your report reads in the Limit A.O.V.: 2nd, Rees, whereas I won this honour. The report also says dark Linnet Mule, but should have been dark Greenfinch Mule.

I am reducing my stock, and can only find time to see to three pairs, writes Mr. L. King (Fakenham). I took up the hobby through a stray number of CAGE BIRDS falling into my hands, and have found it a delightful pastime. I always look forward to receiving your paper at the end of the week.

A Noted King Parrakeet and its Owner.

OUR "BLACK CANARY PUZZLE."

The Result.

The "Black Canary Puzzle" which formed the frontispiece to our recent Birthday Number, turned out an extremely popular competition. From the day after it appeared until the date announced for closing (and some came after that) solutions simply poured in. We find the "total" received to be the extraordinary and highly gratifying one of 2,571; but in this are reckoned 35 which came after the date of closing, and had to be marked "too late for competition." Many of the competitors sent letters congratulating us on providing them with a half-hour's pleasant amusement, and many more echoed the words of Mr. T. J. Robertson (Edinburgh), who wrote: "The putting together of the squares of this puzzle has been an excellent study concerning the Norwich Canary."

We were amused at one competitor who, when sending in his solution, attached a note to it, which read: "I am sorry you made it so easy—a child could do it." Yet his own version of the puzzle turned out to be hopelessly wrong! Several others seemed to look upon the prize as somewhat in the nature of a gift, yet it remains to be recorded that

Not One Single Solution Proved to be Correct.

A high percentage of those who competed succeeded in accurately placing the squares which go to make up the three birds, but one and all failed to place the BLANK squares in the positions allotted to them on our artist's key-picture. We rather anticipated such would be the case. However, one competitor—a lady—had the good fortune to get very near indeed, and to

Miss K. JEAKINS,
46, Cobham Road,
Westbury Avenue,
Wood Green, N.,

we have decided to award the prize of half-a-guinea. This lady was quite correct in "pasting up" the birds, and actually had three of the four "missing" squares from the top-left-hand corner in their correct places. Three of the other blank (white) squares in her attempt were not in their proper places. But this was much better than the achievement of any other competitor; further, this lady's solution was very neatly put together. On the latter score, however, many competitors are to be congratulated.

We shall hope to put another competition, on somewhat similar lines, before readers in the near future.

Birds and Agriculture.

In an article on agricultural affairs a Northern journal, speaking of birds, says: "Happily, the beneficial or harmless group is much the largest of all." A large number of birds are grouped as species which are occasionally injurious, but with the balance of utility largely in their favour. These include the Robin, Linnet, Yellowhammer, Corn Bunting, Skylark, Starling, Woodpecker, Barn, Tawny, and Short-eared Owls, Kestrel, Heron, etc. The Jay, Magpie, Jackdaw, Owls, and certain Hawks are undoubtedly beneficial to agriculture but are destructive to game, and are consequently destroyed when met.

Your Crystal Palace number is simply a "stunner."—C. PRIEST (Aylsham).

I am delighted with this week's number of CAGE BIRDS.—C. T. HUMPHREY (Dublin).

I think the Crystal Palace Show number of CAGE BIRDS was A1, as also was the plate.—R. HANFORD (Derby).

Your Jubilee Palace number and report are really grand, far the best of any I have seen.—W. BAGSHAW (London, N.)

I beg to thank you for the grand plate issued with the Crystal Palace Show number of CAGE BIRDS.—M. COOK (Bournemouth West).

I should like to thank you for the grand Palace number with its magnificent coloured plate.—W. H. HOBBS (North Walsham).

I read your "Jubilee" number with great pleasure. It was most interesting, and the report a very full and grand one.—W. BENT (Liverpool).

Your Crystal Palace Show number was a spendid issue, and the coloured plate was excellent, thanks to H. N.—J. ROBERTSON (High Harrington).

I would like to congratulate you on your Crystal Palace number, as it is a perfect treat. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success and prosperity.—J. GALLACHER (Bellshill).

I think the Palace number the best report of a show you have printed, or anyone else. The notes on the old shows were entertaining, while the "Gossip" was extra.—A. MACDONALD (Glasgow).

Your Crystal Palace Show number was a beauty, and must have caused you an anxious time in its production. It was excellent in every way. I wish CAGE BIRDS continued success.—H. W. COOK (London, E.C.)

I must thank you most heartily for the magnificent coloured plate of one of my winning Greens, writes Mr. Tom Harrison (Altrincham). It is most kind of you to issue such beautiful works of art for the benefit of the Fancy at large. Your Mr. Norman excels his previous work every time.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Mating Crests.

"Guerdon."—No, I do not think that mating Buff Green Crested cocks with good clear yellow Crest-bred hens will be certain to result in producing small inferior Crests if the birds in question are themselves bred from good stock. As a matter of fact it all depends upon how the birds are bred, and if the yellow hens are related to real good stock, with plenty of beadgear, and fit the Greens in all other respects, I would not hesitate to mate them if the necessity arose. Next year the Buffs from such a mating should be used for double-buff mating, and the result should be a good recovery of any loss of size in the bird. Provided your Crest-breds are of the right stamp, the shape and density of the Crests are of quite as much importance and sometimes more so, as mere size. Without knowing the parentage of the birds and their antecedents I cannot tell you more definitely than this whether your choice is a correct one.

Anomalous.

Guss.—A hen that is bald, and failed to moult last year, and is yet well, and sings and breeds well, must be something of an anomaly. Breeding well last year, and laying eggs right up to Christmas, may perhaps be a predisposing cause of the trouble by overtaxing the bird's energy. Still, as she is to all appearances quite well, I would not advise you to interfere with the moulting or non-moulting now. It is just possible she may drop into moult in the course of a few weeks, in which case all you need do is to protect her from getting chills, add a liberal supply of maw to her diet until the moult is at least half over, and refrain from mating her up until quite over. As the season would probably be getting advanced by that time I should rather advise you to mate her up with a Finch and try for Mules this year. Feed her on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape as a staple, give a few grains of inga twice a week, and a half teaspoonful of egg food three times a week, and on one occasion each week dust the soft food very lightly with flowers of sulphur. Give green food freely; keep in a fairly large cage. Offer a bath frequently, and at the time of offering it remove the drinker and spray a few drops of water over the bird, which may encourage her to finish the ablutions. Add twenty drops of chemical food to the drinking water every second day for a month.

Where There's a Will.

C.N.M.—If you really wish to try the effect of aconite in this case, by all means do so. It will be quite safe to give one drop in the drinkers. Better still, give five drops of tincture of aconite and ten drops of glycerine in the drinker every second day for a week, or you may go for a fortnight if the first week appears to have made an improvement. It will be quite safe to use this quantity, and at the end of the course I shall be interested to hear the result. Candidly, I do not approve of the treatment myself, so please do not bless me inside down if it is unavailing. This will answer your items 1 and 2. (3) It is quite likely the bird may be too near the fire, and so be subject to great fluctuations of temperature, and also that its stoutness may partly cause the wheeziness. Keep it well away from the fire, if it remains in this room, where the temperature is equal, but see it is quite free from draught. Limit the diet to plain Canary, with half a teaspoonful of dry rape (not scalded) twice a week, and the same quantity of crushed sponge cake with two drops of sherry and one drop of cod liver

Give a scrap of green food if obtainable four times a week. Stop bread and milk and all other items of food. In the drinking water give ten drops of glycerine and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence daily for three days, and every second day for the remainder of the week. On the alternate days at the end of the week give four drops of aromatic sulphuric acid. In the following week give ten drops of glycerine and six each of syrup of squills and tincture of lobelia every second day. Then you may begin again and repeat the two weeks' treatment in same order. This advice and treatment is, of course, in case the aconite treatment fails. (4) No; it would hardly be wise to take the bird to the other room for a few hours occasionally. But if, as I assume, this room is kept without a fire, I would advise you to take the Yorkshire hen there permanently, taking advantage of a spell of mild weather for the actual removal.

Age and Cage.

W.H.—The rapid growth of the beak is, in my opinion, sufficient proof that the bird was not wholly a stranger to this mundane sphere prior to 1907. It will frequently happen that a bird's beak becomes overgrown after its second moult, but such rapid reproduction of the overgrowth when it is removed, as happens in the case of your bird, rarely occurs until several more moulting seasons have been passed through, though it is a common occurrence when the birds get older. A piece of lump sugar stuck firmly in the wires will help to keep the beak short, and be quite harmless. A similar cube of pumice-stone saturated with a strong solution of common salt is attractive to many birds, and will serve the same purpose, and be also harmless. But, as a rule, cutting will have to be resorted to occasionally. A narrow strip of smooth sand-paper bound around one end of perch now and again is very effective with those birds which are curious enough to keep nibbling at it. As regards your other question, I do not think there is any danger in stopping the cracks in cages with putty, especially if it is pressed well into the cracks to prevent its dropping out, and when it was covered with hard-drying enamel, the danger, if it did exist, would quite vanish. But if you have any doubts on the point, fill with a mixture of whiting and boiled oil, with just enough turpentine to hasten the drying and hardening process. Or the distempers or water-paints now so largely sold may be used in the unthinned state as filling. Any of these methods would be quite harmless if done previous to enamelling the interior all over.

Various.

Wingy.—1. Taking it all round, I should say an unglazed earthenware pan, with a round rim, and a back moulded on for hanging it up, so as to dispense with brackets, was the best for general use. Where there is plenty of space for the birds to get about in, I have a weakness for the old-fashioned wood nest-box, which has many things in its favour. But tastes and opinions differ. Next to above, the round earthenware pans, fixed up with a good firm bracket, and lined with down, are best. 2. Two nests a season is sufficient, though no great harm will result from taking three from strong healthy birds if you wish, and have time to do it. 3. From a pair of Cinnamons you will breed only Cinnamons. I do not quite understand the latter part of this question. If you mean which is the best sex to have, yellow or buff, my reply is "both sexes." The question is of little importance when applied to any given pair, but in breeding, as a part of your system you should always endeavour to mate buff hens, bred from a yellow cock and buff hen, to yellow cocks, bred from a buff cock and yellow hen, and vice versa. 4. If the bird is quite well and active, there is no reason why it should not breed successfully. Certainly I should try it if the bird is worth it. The broken wing has doubtless set itself by now. If the stumps were carefully drawn, the bird would probably be quite right by the time to mate it, but unless you are handy at the job, you had better perhaps leave well alone.

A Roller Triplet.

W.W.—1. It is much too early to mate the birds yet, even though the hen is as forward as you say, and the fact that the cock in the adjoining compartment takes no notice of her, is practically a brief for failure of any project to breed with them. The hen has probably been fed too highly, and should not have been kept [illegible]ar the cock yet awhile. Your best plan would be to remove her out of sight and hearing of the cocks, and feed on a plain diet for the next week or two. 2. You do not say whether this question relates to the same hen as in No. 1, but in any case the above remarks will apply equally to the case. It would be quite useless to turn in the cock now the hen has laid, so you had far better treat her as advised for No. 1, assuming this is another bird. 3. If a cock, you should see a very noticeable swelling and throbbing of the throat when singing, and if you catch the bird and blow up the feathers on the abdomen, the vent will appear much more prominent and pointed than in the case of a hen. Could you not get a more experienced breeder to look at the bird and give you an opinion?

Scotch Fancy Soft.

I.C.—No, you are not doing right by putting the hen on the seed mixture you mention. Feed her on plain Canary only as a staple, and twice each week give separately half a teaspoonful of hemp, three times a week the same quantity of summer rape, and twice a week a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with three or four drops of sherry mixed in it and a few grains of inga sprinkled over it each time for the next fortnight. Give all these extras alternately, and stop all other items of food not named here. Give a bit of banana three times a week instead of green food. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky, six of dandelion juice, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for three consecutive days, and every second day for the remainder of the first week, and on the alternate days at the end of week give four drops of aromatic sulphuric acid. For another week after this give two drops each of tincture of gentain and tincture of steel every second day. Do not forget to give a regular supply of clean gritty sand. mealworm three or four times a week would do this bird good.

A Bald and Naked Norwich.

A.J.F.—The diet seems to have been an unsuitable one, both before and after the change, but this, in itself, is hardly sufficient to account for its condition, which is more likely to be due to age, and consequently practically incurable. In any case I do not think you will find much improvement, if any, before the next moult is got through. Meantime, feed on a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape as a staple, and give a few grains separately of hemp twice a week and of linseed once a week, and half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake twice a week. Add to the latter a slight dusting of a mixture of two parts chlorate of potash to one part flowers of sulphur each time it is given for the next month. Keep cage quite clean and well supplied with clean gritty sand, and keep it in a comfortable and equable temperature. In the drinking water add twenty drops of Chemical Food every second day for a month. As soon as it is to be had free from frost, give a spray of chickweed or flowering head of groundsel four or five times a week, and continue to use freely throughout the summer, as it will help to put matters right next moult. As yon are sure there are no red mite you may continue to very sparingly anoint the bare place with lanoline or vaseline about once a week, and also add a crystal or two of permanganate of potash to the bathing water about twice a week.

An Irritable Bird.

M.S.L.—It is difficult to account for the irritable condition of the bird if no form of insect pest is the cause of it. As the bird is in such good health and spirits, it is not likely to be due to any serious ill-health. Feed it on a staple diet of three parts Canary to one part summer rape, and give a pinch of maw seed and a very few grains of linseed twice a week, and every third day a half-teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of best salad oil mixed in it each time for a fortnight. Give a bit of banana three times a week, or, when obtainable quite free from frost, a spray of watercress. Twice each week for the first fortnight also slightly dust its soft food with a mixture of two part chlorate of potash and one part flower of sulphur. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, the same amount of chlorate of potash, and six drops of dandelion juice every second day for a week, and on the alternate days give four drops of aromatic sulphuric acid. Give plain water the next week, and repeat the above in the third week. Add just enough permanganate of potash to the bathing water to colour it a light pink colour. Shall be glad to hear in a month how this succeeds.

Something Wrong.

W.J.—It would have been helpful had you said whether the bird was in good or poor condition of body. I am inclined to think it may be quite plump and its mopy habit nothing worse than the laziness of a plethoric habit. Try the following treatment for a fortnight, and if not considerably improved in that time, write again, and say what condition it is in now, and also at the end of the fortnight. Feed on plain Canary seed only as a staple, and give separately, in addition, half a teaspoonful of rape seed three times a week, which should be scalded if the bird will eat it so, and every other day in the first week give a small piece of bread sopped in milk and sprinkled with a few grains of gold of pleasure seed. During the second week, instead of the latter, give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure as before. Give no green food, and limit the diet solely to the above for the fortnight. Keep cage very clean and well supplied with clean gritty sand. In the drinking water during the first week give six drops each of dandelion juice and syrup of rhubarb every second day, and on the alternate days four drops of aromatic sulphuric acid. In the second week give two drops each of tincture of gentain and tincture of steel every second day.

A Little Earlier.

Troubled.—Glad to hear there is some improvement in the bird's condition. If you could keep this bird in a slightly warmer temperature it would help her to get through the moult more rapidly—say, about 60 degrees, or between 55 degrees and 60 degrees, neither higher nor lower. Continue to feed her as last advised, except that you may increase the rape seed to half a teaspoonful every second day, and give it alternately with the sponge cake, which, of course, you will continue to give as usual, or you may vary this by substituting the same quantity of egg food occasionally. If you have them available a mealworm a day for a time would be very beneficial. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts again for two days, and after this thirty drops of port wine and two drops of tincture of steel every second day, and on alternate days twenty drops of Chemical Food. Continue for a fortnight, and if the bird is not quite well by then, stop the medicines for a week, during which time give plain water, and then begin with the dose of salts and repeat the same treatment for another fortnight. If she is kept in a little higher unvarying temperature, I think the bird may be quite ready for mating in April, or perhaps at the end of March. But do not be in a hurry to mate her for a time after she seems to be quite well.

Number of Eggs in Clutch.

An Afterthought.—A correspondent asked this question in a batch of several last week, and I regret I inadvertently omitted to refer to it in reply to the remainder of the batch. Assuming the correspondent sees this reply I must ask him to accept this explanation of its non-appearance last week. The normal clutch consists of five eggs, though four is of very frequent occurrence. Abnormal clutches may contain as little as one egg or as many as eight, but both these extremes are rare, comparatively, and the highest quite as rare, or perhaps rarer, than the lowest. In normal conditions all the eggs should be laid on consecutive days, but here again abnormalities are frequent, and it is not at all uncommon for a hen to miss laying one day and lay again the following day as though nothing had happened at any stage of the clutch.

A Wheezy Norwich.

B.A.C.—I rather suspect this bird was bred and moulted in a high temperature, and consequently is unable to throw off the effects of a severe chill in your cold room. You should remove him to a room with a comfortable temperature, but be careful to avoid draughts and great variations in heat. What you want is a mild, equable temperature rather than a very high one. Having taken this initial step, feed on plain Canary only as a staple, and give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape three times a week, and every second day the same quantity of crushed sponge cake with two drops of sherry and one drop of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and a few grains of inga sprinkled over it twice each week. Give a bit of banana two or three times a week, but no green food at present, and do not give cold baths until it is better. In the drinking water give twenty drops of glycerine and two of eucalyptus oil every second day for a week, and on the alternate days the following decoction instead of water to drink. Put a small teaspoonful of linseed, a piece of liquorice extract the size of a small hazel nut, and half a teaspoonful of honey into a teacup; make three-fourths full with boiling water, stir until liquorice is dissolved, cover over, and allow to stand until cold. Strain it, add ten drops chlorodyne and twenty of syrup of squills, stir together, and give in the drinker instead of water. Do not attempt to mate the bird until it is thoroughly recovered, and it would doubtless be much the best plan to mate it with only one hen this season so as to avoid overtaxing it.

Moults and Wheezes.

G. Boone.—It is the same old trouble. The bird's illness is undoubtedly due to draughts or extreme fluctuations of temperature. If kept in a kitchen or an ordinary living room, do not keep it too near the fire, where it will have the heat of the fire by day, and lose it at night. Also see it does not hang in a position where it will be exposed to the heat and fumes from a burning lamp, or gas jet in the evening. Finally, see it is perfectly free from draughts. Feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one summer rape as a staple. Twice a week give separately half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake in which two drops of cod liver oil emulsion have been well mixed every second day. When available quite free from frost, give a spray of green food three times a week; at other times a bit of banana, as a substitute. Keep cage regularly supplied with clean gritty sand. In the drinking water give twenty drops of Chemical Food every second day for a month, and on alternate days in the first and third weeks twenty drops of whiskey, ten each of glycerine and syrup of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together. In the second and fourth weeks, instead of the last named mixture give four drops of tincture of steel on the alternate days.

Preparing for Breeding.

S. Lewis.—The first thing is to reduce to a minimum the fluctuations of temperature to which you say the birds are subject. To effect this, if the birds are in a kitchen or ordinary living room keep them well away from the fire, but see that draughts are altogether avoided. Keep cages clean and well strewn with clean gritty sand. In addition to their present diet give the cock a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake twice a week, and add two drops of cod liver oil emulsion to it each time for the next fortnight, and twice a week give a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. Do not give more than half a teaspoonful of hemp at a time, and give all these extra items alternately one each day. For the hen give hemp only once each week, and twice a week give the sponge cake as advised for the cock, but add a sprinkling of maw seed to it, and give a pinch of inga twice a week. In the drinking water give both birds a pinch of Epsom salts for one day only, and after this give the cock two drops each of tincture of gentian and tincture of steel for a day or two, and give the hen twenty drops of whiskey, ten of syrup of equills, and two of eucalyptus oil every second day for a week, well shaken together, and on the alternate days give the steel and gentian as advised for the cock. Do not give green-food for a time, but substitute a bit of banana three times a week. See that seeds and water are above suspicion of impurity. If any doubt about the latter, boil it before use.

Yorkshire Unwell.

Perplexed.—See all your seeds and water are quite pure, the latter especially. It would be well to boil this for a week or two before using to make sure of it. Also see the bird and cage are not in a damp position. In addition to the staple diet give separately half a teaspoonful of hemp twice a week, and every second day for a month the same quantity of freshly-made egg food, or crushed sponge cake, in which well mix two drops of cod liver oil emulsion and two of port wine every time for a fortnight. Instead of green-food give a bit of banana three times a week. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, the same quantity of chlorate of potash, and twenty drops of whiskey for two consecutive days, and after this thirty drops of port wine and two of tincture of steel every second day for a week. On the alternate days give the decoction advised to "B.A.C." instead of plain water. Keep cage quite clean and well strewn with clean gritty sand.

Removing Birds.

Meteor.—1. As your birds are not to be removed until the end of May, according to your letter, there will be very little risk at all in the bare fact of removing them from their present position to a cold room. By that time the weather will be getting very temperate at night, and by removing them in a spell of nice bright weather they will scarcely feel the change provided the new quarters are free from damp. Your chief difficulty will be that by mating the birds at the usual time probably the whole of them will be engaged in some form of parental duties at the time. To try to avoid this, I think you would be well-advised, seeing that your kitchen is warm and equable, to mate up about the first week in March if the weather is at all suitable and the birds are ready, and when the hens have gone to nest remove the cocks and keep them separate until the removal has taken place. The hens will hatch and rear the first broods alone, and they should, with fair luck, be on the perches before the removal takes place, and most of them able to look after themselves. Should any of the old birds have young in the nest, or be sitting at the time, cover the cages over in the evening, make them quite dark, and remove with the least amount of rough and tumble work possible to the new quarters, and place at once in the position they are to occupy. 2. There is no reason why you should not allow breeding pairs to be opposite each other if space and number of birds render it necessary. You would find it advantageous to substitute box cages for your all-wire cages at the end of the present summer.

When the Trouble Begins.

Gaudy.—If you consistently follow the instructions as to feeding the young given in "Canary Breeding for Beginners," which you say you have, I fail to see where your ill-luck originates. I think you go off the track when the birds are somewhere about a month old, as the way you say you feed them after that time is certainly not what I advise. You should give unlimited good sound Canary only as a staple, with a little dry summer rape about three times a week. A small quantity of crushed sponge cake, or egg food should be given daily till the birds are about five weeks old, then give it every second day during the next week, and the week after drop it to twice a week, and add a little bread and milk twice a week. Crushed hemp should be stopped when the birds are a month old, and only a little slightly cracked hemp given about three times in the next fortnight, and afterwards it is best withdrawn altogether and reserved for special use. Do not give green-food for a week or two after they leave their parents, and when you do, give only what they will clear up in an hour or so. A small quantity of scalded rape may be given as a substitute from time to time. When the birds are a couple of months old the soft food should be entirely withdrawn, and a little extra dry rape given instead until the moult is about to commence. Give plenty of space for exercise, and clean gritty sand in cages. Should you still lose birds under this management write us at once, and give us full particulars as possible about treatment and where kept, etc.

Birds and Nests.

Novice.—Tbe hen tbat mopes no doubt is more susceptible to cold than the other inmate of the room, and is perhaps not the youngest of the crowd. Again, it may be in a position where it gets the best "airing" from the open window. You should either place her cage in a snug corner of this room, quite out of reach of draughts, or move it to a little warmer room. You do not say how you feed, but as your other birds do well on the same diet, I suppose tbat is not the cause of this hen's trouble. After attending to above points, give six drops each of syrup of rhubarb and dandelion juice in the water every alternate day for a week, and in the following week thirty drops of port wine and two of tincture of steel every second day. I would not go so far as to say that felt linings are absolutely necessary, but a lining of some kind is certainly most advisable, and helps to prevent many accidents to eggs with slovenly building hens. It is quite possible you may have succeeded without them, but that does not prove tbey are not very useful adjuncts. Sorry I do not know what Scotch nests are. Probably it is some local form of nesting receptacle or material. Nest bags are small bundles of proper materials for nest-making, which you hang in the cage for tbe hen to use when building the nest. Most dealers in birds' specialities now stock them.

Brevities.

Samples (Geo. G. Hay).—Both samples of Canary are good, being nice and clean, bright, and apparently well harvested, and both are quite sweet. No. I is certainly rather small, but is fairly plump, and of fair quality. No. 2 is of very fair size and a really good sample. This is by no means trashy. You may get rather larger seed, but, personally, I should not consider it worth the trouble of looking after so long as a sample of this kind was at hand at a fair price.

Runs from Beak (J. W. C.).—The feeding is not quite correct. Remedy this, and feed as advised to "G. Boone" in this issue, except that you give the hemp three times each week for a fortnight, and the sponge cake and oil only twice each week and add to this also two drops of sherry. At the end of a fortnight reduce the hemp to twice a week, and cease the addition to soft food. In the drinking water give ten drops of glycerine and two each of tincture of opium and eucalyptus oil, for two consecutive days. Give a bit of banana instead of green food for the present. Keep cage perfectly clean, well supplied with clean gritty sand, and see the bird is free from all draught.

Samples of Rape (Brown).—Both samples sent are of very fair quality, though No. 2 bas an admixture of other seeds which are not rape. No 1 is the best, and is a good sample, which should improve with keeping properly a few months as it appears now to be new. No. 2 is also quite good enough for general use in large aviaries, and the commoner types of Canaries, but will not be so good for your Rollers as the others.

Breeding in Aviary (F. Satchwell).—Your aviary will quite well accommodate five hens and the Goldfinch, but as I should consider this number rather too many for him, I would advise you to introduce a second Goldfinch cock, or a cock Siskin. With the latter you would have the chance of breeding two kinds of Mules instead of one. I think you could quite safely allow the Finches to fly loose with the Canaries in this aviary, as, in such a place, their mischievous propensities are almost in abeyance.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Hawfinch-Greenfinch Hybrid.

A. Bryden.—I see no reason why tbis Hybrid should not be produced; am having a shot at it myself. Have heard of fertile eggs being got. In my opinion it can be tried both ways of the sexes, for both species are very easy to get into rank breeding condition in a cage. Very steady hand-reared Hawfinches are what I myself use, good in colour, but small in size, though, of course, well (proportionately) built. A whopping big hen Greenfinch would be needed, of course. If you cannot try both ways, then for choice by all means take hen Hawfinch to cock Greenfinch, getting a very small hen, of course, and a very large cock bird. I recommend this course because the hand-reared hen Hawfinch is usually ready enough for marriage in captivity, and because my experience leads me to think successful egg-fertilisation much more likely to be achieved this way. The cock Greenfinch is a "desperate" breeder, when in the mood—few hens can resist his ardour, providing they themselves are in high condition. My cock Hawfinches have generally proved ready enough, but seem to "scare to death" whatever hens they endeavour to "feed" and try their amorous moves upon. It is largely a question of good fortune, however; some day I quite expect to hear that someone has been lucky enough to join Mr. and Mrs. Right together in wedlock, and has produced the Greenfinch-Hawfinch Hybrid. May it be yourself.

Wrong Internally.

Tynesider.—It seems obvious that stoppage of the bowels (constipation) was the cause of the death of the Bullfinches. Hard seed alone usually brings this about (or else inflammation and attendant diarrhœa), in the case of fresh-caught Bullies, which require plenty of green food. If only rape seedlings, and a little ripe fruit. The bird must have been very bad which turned blind. You should have given them to drink, until relieved, three tablespoonfuls of water in which had been well stirred half a small teaspoonful of Epsom salts, and a small teaspoonful of good brandy. I do not advise any hemp for Bullfinches, except as a very occasional treat, but have not known it harm either Bramblefinches or Greenfinches given in reasonable quantity. Try the Bramble with citrate of iron, as recommended "Social, Oldham" this week. By the way, the hot milk would only aggravate instead of relieving matters

In an Aviary.

Zenobia.—The chief troubles connected with greenhouses when used as aviaries are (1) the extremes of temperature such places are subject to, and (2) the pronounced moistness of the atmosphere if plants are kept in it. Both things adversely affect birds. There would certainly be a chance of a pair of Bullfinches breeding in such a place as you describe. The presence of the cock bird, however, would be extremely likely to upset your plans for breeding hybrids from the other hen Bullies. You could, of course, turn one or two pairs of other species in along with the Bullies—say, Goldies, Linnets, Siskins, Redpolls, and Greenfinches (have known the latter turn out quarrelsome, however). Or you could stick to half-a-dozen Bullie hens and six cock birds of whatever species you fancy (one of each).

Greenfinch and Canary Couple.

Brummer.—The breeding procedure with Canary hens is the same when muling as when breeding Canaries. You must read a good book dealing with the subject (try "Canary Breeding for Beginners"). If you will question me on any point about which you are in doubt, I shall be pleased to advise. The simplest way to mate muling couples is to use a cage known as the "double-breeder"—not less than 36 inches long (my own are 40 inches). This is divided into two compartments—a wired slide down the centre separating them. Put the hen Canary in one side, and the cock Finch in the other, the slide between. They can see each other, and so get "acquainted." When the Finch is in breeding condition be will be singing stoutly, and no doubt feeding the hen through the wires of the partition and "showing off." When the hen commences carrying nesting material about in her beak, then you can let them run together. Unfortunately you do not say what sort of breeding cage you have (if any). Your good-sized Cinnamon hen ought to make a capital mate for tbe Greenfinch. The feeding I dealt with last week in the reply given "Beginner."

A Red-backed Shrike.

Lanius.—A red-backed Shrike is an unusual bird to buy at this time of the year. In adult plumage (after the first moult) they are easy to sex. The dense black eye streak is sufficient to proclaim a bird a male, to say nothing of the pink-suffused breast (yellowish buff in the hen). These birds improve at their second moult, and I should say a three-year-old bird would be at its best for exhibition purposes, though possibly not a deal in front of a two-year-old specimen. For food they require a good insectivorous mixture of biscuit meal, ants' eggs, dried flies, and meat meal—game meal (without grit) or crushed "Melox" would answer admirably as the basis—moistened with grated raw carrot, etc. The proportions would be game meal, four parts; meat meal, ground silkworm pupae and dried flies, one part each; and as good a sprinkling of ants' eggs as you can afford to put in. The latter, of course, are a more or less expensive item. Finely scraped, or minced, raw lean beef or mutton must be regularly given, especially during tbe moult, also hard-boiled egg. Live ants' eggs are relished, likewise cockroaches ("black beetles"), mealworms, and most other insects (including bees), mice and tiny birds. In captivity the males make really excellent songsters, and will acquire the notes of many other birds. The young of both sexes will "record" (as in many other species), but the females soon discontinue.

Holly Bird Lime.

Bob.—Certainly holly bird-lime is the most esteemed, and expert catchers (especially of delicate species) swear by it. Well made, a tiny smear is astonishingly effective, and it can be used over and over again. I have never tried to make it, personally (only bird lime from linseed oil) and tbe only recipe I know is the following:—"Bird-lime is a viscid substance, prepared from holly bark, which should be boiled for ten or twelve hours, until the outer, or green, coat is entirely separated from the wood. The bark should then be placed in earthenware pots or jars, and covered over with some material, such as calico or brown paper, for a period of fourteen days, when it should be taken out, placed in a strong earthenware vessel, and pounded until formed into a rather tough paste. It should next be thoroughly washed to remove all impurities, and be placed for four or five days on the top of an oven or fireplace, where the heat is not too great—not over 70 deg., or it will be spoilt. During the heating process it should be skimmed frequently, and when sufficiently cooked should be put into a jar and kept in a cool place, free from damp." From this account the making of bird-lime would seem to be a formidable and tedious operation. Possibly some reader or other can give us a better recipe.

Brevities.

"Sickness" (Mrs. Grey).—It is not "sickness"; and there is nothing to be alarmed at. The "feeding" of the feet, or the cage wires, or the perch end, with regurgitated food is simply a sign that the birds doing so are in breeding condition, or very near to it. If the birds are given mates, they will soon be feeding them; providing, of course, the ladies are willing.

Finch not Singing (Bad Luck).—It is very odd that a cock Goldfinch should not sing a note, though in good health. Are you sure it is really a cock? I don't understand what you mean by "noise in the throat." Has it a cold, or is it a very old, worn-out bird? It certainly is only waste of time to keep him with a hen Canary. You should make a mixture of equal parts thistle, dandelion, niger, and sesame seeds, and give a small teaspoonful daily, in addition, of course, to his stock mixture, and this ought soon to bring any real cock into song. Yes; May is the month.

Pairing (Simplex).—You can safely leave them to choose their own mates. If two of the cock birds should fight seriously for possession of the same hen, remove one for a time, and cage him up, then try to induce him to take to another hen before returning to the aviary. Let them have a spell in the cage together. Probably you will have no trouble at all.

Skylarks Loose in Bowels (Social, Oldham).—The food sent looks a very fair sample, though it contains a lot of seed; and personally I should prefer to see some ground silkworm pupae added—say one part of the latter to five or six of the food. Get one ounce of crystals of citrate of iron from a chemist, and dissolve in about three tablespoonfuls of drinking water as much as will lie upon a sixpence. This will tone the birds up, and correct the looseness. The dose can be increased a little if necessary.

Goldfinch Ailing (Rex).—Siberian Goldfinches, of course, are just as susceptible to changes of temperature as are Britishers, and if you have taken him from a heated room into a cold room, that may well be the cause of the trouble. I advise you to try the citrate of iron recommended "Social, Oldham" this week. If the blaze goes right up to the hindermost edge of the eye (the under blaze), then you can be practically certain it is a cock.

Sex of Woodlarks (Woodlark).—It is hopeless for anyone not well acquainted with the species to attempt to determine whether any particular Woodlark is a cock or a hen. The sexes are practically alike. The hen is generally a better looking bird than the cock—deeper in colour, and more heavily (densely) marked (pencilled). Song is the best test of sex, and if your bird does not sing as the bright, sunny days come along, then it must be a hen, seeing the length of time you have had it.

About a Redpoll (A. J. Shipton).—I do not understand your question. Is this Redpoll a freak? A red spot on the head is common to all Redpolls. Many, too, are very light (almost white) on the body, especially the Mealy Redpolls—the Lesser Redpolls are usually browner. If your bird is quite white on the body, and with wings partly white and brown, he could be exhibited at shows which provide classes for rare-feathered birds; but not many do so. He will moult the same, I should say.

A Bare Patch (Roy Taylor).—Rub the bare patch gently twice daily (morning and evening) with a little sulphur ointment (from a chemist), discontinuing when you feel new quills beginning to push through.

Breeding with Mules (W.M.).—It would be a pure experiment, with the odds about 1,000 to 1 against your being successful. Of course, as an experiment, the attempt to breed from Linnet cock—Linnet Mule hen, and Canary cock—Linnet Mule hen would be interesting. That is all which can be said for it, I am afraid. Such matings have never yet been successful, so far as I know.

Sex of Song Thrush (H.C.D.).—The only means of sexing Song Thrushes lies in the song; cock and hen are alike in plumage. If your bird was caught only a fortnight ago, it may have been paired up, and possibly this is the cause of it "sulking and moping"; if so, your best plan is to give it its liberty, and get another in the autumn. It seems to be in a pretty bad way, and I doubt whether you will have any success with it.

Linnet Mule Breeding (J.L.).—No doubt you noticed that both your questions were fully answered in the replies given "Arthur Whyte" and "Enquirist" last week.

Waxwing's Flights Awry (H.B.T.).—They will not come right until the next moult. If any flights are sticking out so as to inconvenience the bird at all, they should be carefully extracted, taking care not to dislocate the wing—hold it firmly. When next moulting I advise you to well mix 9 or 10 drops of Parrish's Chemical Food with the bird's soft food, twice a week at first, and three times towards the conclusion.

Feeding Siskins (C. Howard).—Feed your Siskins on exactly the same lines as I recommend for Goldfinches, with this exception: do not give hemp seed in the stock seed mixture, but only once a week as a special treat. If given much hemp, or a great deal of maw, they soon get very fat and, of course, unhealthy.

Signs of Breeding (R.T.).—I expect the artificial heat (night and day) has had its effect on your birds, and that they are in breeding form, or very near it. It would appear so, judging from what you write. I should let them go ahead. If you do not do so, I expect the hens will soon commence to drop eggs about the cages. Hints on feeding were given at length in two replies last week. Dandelion seed is good; early dandelion from the fields is better.

Greenfinches (J. Carr).—Pleased to know your Blackbird has done so well on the food I recommended. I should certainly think the Greenfinches you have are cock and hen, especially if they agree well. Your feeding is fairly good. The method given "Beginner" last week is preferable, however. It will probably be well into April before they show signs of desiring to breed; it may even be May.

Hemp and Teazle (C.L.H.).—I really am not competent to say whether either hemp or teazle in excess would cause "softening of the liver" in a Goldfinch. Only a lengthy series of experiments, conducted by a skilled pathologist, could determine it. If practical experience has any value in your eyes, then I can assure you that my own Goldfinches get both hemp and teazle freely every day of their lives, and thrive splendidly. There is bad hemp seed, however, as well as good.

Six-Pointed (Jack).—If your bird is evenly marked on the eyes and wings, and has two dark feathers each side of its tail, with the rest of its body quite clear, then it most certainly is a six-pointed Mule—a very well marked one, too. Dark under-flue, which is invisible on the surface, does not count at all, though it might be a factor when judging Clear Mules. You would have a job if you set out to breed a marked Mule with clear under-flue, don't you think?

Show-cage for Goldfinch (W. Pugh).—A photograph of the latest pattern show-cage for Hardbills (that adopted by the N.B.B. and M.C.) was given in our issue of Oct. 24 last. The official size for a Goldfinch is 12 long by 10 high by 5 wide. In a cage without the top bowed, the height should be 11 in. The inside and wires should be enamelled a very dark green—almost black.

Linnet and Yellowhammer (A Reader).—I should hesitate to say that a Linnet and a Yellowhammer would be likely to produce Hybrids. To try them, of course, would be to undertake an interesting experiment. I do not think an accepted Linnet Yellowhammer Hybrid has yet been produced anywhere.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Cockatoo Bare of Feathers.

"Ragged."—Stop at once giving a bit of everything, also bread and milk, and note warning re slops in replies to other correspondents. Give a little boiled maize daily, dust same with flowers of sulphur (note other replies). For one day put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water (one ounce), and follow this by making the drinking water the colour of port wine with Parrish's Chemical Food. Lightly annoint any raw place with spermaceti ointment, and as soon as these are healed spray the bird two or three times a week with weak quassia solution. Diet in addition to the boiled maize. Seed mixture, Canary, oats, wheat, dari, hemp, maize, and sunflower seeds, well mix and always keep a supply in cage. Ripe fruit, nuts, and plain biscuits should also be given; this will give you a varied diet and the bird should thrive on same. Re Gouldian and other Finches, I can help you more satisfactorily if you will send me particulars of your cages, their size and temperature of bird room. In the meanwhile mix a little flowers of sulphur among their seeds; for one day give a little Dinneford's Magnesia—two parts water to 1 of the magnesia. Follow this by lightly colouring the drinking water with the Chemical Food. Examine cages for parasites, and if any of these are present steps must be taken to exterminate them.

Blossom Headed Parrakeets.

V. G. P.—It looks to me as if the hen was about to lay, but to make sure it is not slight indisposition, make the drinking water just saline with Epsom salts and withhold their bath for a day, so as to force them to the drinking water. Afterwards a course of Parrish's Chemical Food would be helpful. Neither of these remedies will harm the cock if he partakes of them. Add oats to your seed mixture, and later supply greenfood ad lib. At present give such ripe fruit as is convenient. Give also a few nuts; those sold as monkey nuts will answer well enough. Supply them with a suitably sized log or nest box with a concave bottom; such are frequently advertised in our columns. You would find "Popular Parrakeets," by Dr. Greene, 1/1 post free, from "C.B." office very useful.

Tanager Minus Tail, etc.

E. D. P.—Cage this bird up separately and stir into its daily supply of soft food one third of a teaspoonful of flowers of sulphur; give Parrish's Chemical Food for a month; and let it have as much fruit as it will eat and three or four mealworms daily. Your diet is very satisfactory, and the bird should improve with the sunny and warm weather, when very probably the feathers will be renewed. Keep it in your warmest room. I am of opinion it caught a chill while moulting, thus checking feather production. The above extras to its diet should improve its condition and strength, and a little later the plumage should be renewed. Supply a leaf of fresh lettuce occasionally. Please report progress in, say, a month hence.

Avadavat in Poor Plumage.

"Avadavat."—I should cage this bird up separately for a time, that is, till it has renewed its plumage, as once these birds get bald patches their companions act as if they had a special mission to keep them so. As grass in flower cannot be obtained at this season, tempt it with a little ripe apple, or in fact any kind of ripe fruit you can induce it to take will form a good substitute. Slightly damp its seed, not to make it wet or sticky, but still sufficient to make flowers of sulphur adhere to it when dusted over same; also keep a millet spray hanging in the cage which has been treated in the same way. When you catch the bird to separate it from its companions, rub a little clean vaseline on the bald patches, but avoid making the plumage greasy. For one day make the drinking water just saline with Epsom salts, and afterwards lightly colour it with Parrish's Chemical Food. Let it have a bath on all sunny genial days.

Lovebirds and Budgerigars.

Lovebirds.—Red-faced, Blue-wing and Madagascar Lovebirds can all be kept together, it is true, but this cannot be done within the compass of, say, a C.P. aviary cage. Providing the birds are not overcrowded, the above-named species can be safely kept out of doors with Budgerigars in the aviary, or loose in a bird-room. In the latter case a room 8 ft. square would accommodate one pair each of the above and two pairs of Budgerigars. In the aviary of suitable depth and height, say, 4 ft. by 6 ft., you could keep one pair of birds to each foot run of the frontage. In both cases, however, you must fix up double the number of nesting logs and husks that you have pairs of birds. If kept in an outdoor aviary, there must be attached thereto a weather-proof and well-lighted shelter to which they can retire during severe weather, the said shelter to be well furnished with logs and husks, and also branches for roosting purposes in the snuggest corners. As regards food and treatment, you will find this given in full in my booklet which you say you possess. The treatment given for Budgerigars will suffice for all the above; let them have such ripe fruit as they will eat.

Quaker Parrakeets, Etc.

"Grimston."—I cannot say the precise age at which Quakers breed, but most Parrakeets and Parrots mature slowly, and the age can be taken as from two to four years. I have known cases where two hens have built, laid, and sat steadily on infertile eggs, but I have never known males to build and occupy a nest. The probability is they are still immature, but as you have now had them a twelvemonth, should say you would meet with success this year. The only thing to hasten Rosellas, Redrumps, or any other Parrakeets in their breeding operations is to get them into finest condition. Sometimes birds from the same nest never make good breeders, but if you have true pairs, and they are in full adult plumage, you should have breeding results this year. However, there is considerable variableness as to the time individual pairs take to settle down to breeding in a new enclosure. Note: When procuring stock, unrelated pairs should always be secured. Seed mixture, ripe fruit, and a liberal supply of green-food, with chemical food in the drinking water if they are at all out of condition.

Name of a Parrot.

Ivanhoe.—You have a male Ring-necked Parrakeet. The value of these birds is variable. A freshly-imported one is worth from 7/6 to 10/-; one in good condition that has been over a few months, 15/- to 20/-. The value of talking specimens varies according to talent. It is a native of India. The temperature of any ordinary living room will be ample. Do not give tea, coffee or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. Diet: Seed mixture, Canary, white millet, oats, hemp, maize, wheat and sunflower seeds in about equal parts, well mix, and keep a supply continuously in cage. Ripe fruit, nuts and plain biscuits will suffice to vary the diet. A little of these should be given daily, as also should water; and a piece of cuttlefish should be kept in the cage and the tray covered with gritty sand. If you have been dieting differently to the above, do not make too sudden a change; bring this about gradually. If it has been used to having tea, coffee, etc., stop them at once and give it water well coloured with Parrish's Chemical Food in place of same. Keep it out of draught, and it should thrive and do well.

What Parrot is It?

Warrington.—There is little doubt you have a young African Grey; that is, so far as I can gather from your description. If such is the case, its value is anything from 25/- to 40/-, according to the condition of plumage and general appearance. This latter does not appear to me to be very satisfactory at present, so perhaps the lowest figure would represent its worth. I should give this bird about a tablespoonful of boiled maize daily for a time, at least; boil it till it is soft, drain away all water, and then well dust with flowers of sulphur. Boiled maize only keeps fresh one day, and the food vessel must be kept strictly clean. Also well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food for a few weeks. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps or any kind of animal food. The health of a bird that is continually dozey is always open to suspicion. If you repeat query with full details as to diet, etc., I shall then be able to form a definite opinion.

An Ailing Budgerigar.

A.N.E.—Can only suggest in this case, that your diet consist of canary, white and spray millet and oats, with greenfood, leaf of fresh lettuce, grass in flower, or at this season a piece of ripe apple; continue the chemical food for some time, and give the fluid magnesia every third day so long as the voidings do not become watery. If you have ordinary perches in your cage, take them away and substitute a couple of twiggy branches for them, one at each end of the cage; this may induce the bird to be more active, and climb about and chew them up, which will conduce to an improvement in its health. Lightly damp its seeds with water (not to make them wet), and then dust with flowers of sulphur.

CORRESPONDENCE.

NEW SOCIETY FOR CANNOCK.

SIR,—We held our opening meeting on February 9th, in the Mission Room, Heath Hayes, and the number of fanciers who turned up showed clearly the enthusiasm and keen interest they take in the Fancy generally. We nominated a secretary, a treasurer, and a committee to draw up rules, etc., for our next meeting, which will take place in March, when we hope to strengthen our forces by a good muster of members, and so start the Society soundly.

PROPOSED MIDLAND YORKSHIRE CANARY CLUB.

SIR,—When up at the Palace on Monday, Feb 8th, I met Mr. A. E. Bishop, of Worcester, who, like myself, is a keen Yorkshire fancier. He suggested to mo the idea of forming a specialist club for the Midlands, to be run on similar lines to the Southern Y.C.C. Considering the number of Yorkshire fanciers in the Midlands, a score at least of which I know personally, I do not think there should me much, if any, difficulty in making a start. I shall be pleased to hear either directly, or through the Press, from all fanciers interested, with a view to calling a meeting as early as possible. Why cannot we have something in our midst to help and inspire us, without having to go to Bradford or London?

CATS AND AVIARY BIRDS.

SIR,—Am I to be considered cruel? I am a lover of birds, and desire to keep some in an aviary in the garden. Unfortunately, my garden is the meeting place for other lovers of birds, viz., cats. I have thought of an arrangement which consists of a shelf covered with thin zinc fixed in front of the aviary, and connected to an electric sparking coil, so that should a cat jump up on the shelf it puts the coil in motion, and then if the cat touches the wire of the cage, or even puts her nose within a half-inch, of the wire, she is very forcibly informed that my birds, at any rate, are best not interfered with. I tried this plan some years ago on a cat of my own. She had a keen desire to get at a bird of mine, and when she got the shock she was simply terrified, and never went near the cage again. I thought of keeping a dog chained up near the aviary, but think the other plan best, as it is cheapest. My friends think that if I use this arrangement I shall be very cruel, but I do not agree with them, as it does no real harm to the cats.

UNPAID PRIZE MONEY AT DULWICH O.S. SHOW.

SIR.—Your correspondent, Mr. Foster, in your last issue, would, I think be well advised to, in plain English, mind his own business. If he has 5s. he is so anxious to get rid of, and will send it to me, care of CAGE BIRDS, I shall be happy to pay it into the Lord Mayor's Crippled Children's Fund for him. The Dulwich O.S. has already admitted assets sufficient to pay, and there seems no reason for Mr. Foster to be so rash with his money on their account. I have already stated it is not a question of the 5s. owing, but a question of principle, and for that reason I intend to enforce payment in some form or another. Mr. Foster is obviously a friend of the society, and possibly an exhibitor who has been paid; hence his disregard for any question of principle.

THE FANCY IN UDDINGSTON AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—I beg to thank all those exhibitors who helped to make our show the great success it was, and I specially thank Mr. McDonald, the secretary of the City of Glasgow Show, also Mr. Young, for their kindness to us in judging. I can assure them their awards pleased everyone. I must not forget your representative, Mr. Joliffe, for the pains he took to give a good report of our show—strange coincidence, Mr. Editor, that you should send a native of our village (as I learned Mr. Joliffe was) to report on our our first show. The show was well patronised by all classes, rich and poor, and the committee were delighted to see our Hon. President, Mr. Thos Prentice, and his good lady taking such an interest in the venture. I must say that Mr. Prentice is a great admirer of birds. He has a splendid outside aviary, built and fitted up in the latest style, and teeming with all kinds of birds. It is a treat to see them. One Bullfinch cock he has had for some time, which will feed from his hand with the greatest confidence, and perch on his shoulder during his walk round the aviary. Being a business man, Mr. Prentice has very little time for exhibiting his birds, which could hold their own at any show. We are all very proud to have such a gentleman helping us along with our Society. I would just like to mention that a few of the drinkers were taken off the cages at our show, not that it was any loss to the exhibitors, as we supplied new ones in their place. But I think it is the duty of any bird lover who should witness such a mean theft to report same at once to the official in charge, and point out the offender, whether he be a member of the Society or not. If fanciers reported such cases, we would read less of stolen birds and birds being poisonod. etc. I advocate that the handling of cages should not be allowed, except during judging. I noticed that the Glasgow and West of Scotland Show had a rule in their catalogue prohibiting the handling of show cages, which I have no doubt would help to suppress the evil. We intend next season to hold an open show, and I hope exhibitors will look ovor any faults or failures at this, for we will do our best to make everything a great deal better next year.

Jno. KILPATRICK, President.

THE ELUSIVE BULLFINCH HYBRID.

SIR,—I have been much interested in the recent article by Mr. R. James Cook on "The Elusive Bullfinch Hybrid." I especially noted the cause of the death of his Greenie-Bullio Hybrid. Only the other week I went with a friend to a veterinary surgeon to take a Greenie-Bullie, which he had bred, and which was suffering from tho samo complaint as Mr. Cook's bird, a swelling under the oyo. This the surgeon lanced with a needlo, which let out a lot of matter, and the bird now seems to be making rapid recovery. Could any Hybrid breeders say if any of thoir Greenie-Bullies have suffered from similar trouble? I sincerely hope Mr. Cook will be successful in breeding a good Hybrid in the near futuro.

CAGE CLASSES AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW.

SIR,—If imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, then indeed I must feol flattered, as several of the latest pattern cages I have made during the season have been copied to a brad, as it were. Of course, in all competitions of this sort there is bound to be some grumbling done. I do not grumble, as one cannot draw the line at being followed; any successful man in business must oxpect it. But what I do draw the line at is being robbed for the purpose of this imitation. The food and water vessels in the Chough Show cage exhibited by me in Class 146, were stolen by some low-down fellow, who could not be man enough to buy the exhibit to get at the exact pattern of the fittings, so resorted to the mean trick of stealing them. I can, at any time, take a beating like a man, but I bar being robbed for the purpose of being so exactly imitated. I am making inquiries, and I am within a thousand miles of the stolen articles, and if I can fix the actual person taking the things, I shall certainly charge him with the theft.

TYPE OF THE PRESENT-DAY WINNING NORWICH PLAINHEAD.

SIR,—I am glad to learn that Mr. Bertie is desirous that this question be "thrashed out thoroughly." My Norwich win, but they are not browy, and are particularly clean cut behind. One is a clear yellow unflighted, and out of twelve shows it has taken two firsts, seven seconds, and one third. Its principal fault is that it is a little too narrow in head, due partly to being very short in feather, but yet it has won under eight different judges. I send those out to shows that come nearest to the type illustrated in the 1908 annual report of the Norwich Plainhead Club. The others stay at home, as it is no use a man trying to persuade all the Fancy that his type is "the" type, and ought to win. I do not think Mr. Bertie means to suggest by his letter that the winning yellows at the Crystal Palace are of the "Bertie type." But if so, why did he not send some to the show for the benefit of the Fancy? No judge dare pass such birds. My excuse for not giving my name is that I do not wish anyone to say that I wanted to secure a cheap advertisement, although I have still a largo number of birds to dispose of.

SIR,—As a lover of the Norwich Canary, allow me to express my appreciation of Mr. Bertio in writing in defenco of the Norwich Plainhead. Yes, "Exhibitor," let us have the Bertie model, the Norwich Plainhead type; these are the birds that should win in Norwich classes, not those long-sided birds, with nothing else but size to recommend them. I am pleased Mr. B. has seen those birds to which "Exhibitor" referred, and admits they are three of the best he has ever seen at one show. Then "Exhibitor" accuses Mr. B. of banging the drum. I, with scores of others, hope he will keep on banging until he knocks something out of it, if only those long-sided, no-type nondescripts called "Norwich."

A NEW SOCIETY FOR BOSTON, U.S.A.

SIR,—At a meeting held on Jan. 24th, of Boston fanciers, it was decided to form a cage bird association, to be known as the New England Cago Bird Association. As the name indicates, membership of this Association is open to any resident of the New England States. Doubtless there are many readers of your paper living within this territory, who are unknown to us, and we desiro to extend to them a hearty invitation to join the new society.

IS IT CRUEL TO KEEP BRITISHERS IN CAPTIVITY?

SIR,—I read in this week's issue of CAGE BIRDS your correspondent, Mr. E. R. Despard's remarks on the above subject, and I am of the same opinion myself, that it is not cruel to keep birds in cages, providing theso cages are large and roomy. Given good attention, fresh water and seed daily, green food whenever obtainable (and birds kept like this are undoubtedly happy), in a very short time they forget their "freedom," and they will live their span of life. But to keep them in those so-called back cages, where the little prisoners have barely room to turn, I maintain is cruel.

G. MARGARITIS.

THE CAGE BIRD UNION.

SIR,—I thank you for the full report of the delegates' annual meeting. A discrepancy appears therein in reference to tho Medals Competition. Your report states that presumably tho medals would be awarded according to my reading of the rules of the competition. A resolution, however, was moved by Mr. Hall, seconded by Mr. Moore, and carried, that only those exhibitors who had chosen the four shows allowed to count for points should compete for the medal. Mr. Raynes' (the new Secretary) address is 9, Richmond Road, Chorlton-cum-Hardy, near Manchester, and all communications on Cage Bird Union matters should now be addressed to him. I should like to take this opportunity of thanking all who have corresponded with mo for the courtesy which they have shown, even though it has been my duty to write unpleasantly to some of them; and especially would I tender my thanks to the Council, and to the many who have written in appreciation of the way I have carried out the duties of secretary.

GEO. W. F. LYTHGOE.

A NEW SOCIETY FOR COWDENBEATH AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—A meeting of cago bird fanciers was held in Forrest Hall on Feb. 13th, for the purpose of forming a society to encourage and assist young fanciers. Mr. D. Duncan was asked to take the chair, which he did, and in his opening remarks said that thore was great need for a society in our town. He had received the names of twenty fanciers who were unablo to be present, but who were anxious that such a society should bo formed. On the motion of Mr. Jas. Simpson, seconded by Mr. James Baxter, it was unanimously agreed to form a society, to be called the Cowdenbeath and District Cage Bird Association. It was agreed, too, that the annual subscription be 2s. 6d. per member. Mr. James Simpson was appointed secretary and treasurer (pro tem.), his address being 34, Park Avenue, and all who would like to join are requested to forward their names to him. A general meeting of the society will be held in Forrest Hall, on Saturday, Feb. 27th, at 7 o'clock, when it is hoped all who can will endeavour to be present.

CINNAMON BORDER FANCIES AND THEIR COLOUR.

SIR,—On looking through your report of the Crystal Palace Show I was rather surprised at the remarks mado by your reporter re the colour of Cinnamon Borders. He says that Cinnamon is Cinnamon, not a washed-out greenish drab. He also sang tho praises of the Cinnamon Borders in tho days that are gone. It was especially a surprise to mo to read these latter remarks, as, in my opinion, it is not many years since the Cinnamon Border first came into existence. It is only some four years ago since I saw a Self Cinnamon cock, and I think that for colour those of to-day are as good, if not superior in colour, as those of four years ago, and as for type, there is no disputing the fact that we are far ahead. I admit there are a lot of different shades of Cinnamon Borders on the show bench just now, and for anyone who is thinking of taking up the variety it will no doubt be a puzzle for them to know what is the right shade, as some judges go in for the pale colour that is produced from the green, hence the pale greenish-drab spoken of by your reporter. Others want the rich chocolate shade favoured by your reporter, as the Cinnamon Border has come to stay, and is one of the most, if not the most, fascinating varieties of the wee gems. I think it is time we had an understanding as to what is the right tone of Cinnamon. I will conclude by saying that we have Cinnamon Borders today that for colour could hardly be improved upon, unless by tho aid of colour food, and if any of the other types of Cinnamon Canaries were moulted out a natural colour, the Border would comparo very favourably with them as regards colour. In case some may think I am wanting a cheap advertisement I will sign myself

CINNAMON BORDER.

A CURIOUS DEVICE FOR SEXING BIRDS.

SIR,—I feel sure you will have a smile at the contents of this. First, however, I am pleased to inform you that since I last wrote, in October, I have introduced 12 new subscribers to what I consider the best paper of its kind in print. I have taken CAGE BIRDS "from the nest" (first) with others of its kind, but dropped them long ago for CAGE BIRDS. Now, Sir, ono of my friends came to my house the other night in great excitement. I was taking things easy (sitting in my chair reading your paper). After the usual invitation to "come reight in and let's know it" (I could see he had something of importance to disclose), he started, "I've summat important for thee, Frank, lad, wat we ha been wantin wat don't no mich. Its how tho con tell cocks from hens without blowin feethers abart as tho does. Tho gets a piece of cotten two feet lang, an a needle, an a heaf doller, an job's done." "What job's done?" said I. "Look hear," said he, "gie me ta needle, an cotten an I'll fend brass, an tho'll fend burd." So off I went upstairs for a couple of birds (meanwhile my friend had threaded the needlo and laid the coin on the table). "Now then, said he, "tho hods burd e one hond an cotten e tothe, wi needlo flootin abaat 1-32in. above coin, an ef needle tuns rand an rand, it's hen, but ef it goos crossways, weel it's cock." I tried not to laugh, but I could not help it (in fact I laughed till tears came). "Try it fore tho laughs; then tho'l no laugh," said my friend. Well, to satisfy him I took a bird from the cago (a young hen), held it in one hand and the cotton in the other, and behold, the needle began to turn steadily round and round. "See," exclaimed my friend in great excitement, "thet's then" "Quite right," said I, "don't get excited." Well, I put the bird back in the cage, then took the other (a young cock) from the cage, and holding it in one hand, held the cotton in the other, as above. Well, the needle began to turn round and round as before. "Thet's a hen," said my friend. I tried hard to convince him it was a cock, but he would not believe it. I felt right for a bit of fun. "Perhaps I have made a mistake," said I. "Tha has thet," said he, "tha's getten same burd twice." So I slipped the bird back into the cage, and, with my back to my friend, I got hold of our baby's India-rubber doll and held it as though it were a bird, then slowly made the needle move backwards and forwards. "Thet's cock," said my friend, more excited than ever. "I believe it," said I. "Tho mon write to CAGE BIRDS about this descovery," said he. I promised him I would. Tho needle still went swinging backwards and forwards. When I thought he was satisfied (and had grown about 6 inches), I let him see the doll! I am pleased my wife and children were there, or I believe he would have made use of some foreign word. He told me, had he known, he would have saved 6d. in car fare. But he and I have had many a laugh over it since, as we work together, and if my friend cannot get the article he is fitting just to fit (he is a fitter), I have only to tell him to get a needle, a piece of cotton, and a half-dollar, and it reminds us both of the pleasant hour we spent trying to find a new discovery for the paper we think so much of, good old CAGE BIRDS.

ALLEGED EXHIBITING OF JUDGE'S BIRDS AT ARBROATH SHOW.

SIR,—There's an old joker lives not a 100 miles from Arbroath, who has accused me of the loan of the judges' birds to show in my name at the late Arbroath show. I took the thing for a joke. Since then, however, the same old chap has repeated his statement, and believes it to be correct. I asked him to wait till the show season was over, and I would make a public denial through your valuable paper, and the time has now arrived. I never had anything to do with such tactics—never showed any other judge's birds, nor judged my own birds. I may also state I have had the managing of Arbroath show during the time of judging for this past 20 years, and such tactics as giving the judge any hint as to my own birds, etc., I have never resorted to. I have always acted from a sporting point of view. I may say the sporting compliment was not applied to my birds the show previous to the last one, when I had 14 birds poisoned. "Poisoned birds at show," is getting so very common, that I don't care whether I exhibit or not; but I may tell the party who did the poisoning that I was born among the canaries 52 years ago, and all the poisoning he can do will not prevent me from dying among them, and I hope to live to win my old-age pension. Now, my old friend, I will go back to "exhibiting the judges' birds." So far as I know, there was no unfair play in the Scotch fancy section, and I am not hurt by what you have said about me. I heard there was some hard knocking at Montrose show over this exhibiting of judges' birds. That may be true, but I think it's a case for the Cage Bird Union to take up. If any fancier can give me any information regarding the above-mentioned statement, I shall be pleased to bring it up at the first meeting of the society, and shall see that same is not made again

JAMES STRACHAN.

THE ALLEGED STAINED LINNET AT BRISTOL F.A. SHOW.

SIR,—In reply to your correspondent "Unionite," I would like to see him man enough to sign his own name to whatever he writes, and not hide it under a nom de plume. The reason I condemn the C.B.U. is because it condemns me without first giving me a fair hearing in person. I think I may go further and suggest that your correspondent is probably trying to protect the person who sold the Linnet to me; as in reading between the lines and summing the whole up, written under a nom de plume, it is pretty clear to me that such is the case. However, he may rest assured that I shouldn't ask his advice before taking the action I intend to take, or in any way be guided by his letter. As to the sarcasm at the end, I take no notice of that, but am exceedingly sorry for the writer that he does not know better. In reply to Mr. Williams, I would like to ask him if there is not equally as much excuse for my not noticing the bird was stained as there is for the well-known judges and specialists who judged this bird at previous big shows? These gentlemen passed the bird and awarded it honours, and I think it is quite likely that your correspondent has also seen the bird and not noticed it was faked. I can honestly say, and so can a fancier who was present when it came from the man I bought it off, that we could notice no difference after the alleged staining matter had been removed. I don't suggest it was not stained, for I can't say; I have to abide by Mr. House's decision that such was the case. I don't complain one little bit being pulled up if it was stained, it is quite right it should be, but why punish me any more than the one that showed it before I had it? What I complain about more than anything else is the fact that the C.B.U. do not go into these cases as they should do, and sift them from the bottom; they go haphazard and condemn a man before giving him an interview to explain matters if he desires to do so. In this case, not being the stainer or faker, I consider it right and proper, as a body selected to administer justice, that it should at all times give the offender the chance of making his defence. I wrote four pages of paper to Mr. Pope, and I asked that I might attend a meeting of the C.B.U. to explain the matter and bring railway company receipts, etc. But, no; I was given to understand it would not be allowed; they (the committee) would only accept the case on paper. I think that the bulk of your readers will admit that five minutes' explanation is far better than twenty pages of written testimony. It is on this count particularly that I have a sore feeling against the C.B.U. It is a certain fact that every fancier who has heard the facts of the case right through, admit it to be a very hard case, and I only hope that your correspondents will not be treated at any time in a like manner. In reply to Mr. Cocks (his name is fairly familiar to me), with regard to the bird being eligible for Leicester Show, I thought I clearly explained that I had entered another Linnet and Bunting, but having bought these, I sent them instead. With regard to the deposit with the C.B.U., I was quite willing to comply if I had been given the chance of a hearing before the delegates or committee, but I hadn't the time to write about 20 pages of manuscript, which would have been necessary to have got the witnesses' evidence and my own together. With regard to the latter part of Mr. Cocks' letter, I thank him for his sympathy, though apparently fragile, which would not be the case, I am sure, if he had the facts properly laid before him by verbal explanation. The C.B.U. is doubtless a necessary institution, but it needs to have a different rule in the case of suspension, at least, and it is on this count that I speak as I do of its work. What chance has a young beginner got if he is to be treated in this way? He buys a bird to-day, believing it to be a genuine specimen and is condemned first time out for staining or showing a stained bird. He gets no sympathy or hearing from the C.B.U.; he has been pulled up for showing a faked specimen, and must be suspended because the C.B.U. says so, and I am sure he could not tell a stained Linnet if such well-known judges, that have awarded honours to the bird now under discussion, could not do so. I say this: give every man a chance of coming on the carpet to explain his case and defend himself, and do not allow the real offenders to keep on.

A SUGGESTED NEW CLASS FOR HYBRIDS.

SIR,—I should like to make a suggestion to the Crystal Palace Show management. Could not a class be provided at the next Palace Show for Mules and Hybrids whose parentage has been doubted or disputed at any previous shows? The prize-money to be guaranteed by the C.B. Union, or by voluntary subscriptions (I should be willing to give my mite towards same); no entrance fee to be charged. A plain statement as to where shown, and parentage to be made. I think this would be a most interesting class. For instance, if a class of this description had been given this year, that wonder of all wonders, the Yellowhammer-Siskin Hybrid, might have been entered. What an attraction it would have been. All our most able judges could have seen it, and discussed its merits

A NEW SOCIETY FOR BANNOCKBURN AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—A well-attended meeting of fanciers and those interested in cage birds took place on February 6th, in the station bar, for the purpose of considering the advisability of introducing a cage bird society into Bannockburn. It was ultimately agreed that the objects of such a Society are highly desirable, and straightaway certain preliminary business towards its formation was commenced. It was unanimously decided that all fanciers be eligible for membership who reside within a radius of twenty miles. This new and up-to-date Society gives a cordial invitation to all interested in the advancement of the interesting hobby. It was resolved that the yearly subscription be 3s., and that we close our membership on the first Saturday in July. Judging by the attendance at the meeting, and the enthusiasm displayed by the assembly, this Society promises to be one of the finest in the district.

STOCKSBRIDGE AND DISTRICT CAGE BIRD SOCIETY.

SIR,—The meeting of cage bird fanciers of Stocksbridge, Deepcar, and district, held in the National Schools on February 13th was well attended. It was unanimously decided to form the above-named Society. Eighteen fanciers were enrolled as members, and we have excellent grounds for assuming that at our next meeting, to be held on March 6th, our membership will be increased to at least 26. The Rev. W. C. Edgington, M.A., was elected president, Mr. A. Moxon and Mr. Jos. Evans (the well known Crest breeder) were elected vice-presidents. The contributions are to be 4s. per year, and the meetings are to be held on the first Saturday in the month at 7.30 p.m., at the Stocksbridge National Schools. We are arranging a splendid list of lectures, table shows, washing and judging competitions, etc., so fanciers and intending members in the district "might go further and fare worse." We shall be pleased to give all information to intending members.

HARRY E. WILKINSON (Hon. Sec.),
Wood Willows, Stocksbridge, near Sheffield.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

AFTER a long run the show season has now come to an end; that is, so far as the Yorkshire Union is concerned. Twenty weeks is a long time, very trying for both the birds and their owners. The birds have shown it by their washed-out appearance about the neck, and if they only knew they were likely to have a few weeks' rest, they would probably flap their wings for joy.

WAKEFIELD closed the season on Saturday last, February 13th, and had a fairly good show. They think the balance-sheet will be just a little on the "good" side, and they well deserve it. They have worked hard, and the result will probably do a great lot towards the securing of a further increase in membership. The competition was very keen. For the "Shackleton Trophy" only three points separated the two top scorers, and each had a good team down, but Messrs. Ogden Bros., the runners up, could only knock one point out of the leader, Mr. W. H. Shackleton, thus leaving him a lead of two points. For CAGE BIRDS specials only two points separated 2nd and 3rd, and here again the runner-up scored one point more, thus leaving the narrow margin of one point between the 2nd and 3rd, Messrs. Drake and Son and Shaw Bros.

BRITISH birls were strong, and must have given the judge a lot of trouble; 75 birds in five classes—a grand finish for the competition of the Y.C.B.B. and M.C. The winner in the variety class came in for a lot of praise and admiration—a splendid specimen of the Waxwing, shown in grand form, its feathering being superb.

THE Open Norwich Plainhead Club is already making headway in securing prizes for next season's competition. They have been fortunate enough to be presented with a £5 5s. cup by P. Illingworth, Esq., M.P. This is already bought, and will probably be on view at the annual social on March 6th, just to try and get a few more converts (and members) to the "thick" variety. The season's working has been very successful, and a good balance in hand is expected at the end of the financial year. By the way this society (the O.N.P.C.) hold their annual general meeting on Saturday, March 6 h, at 3 p.m. This will enable members to attend their meeting, stay to dinner, and be in good time for the distribution of prizes, and the social. The dinner will be served at 4.30 p.m. sharp, to allow the room to be cleared in readiness for the social gathering.

HAVE been trying this week-end to get at the value of the prizes, in cash and kind, to be presented at this gathering, and it must be approaching, if not quite, £200. Should any fancier require to see something to put a little heart into him for the breeding season, let him just come and see them; it will make him dream of future winners and winnings.

ILLUSTRATED IDEAS

Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird-keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird-room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

No. 284.
EASILY MADE HEAD HOLES.

Sent by J. Islip, 7, Finsbury Avenue, Sneinton Dale, Nottingham.

It is in the making of the head-holes that those who try to make their own cage fronts most often fail. I enclose a sketch of easily made head-holes, which consists simply of a bit of the punched-bar, cut to the length required. The wires of the cage can be soldered to the punch-bar. But for those who cannot use a soldering iron, flatten the wire at one end, and hammer it in one of the holes in the bar. I think the accompanying sketch will explain.—J. ISLIP.

No. 285.
A FRAME TO HELP CAGE FRONT MAKERS.

Sent by Jas. Vickers, Union Street, Wigton, Sunderland.

I herewith send a sketch of a light frame for holding cage fronts in position when being soldered. The drawing is a corner section of frame, and will be sufficient to enable the fancier to grasp the idea. The salient features are: instant adjustment for large or small fronts by sliding in any desired direction. The notches hold the cross-bars in position to any required width.—J. VICKERS.

THE YOUNG NATURALIST.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given each week for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be children under sixteen years of age, and must state from where stories are taken.

Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

Escaped Parrot at Sea.

Capt. Moseley, of the Union Castle S.S. Durham Castle, was once bringing home from South Africa, a Parrot for a friend of his. One day when the ship was in mid-ocean, Polly escaped. The steamer was stopped and a small boat was lowered to attempt to recapture the miscreant, who was now floundering about in the water. After a long chase Polly was once more a captive, and caused much amusement and laughter when restored to her owner by remarking, "What a naughty, naughty Parrot to fly away."—Story told by the captain, and sent by C. B. V. Hodgson (aged 15), Heathfield, Morden, Surrey.

*A Moveable Nest.

Last year a Swallow built its nest in the cowl of one of our chimneys, and brought up its young brood successfully. The cowl, of course, swung round with its back to the wind, whichever way the wind blew, so that the young birds were always sheltered. The chimney is in connection with a stove that has a fire in only during the winter. This is one of the many instances of the wonderful instinct of birds in providing for the well-being of their young.—Cutting sent by Mary Crompton (age 11), 25, Moor Street, Ormskirk.

*The Little Robin's Return.

Once a gentleman caught a young Robin, which in a short time became very tame. After some time the bird was lost and was searched for, but he could not be found. One day, however, while the gentleman was walking in the garden he saw a Robin very much like his own hopping about among four others. He went to the house and got some crumbs and cried "Robie." The bird appeared to recognise the name and perched on his finger and was instantly secured.—Sent by S. McKnight (age 15), 41, North Hamilton Street, Kilmarnock, N.B.

An Ailing Grey.

H.H.—Whenever the eye trouble occurs, bathe same with a weak zinc and rose-water solution, which any chemist will supply you with. For one day put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in the drinking water (about one ounce) and repeat this as may be necessary to keep the bowels moving freely, but the voidings must not be allowed to become watery. On other days, that is when not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food, and continue treatment till the bird is fairly fit again. For a time give about a tablespoonful of boiled maize daily—boil till soft, drain off all water, and dust with flowers of sulphur before giving to the bird. Diet: Get equal parts Canary seed, oats, wheat, dari, hemp and sunflower seed, well mix and keep a supply continuously in cage; also supply ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuits, and a little boiled potato (unseasoned). Grit and cuttlefish must also be regularly supplied. Do not give tea, coffee or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food. The bird is in a very debilitated condition, and I fear its recovery can only be gradual. Please report progress a few weeks hence.

Grey Parrot Unwell.

B.H.—Do not give any more milk, but well colour the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food. Occasionally during the day let it have a few sips of weak brandy and water (chilled). Still supply the seed mixture, also any ripe fruit it will take; the dates also can be given. The following are all wholesome, and can be given with safety: Nuts in variety, plain biscuit, and a little boiled potato (unseasoned). For a time at any rate, give boiled maize. Boil till soft, drain off all water, and then well dust with flowers of sulphur. Note: The boiled maize only keeps fresh one day, and the food vessel must be kept strictly clean. Twice a week give it a few sips of the following: Dinneford's magnesia and water, equal parts of each; the bird can be permitted to take half a tablespoonful of it. As the bird occasionally falls from the perch, it would be as well to put a little peat moss litter (from any corn chandler or from our advertisers), under the perch, and mix a little grit among its seeds. The case has been let run on for so long, that I fear improvement can be but slow, at least, I fear recovery is rather doubtful, but I have brought worse cases through, and hope there will soon be an improvement in your bird.

Brevities.

Concerning a Woodpecker (J.S.).—I will give you a reply in our next issue. Your query only came into my hands just as we were going to Press.

What Species? (Taxey).—It is a difficult task to name a bird from a written description; if you would send the skin on to me before you set it up, it would simplify matters much, or if this is not possible, can you inform me what country it came from? It read like a Whydah at first, but the colours of its plumage do not correspond with any known species of Whydah. I will keep your query before me, and try to give you a more satisfactory answer next week.

Identification (R.L.W.).—I much regret I am still unable to identify your bird. It appears to be some small species of Parrot, and yet again in some points this appears from your sketch doubtful. Will you kindly inform me if it has a true Parrot beak, and if its toes are arranged two to the front and two to the rear? Also please give me the approximate length from tip of beak to end of tail, and also the length of beak? If it has its toes arranged like a Finch, then add a few mealworms to your diet.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

Competition (M.A., Fenny Stratford).—Glad to hear of your success. We are not this season running a competition on the lines you mention.

Our Thanks to F. Wraight, W.S., Anon, for cuttings, photos, etc.

Chemical Food (W. White).—Parrish's chemical food is sold by all chemists. You should have no difficulty whatever in getting it in Belfast.

The Palace Show (Pearson).—Pleased to hear you enjoyed your visit to the Palace. The suggestions you make solely concern the management, and should be sent direct to Mr. Ramsden, who will no doubt be pleased to adopt any which he thinks of benefit.

A Seed Mill (Inexperienced).—If you will comply with Rule 8, under "Questions and Answers," we will write the advertiser (send his name and address) on your behalf. Your only other remedy lies through the County Court. Use our deposit system in future.

Dutch Frills (C. Clucas).—Dutch Frills are a variety of Canary fashionable on the Continent, especially in France. A drawing of one appeared in our issue of November 28th last (a double number, post free, 3d.).

A Device (B. Clarke).—We have published your letter in the correspondence columns, and possibly some reader or other will give an opinion upon it.

Writer's Identity (Jas. Devins).—It is contrary to journalistic procedure to reveal the identity of persons using the correspondence columns, if they think well to conceal it. It is a rule which is never broken.

A Missing Yorkshire.

One bird, we hear, is missing, a clear yellow Yorkshire, belonging to Messrs. Smith and Sellars (No. 233, Class 16). Anyone having received same in error is requested to communicate with Mr. Ramsden, the show manager, at once; or to send it along to the owners, at 3, Trafford Street, Littleborough, near Rochdale.

As Mementos.

Bird lovers desirous of having by them a memento of the Great Jubilee Show can obtain from Messrs. Russell, photographers, The Studio, Crystal Palace, London, a splendid photograph of the judges' luncheon (price 2s. 6d.), or an assortment of six smaller photographs taken in the showroom (price 1s. 6d.).

Gone Astray

It has now come to light that the cages of Mr. Pass (Hucknall Torkard), were delivered in time for the show, but were dumped outside the show enclosure by the railway company, and left there. One was, it appears, placed amongst Messrs. Sisson's cases, and not discovered till Friday night. The other was found in a corridor and moved by a Palace employee to the goods' yard, he thinking it was an empty. It was certainly most unfortunate for Mr. Pass; and somewhat mysterious.

ECHOES FROM THE JUBILEE PALACE SHOW.

The Prize Money.

Mr. Ramsden informs us that he has commenced to pay out the prize-money, and is taking the exhibitors (as usual) in alphabetical order. He hopes to have got through tho list by this week-end.

Incognito.

Mr. Ramsden writes: "I have received many letters asking me to give the names of the purchasers of certain birds, but I must decline the information, as the majority of the buyers strongly object to their names being divulged.

Queer Fowl.

In noticing the winnings of local competitors at the Palace, a Tunbridge Wells journal states that a certain fancier took "third prize in the Linnet class (any variety Canary or Fowl except Norwich and Yorkshire)." Those printers again!

A Good Win in Lizards.

In our report of the Broken-cap Silver Lizard Class, the name of the winner was unfortunately omitted. It was Mr. John Dewsnap (Glossop), who accomplished the feat of scoring 1st, 2nd, 3rd, v.h.c, and two specials, thus following up his achievement (1st and 4th) in the Broken-cap Golds.

A Happy Result.

Owing to a blot of ink on the entry form the owner of the winning Yellowhammer (Mr. J. Goode, Nottingham), was sent a ticket for class 110 instead of 116, but this was at once put right—result, first prize for the bird. Unfortunately, however, Mr. Goode's name could not be put into the catalogue.

A Rush for Medals.

A rush for medals (in lieu of prize-money) was rather anticipated by the management. The surprising number of 116 prize-winners have elected to take them. We are requested to state that the medals have to be specially made, and that they will be sent out at the earliest possible moment.

Ups and Downs.

On the occasion of the last Horticultural Hall Show we commented favourably on a Twite-Canary Mule, shown by Mr. E. J. Lamb, which the judge there had left unnoticed. At the Palace Show this same bird was thought worthy of third prize in a very strong mixed class of Siskin, Redpoll, and Twite Mules.

Homeward Bound.

We learn on inquiry that no fewer than 538 cases were packed and despatched from the showroom between 4 and 10 p.m. on the closing day (Tuesday). About a dozen complaints have reached the management of gross delay of packages on the railway when homeward bound. They regret this, and are taking the matter up with the companies concerned.

Its Ghost?

One well-known daily paper published a lengthy account of the show, and in the course of it remarked: "There is a remarkably good collection in the foreign division. Mr. C. T. Maxwell, London, exhibited his beautiful Mexican Trogan, stated to be the only kind in existence, with a notcher tail, which gained distinction at the recent show in Westminster, where it was shown for the first time; also his King Bird of Paradise, valued in the catalogue at £1,000." The curious part of it is that the Trogan, as we mentioned last week, died some time before the Palace Show was held.

Tired But Happy Visitors.

This great exhibition, writes a "Sheffield Blade," fairly magnetised the Fancy. From north, south, east, and west came enthusiasts to feast on the excellent fare provided, for both one's mind and eyes. The majority, we might venture to say, all journeyed to Sydenham with high expectations, and these were realised to the fullest extent. It was a sight on the Saturday evening to see the fanciers, tired but happy, wending their way to the stations, in readiness for embarking on their homeward journey. At midnight, St. Pancras was besieged with fanciers, thinking of "Home, sweet home." Once in the train and the land of nod, I have no doubt many had wonderful dreams of what they were going to breed—something that could "lick creation." What disappointment when awakened by "All tickets ready!"

A Complaint about Cages.

Several complaints have reached us that certain cage-makers have refused to complete orders for cages similar to those they secured awards with at the show. On referring the matter to Mr. Ramsden, he replies that they are bound to execute reasonable orders (vide the rules of competition) at the same prices, and that if any case of refusal can be proved to his satisfaction, he will certainly withhold any medals, etc., the offenders may have won. We interviewed one of the cage-makers concerned, and his version put a new light on the matter. He said: "It must be well known that the prices put on the cages are "cut" to the lowest selling limit. Yet we are prepared to execute orders at that price, but only if customers come to our place of business and take the cages away with them, which, of course, they have to do at the Palace. The price allows no margin for crates and for packing, yet customers who write enclose just the bare price, which, if we accepted, would entail us in a loss every time. If they will pay for a crate and packing, we are only too glad to fulfil their orders. Surely it is only reasonable that they should do so."

Our Visitors' Book.

Following are the names of those visitors to the show who signed CAGE BIRDS Visitors' Book: Revs. G. H. Raynor (Malden), and G. H. # The Cage Bird Union Annual Meeting.

The next item on the agenda was an amendment by Mr. McPartling, "that no non-affiliated exhibitor be eligible to compete for any special at affiliated shows."

This met with no support, and, no seconder being forthcoming, was not put to the meeting. In the course of the discussion, Mr. FREESTONE said he did not know whether Mr. McPartling had ever had any experience of canvassing for specials, but he could tell him from long personal experience that probably the majority were given for some specified class or section, or purpose, and it would be very unwise for them to interfere, especially if it meant acting contrary to the donor's intentions. It would, too, be most unfair so to interfere. Mr. TAYLOR (Gateshead) also gave it as his opinion that it was not for show officials to limit the scope of competition for prizes given gratuitously by other people.

Paignton C.B.S. moved an addition to the rule governing the fixing of show dates, "that a district committee be not empowered to alter a show fixture of recurring date."—Mr. HADWIN seconded this.

Mr. TAYLOR (Gateshead) asked whether this had not been taken into consideration during the past season? He also said that no doubt due care would be taken that the date chosen by a new society should not clash with that already utilised by an old-standing society.—Mr. LYTHGOE said that it was taken into consideration, as far as possible, during the past season.—Mr. PETERS instanced the case of a village show of long-standing—possibly a mixed show—having a date without any regard for the importance of neighbouring large towns. He said that his society (Coventry) had last season to give way to a mixed show (Burton F.S.), and then finally clash with Burton C.B.S., Birmingham, and the Horticultural Hall, which did them far more harm than if the original date had been adhered to. He thought these things should be left to the district committees, who were in a better position to judge. In many cases the size and scope of the respective societies would not be known at head-quarters.—Mr. LONGDEN said they had a lot of trouble in South Wales last year. Swansea, for instance, was allowed to clash with Bristol F.S. show. He held that the district committee should have the power to settle these things, and that their decisions should be adhered to.

Mr. LYTHGOE said the chief reason for this happening was the fact that many societies had sent in dates, which had been accepted, before the annual meeting had been held.—Mr. TYSON said that, even with fixing dates by the district committee, his society's show was allowed to fall on the same date as another on the south side of the Thames, only one and a-half miles from their own hall. He thought it would be better for the Executive Council to have the full dates and arrange the fixtures, and then submit them to the various district committees for confirmation.—Mr. MEADES asked, suppose a society has engaged hall and judge, how then? He did not think the Union should interfere. The members were the backbone of the show: they had to "pay the piper" to finance it; consequently, they should be left to run it in what they considered the best way in their own interests.—Mr. TAYLOR (Gateshead) thought it would be very unbusiness-like for any society to engage hall and judge before they had had the date confirmed.—Mr. MOORE said that there was such a demand for their own hall at Cambridge, that they were absolutely compelled to engage it a year ahead.—The proposition was then put to the meeting, and there was a tie (8 votes each way) at first, which the Chairman declined to accept, and asked the delegates to vote either one way or the other. On the second vote it was carried by 14 votes to 6.

Five Interesting Motions.

Next came five motions standing in the name of the Coventry O.S. The first two were opposed by the Bristol Fanciers' Association.

Motion (1) "That affiliated cage bird societies (those confined to cage birds only) have first choice of show dates."—This was seconded by Mr. Longden.

Mr. PETERS (Coventry), in supporting his society's proposition, said: "I may say that it was thought someone would suggest that societies be allowed to choose their own show dates, and take the risk of clashing, and failing that being carried, that this proposition was the only one consistent with the objects of the C.B.U., as its first and whole interest is for cage birds. The granting of show dates to affiliated and licensed shows in the order of application without any regard to the importance of, or long existence of, a society, works to the disadvantage of the cage bird Fancy; for, while small village mixed societies, only having a few classes for cage birds, can fix their show date, knowing nothing will clash with them, it is not so with societies in large towns, with a variety of entertainments, and consequent demand on suitable rooms.

Mr. HADWIN thought this would come hardly on those societies which catered almost solely for cage birds, but which had, say, a few classes for pigeons in their schedule. He knew several such societies in the North and North-West of England, and these, moreover, were among the first to cater for cage birds, and always catered for them thoroughly and properly. He instanced Whitehaven as one. He did not see what ground they had for interfering with such societies.—Mr. LYTHGOE said that Bristol F.A. protested very strongly against any such rule, instancing the many cups they offered, and classes, for cage birds.—On being put to the vote 17 voted for the proposition, and only 4 against.

Motion 2 was: "That show dates for mixed societies be not granted earlier than four months previous to the show."—Mr. Taylor (Gateshead) seconded.

In support, Mr. PETERS said: The reasons I have given for the first proposition equally apply to this one, and it is only the question of whether four months is too long or too short a time to fix. I do not wish to place any obstacle in the way of mixed societies, but I must reiterate that this is a Cage Bird Union.

Mr. LYTHGOE pointed out that they had a good many mixed societies affiliated, and who were good supporters of the Union and the Cage Bird Fancy. He thought this proposition cut much too hard.—Mr. HADWIN, also spoke strongly against it. He pointed out that many of the mixed societies promoted better cage bird shows than many of the purely cage bird societies.—The general feeling seemed strongly against this proposition, and in the end it was rejected by a practically unanimous vote.

Motion 3 read: "That affiliation or license be granted to mixed societies only on the condition that the mixed nature of the shows be advertised."

Mr. PETERS said: From the way shows are advertised it is sometimes difficult to know if it is a very mixed show, with cats, dogs, etc., where it frequently happens that the cage birds receive the scantiest of attention, the cages often being put insecure on the top of pens containing cats, poultry, etc., and for these reasons I think cage bird fanciers should be fully informed of the class of show to be held. Some fanciers, too, enter from the Fancy papers, never having seen a schedule at all. (A voice: Then they deserve all they get.)—Mr. LONGDEN seconded, and on being put to the vote, 11 were in favour of the proposition, and 9 against.

Motion No. 4 was: "That cages be staged higher than 6 feet from the floor."

Mr. PETERS said: That this rule is necessary must have been fully realised by all who have visited mixed shows, and also in some other cases where too small rooms have been engaged. I have seen birds staged seven, eight, nine, and even ten feet high—(laughter)—where it was impossible to see the show points of the birds or numbers on the labels, or properly feed and water the birds—the steward had to get a ladder to reach them.—Mr. TAYLOR, (Bristol), in seconding, said what he objected to was the way in which the birds were often staged on top of a lot of yelping dogs, or cats, poultry, rabbits, etc. If the executive would provide a separate room, or stage the birds apart at one end of the hall, there would not be so much objection taken to mixed shows.—On being put to the meeting, the proposition was carried unanimously

The Insurance Scheme.

Motion 5 read: "That 25 per cent. of the income of the C.B.U. be reserved to form a fund from which grants may be made to exhibitors losing their birds by theft or negligence to or from shows."

In support, Mr. PETERS said: The serious and often irreparable losses that occur from time to time to individual fanciers from no fault of their own, and the difficulty of fixing the blame on the culpable party, and the still greater difficulty of getting adequate, or any compensation, make it advisable for some fund to be formed, from which grants can be made. Insufficient as the 25 per cent. might be to pay full loss, it will be the commencement of an insurance fund that may be augmented in the way suggested by Mr. Hadwin, and lead to greater things. I would suggest that all claims be investigated, and held over until the end of the show season, and then for each claimant to be paid in full, if sufficient funds, and if not, an equal percentage on his loss, as far as the funds would allow, with the proviso that no claim be admitted for more than £10 for full claim or percentage. This proviso would place the small exhibitor on an equality with others in the way of compensation. This mutual assurance would not prevent anyone claiming for loss from the railway company or others. If Mr. Hadwin's suggestion is adopted, a larger amount than £10 might be fixed as the maximum amount on one claim.

Mr. HADWIN, we may say, suggested a rider to the effect that members of the Union pay a sum of 1s. annually, such to be added to the 25 per cent. of the Union's funds, to form an insurance fund, only such members as have contributed to benefit.

Mr. PETERS' proposition was seconded by Mr. McPartling.

In the discussion, Mr. HADWIN thought it would be impossible to compensate to £10; £2, he fancied, would be the limit. It might, too, be only a selling class bird worth 12s. 6d. He would prefer leaving the cases in the hands of the Council, any grants to be made at once, as a sovereign to a poor man at the beginning of the season might be better than two at the end.—Mr. PETERS pointed out that they would not pay all claims in full. They would only have a certain amount to lay out, and if there were many claims, they would pay a proportionate per centage only. If they could pay in full, however, they would. The birds, of course, would be valued; they would not necessarily be taken to be worth whatever the claimant liked to say was their value. He thought the C.B.U. should adopt some such scheme for the benefit of the Fancy, otherwise he thought it would gradually die out.

Several delegates thought the Union not in a position to undertake such a scheme at the moment, seeing they had sustained a loss on the past season's working, and still had medals to pay for; also that the scheme would be far from easy to work, and likely to lead to many bogus claims. As Mr. TYSON said: What was there to prevent a man sticking a dead bird into one of his cages and claiming it to be his Manchester or Nottingham or Palace winner?—Mr. HADWIN said he thought the majority of exhibitors would be quite willing to pay an extra shilling or so to the Union for the purpose of having his birds insured.

Mr. POPE moved that they confirmed the principle of the thing at that meeting, and left the further consideration of it to the Council.—Mr. TYLER seconded this, and Mr. Peters intimated that he was quite agreeable to leave the consideration of details to the Council. On being put, 17 voted for Mr. Pope's motion, and 7 against it. So it is now left to the Executive Council to draw up some scheme, or schemes, for insuring show birds when travelling about the country.

Then came the following three motions:—

By Mr. RAMSDEN: That the words "for decision" be substituted for the words commencing "and such reference, etc.," at end of Rule 19.—This was rejected.

By Mr. POPE: Suggested alteration of the Western Counties District, some societies in this district being 220 miles apart.—This was carried.

By Mr. HADWIN: To add to end of Rule 17 the words "though given at an open show."—This was carried.

The meeting next considered Mr. HADWIN's proposition: That affiliated members of the C.B.U. be allowed to exhibit at Yorkshire Union shows.

This met with strong support from several delegates, particularly Messrs. HADWIN, METCALFE, and FRANKS (who was the seconder). It also met with equally strong opposition, on principle, from others. It was thought that the "olive branch" had been very fairly held out, and that, regrettable though the present state of things was, the C.B.U. could not well take further steps, seeing how past endeavours had been met. The discussion got a trifle "heated" at times, so some of the things said are perhaps best left unrecorded.—Mr. BLADON expressed his personal regret that the two Unions could not come to some understanding, seeing that it was the professed aim of both to benefit and uplift the Fancy.—On being put to the vote, 14 voted against Mr. Hadwin's proposition, and 5 in favour, so that it was declared lost.

The next and last amendment was by Tideswell, C.B.I.S.: That where licences are granted to mixed shows, such shows must engage a Cage Bird judge.—This was carried.

Hearty votes of thanks to the chairman (Mr. Bladon) and the retiring secretary (Mr. Lythgoe) brought the lengthy proceedings to a close.

SINGING CONTESTS.

SHEFFIELD.

Linnet singing contest, held at the week-end at the Newmarket Hotel, Sheaf Street. Result: 1, Wainwright, 37 secs.; 2, Wilson, 35 secs.; 3, Palfreyman, 35 secs. There was a tie for second and third.—H. FENN, Sec.

PENDLEBURY.

Very successful Lark Singing Contest, held Feb. 6th, at Shepherd's Arms. Mr. F. Buckley had everything well in hand. The room was a good one. Mr. Buckley gave a handsome donation for every bird entered; 28 birds were entered. The prize-money was on the sliding scale. Mr. J. Mills' bird did most of the singing, it having won four contests lately. Another contest is proposed, but on the handicap terms. It was only bad luck that a good few did not sing the full 12 minutes. Mr. E. Royle was the judge. Awards: 1, Mills, 11.45; 2, Hall, 10.45; 3, Brown, 9.37; 4, Young, 9.27; 5, Morton, 7.44; 6, Almon, 7.10; 7, Hyde, 7.41; 8, Heaton, 6.10; 9, Lee, 5.50; 10, Smith, 5.35. Prize-money ran from 14/- 1st prize, to 1/- last. Timekeeper, Mr. T. Jones.—ALEX. DONNELLY.

YORK.

Usual weekly Linnet Singing Contest, held at the Crown Inn, North Street, when 24 birds competed for six prizes. Some very good singing was heard. Results: 1, Cole; 2, Massheda; 3, 5, Lee; 4, Kirby; 6, Lambert. Judge, Mr. W. Perry. Timekeeper, Mr. Cooper.—J. W. SMITH, Hon. Sec.

NEWTOWN (Leeds).

Usual week-end contest held on Saturday, February 6th, when 18 birds sang for three good prizes:—1, Wood: 2, Sellars; 3, Chippindale. Judges, Messrs. Jackson and Towers. On February 7th there was a very large entry for the time of year; 24 birds were hung up, and some very good singing was heard. 1, Smith; 2, Chippindale; 3, Farrar. Judges, Messrs. Jackson and Jennings. Timekeeper, Mr. G. Towers. —W. DEAN, hon. secretary.

BOLTON.

Linnet singing contest was held at the Railway Tavern, Boldon Colliery, on February 6th, when there were 38 entries and some good singing. First prize, splendid timepiece; 2nd, silver medal, gold centre. Winner, H. Tucker; 2, J. Bell; 3, W. White. Judge, Mr. R. Bailey. Timekeeper, Mr. W. Wooley. —G. ELLIOTT.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.

On February 6th a Linnet singing contest was held at the Dray Cart Inn, Seaham Harbour, when some splendid singing was heard. There were 48 birds. First, £1; 2nd, 10/-; 3rd, 5/-; 4th, 5/- Result: 1, 2, Showler; 3, Machin; 4, Mason. Judge, Mr. J. Cope (Rynope); timekeeper, Mr. P. McDonald; bookkeeper, Mr. T. Wilkinson, who gave every satisfaction.—G. ASHMORE.

YORK.

Usual weekly contest, held at Bricklayers' Arms, Palmer-lane. Hungate, on February 6th, when 24 birds entered for competition, and some excellent singing was heard. Result: 1, Oldroyd; 2, Nicholls; 3, Harrison; 4, Chaplin; 5, Laverick; 6, Andrews. Mr. Jno. Andrews officiated as judge; Mr. Jas. Limbert as timekeeper.—WM. EMPSON.

POPLAR.

At the Mariners' Arms, Grundy Street, Poplar, a free handicap was commenced on February 14th, when 13 pairs of birds entered. There was a great muster of fanciers. "Nigger" surprised those present by putting a splendid score of 12 and 14 to his credit. The final takes place on February 21st, when five pairs Chaffinches will sing off. "Tiger Bill," timekeeper.—J. CLARK.

METROPOLITAN C.B.A.

At their last meeting, February 11th, the minutes showed the confirmation of the election as members of Messrs Harwood, King, Allen, Simpson, Spillman, Hoyte, and Young. Messrs. Tibbs and Denham and Mrs. Harwood and Mrs Denham were nominated. Messrs. Norman, Spillman, Davis, Simpson, and Mabey were elected vice-presidents. The profit on the members' annual show was £3, and on the pair show a profit of 15/- was made. Owing to the absence of the Secretary, Mr. R. Dear, the meeting adjourned to February 25th.

SOUTHAMPTON O.S.

First meeting held at 273, Shirley-road, on Feb. 10th, when we commenced with a Goldfinch (Table) Show, and had 12 entries, and 12 better Finches it would be impossible to find at our big shows. Mr. Vine, an old and respected veteran in the Fancy, acted as judge. Those of us who can remember him half a century ago, are aware of his profound knowledge and experience as an all-round fancier. At 73 years of age he is still active. He gave us great satisfaction, although his task was difficult. The 1st prize was awarded to Mr W. G. Fellowes, but was pressed very closely by Mr. Hallett, who took 2nd, with a topper, good blaze, well put down, and in the pink of condition. Mr. Fellowes' bird was a Cheveril, beautiful bird, of good shape and carriage. The 3rd prize was also awarded to Mr. W. G. Fellowes. We had a most enjoyable evening under the presidency of our chairman, Mr. J. Newman. Mr. Clift (Shirley) gave us three prizes, in the shape of seed, for which we tendered our thanks. On Feb. 24th inst., a Bullfinch show is to be held, when some good prizes will be offered. Four gentlemen joined the society, which numbers now 10, and more have promised to join next time. Our old friend Mr. Staples, gave us a look in. Mr. Harvey offers a prize for the best Bullfinch.—CHARLES PARMITER, Sec.

THE SHOWS.

SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

At our meeting held on February 4th some splendid pairs were on view. Mr. R. Garnett judged the Yorkshires and Mr. J. Tow the Norwich.

YORKS. PAIRS: 1, Lindsay; 2, Bower; c, 3, Spencer; 4, Bingham; vhc, hc, Binge. NOR. PAIRS: 1, 2, Hemmings; 3, Lawry; 4, vhc, Woolhouse; hc, c, Tomlinson.—LINDSAY AND BINGHAM, hon. secretaries.

EASTFIELD SIDE C.B.F.S.

Monthly table show of stock pairs on Feb. 6. The birds were judged by Mr. G. Marshall (Huthwaite).

NOR. STOCK PAIRS: 1, 3, Smedley; 2, vhc, hc, Wright Bros. CREST: 1, Oshorne; 2, W. Nuttall; 3, vhc, R. Nuttall. YORKS.: 1, Athey. MULING: 1, Hawksley; 2, Wright Bros. After judging, which gave every satisfaction, the members sat down to a coffee supper, provided by the host and hostess. The rest of the evening was spent in singing, etc., by Messrs. F. Beardall, A. H. Wright, and J. Smedley. The secretary presided at the piano, all present spending a most enjoyable evening.—J. CARLIN, secretary.

NANTWICH.

This old-established fixture—the 48th annual one—took place in the Town Hall on Feb. 5 and 6. Cage birds were somewhat of a "frost," only totalling 35 in the eleven classes provided. Seven were cancelled. The committee are at a loss to understand this lack of support. We have seen some grand shows here in by-gone days. Competition, especially in Norwich, used to be exceptionally keen, but now not a Norwich was staged. That old local fancier, Mr. S. Williamson staged two nice Yorkics, capturing 1st and 3rd. Well done, Mr. W., you still know what is required to catch the judge's eye. Mr. F. Powell again held the secretarial reins, and left nothing to be desired in that capacity. Mr. J. N. Harrison placed the cards and gave entire satisfaction.

YORKS. (12): 1, 3, Williamson, leader very fine cl. buff, well drawn, good head and carriage, rare position, in good order, 3rd marked yell., nice length, well folded tail, lacked the finish of leader; 2, Cliff, very smart ticked yell., good shape, colour, and position; res, Brotherhood, fine ticked unflig. yell., close up; vhc, Henson; hc, Williams. CAN. A.O.V. cancelled. MULE (7): 1, Robinson, moderate variegated Can., rather small and might be better staged; 2, Palmer, very fine dark buff Goldie-Can., good size; 3, Palmer, very smart, heavily marked mealy Goldie-Can.; res, Griffiths; vhc, Williamson; hc, Bowen. LINNET, ETC. (9): 1, 2, Davies, two very fine Finches, well up in blaze and tanning, rare condition, good wing bars and very steady, not much to choose between them; 3, Dare, shapely Linnet, good colour and nicely pencilled; res, Robinson; vhc, Hopley; hc, Dare, Lawton, Peers. BULLFINCH cancelled. A.O.S. BRIT. cancelled. FOR. (7): 1, 3, P. V. Williams, leader grand green Toucan, in splendid feather, 3rd pair of Wood Swallows, in magnificent condition well shown; 2, Powell, very fine Amazon, very free talker; res, Jewes; vhc (2), Tomkinson. The three selling classes were cancelled.

TIVYSIDE.

Third annual open show of the Tivyside F.A. was held on Feb. 3rd at the Guildhall, which is one of the best rooms for the purpose in South Wales, being large, with plenty of light and free from draught. The entries were not half what they were last year, although the quality throughout was really good. Mr. G. W. Mathias, the hon. secretary, and his assistant, Mr. Tom Evans, were here, there and everywhere, ready and willing to oblige one and all, and the stewards, Messrs. D. J. Thomas, J. Davies, T. Davies, and L. Roberts, deserve great praise for the able way they staged the exhibits and looked after their wants. All birds were packed away by 5.35 p.m. mail. Mr. R. Bowker judged, and his awards gave general satisfaction.

NOR. P.H. (5): 1, Pudner Bros., good stout yell. of nice feather; 2, 3, Portman, two good birds of same stamp; 4, Morris; an even lot, not much between them. YORKS. CL., ETC., YELL. (7): 1, medal, 4, Portman, former beautiful cl., cone-shaped bird, well up on legs; 2, 3, Williams, also very good ones; vhc, Bennet; hc, Evans. BUFF (5): 1, Williams, long, straight bird and as hard as hoxwood;; 2, Bennet, nice exhibit; 3, 4, Portman; vhc, Evans; all five of tip-top quality. A.O.V.: 1, 2, Edwards, 1st good Crest, 2nd useful Crest-bred. LIGHT MULE OR HYB. ## WAKEFIELD.

The City of Wakefield O.S. held their second annual open show in the Social Institute, Market Place, on February 13th, Mr. J. N. Harrison (Belper) officiating as judge. The show was held under the rules of the Yorkshire Union, and was the concluding show for the trophies and medals offered for competition during the season. It was also under the patronage of the Yorkshire County B.B. and M.C., the latter's section coming up exceptionally well. In the Yorkshire section, Messrs. Ogden Bros. put down a strong team, and were successful in securing the special for most points throughout the show; whilst Messrs. Shackleton, Blackburn and Mitchell, Ogden Bros., Axe and Kaye were winners of specials for the various sections. Mr. P. Parker is very efficient in his duties as secretary, and had everything working as smooth as possible, and was well backed up by Messrs. Isherwood (chairman), Parkes (vice-chairman), C. T. Parkes (assistant secretary), Taylor, Atkinson, Jones, Netherwood, and Rothwell as stewards. The entries came up fairly well (except in Norwich novice classes, which were both cancelled), totalling 275, an average of nearly 14 per class—not bad, considering it was the eighteenth show of the season and only a few days after the Palace. British were a nice lot, averaging 15 in each of the five classes provided, the winning Waxwing coming in for a lot of praise. CAGE BIRDS' prizes were secured by Messrs. C. and C. T. Parkes, J. Chippindale, and Blackburn and Mitchell, the two latter tying for 2nd place.

UDDINGSTON, N.B.

The Uddingston and District Ornithological Society held their first annual show in the Royal Hall, The Cross, on February 6th. The show was a success. Office-bearers: Hon. president, Thos. Prentice, Esq.; president, John Kilpatrick; vice-president, P. M. Hood; secretary and treasurer, W. P. Campbell; committee, Messrs. W. Taylor, J. Porteous, H. Donnan, T. Hope, R. Young, A. Black, J. Junor, J. Nimmo, J. Shepherd, G. Glass, G. Munro, and J. Jenkins. The Royal Hall is conveniently situated and well adapted for show purposes, and Secretary Mr. W. P. Campbell, under whose generalship the arrangements were so well carried out, assisted by a committee of true fanciers, had everything done for the comfort of visitors and exhibits alike. Every detail was well in hand, which speaks well for bigger success in the future. There was an encouraging turnout of visitors, the hall being busy from the time of opening to the public till the close of the show. The cage bird section, which were judged by Mr. McDonald, of Glasgow, were a fair average lot, some good birds being staged including a few of the season's winners. The judging of this section was rather a heavy task, but Judge McDonald was equal to the occasion, and his awards gave general satisfaction. For best bird in British Mr. George McCulloch's Greenfinch was an easy first Mr. Thomas Prentice had a very fine Bullfinch, staged in perfect feather. The management are to be congratulated on their first show, which has proved a big success. Owing to an error in the allocation of the specials in one or two instances, only part of the specials awarded are noted.

CORK.

A record show in many respects was that held on Jan. 27 and 28, in the City Hall under the auspices of the Cork and Provincial C.B.S., it being the society's fourth annual show. Upwards of 430 birds were staged, this being a considerable increase on the number obtained the previous year. It was, in fact, the largest number of exhibits since the society's formation. The public patronised the show in considerable force, and the "gate" was a fairly good one. The exhibition was excellently managed by Messrs. M. O'Keefe and S. O' Reilly, who had everything in capital order, and were courteous and obliging to all. While these gentlemen remain at the helm there is small chance of any hitch occurring in the arrangements, and exhibitors, both local and other no doubt knew this when they sent their best birds to the show. They were ably supported by a strong and capable committee, who one and all are deserving of the highest praise. The quality of the exhibits was good, and in some of the classes tip-top. Mr H. W. Battye judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction.

Nests of birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

Signs of Spring.

Winter weather is still with us; the frost is keen enough to freeze all the small ponds and drinking places, and it is only at the running brooks that wild birds are able to obtain water during the day. In the early morning they do not need it, as they eat the rime, which is deposited so thickly upon the grass and other vegetation. Although some kind-hearted people are careful to keep a pan of water out in the garden, and to thaw it several times during the day, yet this is not at all necessary when there is the slightest snow upon the ground. Birds will eat this in preference to drinking water. It is in the hot, dry summer weather that the water supply should be regularly attended to, for wild birds need a plentiful supply when feeding young ones. One would think the cold, cutting, north-easterly winds which we have had day after day would drive all thoughts of housekeeping out of the heads of the most precocious of birds; but one can see signs of the advent of spring upon every hand. The weather is no more spring-like than it was a couple of months ago, but the daylight has increased considerably. It is this extra light that is affecting both the vegetable and animal kingdom. In the copse, the budding spring flowers may be detected some of them showing colour and others quite expanded, but looking terribly dowdy when fully exposed to the cold wind. The plaintive song of the Hedge Sparrow is much more frequently heard. It has increased in volume, and is longer sustained. He is no longer alone, but is accompanied by his intended partner for the season, both of them looking sleek and tight in feather. They may be seen frequently hunting among the evergreens and the gorse bushes at the edge of the downs. At the first break in the weather, the foundation of the snug little home will be laid, if it has not already been done in sheltered districts. The busy Starlings out on the grassland, although apparently only a gathering of birds, are really a collection of pairs. They have selected their partners some time ago, and when not feeding, may be seen searching the hollow places in the old walnut trees, or house-hunting up in the gables and round the water pipes of the dwellings in the village.

The Cuckoo's Migration.

In most species the young birds of the year migrate in advance of their parents, but with the Cuckoo it is different; the old birds have shifted the responsibility of rearing their offspring to the Wagtails, Pipits, etc., and having nothing to keep them longer in our woods and fields, make their way south, followed by the young birds several weeks after.

The Rain Goose.

The Black-throated Diver is known in the Highlands as the "Rain Goose." It is not common anywhere, and does not reproduce quickly. Nesting on the edge of some inland water, the eggs are frequently destroyed by the rising of the tide, although the old birds have been known to move them upon safer ground. The skin of the adult bird is highly valued in the far north for its beauty and warmth.

Rough on Fruit.

It is supposed that the depredations of birds in fruit plantations are considerably increased where game preserving is carried on in its immediate neighbourhood. The cause is not far to seek, for birds of prey of all kinds are ruthlessly destroyed. Besides the Hawks, the gamekeeper carefully watches the doings of Crows, Magpies and Jays. All these at times prey upon young birds, and during the breeding season rob the nests of Sparrows, Finches, Blackbirds, Starlings, etc., and others that injure the fruit crop.

LONDON FEDERATION OF CAGE BIRD SOCIETIES.

A meeting of the Council of the Federation was held on February 11th, at "The Feathers," Great Chapel-street, Westminster, Mr. H. E. Tringham (Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S.), presiding. There were also present, Messrs. R. L. Crisp and A. C. Burn (City and Suburban A.C.B.), H. W. Cook (Poplar and Dist. C.B.S.), F. W. Hamer (Greenwich and Deptford C.B.S.), H. Smith and J. Carson (Wimbledon and Dist. C.B.S.), C. R. Carr and C. H. Cooper (Leyton and Dist. C.B.S.), W. J. Honeysett (Battersea and Dist. C.B.S.), W. Hodson (Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S.), H. T. Newman (Plumstead and Woolwich C.B.S.), H. J. Pearce and F. W. Thorpe (London and Counties O.A.), J. Dewhurst and G. Turner (West London F.A.), E. S. Lugg (Lewisham and Dist. C.B.S.), A. Boxall and W. H. Mugford (London C.B.A.), and P. Adamthwaite, sec.

In announcing the result of the election of officers, the SECRETARY stated that 13 voting papers had been sent out, and 11 returned, one being disqualified. The confirmation of this election resulted as follows: Chairman, Mr. H. E. Tringham; vice-chairman, Mr. R. L. Crisp; trustees, Messrs. A. C. Burn and J. Dewhurst; auditors, Messrs. Mugford and Cook; hon. secretary, Mr. P. Adamthwaite, 142, Fernhead-road, Maida Hill, London, W., whose election was received with loud applause. The appointment of a treasurer was a matter left entirely to the Council, and Mr. F. W. Thorpe was elected. The secretary, in announcing the result of the last canvass, stated that five more societies had joined the Federation, bringing the total number up to fourteen. The next business was the consideration of the draft standing orders of Council. The CHAIRMAN read these out, commenting on each. They were drawn up, he said, for the guidance of the Council in the conduct of its meetings. These standing orders were adopted on the motion of Mr. H. W. COOK, seconded by Mr. E. S. LUGG. In reply to a question by Mr. Thorpe, the Chairman stated that the standing orders could be altered at any time by the decision of the Council, the secretary adding that they could also be suspended at any time, if necessary. Mr. CRISP moved and Mr. HONEYSETT seconded, "that each member of the Council have a printed copy of the standing orders sent to him for his use, and that should a delegate resign his position, the standing orders be handed over to his successor or deputy as the case may be." This was carried.

The fixing of a levy to be paid by the affiliated societies was the next business. The SECRETARY stated that when it was suggested at the previous meeting of the delegates that the levy should be only one penny per member, he did not think the initial expenses of the Federation had been taken into consideration, and if the Council could see their way to make the levy, say, twopence per member, for the first year, he saw no reason why in future years, the levy should exceed a penny. The expenses in connection with the formation of the Federation were considerable. It was, he might say, owing to Mr. Crisp's generosity that they had been enabled to do what they had done. (Applause.) Mr. BURN proposed that application be made to the affiliated societies for one penny per member for initial expenses, and one penny per member annual levy; Mr. COOPER seconded the motion. Mr. CRISP suggested that the better way might be to ask the societies to contribute something voluntarily towards defraying the initial expenses, but Mr. COOK thought the matter should be clinched at once, and the amount decided on. Mr. DEWHURST agreed with Mr. Crisp, and said he was inclined to think that the Council were likely to receive more by this means than by means of the enforced penny per member. Mr. HONEYSETT thought the original plan the better. If they were going to make the Federation a kind of charitable institution—well, he had found the general run of fanciers rather the other way inclined. Mr. CARR said that would be better so far as his (the Leyton and District) society was concerned, to have a fixed charge. The motion was altered to read: "That the levy per member be one penny for the ensuing year, and that it be pointed out to each society that one penny per member is asked for, for the purpose of defraying the initial expenses of the Federation, but is not enforced." This was carried.

The SECRETARY drew attention to a case submitted to the Council by Mr. J. A. Simpson, with reference to the loss of birds in transit, Mr. Simpson claiming the protection of the Federation in a grievance he had against a certain railway company. In November last, the secretary pointed out, Mr. Simpson sent a bird to a man residing in a Midland town. Mr. Simpson put the value of the bird down as £2. The train was due to leave London at 5.46 p.m. on the Saturday, and to arrive at its destination at 9.30 p.m. Mr. Simpson got to the station at a little after 5 o'clock, in order to make sure the bird would be dispatched by that particular train. The man for whom the bird was intended met the train at the appointed time, but the bird was not to be found. He met several other trains, and waited up till the small hours of the morning. The bird was found by him in the booking office on the Sunday at 12 o'clock noon; it was then more dead than alive, and died a few hours later. Mr. Simpson's contention was that here was a clear case of neglect on the part of the railway company. He had written to the company claiming damages, and the company had undertaken to pay 5s., which was, they said, the full amount for which they could be held responsible.—Mr. LUGG: Has Mr. Simpson accepted the five shillings?—The CHAIRMAN: No; the matter remains unsettled.—Mr. HONEYSETT: What could the Federation possibly do, seeing it only affects London societies?—The CHAIRMAN: Mr. Simpson is a member of the Federation, and is entitled to our protection.—Mr. ADAMTHWAITE: He claims that protection under Rule 6, which provides, among other things, for the prosecution of railway companies and others for negligence of birds in transit. Mr. CRISP asked whether Mr. Simpson had signed the usual form, so as to provide against loss "from whatever cause." The Council should understand they were treading on dangerous ground. Once they began a case against the railway company, they would have to go on with it, and the question now was whether or not the case could be fought on the plea of negligence. Besides, if the company did lose the day, the railway companies would probably combine and take the case to the House of Lords. What then? So that the question before the Council was: Did Mr. Simpson say on the form "from whatever cause"? If so, he (the speaker) was inclined to think Mr. Simpson had no case against the company.

The CHAIRMAN here read the declaration on the form issued by this particular company, which had to be signed by anyone sending "live goods" anywhere, and in it were the words—"The company will not in any case be responsible beyond the following amounts . . . 5s. for poultry or other birds."—Mr. THORPE: If my memory serve me right, that bye-law has been over-ridden before now. The companies can make by-laws, but these are not Acts of Parliament. It was proved in a certain case he remembered, that a dog was lost by the direct negligence of a railway company, and this company lost the day. What was the bird doing between the time of its arrival at the London booking office and 12 o'clock on the Sunday? It was a case of gross negligence on the part of the company; that was all they could call it. Mr. HONEYSETT: I cannot see what the Federation can do. If you go to the County Court, they will throw you out, and you may spend hundreds of pounds in your case, and not get one in return.—Mr. BURN: Has Mr. Simpson any proof that the bird was left in the booking office all night? Or can he say whether it was kept in the London station all night, and sent off by a morning train?—Mr. ADAMTHWAITE: Mr. Simpson does not care where it was left; he only says he knows it is a case of neglect on the part of the railway company. For all he knows the bird might have travelled to its intended destination, back again to London, and then been forwarded a second time.

Mr. THORPE proposed that the matter be referred to the secretary, and that he be empowered to write the company in the name of the Federation. When the company saw that the matter had been moved in, they might wake up a bit. Here was something for the Federation to do; let them do it and show that they were alive. (Hear, hear.) Mr. LUGG seconded the motion. Mr. CRISP moved an amendment to the effect that counsel's opinion be taken on the matter. They would be putting the cart before the horse if, when they took the matter up, they did not have the law on their side. Mr. BURN did not think a letter from the secretary would be taken any notice of at all. What they should show was fight. Mr. MUGFORD here stated that he would take a solicitor's opinion on the matter, and if necessary counsel's opinion. On the motion of Mr. BURN seconded by Mr. HODSON, it was decided to appoint a committee of four, including Mr. Mugford, and to give them power to take action.

Mr. CRISP gave notice of motion that he would raise the question at the next meeting as to whether in the event of a member passing in one society from the amateur section to the champion, he should be allowed in another society to revert to the amateur section. It was decided to issue a balance-sheet at the end of the year, and that same be read at the annual meeting prior to the election of officers. Mr. HONEYSETT gave notice of motion: "That medals be granted by the Federation to be competed for at open shows. Mr. CRISP referred to the advisability of instituting a scheme for the insurance of birds in transit, but the matter was deferred. A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the meeting.

PENDLEBURY, SWINTON & DIS. C.S

Weekly meeting held on Feb. 4, the president, Mr. F. Fish, in the chair. It was decided that we hold meetings every Thursday night at 7.30 instead of at 8 o'clock. There was a good attendance, and we keep adding new members each week. It was decided to have a table show of British birds on Feb. 18, with Mr. Alex. Donnelly as judge. Friends and fanciers are invited. There will also be a discussion on the different birds shown.—ALEX. DONNELLY, Sec.

CINNAMON MARKED YORKS. C.C.

The following are the results of the various competitions held in connection with the club. Anyone not agreeing with these figures will please communicate at once with H. H. Towers, the acting secretary, Heaton View, Cragg-rd., Shipley:—Open competition: Ramsden's special and 1st prize, Ogden Bros., 120 points; 2, Albert Cooper, 110; 3, R. Sutcliffe and Son, 90; 4, J. Wilcock, 82; 5 and 6, A. Jowett and H. H. Towers, 76. CAGE BIRDS' Competition: 1, H. H. Towers, 76 points; 2, P. Drake and Son, 64; 3, F. Fawcett, 47. Novice Competition: Ramsden's special and 1st prize, P. Drake and Son, 64 points; 2, F. Fawcett, 47; 3, A. Frankland, 27; and 4, F. Gelder, 15.—H. H. TOWERS.

ROCHDALE (Good Intent) C.B.S.

Table show of Norwich and Yorkshire pairs, held on February 3rd. It passed off fairly well. Five pairs of Yorkshires and four pairs of Norwich were staged. Mr. Clayton placed the Yorkshires, and Mr. Banks those in the Norwich. The awards gave satisfaction. In the Yorkshires Mr. E. Faulkner took 1st and Mr. W. Leach 2nd. In the Norwich Mr. J. Lees took 1st and 2nd. A little discussion took place after on one or two different pairs. After this we decided to have our annual ramble on the third Sunday in May, and that our destination be fixed later. —FRED. RAYNER, Hon. Sec.

DARLINGTON C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held at the Half Moon Hotel, on February 3rd, when the balance-sheet for 1908 was read, showing a substantial balance to carry forward. It was arranged to hold a table show of breeding pairs on March 3rd. Classification: Yorkshires, Norwich, A.O.V., Muling and Hybrid Pairs. It was also decided that we have another table show on March 31st for British and Foreign Birds. Our show date has been fixed for November 27th. Our annual smoking concert is down for February 17th at 8 p.m., when we shall be pleased to meet fellow fanciers. At this meeting special prizes were allotted for the coming table shows, and our society this year will endeavour to make the programme specially interesting to novice fanciers.—W. UNDERWOOD, Assist. Secretary.

HYDE AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

The most successful of all our meetings was held on January 30th, twenty-three members being in attendance, besides a number of prospective members. We made four new members, making the total for this year 14, the grand total being 29, which bespeaks the interest taken in cage birds in and around the district. Our table show of matched pairs was highly successful, a good number of exhibits being staged. Messrs. Marlor and Son were 1st with a splendidly-matched pair of Norwich, Mr. H. Foden coming 2nd with a well-matched pair of Yorkshires, and Mr. R. Webber 3rd with a Goldfinch cock and a Greenfinch hen. Numerous questions were asked by the young members, and these were answered to their satisfaction. The judge was Mr. F. Barraclough. We are holding another table show shortly, which will be duly notified through CAGE BIRDS.—FRED BARRACLOUGH, sec.

SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT C.B.S

Monthly meeting held at the Wentworth Cafe, on February 4th, under the Presidency of Mr. A. Bradshaw. A very large number of members were present. After the business, which proved an enthusiastic and unanimous support of the arrangements that had been made by the committee for the holding of members' shows, also the selection of judges for the annual open show, a very successful show for matched pairs for breeding was held. Mr. R. Garnett placed the cards in the Yorkshire class, and Mr. T. Low those in the Norwich. Mr. Garnett also gave a very instructive and interesting discourse on the good and bad properties in each pair, and his reason for placing them in the position he did. Mr. T. Hemmings also commented on the Norwich class in a very able manner. An enjoyable and successful meeting was brought to a close, with a vote of thanks to Messrs. Garnett and Low.—LINDSAY and BINGHAM, Secretaries.

£25 REWARD

What passed muster 18 years ago is obsolete to-day, and it's Pearson's methods of "selection" and "wiring" that have brought this about. Will people who throw out challenges confine them to the last three years since Pearson's "Unbreakable" husk nests have been on the market. Buyers, don't be bluffed. Try before you buy, and as proof of what I think of my husks and workmanship I will send all orders of one dozen upwards on approval before payment; or two husks or shells, carriage paid, for 1/-. Then note my prices. Husks or shells, suitable for smallest Finches or largest Parrakeets, 2/-, 4/-, 6/- dozen; Cockatiel box nests, 1/-; superior and varnished, 1/0. I am the only nest manufacturer advertising them all the year round. I sell more in the winter than some claim to do in the spring.—Pearson, Wholesale Cokernut Merchant, Greenwich Market.

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four week's trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us, and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard.

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. MINIMUM, 12 words, 4d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

A. E. SILK'S Champion Norwich.
Silks' strain has proved itself worth more to the breeder of Norwich Plainheads than any other. Let it prove its worth to you. Silks' champion strain was introduced to the fancy more than 20 years ago. Twenty years ago fanciers bought Silks' Champion Norwich, because they knew exactly what they were getting; they wanted quality they could depend on, just as they do to-day. Silks' Champion Norwich are the finest and best obtainable, and at a moderate price. Silks' Champion Norwich are winning year by year on the show bench in keenest competition; see show reports. The secret of success is Silks' Champion strain; bouncing pairs, 15/6, 20/6, 25/6, 30/6, 35/6, 40/6, 45/6, 50/6. In the whole faucy there is positively no such value; single cocks and hens, yellow and buff, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/6, 25/6, 30/6 each. Compare size, quality and price with any others; approval willingly.—Note the name: A. E. Silk, Whitstable.

A PRACTICAL TEST.

In order to prove to you without the shadow of a doubt who is the best man to supply you with Roller Canaries, I invite you to have one from me on a week's trial. Test it side by side with one at a higher price from elsewhere, and if mine is not far better value, return it and I will refund every penny of your money. I claim to be the largest retailer of Rollers in the United Kingdom, and this trade has been built up solely by the merit of the birds. I have an enormous stock of pure St. Andreasburg Rollers direct from Leipzig, and all in full song, day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, soft roulades, water bubble runs, piccolo trills, jug-jug of Nightingale, bell, harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and all warranted entirely free from Titlark or any other objectionable notes whatever; price 6/6 to 7/6 each. Premier Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass and hollow bell rolls, 10/- and 12/6 each. Genuine Seifert contest masters, fit for contesting immediately, 15/-, 17/6, and 21/- each. Leipzig Roller hens, 2/6 each, 4/6 couple; Seifert Roller hens, 3/- and 4/- each. I also have in stock 500 grand loud, free-singing Hartz cocks, every one guaranteed in full vigorous song, all real ceiling-lifters, 4/6 each, seven 28/-; Hartz hens 2/- each, 3/6 couple, 16/- dozen. Roller song cabinets, with folding doors, 2/6 each. Ordinary singing box cages, 1/-, 1/2, 1/4, 1/9, and 2/- each. All sent on full week's trial at my risk, either on receipt of cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and money refunded in full if perfect satisfaction not given. Following letters are entirely unsolicited, and have never before been published. Full address given in each case and all open to inspection any time:—"108, Capstone-road, Springbourne, Bournemouth. Feb. 15th. Sir,—Received Hartz cocks safe. Both are singing well and quite satisfactory. Yours, B. Mackett." "9, Ridley's Buildings, Frosterley. Feb. 10th. Sir,—Birds arrived safe; quite a treat and real beauties. Yours, G. Boon." "St. Albans Buildings, Windy Nook, Gateshead. Sir,—Bird arrived in good condition; he is a first-rate singer. Yours, W. Stephenson." "25, Green Bank-street, Preston. Feb. 13th. Sir,—Please send two Roller hens to pair with Bandmaster I got from you in December. He is a champion. An old breeder of singing birds in the sixties, seventies, and eighties heard it sing its song through and was delighted. 'Theer,' he said, 'that's ow reet; he hesent a wrong note if tha paid 25 bob for one tha wouldn't get a better,' and I believe him. Thanking you for selection and honest dealing. Yours, T. Arkwright." "143, Woodstreet, Elton, near Bury. Sir,—The Seifert Roller is a champion; it commenced singing soon as unpacked. I shall send for two more next week. Yours, W. Hardman." "23, Portland-street, Southamptou. Feb. 13th. Sir,—It's impossible to improve upon your Canaries. Please send following. Yours, W. Mouncher." "99, West End-terrace, Aldershot. February 13th. Sir,—Hartz Canaries arrived safe and cock commenced singing as soon as unpacked. I am very pleased and am recommending you to friends. Yours, T. Marshall." "26, Marine-street, Llanelly. Feb. 12th. Sir,—Received bird and am well pleased with it. Thanks for prompt delivery. Yours, D. Griffiths." "89, Heatheote-road, Miles Green. Feb. 11th. Sir,—Roller arrived safe. You will know I am satisfied because I am sending herewith P.O. for another. Yours, D. Scott." "31, Whitaker-street, Rose Hill, Derby. Feb. 11th. Sir,—The two Rollers arrived safe and I am much obliged for your promptness. They both give me satisfaction. Yours, W. Barnett." "5, Whitecross-square, Cheltenham. Feb. 11th. Sir,—Seifert Roller sent on 3rd proved very satisfactory. It is a lovely songster. Yours, W. Pounsett." "30, Belmont-road, Luton. Feb. 1st. Sir,—Many thanks for Roller sent last week, which meets my requirements exactly; just the bird I wanted. I think you have tried hard to please me and have succeeded in doing so. Again thanking you for manner in which you have treated me all through. Yours, J. Morris." "9, Queen-street, Consett. February 10th. Sir,—Hartz cock arrived safe and commenced singing immediately. I am well pleased. Yours, T. Kelly." "1, Tithenham-street, Westhoughton, near Bolton. February 10th. Sir,—Birds arrived in good condition and am well satisfied at so cheap a price. Singing before unpacked and singing yet. Yours, S. Woodward." "27, Camhrian-place, Carmarthen. Feb. 9th. Sir,—Seifert cock I like very much. Thanks for sending such a good healthy bird and capital songster. Yours, W. Evans." "235, Firs-lane, Leigh. Feb. 9th. Sir,—Roller arrived safe and started singing soon as unpacked. I am very pleased with it and shall send for more in few weeks. Yours, J. Cowburn." "11, St. Ann-street, Stoke. Sir,—Lcipzig Roller gives me every satisfaction. I am well pleased. Please send box cage. Yours, F. Emerton." "11, Yorkshire-street, Glasgow. Sir,—Please send following. The Hartz cock you sent a month ago turned out fine. He is singing away grand. Yours, J. Gardner." "Leeds, Feb. 14th. Sir,—Thanks for Seifert, which is a champion. Expect to send for another next week, so save another good Seifert at same price. Yours, William Harnshaw." "Dean-street, Oakham, February 8th. Sir,—Please send Roller hen to mate with cock I had last season. He is a champion. Yours, T. Carter." "75, Pentwyn-avenue, Penrhiweeiber. Feb. 8th. Sir,—Roller and Linnets arrived safe. I am perfectly pleased with them and shall certainly send to you for more. Thanking you for quick dispatch. Yours, G. Mills." "10, Horsemarket, Wrexham, Feb. 5th. Sir,—Please send another Bandmaster. I am delighted with last two from you. Yours, E Dutton." ## RIGHT THROUGH.

You can read all the claims, and you may or you may not believe them; but if you will allow me to send One or One Pair of mine on approval against any others advertised, at any of the following prices, I shall feel obliged. That's making it actions in place of words.

I have some of the best extant winners at large open shows, cocks and hens, proof given, when where and won, who shown by etc. as I imitate no-one, and despise fairy tales (plainly speaking, untruths), and all those who make them. I can show my winners to anyone or send on approval, as I do not make myself into a mere gas-bag, full of pin-pricks, nor trade under a false name, for that is what I call stooping to a low level indeed. Cocks, 5/6, 6/6 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; Hens, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-. Pairs matched for breeding, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards. Cages 3d. extra.

W. RUDD, BIRD SPECIALIST, NORWICH.

F. MURGATROYD

(late Murgatroyd and Son), over 20 years' breeders of Champion Yorkshires, winners bred and sold from this strain year after year; have some real good ones for disposal; pairs properly matched, 15/- upwards; satisfaction guaranteed; approval.—35, Lytton-rd., Girlington, Bradford.

G. W. CUTHBERTSON

Broughton's Yorkshires.

Seven pairs matched as I should breed with them myself, sacrifice to clear, 12/6 pair; yellow cocks, 7-inch long, 21/-.—Stump, "Westholme," Bourne-st., Wilmslow.

YORKSHIRES.

HAVING selected our breeding stock, we have for disposal about 100 birds; no better strain in the county, and every bird bred in our own rooms; pairs, properly matched for breeding, from 12/6 upwards; approval.—Greaves and Crabtree, 279, Hollings-rd., and 16, Lytton-rd., Bradford.

"Champion Winning Strain."

See show reports Palace, and all through show season. Some real clinking stock birds left with plenty of length and possessing that bit of breed that produces winners Just one testimonial out of hundreds received recently from highly satisfied customers.

26, Allen Street, Douglas. Feb. 22, 1909.—I received the birds safe and in grand condition. They are a pair of beauties, and I ought to breed some good youngsters from them. The cock has been singing most of the day. If intending purchasers would deal with a man like you, I am sure they would be more than satisfied. I was speaking to a man who got some birds from you a short while ago, and he said I was dealing with the straightest man in the fancy; which speaks well for you. Thanking you very much, and I shall recommend you to all I know in want of birds. — L. Gale to L. Dykes.

Long stylish yellow cocks, at 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each; extra large good feathered buff cocks at 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each; all on full song and standard length; grand racy tight feathered yellow hens at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6; long slim buff hens at 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6; all ready for immediate breeding; specially selected pairs at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- per pair; all carefully and accurately mated to breed winners. Clears, ticked, green marked, cin. marked and clear pink-eyed. Colour fed to perfection, or natural colour, and all in tip-top form; no frills, drop tails, or wheezing rubbish here; and all cold room bred and kept; inspection invited, and then judge for yourselves the statements made by various advertisers.

Large cobby Norwich, Sandiford's and Cooper's strains, cocks at 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; extra large hens at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6 each; matched pairs at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- per pair; in clears, ticks, marked and whole cinnamons, grand collection of high-class Crests, possessing an abundance of feather, and extra good crests, at 15/-, 20/-, 25/6, 30/- per pair; specially selected Yorkshire or Norwich songsters, day and gaslight singers, at 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6 each.

Large Sib. bred hens for light or dark muling, at 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6 each.

Place your orders with the old reliable breeder, exhibitor and judge, and don't be misled by advertisers whose adverts. are full of empty bounce, and who have never bred a winner, and have never even possessed one.

REMEMBER.—I give you a fair trial off my birds; deposit your money with Editor and have on a full week's approval at my risk; and don't buy anything unseen; I have received scores of deposits and never had any to return. (Editor holds proof.) What better proof can I give you of the quality I send out.

Illustrated price list post free. Easy payments arranged for fanciers who are not in a position to pay ready cash; and birds sent off at once on receiving first payment. All on 7 days' approval at my risk. Travelling cages 3d. extra on all orders.

HUDSON'S CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

In reply to many customers inquiring about birds being ready, all my birds are hard and fit for breeding, and in good condition, and I can recommend to them who want to breed own winners, as they are all bred from or related to winners at all leading shows: Shipley, Windhill, Bingley, Baildon, Bradford, and others too numerous to mention, including Palace. And remember, I want no man's money who does not purchase satisfactorily. My stock includes clears, ticked, green-marked, and few cinnamon-marked. Long, raking Yellow cocks, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; long, raking Buff cocks, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; few songsters, 6/- each; long Yellow hens, 6/-, 8/-, 10/- each; long Buff hens, 6/-, 8/-, 10/- each; my special matched pairs cannot be beaten by them who have all the bounce; pairs, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, £1, £1 5s.; all on four days' approval; cash or deposit; stamp reply.—Hudson, Confectioner, Thackley, Bradford.

GENUINE PROOF

who has the (oftentimes told) best stock in Yorkshire; having done what no other fancier has done, winning the championship in both Y.C.C. (Ramsden six guineas), and C.M.Y.C.C., this making it our third time in succession winning 1st prize in cinnamon-marked competition; also winning Ramsden special for most points at all Yorkshire Union shows, and running second for the Yorkshire Union 30 guineas trophy, only losing by two points, counting 326 points with only 3 birds to count, and 3rd place in the G.C.C. 20 guineas cup, finishing up with more 1sts at Crystal Palace than any other exhibitor; three 1sts and diploma for best cinnamon-marked Yorkshire in show, this making it our 3rd time in succession, winning 1st prize in C.M. competition. Now that shows are over, we have for sale several absolute winners that have helped to win these competitions; as it is impossible for us to breed with them all; stamp for particulars.—Dudley Hill, Bradford.

CHITTENDEN'S YORKSHIRES

have won at Horton, Darlington, Derby, Sandy Lane, Queensbury, York, Bradford City, Manningham, and many other leading shows. See reports. My wins are not on paper only, but wins in reality, in the keenest competition, for length, style, position, and quality they cannot be beaten. To convince you, I will send any of my birds on seven days' approval at prices that will suit all pockets.

My matched pairs, to breed own winners, are marvellous value at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; Yellow cocks, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; Buff cocks, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6. These birds are feathered to perfection, and on full song, and fit to pair up at once, of standard length, and good in type and position. Yellow or Buff, long, racy hens, the right sort to breed own winners from, as used by all the best breeders, from 4/-, 5/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, in clears, Green, or Cinnamon-marked. Please state when ordering which is preferred. Also good typical Norwich at 8/6, 10/6, 12/- pair; single cocks or hens at reasonable prices.—108, Bolton Hall-rd., Bolton Woods, Bradford.

The Y.W. Challenge Trophy 1908-9.
The H. W.N. Challenge Cup 1908-9.

At Crystal Palace my birds have won first prize in every Yorkshire class (except Greens), in three years combined I also won at Crystal Palace in two successive years more firsts, medals, and special prizes than all other exhibitors put together during the same period. I state facts that can be easily verified, and not wild exaggerated bounce to catch the inexperienced fancier.

My birds come to the front year after year as regularly as the day dawns, which is ample proof that this is the most pure and reliable strain of the present day. The chief characteristics of my strain are length, position, style, length of leg, and superlative quality of feather, combined with plenty of nerve, which is such an essential quality in a really high-class Yorkshire.

To those who wish to breed their own winners, now is your opportunity, as all birds are in perfect health and condition and cold room bred. Three days' approval. Stamped address for particulars.

DO YOU WANT TO BREED FOR SHOW?
DO YOU WANT TO BREED FOR PROFIT?
DO YOU WANT TO BREED AS A HOBBY?
DO YOU WANT TO BREED SONGSTERS?

Whichever it is I can put you on the right road straight away, and give better value than any other person in the trade, out of the trade, or by the so-called private persons, the veiled males calling themselves females, and all the rest of the mystics. But do not mistake this fact: I do not profess to give the value of pounds for shillings. I leave that to the professional copyists.

I profess only what I can perform.

See my advertisements under various headings, and kindly note prices. If you cannot see exactly what you require, please send stamp and state wants, when you shall receive my best personal attention.

BEGINNERS: — If you cannot afford a big price send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this: —In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two Buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other Yellow. Travelling Cage 3d. extra. Then for 3/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage fitted with everything complete for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage 12/3 for 8/6 Birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 Birds. But, I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout and the price is only 5/-.

A few pairs of Norwich or Hartz Mountain Rollers for breeding Songsters at 7/6 per pair. All Birds on Approval.

To the experienced—Send for good high-class Cocks or Hens at 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/- each.

To Others:—Try these—

My special matched pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 30/-; Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Lancashires 25/-, 30/-, 40/-; Cinnamons, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Lizards, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Border Fancies, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6. These are the best value ever offered. For all others see positively free illustrated list and easy payment system.

Songsters. Thousands now on hand, specially selected, not haphazard birds, quality sent to each, according to price sent, and in all cases the best I can do, and what I cannot do in this line, no other man (or fictitious trader) can in the world. Norwich, Yorkshires, Mules (Goldfinch, Linnet, or Siskin). Note prices:—7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-.

Of course, if you want the usual lowest priced birds always called the best, but which common sense must tell you are not, I have them as low as 4/6 and 5/-.

Travelling cages, with proper food and nourishment for journey, 3d. extra on all above prices.

ASTHMARINE, the most infallible cure for Asthma and other Lung affections in all classes of the Feathered tribe, 9d. and 2/6 bottle. It is not a "cure all," but a genuine, and the only, real remedy for Asthma.

ECCERTINE, the acknowledged best Egg Food, and with by far the largest sale, 1/3 and 2/6 per tin. This will bring breeding hens into condition as no imitation ever did, or ever will. Made from NEW LAID English eggs, not preserved Foreign rubbish. Send for Analytical Report.

Norwich Golden Bloom Tonic Drops will quickly get old or young birds into condition and give a natural gloss, 9d. and 2/6, all post free.

I have used nothing else myself since I introduced the above articles not for any one bird out of all the Millions that have passed through my hands.
